Chicago, Nov. 9.—Late election returns from various states clear up some of the uncertainty apparent in the first reports.

In Massachusetts Governor Eugene N. Foss, Democrat, will be head of the state for another year, but he will, as in the past, be surrounded by Republican state officials.

Returns from New Mexico indicate a triumph for the Democratic party. This was the first election held in New Mexico, which is a new state. The Republicans, however, still hope to control the legislature and elect the two United States senators.

In Maryland the returns came in slowly. The election of Phillips Lee Goldsborough, Republican, as governor, is apparent.

There were reversals in the states of Kentucky and Ohio. In the former state majorities were given to practically all the Democratic candidates and James Bennett McCreary was elected governor by over 30,000. The state legislature will have a Democratic majority of probably eighty-five, sufficient to secure the election to the United States senate of Ollie James.

Municipal elections in Ohio resulted in the election of George J. Karb, Democrat, as mayor of Columbus. Democratic mayors in Cincinnati and Cleveland also were elected.

Two states, New York and New Jersey, replaced Democratic assemblies with Republican. New York elected an assembly that will have a Republican majority greater than the present Democratic majority in the lower branch of the legislature.

Socialist gains marked the elections and gave that party power in districts where heretofore it had been unable to muster a counting vote.

SIX TALESMEN IN JURY BOX

Fifth Venire Has Been Exhausted in McNamara Case.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 14.—Six talesmen accepted as to cause and three sworn jurors were in the box at the close of the session of the James B. McNamara trial.

Five venires have been exhausted and another of forty men was drawn and instructed to report. The list contains the name of Milo A. Baker, vice president and superintendent of the Baker iron works, which is doing the structural steel work of the new Los Angeles Times building, and against which a strike called by the International Bridge and Structural Iron Workers is officially in progress. This is the organization of which John J. McNamara, jointly indicted with his brother, James B., is secretary.

ACTUAL STARVATION.

Facts About Indigestion and Its Relief That Should Interest You.

Although Indigestion and Dyspepsia are so prevalent, most people do not thoroughly understand their cause and cure. There is no reason why most people should not eat anything they desire—if they will only chew it carefully and thoroughly. Many actually starve themselves into sickness through fear of eating every good-looking, good-smelling, and good-tasting food, because it does not agree with them.

We believe we can relieve Dyspepsia. We are so confident of this fact that we guarantee and promise to supply the medicine free of all cost to every one who will use it, who is not perfectly satisfied with the results which it produces. We exact no promises, and put no one under any obligation whatever. Surely, nothing could be fairer. We are located right here and our reputation should be sufficient assurance of the genuineness of our offer.

We want every one troubled with Indigestion or Dyspepsia in any form to come to our store and buy a box of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets. Take them home and give them a reasonable trial, according to directions. Then, if not satisfied, come to us and get your money back. They are very pleasant to take; they aid to soothe the irritable stomach, to strengthen and invigorate the digestive organs, and to promote a healthy and natural bowel action, thus leading to perfect and healthy digestion and assimilation.

A 25c. package of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets furnishes 15 days' treatment. In ordinary cases, this is sufficient to produce a cure. In more chronic cases, a longer treatment, of course, is necessary, and depends upon the severity of the trouble. For such cases, we have two larger sizes which sell for 50c. and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store.

Kidney ills seize young and old.

Come quickly with little warning.

Children suffer in their early years.

Can't control the kidney secretions.

Girls are languid, nervous, suffer pain.

Women worry, can't do daily work.

Men have lame and aching backs.

The cure for man, woman or child.

Is to cure the cause—the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sick kidneys—

Have brought relief to Thief River Falls people.

Thief River Falls testimony proves it.

Mrs. Edward Hance, 513 St, Paul Avenue, Thief River Falls, Minn., says: "I learned that Doan's Kidney Pills are a good remedy for kidney trouble in children's cases. Our little girl was delicate and her back pained a great deal. The kidney secretions were unnatural and proved that a kidney medicine was needed. Nothing brought relief until Doan's Kidney Pills were obtained at Curtis' Drug Store. This remedy improved the cihld's health from the first and finally effected a complete cure."

...ho want to know why there ...nds joining the socialists, ...he anarchists, should read ...he account of this trip, in ...rgeousness, which will be ... page one of this issue of the Times, among the telegraphic news.

There has been great criticism of King George for permitting such a shameful waste, all for pomp, feathors and furbelows, just to create a great hullaballoo over his visit to a country, which is writhing in the anguish of poverty and plauge—a country where every dollar possible is needed to alleviate the pain and suffering of a yoked people.

In view of the terrible conditions in India, is it any wonder that the masses are restless? Is it any wonder that the man whose wife and children are starving and half-clad, or where sickness adds its horrors to such scandalous waste while the gaunt forms of Hunger and pestilence are stalking through their land?

And it is the same conditions, greatly modified, in this country, which make the wronged wage earner bitter, and willing to go any length at times. When he sees his little sons and daughters poorly clad, when it is hardly possible to obtain the bare necessities of life, when the home cannot have any of those little comforts wich make a place to keep from starving and freezing to death, a real home, is it any wonder that a hatred of the senseless parade of wealth takes root in his heart, and finally grows till it all but consumes him?

For the restless conditions thruout the country, just such silly pomp as King George's trip to India are responsible. The masses want fair play. They want at least some kind of a chance for their "white alley," and it is the brainless parade of wealth, the criminal waste in the face of want and suffering that make beasts of the down-trodden, and at that they are not half as beastly, in their wildest excesses, as the man who will roll in luxury in the very face of want and suffering.—Crookston Times. What an adimssion for such a strong capitalist paper as the Times. We actually believe that some of the Barons and Landlords of Crookston might be made to shudder to have their "Pet Organ", come out with such an admission as that. But never mind there will be stronger evidences of the oncoming of Socialism than that e're another election is over.

ARSON FIGHT COSTLY.

Dumas Case and Investigations All But Bankrupt State Fire Marshal's Till.

INSURANCE MEN PUT UP COIN

St. Paul, Nov. 13.—Trial of Dr. D. F. Dumas of Cass aLke and the running down of alleged incendiaries in the northern part of the state, have all but bankrupt the state fire marshal's department and the peculiar situation of the state of Minnesota appealing to insurance companies for financial assistance now obtains.

Att'y General Simpson and Fire Marshal Keller spent a day last week in Chicago in conference with heads of the insurance companies operating in Minnesota and told them that unless money was advanced the active work of the fire marshal must cease. The insurance men immediately agreed to provide the funds needed and for the time being the state department will be operated with funds they put up.

Under the law the money used by the fire marshal's department is raised from a tax imposed upon the insurance companies. The funds they will advance now will not be legally due until next year.

Mr. Simpson and Mr. Keller issued a statement in which they suggested that it might be well for the legislature hereafter to provide an emergency fund which might be available under circumstances similar to those which now prevail.—Bemidji Pioneer. This being the case we may soon expect to see the state under obligations t the large insurance companies. The result will naturally be that the insurance companies will dictate to the State and not the State to insurance companies. Let the State make provisions to pay its own bills!

A GIFT WITH A THOUGHT IN IT.

What other Christmas present costs so little and means so much as a subscription to The Youth's Companion—52 weeks for $1.75? It is a gift which benefits not only the one who receives it, but every member of the same household.

With many Christmas presents the sense of novelty wears off by the week's end, but The Youth's Companion is as new and sought after the fifty-second week of the year as the first. It is elastic in its adaptability, too; for it does not matter whether the present is for a girl or a boy, young married people, sedate couples, grandparents there never was one yet who did not set store by The Youth's Companion. You cannot make a mistake if you give The Youth's Companion—and it is only $1.75 a year now. On January 1, 1912, the price will be advanced to $2.00.

The one to whom you give the subscription will receive free The Companion's Calendar for 1912, lithographed in ten colors and gold, and you, too, as giver of the subscription, will receive a copy of the Calendar.

Progressives take lead

to vote, the President made public a letter in which he announced his intention to vote for the machine ticket on the ground that the machine conditions which he had condemned several years before no longer existed. Twelve of Cincinnati's most prominent citizens followed the President's letter with a statement to the effect that conditions had not changed Opposed to the Cox candidate for mayor was Dist. Attorney Hunt, who has been fighting Cox and his machine in court and at the polls for many years. Hunt was elected mayor and the Cox mahcine ticket, backed by the President, was defeated.

In Philadelphia the city campaign was managed by United States Senator Boise Penroe, chairman of the committee on finance, opponent of tariff revision downward, and successor to Senator Aldrich. The Penrose candidate was George H. Earle. The candidate of the people was the leader of many a reform battle in Philadelphia, Rudolph Blankenburg, and Blankenburg won, thereby administering a most humilating defeat to Penrose and his machine.

A year ago Colonel Roosevelt campaigned New York State, warning the voters against the invasion of Albany by Tammany Hall and Tammany Hall methods. His advice was ignored. On election day, the voters of the Empire state saw the wisdom of Colonel Roosevelt's advice and New York will now have a Republican assembly.

Maryland, for the second time since the Civil War, will have a Republican Governor. It is admitted on all sides that this is due to the popular protests against the fradulent manipulation of the primaries by the democrats.

Taking the elections as a whole, the Progressives in Washington are mightily pleased. They see unmistakable signs that the voters are using greater discrimination than in casting their ballots. They see a trend toward progressive principles which they believe augurs well for their cause in the next Republican National Convention. It is pointed out at the headquarters that every blow struck at the old time machine is a blow in favor of the Progressives and every time the people record themselves in favor of the popular government, as in Ohio, the Progressives are strengthened. * * * *

The problem of dealing with the great industrial combinations of the country is engaging the earnest attention of Progressives who realize that if the country is to continue in a prosperous condition there must be additional legislation. President Taft as usual, wants to stand-pat on the existing law. The Progressives, as outlined in their Chicago platform, are looking into the future and see the need of additional legislation. Addressing itself to this wide difference of opinion between the President and the Progressives, the Saturday Evening Post makes the following editorial comment:

"President Taft has declared himself quite satisfied with the Sherman Act as now interpreted. Setting the Supreme Court to "Unscramble eggs" under that act seems to him an adequate method of dealing with the Trust problem. So long as the President holds this view no advance toward a solution of the problem can be expected from him. Some corporate names may be changed, as in the case of the Standard Oil Company, or from time to time some smaller stockholders may be frightened, as when the district attorney objected to the Tobacco Trust's reorganization plan; but the essential problem will remain just what it was before.

"'The present condition of uncertainty in business is intolerable and destructive of business prosperty. It is worse than idle to leave the question of whether great business enterprises are legal or not merely to judicial determination. Industrial corporations should, by affirmative legislation enactment, be given definite rules of conduct by which business conducted in accordance therewith shall be made safe and stable, while the interests of the public shall be fully safeguarded. We seek constructive legislation and not destructive litigation.'

"With the Trusts, as formerly with the tariff, the Regulars stand pat and the Insurgents demand progress. We have no doubt that the Insurgents will carry the day in the latter case, as they have already virtually carried it in the former."

were built in the days of the Palmer house. Now here is the way of the Soo's new cars. The sleepers are equipped with prism glass in the passage way. That means that your way is lighted and you know just where your feet are going to fall next. The sides are of plain, dark wood without beads or carved flowers to scratch your hands on. You commence to feel affluent and restful at once. You peep into the smoking room, and your heart is gladdened again with the peace and the rest that lies awaiting you. The seats look soft and inviting. The leather is dark, and there is no dust. The Peruvian mahogany is just the right shade to blend with the curling smoke and to form a soft back-ground for somke dreams. The beauty is there, and the costliness is there, but it is the sort that comforts and cheers, and does not obtrude its worth in a shreik of dollars and cents. And they can take the upholstery parts out and stick the nose of a snorting, gasping air pump into the interior of the seats and gather up germs and dirt with speed and dispatch. And then you go into the car proper.

Here you find Cuban mahogany, and those that deal in precious woods know that here is real art. The berths fit tight against the walls and do not curve. The roof is square decked. Now that means the car appears to be twice as large as it really is, and the stuffiness of narrow aisles and low-hung roofs are done away with. And, listen—the berths are wider and longer. And because the roof is as it is, you can stand up in the upper berths to disrobe yourself—also to vice versa. And the gods know that is a blessing without boundaries.

The washrooms are worth looking into. You can actually reach the basins without falling over half a dozen travelers in the room. The basins are right at the door, and you can move from grip to basin with ease and assurance. And also every basin has a dental spray.

And the parlor cars are also wide and square-decked. It is a room, not a hall in which you sit. And the most comfortable chairs in the world are there. The tops remain stationary to support the head, and the backs sink to a drowsy angel, and everything "fits". And the observation car is so "comfy" and homelike and everything else that you wouldn't believe it unless you saw it.

And from end to end of the new trains that are to be made up of these cars there are special appliances, such as never train had before. There is a little automatic gate that can be hitched onto the rear of the train so that no one can fall off, not even an investigating baby on hands and knees. And the lower berths have curtains of their own, and no one has to view the pedal extremities of the upper berth occupant as he climbs out of teh realms above.

Take it altogether he new equipment of the Soo is just about the finest ever attempted by a railroad. It cost over half a million to put these cars into service. And that is considerable of a sum. But it is worth it. You get anything better or more beautiful and you certainly cannot get anything safer.

So the Soo has a right to be a bit proud and self-congratulatory. Wait until you ride on one of those trains and see.—Minneapolis Daily News.

PRIZE CUP FOR MINNESOTA

The Great Northern Offers Fifty Dollar Silver Trophy Cup for Best Display at St. Paul Land Show

Another cup has been put up by the Great Northern Railway for competition at the great Land Show to be held in St. Paul December 12 to 23, 1911. This trophy cup will be a handsome silver cup and can be won by any county, commercial club or individual in the big State of Minnesota.

The county, commercial club or individual which makes the most attractive exhibit of Minnesota's grains, grasses or fruits will win this cup. Perhaps you are going to exhibit as an individual, and if not, probably you will exhibit through your commercial club's or county's exhibit. In any case, even if you are going to exhibit individually and also through either your county or commercial clubs exhibit, you should do everything in your power to assist in gathering the best farm products in your section. Help boost. Try to win this cup for yourself and your section. Considering the fine condition of Minnesota's crops this year, and the splendid showing Minnesota's exhibits are making everywhere at the different land shows, it will be an honor, indeed, to win the Great Northern cup for the best exhibit made at the St. Paul Show.

ELENORA OLSON CONCERT TRIO

What promises to be one of the best musical treats of the season is scheduled for Thief River Falls, at the Presbyterian church, Saturday Nov. 18th. The welknown Elenora Olson Concert Trio, of Chicago, will present its program consisting of music, song and impersonations by the different members of the Trio, each of whom is an artist of high rank in her line. The trio needs no introduction to the public. They have been heard in omst of the larger cities of the country, and in a goodly number of the smaller ones, and the numerous press reports, in unmistakable terms, bespeak the high character of their numbers.

Miss Eleonora Olson is a mezzo soprano of great merit, possessing a rich and sympathetic voice, which added to her charming stage appearance, has never failed to captivate her audiences.

As a pianist, Miss Alice Walden is an artist of high rank, possessing rare technical facilities, as well as a fine musical understanding, her numbers on the program offered by the Trio, never fail to please.

Last but not least, as perhaps the most pleasing part of the programs, is the impersonations and readings of Miss Ethel Olson. Her work in this line is truly wonderful, and has never failed to make a hit. Miss Ethel Olson is undoubtedly one of the most clever and talented impersonators in the conutry today. Her humorous readings are particularly successful.

All in all, the entertainment given by the Eleonora Olson Trio, can safely be considered one of the best, if not the best of its kind ever staged in Thief River Falls.

The attraction is booked under the auspices of the Brage Chorus, and besides furnishing the public with a high class entertainment, it is the purpose of the Chorus to make an endeavor by this attraction to cover the deficit which resulted from the Sangerfest of last June. It is to be hoped that the public will generously respond, and attend this entertainment. An evening of pleasure can be guaranteed, and a good turn will at the same time be done the Brage Chorus, which has secured this Trio at considerable expense.

RURAL SCHOOL NOTES

President W. A. Shoemaker. of the State Normal School at St. Cloud, wishes to say to those people, who would be able to come to said Normal school at St. Cloud at the beginning of the winter term, on Dec. 5, that only those will be admitted who have previously been enrolled in the institution, or whose applications have already been accepted.

This precaution is taken owing to press of numbers and because he very much dislikes to send any one home, who comes to them expecting that they can get in.

While in St. Paul the other week, Mr. Cesander of the Dept. of Public Instruction informed that all our rural state aid applications were granted further more that these schools would this year receive in full of aid for the last two years and for this year also. Something is coming in way of surprise for these schools this year—thanks to our last legislature.

Our schools are all at work and doing well. The schools may have a vacation for Thanksgiving—the Supt. will take one, too.

Set Of Ware FREE

If you call at our store during our Majestic Demonstration Week and allow us to show you the many advantages and superior qualities of the Great Majestic Range, and will purchase one at the regular price, we will give you Free the beautiful and useful Souvenir Set of Ware illustrated in the advertisement. This ware is made to match the quality of the Majestic Ranges, and we know all ladies will see the beauty and utility of this set, especially the first three pieces, which are entirely new and cannot be hod alone by purchase, except at the very high price. The prices of Majestic Ranges are the same, but we give the set FREE with each Majestic Range bought during the demonstration week only,

Reasons Why The Great Majestic You Should Buy

1st. It has the reputation of being the best range money can buy.
2d. It not only has the reputation but IS the best range made, and we will prove this to you if you will let us.
3d. It is constructed of malleable iron, material you can't beat, and of Charcoal iron, material that resists rust 300 percent greater than steel. is riveted together air tight. No heat escapes or cold air enters the range, thus uses very little fuel to do perfect work.
4th. The reservior alone is worth the price of range over any other reservoier made. It boils 15 gallons of water; is heated like a tea kettle, with pocket against left hand lining, and is movable and sets on frame, hence cannot wear out. When water gets too hot it can be moved away from fire.

Majectic ranges use less fuel; heat more water—and heat it hotter; cost practically nothing for repairs; lasts three times as long; bakes better; easier to keep clean and gives better satisfaction than any other range on the market. If you know positively that the above statments are true, wouldn't you buy a Majestic at once?

Come in Demonstration Week and We'll prove It to you.

DEAD PROBABLY NUMBER SCORE

Severe Cold Wave Follows Violent Storms.

PROPERTY LOSS VERY HEAVY.

Several Million Dollars' Damage Results From Weather Disturbances in Middle West.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Nearly a score of deaths, several million dollars property loss and much suffering and inconvenience resulted from the violent change of temperature, the preceding storms and the succeeding cold and snow that beset the central portion of the country.

Tornadic storms did much damage in Wisconsin and Illinois and killed a dozen persons, besides injuring more than a score, several fatally.

A cold wave almost immediately rolled over the wreckage of the tornadoes and extended itself in a few hours to the gulf coast and to the Atlantic seaboard. Rain turned to sleet, snapping telegraph and telephone wires, and snow followed. The temperature dropped in several places more than 60 degrees in eighteen hours.

Several persons were frozen to death by the sudden cold, shipping on the Great Lakes was damaged and several boats were cast adrift. In some places gas almost failed. The poor in large cities and the homeless in storm swept regions suffered severely.

EIGHT KILLED IN WISCONSIN

Wind Storm Causes Devastation in Rock County.

Janesville, Wis., Nov. 13.—Splintered timbers, broken furniture, crumbled rock and plaster, scattered farm produce and dead farm animals littering the ground over an area a quarter mile in width and twenty miles in length indicate the tremendous force with which Southern Wisconsin's worst cyclone cut a swath [illegible] Rock county, killing eight pe[illegible] juring many more and do[illegible] to the extent of nearly a [illegible] lars.

Wire service was demo[illegible] harrowing details of the terr[illegible] trophe came in slowly. A steady [illegible] pour of rain added to the confusion and made identification of the dead difficult. The temperature dropped nearly to zero and it was a fearful night for grief stricken survivors many left without a roof to cover their heads. Neighbors opened their homes and those who escaped death huddled about the stove relating details of their experiences.

The cyclone was of the "twister" variety. It originated in the vicinity of Orfordville, twelve miles southwest of Janesville, traveled northeast for several miles and then turned to the east, missing this city by a narrow margin. Its force was spent near Milton.

TWO PERSONS ARE KILLED

Seven Others Seriously Injured in Illinois Storm.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 13.—Two persons were killed and seven seriously injured in a storm at Easton, Ill. Telegraph wires were torn down and the city was left isolated.

Farmhouses and barns in the vicinity were toppled over, injuring the others.

A heavy gale did much damage in the vicinity of Auburn. Not much damage was done in the town itself, but a large barn, three miles east, was demolished and four horses were killed. A hail storm that followed did some damage. Reports say it was the heaviest hail storm near here for years.

REGULARS CALL ON PRESIDENT

BELIEVE MOVEMENT IS DYING

Leaders Inform Chief Executive Progressive Sentiment in West Is Waning and That Every State in Which Insurgents Have Cut Any Figure Will Send a Taft Delegation to the National Convention.

Washington, Sept. 14.—President Taft is conferring with his cabinet members on the administrative and legislative policies to be pursued and with regular Republicans who are interested in his renomination and reelection.

Among the callers who saw the president were Secretaries Fisher, Knox and Wilson, Attorney General Wickersham, General Carter, Senators Cullom, Smoot and McCumber and Representatives Campbell of Kansas and Ames of Massachusetts.

The confidence of a practically unanimous renomination and [illegible] with wh[illegible] ident returned from his 15,000 tour of the country has been strengthened by the testimony of the regular Republican leaders. They have told the president the progressive movement is dying out in the West and that every state in which the progressive Republicans have cut any figure will send a solid Taft delegation to the national convention. The White House is fairly scientillating with political confidence.

When this attitude became known to the leaders at the headquarters of the national progressive Republican committee one of them said:

"Hush, not a word. When they wake up it will be all over."

Ignore Primary Challenge.

The president and his advisers have ignored the challenge of the La Follette committee to submit the question of a Republican presidential candidate to a popular primary in each state. Five states will have such primaries by law, but the progressives have proposed that in other states the popular choice of candidates be effected by an informal primary arranged by the state committees. The regulars laugh at the idea and call it socialistic.

Members of the old guard who are in the confidence of the president believe this is the time to "finish off the progressives," by withholding the federal patronage due them as the president did a year ago last winter.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon suggested the cutting off of all patronage at that time as punishment for the opposition of progressive senators and representatives to legislation favored by the president. Mr. Taft carried out the suggestion, but it failed to scare any of the progressives.

Senator Cullom called to remind the president that he would like to have his friend, Judge J. Otis Humphrey of Springfield, promoted to the vacancy on the supreme court bench, created by the death of Associate Justice Harlan, or that on the court of appeals made by the resignation of Peter Grosscup.

GOMPERS DENOUNCES COURTS

American Federation of Labor Meets at Atlanta, Ga.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 14.—Denouncing as the foes of labor "subservient courts," "injunction judges," and the McNamara "persecution" in Los Angeles, President Samuel Gompers delivered his annual address before the thirty-first annual convention of the American Federation of Labor. To desert partisan politics and join independently in the fight for better working conditions was the remedy suggested.

Frank Morrison submitted his annual report, showing that the federation now has 1,756,000 members, the greatest since its organization.

The federation voted unanimously to instruct President Gompers to send a message to the McNamara brothers, in jail at Los Angeles, that the members of the organization are firm in the belief that they are innocent and assuring them of their continued support.

MUTINY ON THE MINNESOTA

One Man Killed and Four Wounded on J. J. Hill's Liner.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 14.—Details of a mutiny aboard the steamship Minnesota, which resulted in the death of one of the vessel's crew and the injury of four others, were received in a letter from the Orient. The mutiny broke out early in October and as a result of it and the inquiry which came as a sequel the big ship was held for ten days in Yokohama.

Philadelphia, Nov. 14.—John L. Carncross, pioneer minstrel and for years famous throughout the country as a minstrel tenor, is dead here of heart disease. Mr. Carncross was seventy-seven years old.

GREAT HAVOC IN MICHIGAN

Two Persons Killed and More Than Score Injured.

Owosso, Mich., Nov. 13.—Two persons, killed, more than a score injured and a property loss estimated at half a million dollars, is the result of the tornado which struck Owosso.

The dead are Harry Corwin, thirty years old, and his wife, who were crushed to death as they lay in bed.

Miss Queenie Robinson, a school teacher, was the most seriously injured, but she is expected to recover.

The storm swept a path more than a thousand feet wide through the center of the city, demolishing twenty houses and damaging hundreds of others.

BEATTIE MUST PAY PENALTY

Virginia Supreme Court Denies Wife Murderer's Appeal.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 14.—The supreme court of appeals denied the petition for a writ of error by Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., convicted of murdering his young wife last July. This decision on the appeal from the judgment of the Chesterfield court, which sentenced him to die in the electric chair Nov. 24, is final. Clemency or reprieve by Governor Mann only can save the condemned man.

were taken 16 years ago when the National Fire Prevention Association was organized. The work is said to have been very discouraging for some time. During the past few years branches of the Association have been organized in Minnesota and other states, indicating that intelligent and effective work will materially reduce the annual waste in the near future.

Taking the experience 1910 as a basis, if the structures destroyed were placed close together they would reach from Chicago to New York; every one thousand feet there would be an injured and maimed person, while every three-quarters of a mile would be a victim whose life had been sacrificed to the red plauge.

When Insurance Commissioner Preus called the Congress to order, the large Palm Room in Hotel St. Paul was filled to over-flowing. Governor Eberhart was introduced and delivered one of the strong addresses of the afternoon. Referring to the recent investigation by the Fire Marshal's Department of the theatres and moving picture shows, the Governor stated that he hoped the next Legislature would give this department sufficient power to compel the construction of proper exits in theatres and other places of amusement. "The Fire Marshal Department has been of incalculable value to the state in awakening in our people an interest in the capture of the fire bug." said Governor Eberhart. "Criminal organizations and alliances have been destroyed and incendiarism, within the bounds of our commonwealth, has been reduced."

Franklin H. Wentworth of Boston Secretary of the National Fire Prevention Association delivered a splendid address on the subject of "How Fire Prevention Can Be Carried On Most Successfully." In the course of his remarks, by way of illustration, the gentleman compared Berlin, Ger., with Chicago, for the year of 1910. Both cities are approximately of the same size. In the German city the fire loss for 1910 was $175,000, while in Chicago, the total reached $6,000,000. It cost the city of Berlin $300,000 for the maintenance [illegible] their fire department while the American city paid $3,000,000 for the same service.

The above illustrations are extreme cases but the fire loss in America is much heavier per capita than in the European countries. The annual waste in Minnesota in former years has been in excess of many of the other states, but it is confidently expected that the Fire Marshal's Department, the Minnesota Fire Prevention Association and co-operation of the citizens will materially reduce this waste.

The address of Fire Marshal Doyle of Illinois on the question of the "Prevention of Incendiarism" was one of the interesting features of a program filled with strong numbers. The gentleman spoke of the work and cunning of the fire bug, with the konwledge born of experience.

It may be safely said that Minnesota's first Fire Prevention Congress was a success and if the good work started is carried on, the enormous waste in the state each year will be greatly reduced with a consequent and material lessesing of fire insurance rates.

BUILDING IS ASSURED

Site Is Purchased For New Home For the Co-Operative Mercantile Company

Last Wednesday Peter Engelstad and Benhard Knudson acting as directors of the Co-operative Store Company purchased an option on the parcel of ground lying between the hotel to be built on Third Street and Horace Avenue and the Oen Mercantile Company. This parcel of ground has fifty feet frontage on Third St., and is 150 feet deep.

The option secured is for five months and stipulates that the grantees shall forthwith proceed to construct thereon a two story brick building covering practically the entire property.

The company will now proceed immediately to make arrangements for the necessary money with which to construct this huiding so that they may have everything in readiness by spring so that as soon as the opening comes they may proceed at once with the excavation and construction work.

This speaks volumes for the success of the co-operative store company. They have been doing business less than two years and yet they have gained such a firm footing that they are ready to build a permanent home for their co-operative institution. This will be a pleasant surprise to a great many people in as much as it proves the success of co-operation and establishes a permanent institution which but a couple of years ago was a blank theory laughed at by some, doubted by others and only hoped for by the most optomistic. This will, no doubt, in turn encourage other lines of co-operation as well as broaden the field of commercial activity into which the present company will proceed.

WALL STREET IS ALARMED

Increasing Strength of LaFollete Creates Much Anxiety.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 23.--Wall Street is alarmed at the remarkable strength of the movement to nominate Senator LaFollette for the Presidency. It is likewise alarmed at the growing weakness of President Taft. Big business has determined that Senator LaFollette must not be nominated, and it has reached the conclusion that President Taft must not be nominated. It is therefore preparing to bring out a candidate to displace the President.

Such, in brief, is the startling information contained in a statement sent to the Progressive Republican Campaign Committee in Washington by John D. Fackler, of Cleveland, who is in charge of the Progressive campaign in Ohio. The fact that Wall Street is determined to defeat Senator LaFollete at all costs is the best ilustration of his remarkable strength throughout the country, a strength which is being demonstrated every time a newspaper takes a poll.

Mr. Fackler's statement, which is self-explanatory, says:

"Last Thursday afternoon, a prominent Republican, who had heretofore held aloof from the Progressive Republican movement, called at my office and offered his support, declaring his willingness to aggressively aid the policies for which the movement stands.

"Saturday evening, this same Republican, in a state of great excitement called again and stated that it had become impossible for him to identify himself with the movement; that he was under large personal obligations to Myron T. Herrick, and that Herrick had called to see him and had made a personal demand that he reverse his decision to become a Progressive Republican.

"This gentleman (whose name, out of personal consideration, I shall not divulge, unless Mr. Herrick's attitude hereafter makes it necessary), declared that Herrick said that Wall Street recognized the impossibility of nominating Taft, but that it was unalterably opposed to the Progressive Republican movement, and especially to LaFollette; that Herrick named a probable candidate in place of Taft upon whom the business interests would probably unite, for the purpose of defeating LaFollette, a man high in the councils of the Republican party. By reason of the harm which it might do, the man whom Herrick named as the probable candidate of Wall Street, I shall withhold his name as well as the name of my informant, unless Herrick demands that I name them.

"At some time during the campaign I shall show the public the exceedingly interesting connection between local politics, Myron T. Herrick of the National Carbon Company, and the Carbon Schedule in the Payne-Aldrich Tariff law.

"This fight is the People's fight against the System. The issue is clear cut and well defined: 'Shall the people control big business or shall big business control the people throughout the control of the Government.'"

That Wall Street has not misjudged the strength of the sentiment in favor of Senator LaFollette is shown conclusively in two newspaper polls taken recently in Iowa and Oregon. In Oregon, the poll, taken by the Portland Journal, was state wide. Senator LaFollette received 301 votes from Republican voters responding, and 52 from Democratic voters, making his total 382 out of 607 who voted for a Republican candidate. Colonel Roosevelt received 163 votes, and President received only 55 votes, one-twelfth of the total votes cast and less than one-sixth as many as LaFollette.

For LaFollette, 94; for Taft, 35; not for either, 10.

It is now up to the chairman of the several Republican State Committees to decide whether the Republican voters of the country are to be given an opportunity to express their choice for a presidential candidate. The issue is clearly and squarely presented to them in a letter sent to each chairman by Walter L. Houser, chairman of the Progressive Republican Campaign Committee.

The Presbyterian Laides Aid Society decided to take up a home play, entitled "Pennington County Fair." This play was written by Annie Sara Bock, a West Virginian who has made the drilling and producing of home talent plays a specialty. This home talent play "Penington County Fair" has been her biggest and most successful. Whenever it has been given it has been an immense success, as it no doubt will be in Thief River Falls. The plan and plot of this play is very simple—nothing but a County Fair scene with all manner of people coming to the real old time County Fair, with displays innumerable of rich, yellow pumpkins, big potatoes, immense squashes, monstrous ears of yellow corn, red apples and any and every kind of ruit and vegetables raised by the farmers of this County. Not only will there be displays of these farm products but the needlework, machinery and handiwork of the thrifty inhabitants of the County will also occupy a conspicuous space.

While the displays above described are always looked for at the County Fair yet the real interest of this particular Pennington County Fair is in the dialogue of the visitors of the fair and in the musical numbers to be presented. As the scene opens the loud mouthed fakers, lemonade man, side show-man, balloon amn will almost deafen you with their mighty yells. Then follows a quick succession of farmers, old maids, school boys, jockeys, preachers, bride and groom, gold brick men, city visitors and all the characters one can possibly imagine at a county fair, each with an appropriate dialouge and conversation. All these dialogues are of the most humorous nature, and have a life and spirit to them that convulse and amuses even the most staid audience.

But after all, no amateur entertainment at this day and age can be a success without plenty of good lively up-to-date music, and we will have it in the County Fair. One of the big musical features is a Teddy Bear chorus by 75 little girls between the ages of six and twelve. Its one of the prettiest and cutest ever. There will be another children's chorus and six young men and young ladies' choruses. All of these are the latest catchiest songs productions and are presented in a beautiful, attractive manner. The Aid Society have decided to produce this entertainment Dec. 1st [illegible]

COMMISSION FORM NOT ADOPTED

Resolution Adopting Electric Com. Failed to Receive Majority Vote.

At the regular meeting of the city council held last Tuesday evening a large number of the citizens were present. They were called upon by the chairman of the council to express their views on the passage of a resolution adopting the law providing for the appointment of an Electric Light Commission.

Many of the citizens expressed themselves as opposed to the adoption of the plan at this time unless the entire city be put under a commission. The principal objection seemed to be that it was considered as a slap at the incoming council to create this Commission at this time, being just at the eve of the present administration. Some also argued that a commission of citizens would be no better than a council of citizens and that the remuneration which they were to receive was inadequate and that good work could not be expected. Still others argued that it is not a matter of pay. That if a man was not willing to make some sacrifice for the benefit of the city. He would not do so for the small sum of $200 per year.

After a discussion that lasted well nigh on toward midnight the council took a vote on the passage of the resoultion and two members voted for. Mr. Sedlacek expressed himself as in favor of the plan but said he would abide by the will of the majority of those present at the meeting and hence he voted no. There were two members absent.

Thus it was left open for the incoming council to adopt this law or proceed as formerly and it is certainly up to them to make good.

THIS STORY WINS FIRST PRIZE

In Minneapolis Junior Journal Contest Elra C. Porter Wins First Prize.

The following story, written by Elra C. Porter one of the bright boys of Miss Swanson's room in Central School was awarded first prize in the Minneapolis Junior Journal Contest.

This is a great mark of distinction not only for young Porter but for the work done in general under Miss Swanson's care.

When a story is sent into this contest it goes into competition with stories not only in Thief River Falls schools but schools all over the State of Minnesota.

We give the following from the Junior Journal:

THE WORLD OVER

(Prize.)

"I saw a family of seals, too," said the North Wind to an interested listener, a little boy about six years old. "How big were they, Mr. North Wind?" he asked. "Oh, the little ones were about as big as you and they swam around in the water just like fish." "What else did you see" asked the boy, and his eyes were big, for he had never seen a seal, not even a sealskin coat.

"I saw some little Eskimo children in a funny thing made out of bones called a sled and which had dogs harnessed to it. A little later, I saw a very large piece of ice break off from a very large piece of ice which you could hardly see across. They call the former an iceberg, and the latter a glacier." "It must have been large!" said the boy looking toward the river, which, when frozen was the largest piece of ice he had ever seen.

"I once went across a land called Siberia. There were many people working there. I saw people carrying things, and worst of all, I saw little children who looked very cold and they cried and cried, when I blew my breath upon them, so I turned around and came home again right away." Here the North Wind stopped to shed a tear at the memory of it. "As I was coming here, I saw a beautiful light near my home; it came and went like flashes. It waved like curtains of many colors. It was very pretty. Another time I saw a large black or brown thing. It spouted water out of its nose and a number of Eskimos in skin canoes threw spears at it."

Here the nurse called the boy, so after saying "Goodbye" to the North Wind, he went into the house, while the North Wind sailed up over the trees and houses, away to his northern home.

Provencher Hotel On Its Way

The plans and specifications for the Provencher hotel are here and on file for the inspection of prospective bidders up to December 20th, on which day the bids will be opened at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Plans and specifications are also on file in St. Paul, Fargo, Duluth and Minneapolis.

Stephen Warring, who has the contract for digging the basement of the hotel, is making rapid progress. He is using dynamite to loosen the ground and is experiencing no difficulty in getting the dirt in good shape for the shovel. Considerable sand is encountered in spots. This makes the digging go at a rapid rate. Warring will completely finish the basement this winter, so that the building contractor can get to work early in the spring.

What is the meaning of all this talk about a Pennington County Fair [illegible]

WAS A BIG SUCCESS

Receipts From Social Given at High School Over $60.

The social given at the High School last Friday evening for the benefit of the athletic association, proved to be a great success. A very large crowd attended and the receipts in all amounted to over sixty dollars. The four booths, a lunch counter, a candy shop, a fish pond, and a fortune telling booth, were very well patronized, and the teachers and students who managed them are to be congratulated on the efficient service they rendered. The lunch counter, managed by Miss Ward and her cooking class, led in the amount of receipts with over twenty-five dollars.

The Program.

A cornet solo by Ben Lonson and a selection by the High School Orchestra deserve special mention. Ben showed himself a master with his instrument; while the orchestra did well for a new organization of so young players. It is intended to support this orchestra in the High School and the practice they will receive should develop a high class orchestra in time. The other numbers of the program were: A piano solo by Miss Palmer, a song by Anna Giller, and a song by Miss Burton. These were well given and deserve much credit.

The Game.

The basket ball game was characteristic of new teams in their scramble after the ball. Only near the end of the first half did the High School boys open up with a good display of team work. Few baskets were made on account of the short time of practice. The game was a clean one thruout, and the High School boys clearly out-classed their opponents in speed and team play. The final score was: High School 6, Commercial-Normal 2.

If is hoped from their first exhibition that the High School will develop a fast and strong team before the season is over.

The receipts from this social will give the athletic association a good start finacially, for the teams have hitherto been handicapped in making both ends meet. They have lacked proper support by the High School pupils and by the public in general so that the right spirit at the games is found wanting and they have gone behind. However, with this start the association is optomistic in regard to the future.

THE TIME IS RIPE

Investigation of Commission Plan of City Gov. Should Be Started Now.

Now is the proper time for this city to investigate the commission plan of city government. It was admitted at the council meeting Tuesday evening that the present system is inadequate and that some decided changes will have to be made if the city's affairs are going to be put on a paying basis. The men that have been acting on our city council are no better nor no worse than the men usually found on city councils. There's nothing the matter with the men on the council. The fault is with the system under which they are working. Politics, or the principles of any special party hasn't anything to do with good municipal government. It is purely and simply a question of getting a system of government whereby the city's business is conducted the same as any other big business is conducted. If you were the owner of a store that did $200,000 worth of business a year you would hire [illegible]

HOTEL IS A CERTAINTY

Called the Pennington and Will Be Ready For Guests Next Summer.

The Pennington Hotel Company was recently organized for the purpose of furnishing Thief River Falls with a first-class modern hotel. In their quest for stock the new company met with such excellent success that they are able to announce the Pennington Hotel as a certainty. The majority of the stock is subscribed and plans have already been made for the completion of the hotel by July 15th or August 1st.

Mr. H. A. Brumund, at present proprietor of Hotel Ogahmah, is president of the company; Mr. C. J. Vollmer, of the Republic and Dominion Fire and Marine Insurance Company of Minneapolis, is vice,president; and Perl W. Mabey, a well-known local lawyer, is secretary and treasurer.

Mr. Brumund recently made a trip to the Twin City, LaPorte and other places in search of capital, and met with pleasing success. Mr. Brumund is known thruout the state as a thoroughly capable hotel man. He has made good in the hotel business for several years and his friends repose every confidence in his ability to make the Pennington Hotel a rousing success.

Mr. C. J. Vollmer came here from Minneapolis several weeks ago as the representative of the recently organized three-million-dollar company, the Republic and Dominion Fire and Marine Insurance Co. After meeting some of the city's representative business men he became interested in the activities and future of our city, deciding that he and his assistant, R. D. Creager, would make this their headquarters for five counties. Mr. Vollmer made himself at home right away and is pushing this hotel proposition the same as any other public spirited citizen would do, without hope of monetary reward for the services he is at present rendering. He returned Wednesday morning from a trip to the Twin City where he interviewed contractors, architects, and spent some time selling stock. Vollmer is very enthusiastic and can't see anything but a good investment in the Pennington Hotel.

The Pennington Hotel will be a three story building, the main structure being of yellow brick, with pressed brick facings. The lobby is centrally located in easy access to a 30 ft. by 50 ft. dining room, a handsome bar, a barber shop, a billiard and pool room and the kitchen. There are sixty rooms for the use of guests, every one an outside room, well lighted, steam heated and having running hot and cold water. Fifteen of the rooms have private baths. On every floor there are baths and toilets for public use: On the second floor there is an elaborate ladies' parlor.

The Pennington will compare favorably with any hotel. It will be all that anybody could expect in a modern living place. Neither time, money or labor will be spared to accomplish this result.

Omund Bjorguson Says "Never Again

Duchamp, together with Miss Parker who was on her way to Minneapolis, having come from her homestead near Grygla, found the horses stuck in the ditch and later on saw Bjorguson's feet and hands sticking out of a snow-drift. Miss Parker suggested that they summon the coroner, but Duchamp, being of an investigative turn of mind, got out and poked around in the snow, discovering that Bjorguson was breathing faintly. Miss Parker told Duchamp to in some way arouse the man from his stupor, and since the usual methods of waking people did not affect Bjorguson, they decided to use the horse whip on him. This strenuous method finally caused the man to arise. He was taken to Hotel West, where he slept until Sunday morning, coming through the affair little the worse for wear. He looked up Duchamp and told him that he had saved his life, and to show his great appreciation thereupon presented Duchamp with three dollars in real money, and promised that he would never touch another drop.

Mr. Bjorguson is a married man and has several children. He says his experience has taught him a lesson he will never forget. Hereafter it will be the straight and narrow path for him, and a happy family at the Bjorguson home.

Lattimore Leaves For Isle of Pines

Alex F. Lattimore left Sunday evening on the 10:20 for Sante Fe, Isle of Pines, south of Cuba. He expects to land in Key West next Saturday, where he will take a boat on the regular line between there and the Isle. Mr. Lattimore has been in poor health for some time and is taking the trip primarily for the purpose of strengthing a weak stomach. As a secondary attraction he has twenty acres of land on the Island, on which land he expects to raise grape fruit, pineapples, tomatoes and potatoes. It is said that there are no mosquitoes on the Isle, that there never has been a frost, that the drinking water is excellent, and that the temperature is very even, never going above 90 degrees or dropping below 60. According to that, the Isle ought to be an ideal place for recovering one's health.

Mr. Lattimore is well-known to newspaper men in this section as the originator of The Eleven Towns, a weekly paper the first issue of which appeared the 22d of December, 1905. A year ago, on account of poor health Mr. Lattimore turned the paper over to his brother John, and spent last winter in California. When he returned this spring he found it necessary to spend nine weeks in a hospital here. Several weks ago he took charge of the Plummer Pioneer, but on account of returning poor health gave it up and made plans for his present visit to the south.

TO AILING WOMEN.

A Little Sound Advice Will Help Many Sufferers In Thief River Falls.

No woman can be healthy and well if the kidneys are sick. Poisons that pass off in the secretions when the kidneys are well, are retained in the body when the kidneys are sick. Kidneys and bladder become inflamed and swollen and worse troubles quickly follow. This is often the true cause of bearing down pains, lameness, back ache, etc. Uric poisoning also cause headaches, dizzy spells, languor, nervousness and rheumatic pain.

When suffering so try Doan's Kidney Pills, a remedy that has cured thousands of such cases. You will get better as the kidneys get better, and health will return when the kidneys are well. Let a Thief River Falls woman tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. J. O. Christopherson, 414 St. Paul Ave., Thief River Falls, Minn., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills with excellent results and they have also been taken with benefit by other members of our family. We keep Doan's Kidney Pills in the house all the time and do not think we could get along without them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Another Red Cross Christmas Seal campaign is on. 30,000,000 seals were sold last year, providing the National State and Local Anti-tuberculosis Societies with about $300,000. It is estimated that the appropriation of twenty times this amount by public authorities in building hospitals, etc., was secured through the judicious use of this agitation fund as well as many nurses visiting the sick supported, and millions of people educated as to the dangers of tuberculosis.

The Minnesota Association for the Prevention & Relief of Tuberculosis has been appointed again sole agents for Minnesota. Last year the sales in Minnesota amounted to a trifle over three-quarters of a million seals. Of the proceeds of the sale the greater part went to the local associations, especially for visiting nursing work. This year the aim will be to sell between one and two million seals. If two million seals were sold it would mean only one seal for each person in the State.

Last year there were 200 centers of distribution, ranging in size from the city of Minneapolis to a cross roads postoffice. This year it is planned to sell the seals in each of the 500 or so centers of population in the state and in addition to cover about one-third of the rural school districts of the state, making the school the center of distribution through the teacher. Probably 5,000 persons will be working as agents and assistants in this campaign, each one a bearer of the glad tidings that tuberculosis is preventable and curable, as well as a unit in a compact selling force that will aim to bring the seals to the attention of every person many times during the campaign and leave no stone unturned to exhaust both the educational and financial possibilities of the Red Cross Christmas Seal.

Any person not able to secure seals in his or her vicinity may send in a cash mail order for the same to the state agent at the Old Capitol, St. Paul.

Much good work has already been accomplished in this state. For example, a state sanatorium, visiting nursing appropriations from six county boards, action on county hospitals by three county boards, two state laws etc. But much remains to be done, especially the covering of the state with local hospitals for tuberculosis. Every organization of any kind, whether business, social, educational, philanthropic or political is requested to take part in an organized way in this campaign and to get in touch with the local or state agent. THE LATE SOCIALIST VOTING.

The socialist party in the recent elections succeded in electing mayors in eleven cities and in choosing three members of the legislature in three states. They also increased their vote for other offices. In New York county the socialist candidate for supreme court got twenty-two thousand votes, an increase of forty-two per cent. Its candidate for sheriff received eighteen thousand votes. Note has already been made of the fact that the socialist candidate for mayor headed the poll in the Los Angeles primary. A few more votes and he would have been elected without the need of another ballot in December.

What was the cause of these socialist successes? Members of both the old parties are disposed to attribute them to local dissatisfaction. The socialists themselves see in them the forerunner of a general agreement that theirs is the propaganda to save the nation.

There is truth and error in both explanations. There is considerable dissatisfaction. It manifests itself in local ebullitions against republican or democratic candidates. But it is not accurate to say that because the voting was local the dissatisfaction was local also. It may have been general, but confined by the necessities of the case to local explosions. On the other hand, it is too much to say that socialist voting is due to an acceptance by the voters of the full socialist program. It is very unlikely that such a study has yet been made, or that it would be accepted if the examination had been made. The socialist vote is rather to be looked upon as a warning to the old parties that their platitudinous platforms which they do not carry out have ceased to charm the electorate. It is a notice to them to say in plain words what they intend to do and to put forward candidates who are likely to do it. They are notified to do this or to take the consequences of disgust with their performances.—Minneapolis Journal.

A FAIR OFFER.

Your Money Back if You're Not Satisfied.

We pay for all the medicine used during the trial, if our remedy fails to completely relieve you of constipation. We take all the risk. You are not obligated to us in any way whatever, if you accept our offer. That's a mighty broad statement, but we mean every word of it. Could anything be more fair for you?

A most scientific, common-sense treatment is Rexall Orderlies, which are eaten like candy. Their active principle is a recent scientific discovery that is odorless, colorless, and tasteless; very pronounced, yet gentle and pleasant in action, and particularly agreeable in every way. They do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, flatulence, griping, or any inconvenience whatever. Rexall Orderlies are particularly good for children, aged and delicate persons.

If you suffer from chronic or habitual constipation, or the associate or dependent chronic ailments, we urge you to try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Remember, you can get them only at our store. 12 tablets 10 cents; 36 tablets 25 cents; 80 tablets 50 cents. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store

A BALD-HEADED WOMAN.

Shorn of Her Crown of Beauty, Loses In Love and Marriage.

Hair is certainly most necessary to woman. Who could love and marry a bald-headed woman? What charms could she array to offset such a disfigurement?

A woman's goal is usually love and marriage. Her crowning glory is her hair. The loss of her hair mars her beauty, happiness, and success. Yet there are thousands of women who are neglecting or injuring their hair to such an extent that it is only a matter of time when it will be utterly ruined.

Many women destroy the beauty of their hair through thoughtlessness or ignorance of certain facts. They use curling irons over-heated, or to excess which destroys the natural oil of the hair, causing it to split, break, and come out. They do not shampoo their hair often enough, or too often. They use soaps or preparations which contain ingredients positively harmful to the scalp and hair.

As a result of such treatment, dandruff is created, the hair loosens, loses color, falls out, and baldness commences, unless proper and prompt precautions are taken in time. Then, again, microbes and certain diseases bring about unhealthy scalp and hair conditions.

Almost any woman may rid herself of dandruff and diseased scalp and hair if she will but use the right remedy. We have that remedy, and we will positively guarantee that it will either relieve dandruff and baldness or it will not cost the user anything.

That's a pretty broad statement, but we will back it and prove it with our own money. We will return your money if you do not find that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is an entirely satisfactory remedy that will promote hair growth and overcome scalp and hair troubles; that it will grow hair even on bald heads, unless all life in the hair roots has been extinguished, the follicles closed, and the scalp is glazed and shiny. It gets its name from the fact that it grew hair in 93 out of 100 cases, where it received a thoroughly hard, impartial, and practical test.

We want you to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic at our risk. You surely cannot lose anything by doing so, while you have everything to gain. You had better think this over, and then come in and see us about this offer. You will be well repaid for your visit to our store. Remember, you can get Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store

Renaming Indians.

Some years ago in order to make their inheritance of land more simple and secure our government commissioned Dr. Charles A. Eastman, a Sioux Indian, to rename more than 15,000 Sioux with their family names. The task was a tremendous one and full of difficulties. Where possible Dr. Eastman kept the original Sioux name of some member of a family, as in bestowing the name "Matoska," meaning "White Bear," on the family of that chief. Sometimes the combination of wife's name and husband's name has produced a musical result, such as "Winona Otana." The favorite name for woman means "she who has a beautiful home," which Dr. Eastman has Anglicized to the patronymic "Goodhome." But by far the hardest task was in finding new names for the absurdities of Indian nomenclature. "Bobtailed Coyote" was a young Indian who has come to prefer himself as "Robert T. Wolf." After a long struggle with "Rotten Pumpkin" Dr. Eastman at last recorded the owner of the name on the tribal records under the noncommittal title of "Robert Pumpkin."

Sherlock Holmes.

Dr. A. Conan Doyle [illegible] recounted incidents regarding [illegible] the distinguished [illegible] from whom his character of Sherlock Holmes was drawn. One of the most remarkable was this:

Dr. Bell was lecturing to his class in surgery, of which Doyle was one, when in regard to the subject he remarked:

"Of course this man has been a soldier in a highland regiment and probably a bandsman."

The man had the soldier's swagger, but was too short to be anything but a bandsman, the doctor explained. The man vehemently denied this and said he was a shoemaker. Dr. Bell, still confident that his powers of reasoning and deduction had not led him astray, had the man stripped and on the left side of his chest found a little blue "D" branded on the skin. The doctor then declared to his class:

"This man was a deserter. This is the way they were marked in the Crimean days, though it is not permitted now."

Victoria and Napoleon.

Queen Victoria once gave a remarkable description of her visit to the tomb of Napoleon I. during the reign of Napoleon III. "The coffin is not yet here," she wrote, "but in a small side chapel of St. Jerome. Into this the emperor led me, and there I stood at the arm of Napoleon III., his nephew, before the coffin of England's bitterest foe. I, the granddaughter of that king who hated him most and who most vigorously opposed him and this very nephew, who bears his name, being my nearest and dearest ally! The organ of the church was playing 'God Save the Queen' at the time, and this solemn scene took place by torchlight and during a thunderstorm. Strange and wonderful indeed!"

An Offensive Cravat.

A man once called upon Whistler with a letter of introduction, and an [illegible] scene followed, arising out of the fact that the visitor was wearing a red necktie. Whistler declared it interfered with the color scheme of his [illegible] and "put him off" a picture he was painting in quite a different "key." Finally he obliged him to take off the offending cravat before he would condescend to exchange another word with him.

Kidney ills seize young and old.

Come quickly with little warning.

Children suffer in their early years.

Can't control the kidney secretions.

Girls are languid, nervous, suffer pain.

Women worry, can't do daily work.

Men have lame and aching backs.

The cure for man, woman or child.

Is to cure the cause—the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sick kidneys—

Have brought relief to Thief River Falls people.

Thief River Falls testimony proves it.

Mrs. Edward Hance, 513 St, Paul Avenue, Thief River Falls, Minn., says: "I learned that Doan's Kidney Pills are a good remedy for kidney trouble in children's cases. Our little girl was delicate and her back pained a great deal. The kidney secretions were unnatural and proved that a kidney medicine was needed. Nothing brought relief until Doan's Kidney Pills were obtained at Curtis' Drug Store. This remedy improved the child's health from the first and finally effected a complete cure."

FRIDAY, NOV. 24 1911.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Nov. 18, 1911.

Hon. A. O. Eberhart, Governor of Minnesota.
Hon. J. A. O. Preus, Commissioner of Insurance.
St. Paul, Minn.

Gentlemen:

As a delegate to the Fire Prevention Congress convening in your city on the 8th inst., I wish to express my high appreciation of the proceedings of that body in which you gentlemen took such a prominent part.

The question of fire prevention is one of the most important issues that confronts our state and nation. The fire waste of our country in general, and in this state in particular, has been growing, assuming alarming and burdensome proportions. This burden, of course, falls on those who pay the insurance tax and on those who are caught in conflagrations without insurance.

The Fire Prevention Association of this state, which is organized and managed by fire insurance interests, and our Federation can well go hand in hand along the avenue of fire prevention, but at the end of the "Fire Prevention" lane the aims of these two organizations diverge at right angles. The public leads off for a lower fire tax while insurance interests are reaching for greater profits. This is very natural and, from a purely business view, the action of either party may pass without criticism.

On a declining loss rate, the insuring public naturally asks for lower rates. The companies just as naturally defer rate reductions as long as possible, and the companies that pay the highest commissions to agents are, very obviously, standing for the highest obtainable rate. It is at this point that competition among insurance companies should become effective in reducing the fire tax to the assured, leaving a moderate profit to the companies. This would be the case if competition was applied direct with the assured; but such is not the case. The local agent controlls the business and the competition between the companies is based on agents commissions: As the Insurance Commissioner of Massachusetts states the case, "The assured is eliminated." The same official states that in his field commissions on many classes of risks have reached as high as 40% and that the tendency is still upward. He also states that inthis country agents' commissions amount annually to $7,500,000 more than on the usual commission basis of ten years ago. The Insurance Commissioner of Illinois, during a recent public address, stated that on many classes of risks, local agents' commissions had doubled within the memory of the present man. The Insurance Commissioner of Kansas has undertaken to compel the companies to limit agents' commissions to 25%. A former Insurance Commissioner of this state suggested limiting local agents' commissions by legislative enactment.

What shall it profit the tax payers if they spend time and money closing the fire waste "Bung" if the expense "Spigot", already overly large, shall be kept running at an increased capacity.

There should be a reasonable limit to the expense of collecting and distributing the fire tax.

Respectfully submitted,
K. Neutson, Sec'y.

THE SOCIALIST LYCEUM COURSE.

The Socialist Local working in connection with the National Socialist Party, has arranged to give a course of five lectures in this city during December and January. They have arranged with a large number of Socialist Publishers that every person who purchases one dollars worth of Socialist books or Periodicals shall receive as a premium a Season Ticket to this Course of five lectures without additional charge.

That you are not interested in Socialism is the very best of reasons why you should attend these lectures as they will be interesting and entertaining as well as instructive.

Everybody who believes in any of the Socialist principles should attend these lectures as there they will receive up-to-date information and instruction as to the principles and working methods of modern socialism.

Those who are opposed to Socialism have every reason for attending these lectures that they may know more about what they oppose so as not to waste their efforts in fighting obselete theories but may be in a position to combat with practical realities.

The five lectures are so arranged as to make a comprehensive treatise of Socialism and everybody should make it a point to attend every lecture. If you have not gotten your ticket yet be sure to ask some of the Workers of the Local and they will be glad to explain anything you do not understand and provide you with a ticket.

a thoroughly competent business manager, pay him a good salary and give him complete charge of the business, because that is the only way you could get him to do his best and get results. And if that man didn't produce satisfactory results, you would, of course, "fire" him. You would also have the right to make suggestions in regard to your business, and further, you would have the right to check any move which you considered unwise on the part of your business manager. These latter priveleges of yours could be exercised, and still you two gentlemen could be on the best of terms.

Concentrate power and have the right of supervision in time of need, and you will get results. The commission plan puts no unnecessary handicap on a man; he has no excuse for not making good; the people sit in the boss' chair and watch results. If anything goes wrong, you can place your finger on the man that is responsible, and that is something you can't do under the present system.

The "Press" has in previous issues explained nearly everything in regard to commission government, but has not agitated it. Several men at the council meeting declared openly in favor of the commission plan.

The best way to get the movement started is for several men to post themselves on the commission plan, and then go about and talk it over with the voters individually. As soon as the majority of the people have the commission bug in their ear, it would be in order to call public meetings for a general discussion of the system. At some of the meetings it would be advisable to call in from other cities men who are thoroughly posted on the commission plan as it is working in their respective cities. The "Press" can be of material assistance to those who want to post themselves further on the commission plan.

For the benefit of those who want to know the law, we re-publish from our issue of August 18th the following:

The Law.

There was approved in April 1909, by the state legislature, an act authorizing the Board of Freeholders appointed to frame charters for cities under the provisions of Sections 748 to 755 inclusive, Revised Laws 1905, to incorporate in such charters provisions for a commission form of City Government, and elections for all municipal officers, and to provide for the adoption of the commission form of government by amendment of such city charters. This act is found in chapter 170 of the General Laws of 1909.

The city of Thief River Falls is at present using as a charter chapter 8 of the General Laws of 1905. But if at any time 10 per cent of the qualified electors who voted at the last general municipal election do request that a new charter be formed, then the district judges shall appoint 15 freeholders whose duty it is to formulate a new charter, and the same shall be submitted to a vote of the people. The district judges are Grindeland, of Warren, and Watts, of Crookston. A freeholder is a man who owns property in the city.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The W. C. T. U. met last Monday evening with Mrs. Mary Christenson in honor of our 14th district president, Mrs. Lucy Chapen of Euclid, Minn. After the usual opening of the meeting the rest of the evening was given to Mrs. Chapen.

Most of the time was taken up by reading, Mrs. Jesse John's report of the W. C. T. U Convention held in Milwaukee last month,

This report told all about the campaign in Maine which has just been settled in favor of the prohibition party by a small majority. The reason that the number of votes for prohibition was not larger was because thousands of temperance voters staid at home on election day thinking that Maine was not in any danger of over becoming wet having kept the liquor traffic out of their State for nearly 30 years.

Many good things for carrying on the temperance work in our city was suggested by Mrs. Chapen. A very pleasant evening was spent, a good number of members having met up to meet Mrs. Chapen.

The next meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be in two weeks, Tuesday afternoon the 5th of Dec. with Mrs. Ole Nyhus.

Amusements

At The Auditorium.

On Tuesday December 5th, at the Auditorium, The Cambrian National Glee Singers will fill the third number on the Lyceum Course.

The company consists of twelve competent singers. Their program is extensive and suitable for all classes of people. Sacred, sentimental and humorous selections can be given in English, Welsh or Italian. The character songs of the "Welsh Harry Lauder," add a spice to the program that makes it even more popular than last season, when it scored a triumphant success.

At The Luceum.

Manager Morgan of the Lyceum Theatre announces this week that hereafter there will be a complete change of pictures every night in the week. Mr. Morgan is in touch with the best film houses, and assures the public that they can drop in at the Lyceum any time and get a first calss entertainment in every respect.

The latter part of next week there will be a high class vaudeville act at the Lyceum.

FANCY WORK BAZAR.

A special sale of all kinds of Fancy Work suitable for Christmas presents and Holiday goods; composed of embroidered Pillow Cases, Sofa Pillows, Center Pieces, Doileys, Lunch Cloths, Fancy Aprons, Table Runners, Baby Bibs and Yokes, Embroidered Waist Fronts, etc, etc.

Will be held by Mrs. M. V. Evenson at her home, 521 LaBree Avenue. on Friday and Saturday, December 1st and 2d; when she will be pleased to show any of these articles to prospective customers.

There is little danger from a cold or from an attack of the grip except when followed by pneumonia, and this never happens when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. This remedy has won its great reputation and extensive sale by its remarkable cures of colds and grip and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. For sale by all druggists.

RENDERED FIRST CLASS CONCERT.

The Eleonora Olson concert trio rendered a very pleasing entertainment last Saturday evening at the Presbyterian church. The entertainment consisted of singing by Miss Eleonora Olson, piano music by Miss Alice Walden, and impersonations by Miss Ethel Olson. Every one of the ladies received hearty applause, on each selection and there were many encores.

The concert trio, headed by Eleonora Olson, has been here before and the high quality of their entertainments is quite generally known. Had the concert been given on some other night than Saturday the church would no doubt been packed.

The trio was gotten here through the efforts of the Brage male chorus, for the purpose of making money enough to clear up the deficit occasioned by having the Sangerfest last summer. The concert was not very well attended, and the Brage will have but two or three dollars left for the good after expenses are paid. However, they deserve considerable credit for securing such a high class company in the endeavor to raise money and it is hoped that they will have [illegible] financial and [illegible]

NOTICE.

Strayed upon lands owned by me described as South East quarter of section twenty five in the town of Goodridge, County of Pennington and State of Minnesota, where I reside, four spring calves about seven months old, described as follows:

Two red and white bull calves,
One red and white heifer,
And one black and white heifer.

They were found and taken up as estrays by me on the thirty first day of October, 1911, and are of the value of six dollars each. The owner thereof is unknown to me.

STRAND—IVERSON.

Mr. Carl Strand and Miss Amanda Iverson were united in marriage last Wednesday at the Synod parsonage, by Rev. Aastad. After the ceremony, at the bride's home, the young couple together with their many friends partook of an enjoyable wedding supper. Mr. and Mrs. Strand left Wednesday morning for Park Rapids, where they will make their future home on the groom's farm.

ANSTAD.

Weather is kind of cold and agreable, Wonder if it is going to keep it up every day?

Mrs. Brevick was a caller at Lund's last Monday.

Mr. P. A. Kolstad visited with his wife a few days but he did not make his stay very long as Mrs. did not know any better than to fill his house up with flax so there was no room for him.

Mrs. Lund and Mrs. Wiseth were visitors at Mr. L. P. Poppenhagen's last Friday afternoon and evening.

GERMANTOWN

Last Saturday the school ma'ams from Esplee came down to our burg for their winter supplies and also to make preparations for a basket social which will be held the 1st day of December. Everyone is cordially invited, with a guarantee of having a good time.

Irving Quist came up Tuesday and will start stringing the wire on the new telephone line.

Saturday evening a gun was raffled off, Edwin Olson from Esplee being the lucky fellow. A keg of beer was taped to keep the losers in good spirit.

Wm. Vaughan and Chas. Cook returned today from their hunting trip. Both were successful in landing a big moose, but were unable to get them along as the swamps were soft.

Emma Olson came over from Esplee for a visit with the Chas. Cook family the first of the week.

A number of neighbors gathered at Thor Clausen's to say farewell, as Thor will start out for a trip to Washington.

The young folks had a social gathering at C. Clockmann's last Saturday evening.

COMMERCIAL-NORMAL

Hemer Carlson, of Strip, enrolled at the Commercial-Normal School on Tuesday, Nov. 14th. The basket ball boys were glad to see him back, for he strengthens the team as center.

Hans Hanson of Newfolden, enrolled on Saturday, Nov. 17th. He will spend his spare time studying law in O. A. Naplin's office.

Oscar and Edwin Swanson from Steiner are late arrivals at the Commercial-Normal.

The basket ball game with the High School last Friday was a hard contested battle. The Commercial boys showed lack of practice and team work. They expect to round into form for some good games after the Holidays.

Joseph Votava, who is employed in Judge Bishop's office, has enrolled for the Shorthand Course. When some more musicians arrive, he will start a school orchestra.

The school has received a number of applications for the Civil Service Course. There is nothing quite as good as working for Uncle Sam. He is always sure pay.

Why Farmers Should Keep A Bank Account

Because their bank deposit book with the Citizens State Bank affords them a complete record of their cash receipts, while the stubs of their check book are a perfect record of expense and payments.

Paying a laborer, a store account or any other bill with a bank check is much safer than with money, because the person receiving the check must endorse it. The check is later returned to the maker by the bank and can be reserved as a receipt.

FARMERS: Make the experiment for six months of keeping a bank account and see if it does not pay you. This bank will be pleased to serve you.

The New Kind of School

A school based not on tradition, but on the peoples' needs; a school that meets conditions as they are today, and not as they were a century ago; a school that fits you to be useful in actual life, and not artificial in a drawing room;-

Such a school is the Commercial Normal

For instance, many new comers from Norway, Denmark, Sweden, Germany and France, need to learn the English language quickly and accurately.

We have teachers who understand their language to teach them English.

In our commercial department pupils are taught what they need to know and how to use what they know.

When Bathtubs Were Curiosities.

The British Medical Journal asserts that a century back the English were a dirty people. England can hardly have been worse than the French. In 1713 Jean Baptiste de la Salle published "Les Regles de la Bienseance et de la Civilite Chretiennes," a manual for the guidance of youth which has run into over fifty editions and is still in print. We are told that "for the sake of cleanliness it is well to rub the face every morning with a white towel in order to remove the dirt. It is not advisable to wash with water, for this exposes the face to the chills of winter and the heats of summer." This precept continued to appear in the manual until the edition of 1782. A similar work, "La Civilite Nouvelle," published in 1667, warns children that "to wash the face in water injures the eyesight, brings on toothaches and colds and engenders pallor."—London Chronicle.

Initials as Pen Names.

Greatness has sometimes disguised itself under initials. About the middle of the eighteenth century there was published a book entitled "The Miscellaneous Works, Comical and Diverting, by T. R. D. J. S. D. O. S. P. I. I." This pompous array of initials hardly succeeded in concealing the personality of the Rev. Dr. Jonathan Swift, dean of St. Patrick's, in Ireland. A more effective disguise was adopted by Arthur Sykes, the author of an "Inquiry into the Meaning of Demoniacks in the New Testament." The author takes refuge in initials, styling himself "T. P. A. P. O. A. B. I. T. C. O. S." And this is the interpretation: "The Precentor and Prebendary of Alton Borealis, in the Church of Salisbury."—London Standard.

Tuning the Furniture.

"Before a piano tuner can get good results he sometimes has to tune up the general furniture as well as the piano," said an expert tuner. "The other day I was sent for to tune a piano that had not been out of the factory six weeks. It was a fine piano, but every time I struck a note a noise like a battery of tin pans let loose sounded through the room. I worked all morning without making any improvement. Finally I examined the rest of the furniture, and pretty soon I discovered the cause of those jangling chords. A cabinet filled with old brass plates, platters and pieces of armor stood against the same wall. One leg was shorter than the others, and every time I struck the piano keys the vibrations caused a slight tipping of the cabinet and set the brass contents a-jiggling. I pointed out the uneven legs to the pianist.

"'What you want is a furniture mender, not a piano tuner,' I said.

"They got one in to add an eighth of an inch to that short leg, and the piano sounded sweet and true."—New York Sun.

Andalusian Girls.

Despite their attractions Andalusian girls only marry after very long engagements, sometimes lasting ten years. One girl who has been engaged four years has a lover who comes from a distance twice a year to see her, and yet he has never once mentioned matrimony. He lives with his mother and no doubt keeps her, for Spanish mothers have great influence over their sons. When at last a marriage takes place the bride has often to reside with her mother-in-law, to whom custom requires her to be most subservient. Extremely devoted to their own mothers, Andalusian girls are in no hurry to marry should their doing so require them to live at any distance from their old home. On the other hand, they do not appreciate having to wait ten years, but, as they say, "No hay remedio" (there is no remedy).—Seville Letter.

When Vapor Is Dry.

Mr. M. Mott-Smith points out in Science a popular misconception in the supposition that aqueous vapor and ice are wet. They are in themselves dry and become wet only when they turn to water. "So dry is aqueous vapor that it will dry any moist object that it comes in contact with." Superheated steam before it condenses is a dry gas. Ice feels wet if the temperature of the hand is sufficient to melt it, as ice itself is dry. Another misconception is that the air can be either moist or dry. It is condensed aqueous vapor in the air that is moist, and it would be moist if there were no air. A given quantity of aqueous vapor confined in a given space will be wetter or drier according to the temperature. At 50 degrees, for instance, it might be partially condensed and consequently wet, while at 70 degrees, owing to its expansion, it would be dry.

SARAH BERNHARDT TO WED

Aged Actress to Become Bride of Man of Twenty-six.

Paris, Nov. 21.—Sarah Bernhardt, the famous actress, is shortly to be married to Lou Telegan, a Flemish actor, twenty-six years old, who played subordinate parts in Bernhardt's company during her last American tour.

Bernhardt, in her "memoirs," says she was born of Jewish parentage in Paris at 265 Rue St. Honore, Oct. 22, 1844, but in her infancy was baptized as a Roman Catholic.

The famous actress is a grandmother. Two years ago Mlle. Simone Maurice Bernhardt, the daughter of her son Maurice, married Edgar Gross of Paris. Her son Maurice is forty-six years old.

DECISION AGAINST THE BEEF BARONS

Judge Kohlsaat Dismisses Writ of Habeas Corpus.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—The government won another move in its fight to bring to trial nine indicted Chicago meat packers when Judge Kohlsaat in the United States circuit court quashed a writ of habeas corpus issued several days ago.

Judge Kohlsaat held that the circuit court had no power to issue a writ except in extraordinary circumstances and that in the present case it was without the right. "To do so," he said in his decision, "would be an attempt to review the finding of the United States district court. The order of the court will be to quash the writ, remand the defendants for trial and surrender them to their sureties."

"We pray an appeal and ask your honor to fix the amount of bail," he said.

"Under the law," said Attorney Sheean, government counsel, "when a writ of habeas corpus is denied it is specifically provided that the respondents be remanded."

"Your honor's order to remand is void," said Mr. Mayer. "We shall find, unless care be taken, this question will be so snarled that there can be no adjudication."

After hearing arguments from the packers' attorneys Judge Kohlsaat refused to interfere. The packers gave notice of appeal.

The soldiers had strict orders to arrest any revolutionist or enemy of the Mexican government who made any hostile move while in the United States.

MASSACRE TAKES PLACE AT SIANFU

Chinese Officials Confirm Killing of Foreigners and Manchus.

The... fo... in the ... towns.

Only Chinese reports have been received regarding the massacre. There has been no telegraphic or postal communication with Sianfu for more than three weeks.

The Swedish missionaries, Messrs. Sandberg and Erickson, arrived here from Tientsin. They said a telegram had been received from Sianfu, before their departure from Southern Shensi, telling of the murder of Mrs. Beckman, a schoolmistress, and five foreign children.

Many Chinese girls in Miss Beckman's school, who were mistaken for Manchus because of their big feet, were reported to have been murdered. A German, Philip Manners, who is in the Chinese postal service, was among others killed.

Province Strongly Anti-Foreign.

Messrs. Sandberg and Erickson say that a magistrate in their town offered them $400 each to leave the province. Shensi probably is the most anti-foreign province in China proper, not having received a lesson at the hands of the foreign troops in 1900.

At Sianfu, a city of nearly a million inhabitants, the English Baptists have two stations with six men and seven women missionaries. Also there is in the city the Society of the Brethren, an English organization, with two men and three women missionaries. The Young Men's Christian association is the only American institution which has workers in the local field of Sianfu.

The legations have taken no action, but they have the reported killing of foreigners under consideration. Without a strong invading force, however, nothing can be accomplished beyond the reach of the Yangtse gunboats. Most of the legations advised their countrymen in the interior to escape three weeks since. Many disobeyed, believing they were in no danger, though some of the women and children were sent to the coast.

PARCELS POST CONDEMNED

Transmississippi Congress Opposed to the Plan.

Kansas City, Nov. 19.—After selecting Salt Lake City as the meeting place for 1912 and Kansas City as official headquarters, the twenty-second annual session of the Transmississippi Commercial congress adjourned.

The resolution declaring that the congress was against the enactment of any parcels post law, which was adopted, provoked long and at times acrimonious discussion.

The congress did not openly endorse the plan of the national monetary commission to change the currency and banking system of the country, but the resolution adopted stated that the plan "may be a step in the right direction." It was recommended that the plan be given careful and conservative consideration.

TRUST ASKS FOR REHEARING

Harvester Company Petitions Missouri Supreme Court.

Jefferson City, Mo., Nov. 21.—Quoting Theodore Roosevelt's recent declaration for a "square deal" for both the corporations and the public the International Harvester company filed in the supreme court of Missouri a motion for a rehearing in the recent case in which it was conditionally ousted from the state and fined $50,000 on charge of violating the state anti-trust law. The gist of the motion is that the Harvester company ought not to be punished for the mere possession of power. It announced its "intention of vigorously resisting the fine."

Witness Describes Abuse of Kansas Schoolteacher.

Lincoln Center, Kan., Nov. 21.—Chester Anderson, a laborer of Beverly, this county, related to a jury the startling story of how ten men of Lincoln county dragged Miss Mary Chamberlain from a buggy near Twelve-Mile schoolhouse and administered a coat of tar to her naked body. The witness was implicated in the attack on the schoolteacher.

Under cross-examination Anderson admitted that he had never heard any gossip against Miss Chamberlain and said his part in the crime followed a talk at Clark's mill the day of the "party," when "Sheriff Clark or Mr Simms asked me if I would take Mary Chamberlain out that night; that they wanted to tar her. I said no."

Anderson told of how he had arranged with Edward Ricord to take the girl for a buggy ride and of going back to Clark's mill to notify the "gang." The night of the tarring Anderson and Dolbert Kindelsparger drove to the scene in a buggy while other members of the mob came on motorcycles

"Think," said Judge Wanamaker, "of a great national administration in this, the Twentieth century, gathering to its arms and having as its chief defenders the Knoxes, Wickershams, Wilsons, Ballingers, Lorimers and McCabes, who were simply the stool pigeons of the special interests.

"Popular government never was on trial like it is today. Progressive Republicans demand that political power be placed back in the hands of the people; and if it be not returned through the Republican or Democratic party the new party of Socialism will return not only that political power but very largely private and corporate property to the hands of the people."

NOT OUT FOR THIRD TERM

Senator Crawford Says Roosevelt Favors La Follette.

Detroit, Nov. 21.—That Theodore Roosevelt is not out for another term and is not a "stool pigeon for Morgan," as reported in New York, but in reality has broken with President Taft and his policies in favor of La Follette, were statements made here in an interview by Senator Coe I. Crawford of South Dakota, who began a week's speaking tour in Michigan in the interests of the La Follette presidential campaign.

The statements came in answer to a question whether the senator knew anything about the report that the former president had privately assured leaders of the progressive movement that he was for La Follette instead of being out for another nomination for himself.

California Executive Declares People Name Choice for President.

Sacramento, Cal., Nov. 21.—Governor Johnson in a formal statement came out squarely for La Follette for president and a direct presidential primary. Set Of Ware FREE

If you call at our store during our Majestic Demonstration Week and allow us to show you the many advantages and superior qualities of the Great Majestic Range, and will purchase one at the regular price, we will give you Free the beautiful and useful Souvenir Set of Ware illustrated in this advertisement. This ware is made to match the quality of the Majestic Ranges, and we know all ladies will see the beauty and utility of this set, especially the first three pieces, which are entirely new and cannot be had alone by purchase except at the very high price. The prices of Majestic Ranges are the same, but we give the set FREE with each Majestic Range bought during the demonstration week only,

Reasons Why The Great Majestic You Should Buy

1st. It has the reputation of being the best range money can buy.

2d It not only has the reputation but IS the best range made, and we will prove this to you if you will let us.

3d. It is constructed of malleable iron, material you can't beat, and of Charcoal iron, material that resists rust 300 percent greater than steel, is riveted together air tight. No heat escapes or cold air enters the range, thus uses very little fuel to do perfect work.

4th. The reservior alone is worth the price of range over any other reservoir made. It hoils 15 gallons of water; is heated like a tea kettle, with pocket against left hand lining and is movable and sets on frame, hence cannot wear out. When water gets too hot it can be moved away from fire.

Majestic ranges use less fuel; heat more water—and heat it hotter; cost practically nothing for repairs; lasts three times as long; bakes better; easier to keep clean and gives better satisfaction than any other range on the market. If you know positively that the above statments are true, wouldn't you buy a Majestic at once?

Come in Demonstration Week and We'll prove It to you.

ARTICLE CAUSES POLITICAL STIR

Colonel Roosevelt Attacks Taft's Trust Policies.

MAY MARK PARTING OF WAYS

General Belief Is That Breach Between President and Predecessor Cannot Be Healed.

Washington, Nov. 17.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's attack on President Taft's trust policies was taken here as marking the parting of the ways between the former president and his chosen successor. For months it has been apparent that Roosevelt was not in sympathy with the Taft administration and an open declaration has been expected. Following the filing of the steel trust suit, in which Mr. Taft aimed an indirect blow at Roosevelt, it was predicted that the colonel would strike back.

The breach opened cannot be closed, according to general belief, before convention time and many who have doubted whether Roosevelt would oppose the renomination of Mr. Taft took the statement as conclusive evidence of his attitude. The Taft men were silent, declining to comment, but the Roosevelt article caused a sensation in political circles generally.

The political phase of the attack was much commented on here. The article is looked on as marking a complete break between Roosevelt and Taft. Coming on the heels of the attack on the arbitration treaties it can scarcely fail to stir up resentment at the White House.

It is looked on in some quarters here as a step on the part of Roosevelt to "square" himself with big financial interests and thus to play for their support in 1912. Progressive Republican leaders are pleased with it, as they consider it will weaken Mr. Taft among the devoted adherents of Roosevelt.

URGES CONTROL BY BUREAU

Roosevelt Discusses Methods of Regulating Trusts.

New York, Nov. 17.—Recent litigation and legislation to regulate the trusts is discussed and a remedy to meet the present situation is suggested by Theodore Roosevelt in an editorial entitled "The Trust, the People and the Square Deal," published in the Outlook.

"The suit against the steel trust by the government," Mr. Roosevelt begins, "has brought vividly before our people the need of reducing to order our chaotic government policy as regards business."

He concludes with the following recommendation:

"The national government exercises control over interstate commerce railways and it can, in similar fashion, through an appropriate governmental body, exercise control over all industrial organizations engaged in interstate commerce. This control should be exercised, not by the courts, but by an administrative bureau or board such as the bureau of corporations or the interstate commerce commission; for the courts cannot, with advantage, permanently perform executive and administrative functions."

PROBABLY VICTIM OF PLOT

President Caceres of Santo Domingo Assassinated.

Washington, Nov. 21.—Ramon Caceres, president of Santo Domingo, was assassinated by political malcontents in San Domingo city, according to reports to the state department. No uprising has followed as yet.

Lacking further information it is presumed here that Caceres has fallen a victim to one of the characteristic Dominican plots. It is known that Caceres' administration, which has lasted four years, an almost unprecedented period in Dominican history, has very recently been disturbed by several well defined rvolutionary plots.

TWO MORE JURORS SWORN

Five of the Twelve Needed to Try McNamara Obtained.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 18.—Two more jurors, making five in all, were sworn in the McNamara trial. They are J. B. Sexton, a retired farmer, and William J. Andre, a nonunion carpenter.

The state excused Talesman Arthur Gribbling, William Brunner and Clark McLain. The defense excused Brewster C. Kenyon, A. C. Heath, T. H. Elliott and Jacob Lansing. The defense now has eleven and the state five peremptory challenges left.

CONFESS TARRING TEACHER

Three Kansas Men Accused of Act Plead Guilty.

Lincoln Center, Kan., Nov. 17.—Pleas of guilty, suddenly announced in the circuit court here by three of the most prominent men accused in connection with the tarring of Miss Mary Chamberlain, the Shady Bend schoolteacher, carried the state's attorneys almost off their feet with surprise. These announced pleas of guilty:

Watson Scranton, Shady Bend, farmer.

Jay Fitzwater, Shady Bend, farmer.

Judge Grover reserved sentence.

TRIPLE EXECUTION AT SING SING PRISON

Three Murderers Put to Death In Twenty-three Minutes.

Ossining, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Three murderers were put to death by electricity in Sing Sing prison just as dawn began to brighten the skies above the Westchester hill. They were Pietro Faletto of Port Chester, Frank Schermerhorn of Millbrook and Bert L. Brown of Rye. They went to the chair in that order. The execution began at 5:38 and lasted only twenty-three minutes.

It was the first triple electrocution at Sing Sing since the electric current superseded the gallows in New York state. Twenty years ago four murderers paid the death penalty at one time by hanging.

Backer of John L. Dead.

Boston, Nov. 21.—Michael T. Clarke, formerly well known as backer of John L. Sullivan when Sullivan was heavyweight champion, died here suddenly. He was born in Ireland about sixty-eight years ago.

Grapefruit Greenery.

Effective greenery for the dining room table may be made by planting the seeds of grapefruit. Sow them thickly, and in two weeks if the earth is good and has been kept moist in a warm place the little shoots appear. Two weeks more and the leaves unfold, and very soon there is a mass of rich, glossy green which is not affected by gas or furnace heat.—Suburban Life.

Was It Genius?

By JOHN C. WINSLOW

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Paul Crook was a young American art student in Paris. He was considered very promising by connoisseurs, and a number of his chums looked upon him as a coming genius. Crook lived just such a life as other artists lived in the Latin quarter at that time, which was a bohemian one, mingling only with those who were either artists, artists' models or grisettes. He had a bed in his studio, where he slept and got his own breakfast, dining usually at a restaurant, where he met other artists and the women they associated with, including models. They would usually get together at the same table, and a merrier lot were not to be found in all Paris.

There was a girl who belonged to this set who seemed out of place. There was a refined purity about her that none of the others possessed. She made her living as an artist's model, but especially for her head and shoulders. She had posed for more Madonna pictures than would fill one of the rooms in the Louvre. Crook, being the most prominent artist of the set, considered that any one of the girls he chose to smile upon should smile upon him in return. He took a fancy to Cecile Boyer—"the Madonna," as she was familiarly referred to—and was very much put out that she did not return his admiration.

The truth is Cecile had given her heart to David Forbes, one of the least prominent of the young artists studying in Paris. He, too, was an American. Why he tried to make an artist of himself no one could conjecture, for he had no idea of any of those matters which pertain to art. He undertook to paint a scene as revealed through a window and devoted two-thirds of his space to the curtain. As to perspective, he would paint a house and a pump, showing the pump larger than the house. When his chums ridiculed his work Cecile defended him. Indeed, the only cause they could assign for her affection for him was pity. Crook could paint excellent pictures, but Cecile did not love him. Forbes couldn't paint anything of value, and he was hers heart and soul.

Of all the young women who met at the B. cafe Cecile was the only one who never posed except completely dressed. Indeed, since she was wanted specially for her head and shoulders, nudity was unnecessary. The singular feature of her association with the others was that she did not in any way assume to be better than they.

Unfortunately for Forbes, he could not afford to spend his time trying to learn what seemed impossible for him to learn, for he was poor. But the less money he had in his pocket the more determined he became to make an artist of himself. Whether Cecile encouraged him in his purpose no one knew, though all understood she stuck by him. About the time his last franc was spent and no remittance to come from America his health broke down and that finished all work for him, at least for the present.

His artist friends went to see him and asked if they could do anything for him, but he shook his head and said that he was getting on very well. Sometimes they would find Cecile there, ministering to him. Indeed, she was providing for him, but at that time no one dreamed of such a thing.

During Forbes' illness Paul Crook attempted to gain some foothold with Cecile. She neither encouraged nor repelled him. Indeed, she continued to be indifferent to him. He offered her a large sum to pose to him for a picture requiring a model for the whole figure. For a time he believed she would consent. She wanted the money for David Forbes. She went to David, told him of the offer and said that if he would accept of the sacrifice she would accept Crook's proposition.

By this she gave him a dose that took away his malady and called out an artistic ability that no one knew was in him. He spurned the proposition with horror, saying:

"Had I such a model I could produce a wonder."

That was the origin of Forbes' picture of Eve, which was hung in the Paris salon the next year. None of the set of which Paul Crook was the shining light recognized Cecile as the model for Eve. Forbes put just enough change in the features to prevent her being recognized. He shrank from her appearing before the world as his model more than she. She was shielded by his love and her sacrifice.

What a singular bouleversement. Crook was expected to give the world at least one great work. So he did. But how? By stirring the poison of jealousy in a man who it was believed had not a single artistic instinct. Crook called out a latent, unexpected ability. Crook himself seldom rose above mediocrity and after awhile seemed to recede from his best work. Indeed, between the two men there was produced but one celebrated picture, that painted by David Forbes.

Forbes' single chef d'ouvre is a puzzle. If it was really genius, why did it not repeat itself? If it was simply the result of a stimulus, how could it produce a work of genius where genius did not exist? The problem borders on those natural laws which are still hidden from us.

Two Champion Penmen.

A contest in the fine art of penmanship would not arouse much public interest now. But there seems to have been great excitement when Peter Bales was challenged by Daniel Johnson in 1595. Bales was the beautiful writer who could transcribe the whole Bible so that it would go into a walnut shell and who had provided Queen Elizabeth with a specimen of his handwriting which she wore in a ring, a magnifying glass being required to [illegible] the contest took place there were five judges and a hundred spectators. The competition included all kinds of writing, the proficiency of the rivals' pupils and the masterpieces of either. Bales won the golden pen, but Johnson declared that there had been trickery, Bales having begged to be allowed to show the pen to his sick wife and having promptly pawned it, whereupon the judges had to declare him the winner to get out of the difficulty. Really the award was privately made to spare Johnson's feelings.—London Spectator.

Fat and Fashionable.

According to the Moorish [illegible] beauty, a really handsome [illegible] ought to be so fat that she [illegible] waddle, not walk. The fatt[illegible] the more beautiful she is [illegible] If she can attain 200 or 3[illegible] of flesh she is the envy of all [illegible] The Moorish shape—if shape it [illegible] called—approaches the perfection [illegible] feminine beauty when it resembles, or, rather, exceeds, the circumference of a barrel. What a paradise for the fat woman! There she can eat and drink and feast to her heart's content, denying herself nothing, living an easy, indolent, luxurious life, with no horror of accumulating fat, but rather rejoicing in it. There the ambition of a woman is to acquire bulk. Physical culture she would regard as an enemy to beauty, and to take Turkish baths and diet herself would be considered the height of folly. She wants to be beautiful, and to be beautiful she must be fat.

An Early Street Cleaner.

"One day," Ben Franklin wrote in his autobiography, "I found a poor, industrious man, who was willing to undertake keeping the pavement clean by sweeping it twice a week, carrying off the dirt from before all the neighbors' doors for the sum of sixpence per month to be paid by each house. I then wrote and printed a paper setting forth the advantages to the neighborhood that might be obtained by this small expense. I sent one of these papers to each house and in a day or two went around to see who would subscribe an agreement to pay these sixpences. It was unanimously signed and for a time well executed. This raised a general desire to have all the streets paved and made the people more willing to submit to a tax for that purpose."—Survey.

Grave Humor.

The punster is irrepressible. He even indites his jokes on tombstones. An epitaph in Waltham abbey informs [illegible] that Sir James Fullerton di[illegible] of faith than of fears, fuller [illegible] tions than of pains, fuller [illegible] than of days."

There is another of [illegible] "Though strange, yet true, [illegible] years was his wife happ[illegible] Tears."

This was written of an organist: "Here lies one, blown out of breath, who lived a merry life and died a Merideth."

Another says: "Here lies Thomas Huddlestone. Reader, don't smile, but reflect as this tombstone you view that Death, who killed him, in a very short while will huddle a stone upon you."—

PENNINGTON COUNTY FAIR

Presbyterian Aid Society Gives Entertainment at The Auditorium, Friday evening December 1st.

Last night was the last rehearsal of the County Fair. With all the preparations that have been made there is no question of the merit of the entertainment and with the talent that has been secured for the event there is even less question as to the success of the performance. All of the choruses have been carefully trained for the past few weeks and there was not a hitch at the rehearsal last night. Everything went off in a form that left nothing to be expected. Those who are to take the leading parts have been carnstly at work and have perfected themselves in the art of barking out the virtues of circus lemonade or of telling of how high the elephant can jump the fence. All of the green-eyed monsters and the snakecharmers will be there and their wonders will be lauded from the stumps as the country jades and the lasses from the corn fields come and go in the ecstacy of delight. The farmer boys in their homespuns and their new trousers made by cutting down a pair of father's old ones will be there. Their coats have an affection for their elbows and they may need sugar on their shoes to coax their trousers down, but they will make a good time for all who are going to hear them. There is a laugh in every turn and the turns are numerous.

AND THEY WERE MARRIED

Pennington Ranks high in number of Marriage Lisence Issued in First Year.

During the first year of the existance of Pennington county Clerk of Court H. E. Ives issued eighty-three marriage lisences. This is certainly a large number for a small county and shows what prosperity in the country will do in helping cupid close up a deal.

Those who secured lisences during the past week besides those whose marriages we chronicle below are:

Christnia Wilson to Duncan McAllisten of St. Hilaire; Mary Parbst to John Myer from west of the city; Elsie Ortloff to Albert Severson of Sanders and Clara Lindquist to John Froum of Sanders.

LONSON—MEAROW

Last Saturday evening at 9:30 occured the marriage of Mr. Albert Lonson and Miss Susie Mearow, both of this city. Reverend Aastad performed the ceremony which took place in the private living parlors of the bride's sister, Mrs. Brumund, at Hotel Ogahmah. Twelve of the immediate friends of the bride and groom witnessed the marriage. At 10 o'clock Mrs. Brumund served a delightful wedding supper. Many pretty and useful wedding presents were in evidence.

Mr. and Mrs. Lonson will make their home here: Mr. Lonson is cashier of the First State Bank, and one of the popular and progressive young men of the city. The bride has a large circle of friends who wish her much happiness. Until recently Mrs. Lonson was a nrse at the Mayo Bro's. hospital at Rochester.

KELLAM—KASSMER

Mr. A. G. Kallam, of this city, and Miss Lillian Kassmer, of Souk Rapids, were united in marriage at 6 p. m., yesterday in the German Lutheran Church at Sauk Rapids, Rev. Agather of that city performing the ceremony. After the ceremony a reception was tendered the young couple and their friends, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Albert Buegler.

Mr. and Mrs. Kellam left this morning for Thief River Falls, where the groom has a cozy home fixed up over Aos' store: The newlyweds will start housekeeping right away, and we are sure that the bride will be more than pleased with the new home the groom has prepared.

The bride is one of Sauk Rapid's most estimable young women, and it is with pleasure we announce her arrival to this city. The groom will be remembered as the barber who came here from Minneapolis sometime ago to assist Furan and Benson. He has proven to be true all of the good things that were said about him in the columns of this paper at the time of his arrival.

WESTERLUND—FORSBERG

Last Monday at five o'colck in the afternoon at the Swedish Mission church, Rev., Frank Larson officiating, occured the marriage of Mr. Axel Westerlund and Miss. Ellen Forsberg. Gust Larson, of St. Hilaire, acted as best man, and Miss Signa Peterson as bridesmaid. A few intimate friends witnessed the ceremony, after which they and the happy couple repaired to the Park Hotel where a sumptuous wedding supper awaited them.

Assured of an Extension

Thief River Falls, Minn., Nov. 15.—That this section of the state will be traversed by another leading railway next summer is regarded as a certainty. Leading officials of the Minneapols & St. Louis railway, accompanied by several engineers, have spent the last six weeks in a close examination of the territory lying in Eastern Polk county, Pennington, Eastern Marshall and Roseau. They have criscrossed the country by auto and by team in all directions, and no attempt has been made at secrecy by anyone connected with the big scouting expedition.

The officials frankly stated that they would build somewhere through this section next season, but would or could not state just where. They were seeking a direct and productive route toward Winnipeg. They made this city their headquarters and appeared to be in no hurry to complete their examinations. From here they moved northward to Roseau. One route extended was some ieighenene route examined was some eighteen miles east of Thief River Falls; c me from the direction of Bagley in Clearwater county and continued northwesterly toward the Canadian boundary. The other came directly toward Thief River Falls and continued to Roseau and north to Winnipeg.

The former would tap an unoccupied country of rich prairie land, all well settled and capable of producing a heavy business in farm produce immediately. The one through this city is shorter, more direct and will also traverse much good new country.

The preliminary survey was completed last week just before the advent of the big snowstorm.—Pioneer Press. The exact meaning of this may be a matter of conjecture but it is certain that the country east of here will have two railroads instead of one before next year at this time.

MUCH MONEY FROM BUTTER

Pennington County Creameries Produced over $140,000 worth in 1910.

We give herewith a condesed form of the Dairy and Food Departments report of the business done by the five Co-operative Creameries of Pennington county during the year 1810.

It is certainly encouraging to see that the five creameries in our county were doing a business of nearly $30,000 each during last year and it is certain that the year soon to draw to a close will have a still better showing by at least 15 per cent.

FROM THE PROGRESSIVES

Shall Mr. Taft Withraw? Insurgency, Insurrection and rebellion are in Evidence.

Washington, D. C. Nov. 28.—No more startling illusrations of the weakness of President Taft in the entire field of presidential candidate can be found than in the poll made by the Farm Journal, published in Pennsylvania. The Farm Journal is asking its readers to express their choice for President. Here is the answer thus far received:

• • • • •

On election night in Boston the stand-pat leaders were assembled in a private dining room at the American House. Prominent in the group were Louis A. Frothingham, the Republican candidate for Governor who was provided with a stand-pat platform on the advice of President Taft, and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, member of the Finance Committee of the Senate, who voted against the La-Follette cotton and woolen bills.

At seven o'clock that night the early election returns indicated the election of Frothingham over Foss. When a telephone message announced that the newspaper extras were conceding Frothingham's selection, Senator Lodge, according to the Boston Transcript, pounded the table with his fist and declared:

"The tariff argument did it; the tariff issue is what won the campaign; that's what did it."

Two hours later, when it became certain that Foss was elected, Lodge was silent, but the Progressive Republicans, who were opposed to the stand pat platform practically dictated by President Taft, and actually written by Senator W. Murray Crane, could not do better than appropriate Lodge's expression: "The tariff argument did it."

• • • • •

Says the Richmond (Calif.) Independent: "In the east people are amazed at the growth of the LaFollette movement,—at the growing revolt against the Taft Administration. The conviction is becoming general that the Progressive wing of the Republican party is destined to rule and that LaFollette is the only hope for a national Republican victory."

In 1892 President Harrison was nominated for a second term by the votes of delegates from the gulf states. Harrison was renominated, despite the opposition in the north, and because of the votes from the south. Instructions were followed and pledges kept. The result is well remembered. The Republican party suffered overwhelmingly defeat. The lesson of 1892 has a direct bearing on conditions within the Republican party today. President Taft's position is identical, with that of President Harrison.

One of the most significant political editorials which has appeared in a Republican paper since the campaign of 1908 is that in the New York Press of Saturday, Nov. 18th.

The editorial in full is as follows:

"Shall Mr. Taft Withdraw?"

"With Theodore Roosevelt now out as an open and enthusiastic assailant of the Administration in Washington, with the Progressive Republican League hurling tomahawks at the White House from all over the Western hunting grounds, with farmers bitterly resentful of what they deem Tariff heresy, and with Big Business in the East grown strangely cold to President Taft, because, while stocks went up after his election, they have had a passion for darting downward since his inauguration, the Federal machine, which is intrusted with the mission of making a ticket for the national convention to

W. F. RIES FIRST LECTURER

Speaks Here Next Wednesday Evening on a Practical Subject.

People who insist that Socialists are "impractical and visionary" will find in W. F. Ries a living contradiction to such a statement. Professor Ries was reared on an Ohio farm—an institution where the daily struggle with nature emphasizes the fact that only the practical can survive. He grew up by successive stages thru the country and high school, finally graduating at Valparaiso University. He also gradnted from the Bogart School of Oratory. For a number of years Professor Ries conducted largest business school in Ohio, and most of us know that in the "business college" of today the "practical" is emphasized so insistently that the average pupil finishes with a heart of brass and wisdom teeth of steel.

Out of this "practical" atmosphere W. F. Ries came into the Socialist movement, to become almost instantly one of the most prominent of its speakers and writers. He asks questions like these—they are practical questions:

"Do you wish to know why 72 per expenses are so high?

"Do you wish to know why 72 per cent of the American people do not own a home?

"Do you wish to know why millions of small children are compelled to work in factories while strong and willing men are looking for work?

"Why do those who do nothing have everything while those who do everything have nothing?

"Do you know that according to Census Buttetin No. 150, the average skilled mechanic creates $2471.06 worth of goods per year and receives in wages only $437? Is this justice?

And the answers he gives are practical answers. They are so practical that his home town, Toledo, is swinging into the Socialist column behind Milwaukee. They are so practical that he has been chased by mobs and threatened by the authorities. They are so practical that his answers are everywhere listened to with the closest attention.

Facts he deals in always—facts and the figures. Yet he puts them into entertaining form. With a fine voice, a splendid bearing on the platform, a rare combination of wit, oratory and scarcasm, W. F. Ries is a speaker with abundant power to amuse and instruct his audiences. He will tell you "How We Are Gouged," and, however painful the gouging, you'll enjoy hearing him describe the process.

SALE OF SCHOOL LANDS

Farmers are Present In numbers, Buy Every Acre offered at Good Price.

"The state sale of school and other state lands that was held at Warren today was the best attended sale of State lands I ever attended," said Judge J. M. Bishop upon his return from Warren last Saturday evening. "There were over a hundred persons present who were anxious to bid. A large number of these were farmers from Eastern Marshall county all of whom were desirous of adding a forty acre tract or more to their present holdings. The consequence was that the bidding was brisk and alomst every foot of land offered in the vicinity of Rollis was sold to actual farmers from that particular locality at about $15 per acre. This sale had more to do with establishing a price on Marshall county lands than any-one thing that has happened for a long time. It proved conclusively that the people who live there and know the land are ready to buy more and that in turn inspires confidence into buyers from the outside."

"I ascribe this condition of affairs particularly to the fact that the farmers have just harvested a bountiful crop and sold it at a good price and they have money enough to buy the lands for what they know they are actually worth."

PREACHERS IDEA OF A NEWSPAPER

Preaches Sermon Telling of Editor's Lot In Life. What Is Your Duty?

Elder John P. Galvin, pastor of the Christian church of Fairfield, Il., in a series of sermons on the different trades and occupations of life, recently delivered a sermon on "The Newspaper." Among the many good things he said were:

"What am I doing for it? Kicking because it's not blowing my tin horn? But how much of myself am I lending to the paper by speaking a good word for it whenever I have a chance? Really how much of my personal influence can its eidtor depend upon? Much, or is it very little? If I grow a big cabbage I want him to publish it, but I may hear item after item of news about other people's cabbages and I never drop him a line about them. Now as he is not almighty enough to be in all places at the same time, why not help him by making news for his paper? It's rather a mean thing to take everything and to give nothing back but faultfinding. If we never feed the cow, how can we expect any milk, and can we blame bossy if she kicks the milker and the bucket? All in all, I find that our county papers are doing their very best for every part of the country—even a hundred times more than any of the large city papers can possibly do.

"The city daily or weekly cannot deal with those, to them, small items which interest close neighbors. But the county papers tell us all about them, and keep us posted in all home matters, from the first baby down to garden truck, and the visit Mrs. Sallie Howcomerso made at Pitchfork Creek.

"In fact, the magic of the county paper sets far-off neighbors in close gossiping contract—just a rail fence between. And where can a preacher find a more willing agent than this same county newspaper? It gives him free ads, for his sermons and lectures, etc., etc.

"And how many times its puff has inflated the cash balance of the church social? And he has to pay for his ice cream and cake besides.

"Talk about men working for glory? Why half the editors of the country papers only share of glory is like that of the man who saw the father of his nation afar-off, there being a gulf fixed between the two places. Yes, his glory is like some of those weird pictures of Doro. And after he has spent an hour or so patching up the spelling and punctuation of some hasty brother's article or letter so as to make decent reading out of it, he feels like he had a mouthful of mustard and sour dock when the said brother goes around telling every one how the said editor has runied his beautiful effusion. Job had boils to contend with, but the country editor has to try and satisfy men and women afflicted with an elongated dose of a twisted conceit. Job prayed that his enemy might write a book, but if I could ever pray for the affliction of a man I didn't like, I'd pray he might be an editor of a country newspaper. It would keep him hot through the day, and he wouldn't have much sleep at night. So my heart goes out to the country editor. May his paid-up list grow as fast as the gourd of Jonah, only with a better staying quality, and may his days be long in the land, and may his shadow never grow less, and, if we can, let us send him to congress."

TO ACCOMODATE THE FARMERS

Commericial Club Takes up Proposition of Caring For Farmers Teams This Winter.

The Commercial Club held a very enthusiastic meeting last Tuesday evening. The meeting had been particularly called for the purpose of considering the proposition of caring for farmers teams' when in town.

It is sadly too true that no provisions have thus far been made for farmers' teams. There is no place in the city where they can be tied up in the daytime and there is not sufficient barn room in the entire city to accomodate the immence traffic that has to come into this city during the entire winter.

A Committee was appointed to canvass the city and find out where there is spare barn room so that when ever there is such a rush of teams that they cannot be cared for at the public barns they can be accomodated at private barns that are not always in use. If sufficient room cannot be found in this way then lumber is to be purchased and barns built with all possible haste in order that the farmers living in the country to the east of us and too far away to make the return trip the same day may not be running a chance of having to stand their teams outside when they come to our city.

In addition to this a Committee was appointed to represent the Commercial Club and the city in general at the Northern Minnesota Development Association Meeting that will be held at St. Cloud on the 8th and 9th of this month.

The delegation is as follows:

D. P. O'Neill
Math Barzen
J. H. Hay
C. L. Hansen
Lars Backe
Daniel Patterson
W. W. Prichard Sr.
M. V. Evenson
G. Torrison
C. L. Dobner
Olaf Ramstad
Oscar Sponheim
E. M. Stanton
T. P. Hamre
John Morgan
Julien Provencher
H. A. Brumund
H. E. Ives
H. E. Muzzy
E. L. Quist.

Pennington county will be specially represented by three of the Commissioners, namely: Daniel Shaw, Peter Hedeen and Olaf Larson.

If you believe the Commercial Club is doing nothing please read the following report of the Secretary, written to its members:

Dear Sirs:

As a member of the Commercial Club you may be interested in the following statement of correspondence handled by me since assuming the duties of Secretary of the Cub:

Correspondence Received and Answered.

Letters inquiring about homestead and reclaimed lands. The greater portion of these resulted from write-up of Grygla trip	275
Letters inquiring about business opportunities...	78
Letters requesting general inofrmation,..	45
Letters to Manufacturers and Hotel men..........	62
Circular letters..........	1200
Thief River Falls booklets mailed......	242
Maps of Pennington and Marshall counties........	110

This correspondence received from nine different states, leads me to believe that eyes of our neighbors are directed upon us, and my object in giving this report is to impress upon you the absolute necessity of maintaining the Club with some one who makes it his business to give proper attetion to all who are interested in us.

While the individual member may not be able to see any direct financial returns from his membership in the Club, yet I believe that our united efforts to boost Thief River Falls and its splendid farming country will eventually pay profits to us all.

Yours truly,
G. T. ALMEN,
Secretary.

INDICTMENT IS HELD GOOD

Judge Page Morris Holds That Indian Cases Must be Tried Out on Their Individual Merits.

The following dispatch was sent out from Fergus Falls under date of Tuesday and it will be of interest to Record readers in this section of the state:

"Judge Morris in federal court here today overruled the demurrer and sustained the validity of the indictment in the conspiracy case against Gus. H. Beaulieu, Robert G. Beaulieu, Benjamin L. Fairbanks and John Leecy, and the work of selecting jury for the long trial was finally begun.

"The indictment charges a conspiracy to defraud the federal government. There is no federal law that can directly punish persons for defrauding Indians, even if persons induced them to trade valuable lands or timber for jackknives or trinkets. The only manner in which the government could bring criminal proceedings was to charge, as in this case, that the defendants conspired to defraud the government itself by inducing its officers, through false representations, to issue patents that they should not have issued.

RETURNS FROM CANADA

Carl Mahlum, who formerly lived near Wadena, Sask., returned here on Wednesday, after having proved up his homestead.

Mr. Mahlum reports that threshing is in full blast up there with a snow plow going ahead of the machine. In many places the grain stands in shocks all over the fields and tops are just visable thru the snow. The grade of wheat is rejected and brings about 50 cents per bushel. Barley, of the finest grade, brings 21 cents per bushel. Oats, while it yields heavily, the price is only 26 cents per bushel. Over half of Sask., is still unthreshed.

Mr. Mahlum intends to buy a piece of land in this country and make his future home amoung us. We are all glad to see him back.—Clearwater Crystal.

"THELMA"

Marie Corelli's greatest work "Thelma", will be seen at the Auditorium, Saturday, Dec. 2d. It is a strong scenic play of the Midnight Sun. Played by the Crows, it goes without saying that it will be worth while. The company is headed by J. Earl Barrington and Miss Orpha Crow, with a strong supporting cast of players. Special scenery for every act. The last act is a marvel of scenic splendor, where the arch of death apears in the Northern sky, and Olaf Gulmar sails away on his ship Valhalla in a mass of flames.

ENDS WINTER'S TROUBLES.

To many, winter is a season of trouble. The frost-bitten toes and fingers, chapped hands and lips, chillblains, cold-sores, red and rough skins, prove this. But such troubles fly before Bucklen's Arnica Salve. A trial convinces. Greatest healer of Burns, Boils, Piles, Cuts, Bruises, Eczema and Sprains. Only 25c at all Druggists.

PERMANENT EXHIBIT OF STATE'S PRODUCTS

To exploit the resources and aid in the development of the American Northwest, the Northwest Development League will place a permanent exhibit of the products of the soil, lakes, rivers, forests and mines of the various states in a great display room and show them to thousands of people who pass through and visit the city of Saint Paul—the gateway to the northwest territory.

This state has been invited to occupy several hundred square feet of this space without cost as the St. Paul Association of Commerce has entered into a contract with the league to furnish the display rooms in one of the new buildings of that city rental free, if the league will furnish light and maintain the display. The offer has been accepted.

The plan is simply to show every person who tranfers in St. Paul as well as those who visit and live there, a comprehensive exhibit of the products of the following states: Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon. The exhibit will be conducted without prejudice, the league publishing uniform information about each state in attractive booklets, distributing them and securing the names of all visitors which will be furnished the Commercial Clubs and state immigration officials of each state."

"We ought to show from ten to twenty thousand people every month this exhibit—we are sure we will show more than five thousand on the average and during the tourist season as high as thirty thousand a month," said Secretary Will A. Cambell. More than one hundred thousand people a year, many of them right on their way to look after Canada, will go our literature, a lot of personal information, see the exhibit, have their names sent to people who will follow them up and become wise as to what is possible in the American Northwest.

"It is the biggest thing which has happened for a long time and the St. Paul Association of Commerce shows the breadth of its work for better agriculture and a better developed northwest by the generous offer of space in the great Commerce Building."

Backache, Tired feeling, Nervousness, Loss of Appetite, warn of Kidney trouble or Bright's disease. Beware: Take Electric Bitters and be safe. Every bottle guaranteed. 50 at all druggists.

REVIEWS RATE CASE.

Simpson Says Sanborn Decision, if Upheld, Means Government Control.

"If the Minnesota rate case now pending in the supreme court is decided in favor of the railroads it will mean:

"The ultimate control of the railroads by the federal government;

"The disintegration of the power of states;

"A freight and passenger rate that will be forever ascending;

"Rates of today will be doubled and tripled;

"That government ownership may come in the near future."

These were the statements made by Attorney General Simpson before members of the Minneapolis Office Men's association last night at the West hotel, Minneapolis. In a comprehensive history of the efforts of Minnesota to control railroads, Mr. Simpson declared there had not been any cases before the supreme court to compare in importance with the rate cases since the days of the Dred Scott decision.

"It may spell government ownership if the decision upholds the railroad companies and I do not favor government ownership," he said.

"Judge Sanborn's decision blasted the rights of a sovereign state. I do not believe that the federal court has any right to pass upon or declare void the law of a state. It meant the disintergration of the power of the state.

"When Judge Sanborn held that the valuation of a property must be fixed on the basis of what it would cost to reproduce it today, it meant that the freight and passenger rate would be forever ascending.

Means Doubled or Tripled Rates.

"If the companies are entitled to 7 per cent return on the value of their proprtey today, look 100 years hence The property will have increased in value to such an extent that rates will have to be doubled and tripled to pay the dividends."—St. Paul Dispatch. If Mr. Simpson's philosophy be true, it might be a good thing for us if the rate cases were decided for the railroads, for that would hasten government control and that must come and will come sooner or later.

ANOTHER LETTER

To my Friends:—

As lots of you have asked me to write I am going to and tell you I am still alive and kicking. I am located on section 19 town 151, R. 27 and six miles due east of the famous little town of Northome, that is during the night. What daylight there is I am somewhere else.

The Company has built three large camps here. They are built for about four years work. It is hard telling where I will be by that time but I have fooled them a long time now and the main thing is to make them believe you know a whole lot supposing you are crazy.

Well we have a horrible Swede here who has a contract of skidding and he is using all oxen. I was over there some time last week and he had just bot a new ox team The near ox was a mooley "There," he said, with an oath that would kill the rabbits on the next section, "that is the deceit fullest ox you ever saw." As I walked around him and looked him in the face he looked as tho he were smiling at me and it just put me in mind of my home town.

I said to him, "if he had glasses on he would remind me awfully of a man I know in Thief River Falls."

Well in regard to election, it was just right, couldn't be any better, and so down went the Lord of all the Big High Ball. Now I want all my socialist comrads to be careful and not get their fingers into the revolving funds and then say they didn't know any better. If any of them down and out politicians get hard up if they'll pay their way out to where I am I will see that they get a job swamping or haying some hill for the winter. I have been advancing fare all fall but men are getting plentiful now. I suppose some of you remember when the Bear jumped out of the chicken coop and I flew for the tall timber.

There are lots of school ma'ams around here but I will give you my word of honor that I do not shine around any of them neither do I try to make anyone believe I am a French King and own all the streets and alleys in the city I live in.

Well after all I want all of my Friends to know that I have been from the rocky coasts of Maine to the Golden shores of California and then some, but the East side still looks good to me and some of the best people I ever met live there and I have spent many pleasant days and hours there and hope I will again.

With kindest regards, I remain
Yours truly,
CHAS. ALEXANDER,
All the Time.

CAN YOU ASK MORE?

Your Money Back For the Asking. You Promise Nothing.

We are so confident that we can furnish relief for indigestion and dyspepsia that we promise to supply the medicine free of all cost to every one who uses it according to directions who is not perfectly satisfied with the results. We exact no promises and put no one under any obligation whatever. Surely nothing could be fairer. We are located right here where you live, and our reputation should be sufficient assurance of the genuineness of our offer.

We want every one who is troubled with indigestion or dyspepsia in any form to come to our store and buy a box of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets. Take them home, and give them a reasonable trial, according to directions. If they don't please you, tell us and we will quickly return your money. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus overcoming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity. Three sizes, 25c., 50c., and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at our store—The Rexall Store.

CHILDREN INJURED.

You cannot be over-careful in the selection of medicine for children. Only the very gentlest bowel medicine should ever be given, except in emergency cases. Ordinary pills, cathartics and purgatives are apt to do more harm than good. They may cause griping, nausea and other distressing after-effects that are frequently health-destroying.

We personally recommend and guarantee Rexall Orderlies as the safest and most dependable remedy, which we know, for constipation and associated bowel disorders. We have such absolute faith in the virtues of this remedy that we sell it on our guarantee of money back in every instance where it fails to give entire satisfaction, and we urge all in need of such medicine to try it at our risk.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause diarrhœa, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus overcoming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

Rexall Orderlies commonly completely relieve constipation, except of course when of a surgical character. They also tend to overcome the necessity of constantly taking laxatives to keep the bowels in normal condition. Three sizes of packages, 10 cents, 25 cents, and 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at our store—The Rexall Store.

When the Duke Scrubbed.

When the Duke of Coburg-Gotha was a very young royal highness he was taken by his mother, the Duchess of Albany, to Mr. Wesley's school for boys. Before taking in the royal youngster the master stipulated that the new pupil must conform to all the rules. This was agreed.

One day his royal highness upset a bottle of ink on the floor. "Get a bucket of water and wipe it up," said the master.

"But," objected his royal highness, "you don't mean me to scrub it up, do you?"

"Yes, indeed."

"But you must forget my grandmother is the queen?"

"On the contrary," said the master, "I remember it very well. Get the water."

How the Dust Gets In.

When the barometer falls the air around expands into a larger volume, and the air inside the bookcase, the clothes closet and the cupboard also expands and forces itself out at every minute crevice. When the barometer rises again the air inside the cupboard, as well as outside, condenses and shrinks and the air is forced back into the cupboard to equalize the pressure, and along with the air in goes the dust. The smaller the crevice the stronger the jet of air, the farther goes the dirt. Witness the dirt tracks so often seen in imperfectly framed engravings or photographs. Remember, whenever you see the barometer rising, that an additional charge of dust is entering your cupboard and bureau drawers.

Regrets.

Regrets are a waste of time in every possible instance except one—when they become valuable lessons for the future.

When Big Guns Crash.

The effects of two ten-inch turret guns fired simultaneously on board a war vessel are rather astonishing. A correspondent on board the vessel says: "For several moments I wondered what hit me and where I was hit. The glass that protects the helmsman from the weather and the windows of the charthouse, the glass of which is one-third of an inch thick, were smashed to atoms. An ink bottle that stood on the table in the charthouse jumped about six inches, and every drop of ink sprang out, but the bottle dropped back to the spot from which it jumped. Three water bottles and three tumblers were on the table in the smoking room, all being full of water. When the guns were fired the bottles and the tumblers jumped into the air. Three gentlemen who were in the room also left their seats. The bottles and tumblers fell back into their old places, but every drop of water had been spilled upon the table, though nothing had been broken." This suggests a rather unpleasant outlook for the sailors in case of a battle.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Beaver's Day's Work.

A young beaver in Regent's park gardens, London, was once placed at work upon a tree twelve feet long and two feet six inches thick just as the town clocks sounded the hour of noon. The beaver began by barking the tree a foot above the ground. That done, he attacked the wood. He worked hard, alternating his labor with dips in his bathing pond. He bathed and labored alternately until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when he ate his supper of bread and carrots and paddled about in his pond until half past 5 o'clock. Ten minutes later, when only one inch of the tree's diameter remained intact, he bore upon his work, and the tree fell. Before it fell the beaver ran as men run when they have fired a blast. Then as the tree lay on the ground he portioned it out mentally and again began to gnaw. He worked at intervals all night, cut the log into three parts, rolled two of the portions into the water and reserved the other third for his permanent shelter. The work done, he took a bath.—Harper's Weekly.

DANGER IN DELAY.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy and Bright's disease, follow as the kidneys get worse. Don't neglect your kidneys. Help the kidneys with the reliable and safe remedy. Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Thief River Falls.

Mrs. O. Jaranson, of Thief River Falls, Minn., says. "I suffered from backache and kidney complaint for nearly five years. For several hours after getting up in the morning, I could hardly do anything and I was often dizzy and tired. I doctored faithfully, but did not improve. A friend, who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results, finally persuaded me to try them and I was surprised and delighted with the results. It was not more than three weeks before all my trouble had disappeared as if by magic."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

SAVED HIS WIFE'S LIFE.

"My wife would have been in her grave today," writes O. H. Brown, of Muscadine, Ala., "if it had not been for Dr. King's New Discovery. She was down in her bed, not able to get up without help. She had a severe bronchial trouble and a dreadful cough. I got her a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, and she soon began to mend, and was well in a short time." Infallible for coughs and colds, its the most reliable remedy on earth for desperate lung trouble, hemorrhages, lagrippe, asthma, hay fever, croup and whooping cough. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. LIGHTNING KILLS FEW.

In 1906 lightning killed only 169 people in this whole country. One's chances of death by lightning are less than two in a million. The chance of death from liver, kidney or stomach trouble is vastly greater, but not if Electric Bitters be used, as Robert Madsen, of West Burlington, Ia., proved. Four doctors gave him up after eight months of suffering from virulent liver trouble and yellow jaundice. He was then completely cured by Electric Bitters. They're the best stomach, liver nerve and kidney remedy and blood purifier on earth. Only 50c at all Druggists.

Official Paper of The City.

FRIDAY, DEC. 1, 1911.

The men who are lifting the world upward and onward are those who encourage more than they criticise.

HER MISTAKE.

A couple were recently married. The ceermony over the wife began to weep copiously. "What's the matter?" asked her new husband. "I never told you I don't know how to cook," sobbed the bride. "Don't fret," said he, "I'll not have anything to cook; I'm an editor."

A man in Nebraska in tearing down on old building, has stumbled upon $4,500 which he had hidden and forgotten. That ought to help out his Christmas shopping a little, but hold on. The man in question being a bachelor can have but a faint conception of the annual Christmas strain upon his pocket book. Too bad that couldn't happen just now to some of those fathers of twelve or fourteen believers in Santa Claus.

HIGH COST OF LIVING.

When asked what was the reason for the increased cost of the necessaries of life President Taft replied: "God knows, I don't." One would naturally draw from this that it is a very hard question to answer, but we venture to say that if every dealer that handles goods from the manufacturer down to the retailer would be satisfied with a reasonable profit on the goods he handles that would certainly help some.—Contributed by T. R.

The Litchfield Independent and the Northfield News each announce an increase in subscription price. The Youth's Companion will on January 1st also go up to $1.75 per year. Everything that goes to make up a paper has increased in cost until the paper man finds himself in close quarters.—Blue Earth County Enterprise.

The value of almost anything depends more on its position than upon its quality. Thus oranges are just as good or better in California than they are after having been transported to Minnesota but in California they may be had for $1 per bushel while we pay 5 cents apiece for similar or poorer oranges. Crude oil just pumped from the wells of Texas can be purchased at 2 cents per galgol while in Thief River Falls we pay 8 cents for the same thing at wholesale. Ice has absolutely no value in the frigid zones while in the equatorial regions it readily sells at $12 per ton. Thus it is only when an article of commerce is brought to certain places and that at certain times that it reaches its fullest values. A race horse that can speed at the rate of a mile in two minutes would be very ittle value on the average farm while the heavy draft horse would starve to death if he were to be fed from the proceeds of his speed work in a race cart on Fairday. So also it is with man. Not until a man has trained his intellect along the line for which he was best adapted and then has succeeded in finding a position in which he can use his full capacity along that line can he serve the infinite purpose for which he was created as it is his duty to do. Hence, let every boy and girl consider well not alone that he or she should have a good and efficient education but that this education be along the line best adapted to the needs of the individual and for which the individual could be the most efficiently trained. It is just as creditable to be the best blacksmith or the best carpenter in the world as it is to be the best stock broker or banker or lawyer or doctor and it is far more creditable to be a first class blacksmith or carpenter than it is to be a poor and narrow-minded nobody of a business man. Many people express surprise at the rapid strides of socialism in the nation and cannot understand how the doctrine is promulgated to secure recruits. The answer is easy to those living in the more thickly populated districts and who take the trouble to observe what their neighbor is doing. "The club" is the popular way. A number—five or six or a dozen men—rent a room for club purposes. They almost alaways have the door unlocked and besides the regular one or two meetings a week, when one or more of the members address the "audience"—a large number of whom are invited citizens—any of the members who can induce a young man to accompany him, takes him to this place and instils the doctrine into him as best he knows how. If the churches, the temperance societies—yes, even the old political parties, were embued with one-half the enthusiasm of the socialist's leaders, there would be fewer police needed, less work for the courts and no call for socialism.

In the body of politics the socialist occupies about the same relation that the Salvation Army does to the churches—it goes into the by-ways and lanes where other parties do not go. And every convert becomes a preacher. There is something so appealing and so hypnotic about it that the devotee seems unsatisfied until he tells the story to others and prevails on them to join in. But there is the difference that while the Salvation Army teaches men to be good and is about as successful in this as any other religious denomination, the socialist preaches a dotcrine that breeds unrest and desire to pull down—not in so many words but the results are seen and felt in all the larger communities where their doctrine is promulgated. The American people must beware that the spirit of socialism does not turn to anarchy—nihilism and destruction.—Wahalla Montaineer. It would be well if some of the editorial critics of socialism would stop and study the proposition a little bit so that they would not display too much ignorance when they write. Socialism will work out whatever men put into it and no more; and it will never work out anything until it has received the best thoughts of a majority of the best men. Socialism is the sum of the thoughts of the majorities not of a favored few.

"CALLING" TEACHER COSTS $400

Otter Tail Parent Who Says Schoolma'am is Thief of Time is Sued.

Fergus Falls, Minn. Nov. 28.—School patrons in Otter Tail county will be careful about "calling down" the teacher from this time forth. Miss Serene Langsjoen, who is teaching in district No. 20, in Tordenskjold township, had occasion to send three boys home for desobedience a short time ago. One of them was a son of Ole Gunderson, of that locality.

Mr. Gunderson took sides with the boy, and retruning to the school with him, proceeded to tell the teacher what he thought of her. He accused her, among other things, of being a thief, saying that she had been stealing the district's time by dismissing school early on Friday afternoons.

His remarks were made before the students in the school, and were addressed in part to them. Miss Langsjoen immediately sued him for $2,000 damages, and a jury in the district court yesterday awarded her $400. Bemidji Daily Pioneer.

Dear Mr. Editor:

A large number of your readers would no doubt like to know that the Socialist party of this city has concluded arrangements with W. F. Ries, the famous educator and lecturer, to speak here next week on "How We are Goughed."

Mr. Ries, who is the author of a number of books and the owner of one of the most successful business colleges in Ohio, is also the possessor of enough oil wells to put him in that particular section of the "capitalist class" which is usually designated as "millionaire socialists." However, he finds his greatest interest in lecturing on Socialism and allied subjects, and is a conspicuous platform success.

The lecture is the first of a series of five, the subjects being selected and the speakers controlled by the National Socialist Party. Those who attend, whether or not they favor Socialism, will enjoy the advantage of hearing about it from strictly official sources. The Socialist Local here is putting forth Herculean efforts to make these lectures a huge success and hopes thereby to double the srength of the movement in this city.

Sincerely yours,
O. Jacobson, Secy.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLICITY OF THE "GOVERNORS' SPECIAL"

P. H. DOYLE.

Boise, Idaho, Nov. 28.—One of the most enthusiastic greetings that will be extended to the party of western governors who will leave St. Paul, on November 27th, for a tour of the principal cities of the east, will be that prepared in honor of the visitors at Baltimore. According to a letter received by former Governor Brady, of Idaho, who originated the "Governors' Special" movement, from Governor Austin L. Grothers of Maryland, the distinguished guests will meet with a reception in the "Monumental City." That bids fair to eclipse any on the trip.

The western governors will be met at the station by the "Dandy Fifth" the crack military organization of Baltimore. The fact that this famous civil war regiment will act as guards of honor for the visiting governors from the west, can be taken as an indication of the magnitude of the reception plans, for it is only on very rare occasions that such is the case.

The visit of the "Governors' Special" to Baltimore occurs during the Maryland "Home-coming Week," when the annual exposition is held, and the city will be thronged with visitors. The conference of southern governors, called by Governor Grothers to discuss "Immigration to the South," will also be held on the day of the special's visit.

take, may be said to be surrounded, besieged and stormed by Insurgency, Insurrection, Rebellion and very nearly every other variety of hostility.

"It is tradition to believe that Chief Magistrates can be loved by the masses for the enemies they have made among the classes. But it yet remains to be doubted that in the Republican party Colonel Roosevelt commands the popular allegiance that is not extremely radical, say. We suppose that nobody questions that the more radical element goes horse, foot and dragoons, with the Progressive Republican League, which is demanding that candidates for the Presidency submit their ambition for nomination to the popular test of Direct Primaries. So much for the voting power of the party. As for the sinews of war, it is needless to emphasize that they are in the keeping of the exalted minority which constitutes Big Business.

"With the lines thus drawn it would be idle to deny that the situation of today presents itself as a crisis for the Republican party. This is not to our liking. No more can it be to the liking of others who see the interests of the country best insured when there is a Republican President in the White House, with a Republican House of Representatives and a Republican Senate in Congress. What the likelihood is of such a result, following the national election of next year, what the likelihood is when the party is threatened, not with mere dissension, but with actual separation into several fragments, is a subject for the careful consideration of everybody—for Mr. Taft it is a matter of deepest concern.

"Anticipating something of what has now come to pass, Mr. Taft has confessed the posibility of party defeat. Did he have it in mind then, when he intimated his misgivings, to decline a renomination? We say decline a renomination, rather than a trial for it, because we take it that, if he should be so minded, the Federal Machine could march to the convention the delegates necessary to place him at the head of the ticket. For it is Federal office holders who, in person or by proxy, man the nominating engine of the National Convention.

"But, though he might be willing to face, or even court, defeat at the head of his party, in a fair and secure contest, Republican host against Democratic host, could he be willing, could he be expected to be willing to go upon the political battlefield without a great party, perhaps without so much as a fraction of his party behind him? Such is not our opinion. We believe that the public will not be left long unaware that such is not the opinion of Mr. Taft. In any event, there must be immediately some very dramatic developemnts of a situation that so suddenly has become all but tragic."

"C. D. O'Brien and George B. Edgerton, the attorneys for the defendants, attacked the indictment on the ground that the government had not been defrauded and had sustained no loss. District Attorney Houpt relied on the decision in a case in which the principals were indicted in Washington for selling information relative to a forthcoming government report on the cotton crop. In that case the supreme court held that the inidctment was valid, as it defrauded the government by permitting the wrongful use of functions for which it was established, even though here was no direct pecuniary loss to the government itself.

"There are about one hundred Indians here for the trial, many of them Indian policemen with gaily beaded hats and uniforms and presenting a picturesque appearance'.—Detroit Record.

SHIPPING LOTS OF HAY.

H. R. Prichard is busy buying baled hay for shipment and has already consigned fifteen carloads. He says there seems to be a goodly quantity in the country and he expects to be busy at this point all winter. It is fortunate for the farmers of this locality to have someone who stands ready to buy hay in small quantities as very few of the farmers in this vicinity have hay enough to make up a carload of their own and even those who do, find it progtable to sell to Hr. Prichard.

Amusements

At the Auditorium.

"Thelma" will be seen at the Auditorium Theatre, Saturday December 2d. It is a most remarkable drama of the Northland. It contains all the essestials of success. First, it has a tremendous plot, which is worked out with admirable power. Second, it has great heart interest and Third, it has situations which for intensity has never been surpassed. The author has seized upon the salient points in modern life and has transfered them to the stage with fidelity to nature. The results is a play that appeals to the people of all classes of life. It has created keen interest wherever it has been introduced. The company is a carefully selected one and J. Earl Barrington, who is directing the tour has spared no expense in making this a supberb production.

At The Lyceum.

The management of the Lyceum Theatre announces for the last half of this week, commencing Thursday night, the high-class comedy singing and talking sketch artists "Vail and Hildabrand," the purveyors of actual legitimate comedy, in an eccentric comedy act entitled "Nonsensical Nonsense."

There is also offered a special feature film for Thursday night only, The Parson and the Bully," containing a bully scrap declared by eastern critics to be the best 5-round boxing contest ever photograhphed.

The James Boys film at the Lyceum last Saturday and Sunday drew immense crowds. The pictures were well worth the attendance, too. Manager Morgan's special films have always made good.

At The Auditorium.

In regard to the Cambrian National Glee Singers, who will appear at the Auditorium, December 5th, to fill the third number of the Lyceum Course, the Fargo Daily News said in part: "It was the unanimous opinion of the very large audience that attended the concert of the Cambrian National Glee Singers at the First Presbyterian church last night, given under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. lecture course, that it was the finest vocal musical organization that has ever visited Fargo."

Sacred College Meets in Secret Consistory.

Rome, Nov. 28.—Obedient to a summons from Pope Pius X, the cardinals in Rome assembled in a secret consistory and confirmed the papal nomination of eighteen new members in the College of Cardinals, the supreme governing body of the Roman Catholic church.

Of those thus honored three are citizens of the United States: Mgr. John M. Farley, archbishop of New York; Mgr. William O'Connell, archbishop of Boston, and Mgr. Diomede Falconio, apostolic delegate at Washington.

Thus, with Cardinal Gibbons, America will have for the first time a representation of four in the cardinalate, which, probably much as now constituted, will elect a successor to the reigning pontiff.

A Bright Future.

Once there was a man who yearned to be a millionaire in order that he might help the suffering poor, and one day wealth came to him and landed him high in the millionaire class. He did not forget the poor—not entirely; but, being too busy to hunt them up, he failed not to ask Providence to pity them, "and, anyway," he reflected, "they have a bright future with so much treasure in heaven!"—Atlanta Constitution.

BEATTIE ADMITS KILLING HIS WIFE

Makes Statement Just Before His Electrocution.

DECLARES SORROW FOR ACT

Confession Is Made in Presence of Ministers and Made Public by His Family.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 25.—Before Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., went to the electric chair to expiate the murder of his wife, July 18 last, he left a written statement in which he confessed committing the crime for which he paid the death penalty. This statement he wrote in the presence of Rev. Benjamin Dennis and Rev. Dr. Fix, his spiritual advisers, and it was given to Beattie's father immediately after the execution.

"I, Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., desirous of standing right before God and man, do on this the 23rd of November, 1911, confess my guilt of the crime charged against me. Much that was published concerning the details was not true, but the awful fact, without the harrowing circumstances, remains. For this action I am truly sorry, and, believing that I am at peace with God; and am soon to pass into His presence, this statement is made."

Beattie's confession was followed by the following statement by the attending ministers:

"This statement was signed in the presence of the two attending ministers and is the only statement that can and will be made public by them.

"Mr. Beattie desired to thank the many friends for kind letters and expressions of interest and the public for whatever sympathy was felt or expressed."

The attending ministers would not discuss the case in any way until they had visited Beattie's parents in South Richmond and had secured their permission to make the confession public.

JURY CONVICTS TWO KANSANS

Acquits Third Man of Charge of Tarring Schoolteacher.

Lincoln Center, Kan., Nov. 25.—Two of the defendants of the "tar party" case, John Schmidt and Sherril Clark, were found guilty of assault and battery by a jury in Judge Grover's court. A. N. Simms was acquitted.

Sentence on the two men was deferred to permit attorneys to argue a motion for a new trial.

Sentences of one year each in the county jail, the extreme penalty in Kansas for the offense charged, was passed on Everett G. Clark, Jay Fitzwater, Watson Scranton and Edward Ricord, confessed assailants of Mary Chamberlain, the schoolteacher who was tarred. These defendants were accused of the same crime. In addition to the sentence the court ruled that the men must pay the costs of the prosecution.

ADMITS WAR WAS CLOSE

British Foreign Secretary Discusses Moroccan Crisis.

London, Nov. 28.—Sir Edward Grey, secretary of state for foreign affairs, laid bare in the house of commons the part Great Britain played in the negotiations on Morocco, which brought Europe very close to war during the summer.

Sir Edward stated frankly that the greatest anxiety had existed, but fortunately was able to add that the negotiations had cleaned the slate between Germany and Great Britain.

THIRTY-THREE ARE KILLED

Scores of Others Injured in Explosion at Liverpool.

Liverpool, Nov. 25.—Thirty-three workers are known to have been killed and upwards of 100 injured by a boiler explosion which occurred at the oil cake mills of J. Bibby & Sons. The force of the explosion was so terrific that the roof of the great mill was blown off, while the walls split and crumbled. An outburst of flame followed.

JOHN F. DRYDEN IS DEAD

Former Senator Founded Prudential Insurance Company.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 25.—John F. Dryden, founder of the Prudential Insurance company of America, a former member of the United States senate, and a multimillionaire, died at his home here of pneumonia, which developed after an operation which he underwent a week ago for the removal of gallstones.

Further Delay for Packers.

Chicago Nov. 25.—Judge George A. Carpenter in the United States district court granted the indicted Chicago packers a delay in their criminal trial until Dec. 6, pending proceedings for the defendants before the United States supreme court.

COLONEL ROOSEVELT ISSUES STATEMENT

Seeks to Discourage Booming Him for President.

New York, Nov. 25.—Theodore Roosevelt, when asked regarding the report that he may be a candidate for president, told a World correspondent that a statement might be made as follows:

"'Colonel Roosevelt finds it difficult to understand the comment,' the statement reads, 'that has followed upon his article in the Outlook regarding national laws and business interests. He has said exactly the same thing many times before. He cannot see why it should be assumed that this article indicates he is ready to take any personal part in the coming campaign.

"'It can be stated that Colonel Roosevelt has received many letters indicating the willingness of the writers to give him political support if such is desired. It can be stated that Colonel Roosevelt received a letter from a certain United States senator offering the full Republican support of the senator in case Colonel Roosevelt should wish to be a candidate in the national campaign. To this letter Colonel Roosevelt has replied that he earnestly hopes the senator will not only refrain from any action looking to the nomination of Colonel Roosevelt, but also will prevent his friends from taking any such steps.'"

TRAIN FALLS INTO RIVER

Thirty Persons Killed in French Railway Disaster.

Sau Mur, France, Nov. 24.—Thirty passengers lost their lives when a train plunged into the River Thouot owing to a breakdown of a bridge on the state railway at Montreuil-Bellay, in the department of the Maine-at-Loire.

The train, which had started from Angers, was traveling to Poictiers. It contained 100 passengers. While it was crossing the bridge over the Thouet the structure, which had been greatly weakened by recent floods, broke, crashing with all the cars into the swollen stream.

JAPANESE DESTROYER LOST

Forty-five of Crew Perish When Warship Founders.

Tokio, Nov. 25.—The Japanese destroyer Harusame foundered off Shi province in a storm and forty-five of the crew of sixty perished.

Labor Leaders Lose in Ruling.

Washington, Nov. 24.—In a decision Justice Daniel Thew Wright refused to dismiss the contempt charges against President Gompers, Vice President Mitchell and Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor in the Buck's Stove and Range company case, in the District supreme court. This means that he will again attempt to force the labor leaders to trial.

Betting in Buenos Aires.

The Hippodrome, one of the finest race tracks in the world, is owned by the Buenos Aires Jockey club, and its enormous revenue is derived from this source. The Argentinians are born gamblers, and they wager almost incredible sums on horseflesh. The municipal statistics of Buenos Aires show that $25,800,000 in American gold was wagered upon the races at the Hippodrome in one year. This is an average of fifty Argentine dollars for each man, woman and child in that great city. Naturally the reported figures do not include all the money wagered on horse racing, so that the true sum is no doubt several millions in excess of the reported figures. There are none so old and few so young that they will not wager a few pesos on a favorite. The tense faces of all present show the personal interest in the result. The jockey club receives as its share 10 per cent of all bets, besides the entrance fees and seat sales.—Travel Magazine.

The Lamb.

"Does your husband play poker?"
"Yes, but not for money."
"That so?"
"No. He wouldn't do such a thing. When he plays it's only for fun, and he keeps tally with little red, white and blue checks."—Detroit Free Press.

His Pet.

Harker—Think I'll try to sell old Stuffem some pet dogs. Barker—Useless job. All he thinks about is eating. Harker—Hasn't any four legged friends, eh? Barker—Only one, and that's the dining room table.—Chicago News.

Unidentified.

Suspicious Neighbor—Did your mother have a rooster for dinner yesterday, sonnie? Sonnie—Yes'm. Suspicious Neighbor—A big one with black tail feathers? Sonnie—Dunno. Mother didn't cook the feathers.—Sydney Bulletin.

RATES ORDERED REDUCED

Commission Holds Freight Charges in West Unreasonable.

Washington, Nov. 25.—Class freight rates from Tacoma and Seattle, Wash., and Portland, Ore., to points in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana were declared unreasonable by the interstate commerce commission and reductions averaging about 20 per cent were ordered by Jan. 2, 1912.

SIXTY PERSONS DROWNED

Austrian Steamer Romania Wrecked in the Adriatic.

Vienna, Nov. 25.—The Austrian steamer Romania was wrecked near Rovigno. It is reported that sixty persons were drowned. A sirocco has swept the coast of the Adriatic for three days and caused much damage to shipping.

Keeping It Dark.

The [illegible] sheep of the Warywalk family had distinguished himself again.

"This is the last straw!" groaned his respectable brother. "I'm goin' to 'ave it put in the papers that I've changed my name from Warywalk to Wobbleway, 'cos of my brother's disgracin' the name. All Shad Are [illegible]

Fishes are proverbial [illegible] fying facts. None of the [illegible] tends more to that end than the common, ordinary, "house broken" shad. Floridians will testify that the St. Johns river shad is without equal; North Carolinians stoutly maintain that the Cape Fear river variety is the only kind worth eating; Washingtonians vow that the Potomac shad is perfection; Philadelphians swear by the Delaware product, and "li'l old" New York simply thinks that any other shad than the Hudson river brand is unfit to eat. And thus they go—the farther north the greater seems to be the prevarication daring. The fact is, however, that they are all talking about the same old bony shad. In migrating north it goes up each of the rivers in turn. It is a salt water fish, in fact, which swims into fresh water to spawn and is captured when perpetuating the species. It is true that the residue from oil works, gashouses, etc., in the several large cities enumerated may give Mr. or Mrs. Shad a slightly local flavor, but none to be proud of or to provoke the unstinted partisan praise that is showered upon this much overrated fish.—New York Tribune.

The Judgment of Years.

A significant bit of wisdom, to be pondered over by the very young, whose griefs and disappointments seem so tragic, was that uttered by Mrs. Dolly Madison when she was over eighty years old and near her death. Her life had been fortunate and beautiful not only because circumstances had proved kind to her, but from the brightness and buoyancy of her temperament. She harbored no bitterness over past experiences, but life had taught her the unimportance of most trials which loom so gigantic in approaching. Not long before her death one of her nieces went to her for sympathy in some slight trouble.

"My dear," she said, "do not trouble about it. There is nothing in this world really worth caring for. Yes," she repeated, looking intently out of a window, "I who have lived so long repeat to you that there is nothing in this world below really worth caring for!"

Not Soon Enough.

A man who is now one of the leading members of the Stock Exchange was rather wild in his youth, which is not an exclusive characteristic of this member of the Stock Exchange. But this man was a favorite with his mother and generally called on her to help him out of his scrapes, and she usually responded freely, even lavishly. On one occasion, however, when his demands had been especially frequent and extravagant, it was with considerable trepidation that on discovering himself "the morning after" in a distant city and picked as clean as a new fledged sparrow, he penned the following heart moving appeal, to be sent C. O. D.:

"Send $50 and save disgrace."

His worst fears were realized when an hour later he received the reply from his mother, "Too late."—New York Tribune.

Had 'Em Again.

A company of motion picture actors and actresses gave a performance of "Chantecler" on the grounds adjoining the suburban studio of a film manufacturing company. A little later one of the actors, out for a walk, came upon a man seated by the roadside and weeping bitterly.

"What's the matter?" inquired the sympathetic player.

"I'm one of the patients at the sanitarium for bugs over yonder," explained the despairing one. "Yesterday the doc said I was well—boo-hoo—and that I could leave in a day or two. And what do you suppose I saw this morning? Roosters and hens six feet high and talkin' just like humans! If I get away from that sanitarium in ten years I'll be doing mighty well."—Lippincott's.

When Wild Winds Blow.

Most of us are apt to look on a storm as simply a strong wind blowing straight from one place to another. It is not so at all, for a storm wind always blows in a curve, and a storm is not really a wind, but a whole wheel of winds with curving spokes. These curving spokes represent the various winds all blowing toward the hub. This hub is called the "eye" of the storm. It is the spot at which the barometer is lowest. On the rim of the wheel the barometer is high, and the nearer the hub the lower is the barometer. This wheel of winds is usually several hundred miles across.

Set Him to Thinking.

They had been talking as they walked. She had remarked pathetically:

"Oh, it must be terrible to a man to be rejected by a woman!"

"Indeed it must," was his response.

Then, after awhile, with sympathetic disingenuousness, she exclaimed:

"It doesn't seem that I could ever have the heart to do it."

And there came a silence between them as he thought it over.

Chinese and Chinaman.

On the subject of surprising modern words it is notable that the Oxford dictionary finds no earlier instance of "Chinaman," in the sense of a native of China, than 1854, when Emerson used it. The previous word was "Chinese," from which the plural "Chineses" was formed by Milton and his contemporaries, and the false singular "Chinee" by modern Americans. But "Chinaman" in another sense, that of a dealer in china, was in use long before 1854. The Oxford dictionary gives three instances of it from London directories of 1772, 1801 and 1819, but does not notice that in 1763 one "John Crowther, Chinaman," was gazetted bankrupt. "Chinawoman" in a similar sense goes back to Ben Jonson.—London Chronicle.

A Monument to Cheerfulness.

The following quaint epitaph is to be seen in Crayford churchyard, Kent. It strikes one as one of the prettiest monuments to cheerfulness in all Merrie England: "Here lieth the body of Peter Isnel (thirty years clerk of this parish). He lived respected as a pious and a mirthful man and died on his way to church to assist at a wedding on the 31st day of March, 1811, aged seventy years. The inhabitants of Crayford have raised this stone to his cheerful memory and as a tribute to his long and faithful service."—London Standard.

Dutch Humor.

Here are two specimen jokes from Dutch papers of the day:

Mr. Newly Rich (to landlord)—I hear you have raised all your rents. Why haven't you raised mine as well? I can't imagine how I have merited such an insult to my dignity.

A.—I wouldn't like to be standing in your shoes just now. B.—Why? A.—Because they are in the cellar, and twenty tons of coal have been dumped over them.

Worth Trying.

Mrs. Binks—The people in the next suit to ours are awfully annoying. They pound on the wall every time our Mamie sings. I wish we knew of some way to drive them out of the flat.

"Why not have Mamie keep on singing?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutoinal treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Tongues Betray Them.

The man who in Massachusetts says Le-o-minster at once reveals himself as a rank outsider.

But if the Massachusetts man goes up into New Hampshire and inquires for what he calls Coose county or Coozo county the natives of Co-os county wonder where he went to school.

And, in Maine, Saco is the test word that betrays the stranger within the state. For variety of pronunciation by those who don't know that word of only four letters is believed to hold the record.

They used to tell the story that as each train bearing summer visitors started up from Biddeford, just across the river, the brakeman announced thus:

"The next station is Sayko-Sacko-Sarco-Sawko-Sayso-Sasso-Sarso-Sawso!"

Maine people will tell you that it is pronounced exactly as it is spelled—S-a-c-o, Sawko.

Tennyson's Rhymes.

As an example of faulty rhyming the great Alfred Tennyson is being held up by an English critic as in the very forefront of offenders. He is shown to have taken license as a great poet that would have damned any small rhymer. The critic gives as examples of Tennyson's imperfect rhymes "river" and "ever," "given" and "heaven," which are considered too conventional to be criticised. He then passes on to the famous "Charge of the Light Brigade," where Tennyson, with the inaccurate ear of the thorough Briton, rhymes "onward" and "hundred," "said" and "dismayed," "hundred" and "thundered," "hundred" and "blundered," "hundred" and "wondered," all in that one short poem. One may look in vain through the works of Longfellow, Bryant, Lowell or any American poet of the first rank for such orthoepical blundering, which passes without question among Britons.

Yucatan's Water Caverns.

Since Yucatan, where the Mayas built their strange cities, is of coral limestone formation, it follows that it would have been a desert but for its subterranean rivers and the cenotes, or water caverns, which give access to them. The Mayas noted the courses of the underground streams and built their towns round the cenotes. Many cenotes are now found surrounded by ruins and give indications of the methods employed by the Mayas to reach their cool waters. In Uxmal a cenote about forty feet deep is inhabited by a peculiar species of fish. At Bolanchen there is a cenote having five openings in the rocks at the bottom of the cavern. Ladders made by tying three trunks together lead down a total distance of 1,400 feet, but the perpendicular depth from the surface to the water is not more than 500 feet.—Exchange.

Her Question.

The Horrors of Thirst.

There is no horror like the horror of thirst—no physical suffering comparable to it. A traveler over the desert in Egypt describes a man who had lost his way, wandered about for days without water and finally came staggering into his camp. The man's eyes were bloodshot, his lips swollen to twice their natural size; his tongue, blue, parched and swollen, hung out of his mouth. To allow such a man to drink water at will would be like pumping cold water into a redhot steam boiler. It would kill him. This man required to be held forcibly by four men in his eagerness to get at drinking water, while a fifth man allowed a few drops to trickle down the throat of the sufferer at long intervals. He had to be cooled off little by little, like an overheated boiler.

The Color Cure.

To cure smallpox was apparently a very simple matter in the good old times. John of Gaddeston, court doctor to Edward II., has recorded that he got rid of the disease by the simple expedient of wrapping his patients in red cloth. "Let scarlet red be taken," he says, "and let him who is suffering smallpox be entirely wrapped in it or in some other red cloth. I did thus when the son of the illustrious king of England suffered from smallpox. I took care that all about his bed should be red, and that cure succeeded very well."—London Tatler.

Some Understanding.

The official undertaker of a small town was driving through the county on one of his regular missions. A woman came out to the gate of a farm yard and hailed him.

"I don't seem to recall your name, madam," he said.

"That's funny," she said. "It ain't been more'n a year and a half ago since you undertook my first husband."—Saturday Evening Post.

Why He Left.

"Why did you leave that swell boarding house?"

"Because the swellness was at the expense of the food supply."

"What do you mean?"

Set Of Ware FREE

If you call at our store during our Majestic Demonstration Week and allow us to show you the many advantages and superior qualities of the Great Majestic Range, and will purchase one at the regular price, we will give you Free the beautiful and useful Souvenir Set of Ware illustrated in the advertisement. This ware is made to match the quality of the Majestic Ranges, and we know all ladies will see the beauty and utility of this set, especially the first three pieces, which are entirely new and cannot be had alone by purchase, except at the very high price. The prices of Majestic Ranges are the same, but we give the set FREE with each Majestic Range bought during the demonstration week only,

Reasons Why The Great Majestic You Should Buy

1st. It has the reputation of being the best range money can buy.
2d. It not only has the reputation but IS the best range made, and we will prove this to you if you will let us.
3d. It is constructed of malleable iron, material you can't beat, and of Charcoal iron, material that resists rust 300 percent greater than steel. is riveted together air tight. No heat escapes or cold air enters the range, thus uses very little fuel to do perfect work.
4th. The reservior alone is worth the price of range over any other reservoier made. It boils 15 gallons of water; is heated like a tea kettle, with pocket against left hand lining and is movable and sets on frame, hence cannot wear out. When water gets too hot it can be moved away from fire.

Majectic ranges use less fuel; heat more water—and heat it hotter; cost practically nothing for repairs; lasts three times as long; bakes better; easier to keep clean and gives better satisfaction than any other range on the market. If you know positively that the above statments are true, wouldn't you buy a Majestic at once?

Come in Demonstration Week and We'll prove It to you.

LITTLETON ASKS FOR AN INQUIRY

ACCUSES BEAR OPERATORS

New York Congressman Says Brokers Seek to Prolong Steel Inquiry in Order to Force Down That Stock—Demands investigation of Complaint and Source of an Article in New York Paper Assailing Him.

Washington, Nov. 28.—Charging that recent attacks upon him as a member of the house committee of inquiry into the steel trust have emanated from bear operators in Wall street, who seek to prolong the inquiry to force down steel stock, Representative Martin W. Littleton of New York demanded that the committee investigate his complaint and the source of an article assailing him which appeared last Friday in a New York newspaper.

Mr. Littleton will submit to Representative Stanley, chairman of the committee, a letter setting forth his charges and requesting that subpoenas be issued for David Lamar, a New York broker; Henry B. Martin, secretary of the National Anti-Trust league; Herman Shulteis, counsel for the National Anti-Trust league, and Jackson Tinker, the Washington correspondent of the newspaper.

"If the committee does not wish to call these witnesses," said Mr. Littleton, "I have served notice on the chairman that the committee will have to face the matter with me on the floor of the house.

To Force Down Steel Stock.

"I charge that the attack upon me was instigated by Henry B. Martin the secretary of the so called Anti-Trust league. I will show that Mr. Martin has reported progress of the committee to David Lamar, a bear operator in Wall street, whose interest in having the investigation prolonged is to hammer down the steel stock.

"I will show that Mr. Martin within the last few weeks has been consulting in New York with David Lamar and that he has been reporting to him each [illegible] work of this committee.

"I want to ask Mr. Martin and Mr. Shulteis about their anti-trust league, where their funds come from for prosecuting their work and maintaining themselves in Washington."

Mr. Littleton conferred with Chairman Stanley and Representatives Beall and McGillicuddy, Democratic members of the committee. At that conference it was agreed that Mr. Littleton should put his charges and requests for subpoenas in writing.

Chairman Stanley declared that he would make no lengthy statement relating to the controversy until he had received Mr. Littleton's formal letter.

Jackson Tinker, the Washington correspondent, whom Mr. Littleton wants subpoenaed, denied authorship of the article in the New York Press attacking Mr. Littleton.

MAINE BOARD COMING HOME

Will Report Vessel Was Blown Up From Outside.

Havana, Nov. 28.—The Maine inspection board will start for the United States this week. It has already been demonstrated to the members that the Maine was destroyed by an outside explosion, which occurred under the ship a little to the port of the keel between frames twenty-eight and thirty, where the outside skin was blown up and doubled over toward the starboard by the first explosion. After this the transverse armor bulkhead was blown a foot from frame twenty-four by a second explosion and buried itself in the mud.

Take Even False Teeth.

Kansas City, Nov. 28.—It took three men less than that many minutes to hold up L. W. Leavee of Kearney, Mo., as he was walking along Bluff street here. After taking his watch, worth $35, and $3 in silver, one of the robbers suggested: "Let's see if he's got any gold in his teeth." Leavee's mouth was pried open. There was no gold there, but in the struggle the victim's false teeth were loosened and dropped. They were taken.

More Liquor Consumed.

Louisville, Nov. 28.—The National Model License league has put into circulation a folder entitled "What the Dry Wave Has Done for Temperance." The folder contains a tabulation of official census and revenue figures from 1893 to 1911, inclusive, showing that the per capita consumption of liquors has increased from 17.44 gallons to 22.29 gallons, nearly five gallons, since the Anti-Saloon league was organized.

War Veteran Ends Life.

Rock Rapids, Ia., Nov. 28.—G. M. Smith, aged sixty-five, committed suicide by hanging himself to a beam in his barn in East Rock Rapids. He was a veteran of the Civil war and for some time had been subject to spells of insanity.

Bug Power.

If asked to name the strongest animals most persons begin with the largest, the elephant, and continue with oxen, horses, etc. This is, of course, correct in so far as their total horsepower is concerned, but for real strength, proportioned to the size and weight of the animal, one must go to the insect world. Compared with insects, the strength of almost any large animal, and especially of man, is absurd. A man is considered strong if he can drag a mass weighing three or four times as much as himself, but the beetle will walk with 500 times his own weight. If a man were placed under a wooden box with five times his weight on top to hold it down he would remain there indefinitely, but to retain a stag beetle prisoner in the same way one must pile on top of the box at least 1,800 times its weight.

Oilcloth as a Cure.

Pretty soon after the new arrival had been assigned to his room he telephoned down to the office for two strips of oilcloth.

"Another one," said the clerk after assuring the guest that the oilcloth would be sent up immediately. "He is a somnambulist, I suppose. We keep strips of oilcloth in reserve for fellows like him. They spread it on the floor at either side of the bed. Stepping on cold oilcloth when he gets out of bed is pretty likely to awaken the most confirmed sleepwalker and prevent nocturnal wandering."—New York Press.

CLARK ANSWERS BRYAN'S FLING

Speaker Asserts He Has Aided in Uniting Democrats.

FACTIONAL FIGHTING ENDS

Missourian Declares He Has Devoted the Last Three Years to Getting House Democrats Together and That Seventeen Years of Internal Dissension Is at an End—Denies Favoring Annexation of Canada.

Washington, Nov. 28.—Speaker Champ Clark declared he had devoted the last three years chiefly to getting the house Democrats together and holding them together and that after seventeen years of factional fighting the Democrats "are united and by the blessings of God will remain so."

"I did not do it all, by a long shot," he added. "I had lots of help and every Democrat who participated in that troublesome, laudable work deserves full share of the honor. Where there was once despair in Democratic hearts there is high hope now."

In this way the titular head of the Democratic lower house of congress made indirect reply to criticisms of William J. Bryan as to the speakership no longer carrying the leadership of the house. Mr. Clark referred to the great importance of unity and wisdom among the Democrats to draw out voters not belonging to the Democratic party.

"The most important feature of the extraordinary session of congress from a political standpoint," said he, "was the fact that we pulled together, worked together, fought together and won together. We replaced the old habit of defeat with the new habit of victory, the bad fashion of quarreling among ourselves with the better fashion of taking counsel together and then presenting a solid front to the astonished enemy.

Tariff the Leading Issue.

The speaker said the recent elections prove that wherever the tariff was the sole or principal issue the Democrats [illegible] and that when President Taft vetoed the tariff bills it was inevitable that the tariff would be the leading issue next year.

"One of the most preposterous canards put into public print since Guttenberg invented movable type, added the speaker, "is the charge that I am in favor of the forcible annexation of Canada. There is not a fact in the universe on which to base such a slander. I never at any time or place stated or even hinted such a wicked and quixotic scheme to any human being. I have never dreamed of such a thing and would oppose it to the utmost.

"I have frequently, for years, expressed the hope that there might be a union of the two countries by mutual consent and for the good of both. It always seemed to me a friendly suggestion, because we are neighbors of the same blood and speaking the same language, but as the Canadians do not seem to want that there is an end of it.

"What I said at Fremont, Neb., was in response to a question from a person in the audience. I said I had never thought of anything but a union of the two countries by mutual consent. I did not say that it is an issue or ever would be, or that I desired it to be, but if Canada were agreeable nine-tenths of the people of the United States would endorse the idea."

JURY HOLDS MRS. VERMILYA

Finds Her Responsible for Policeman's Death.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—Mrs. Louise Vermilya was held to the grand jury by a coroner's jury which investigated the death of Policeman Arthur Bissonette. She is under arrest charged with having poisoned him.

She was unable to attend the inquest because of an abscess of the spine, which, county physicians said, was due to the arsenic she had eaten with her food while under surveillance. Little testimony was brought out concerning the other nine deaths that have occurred in Mrs. Vermilya's home

Roads Won't Be Ousted.

Jefferson City, Mo., Nov. 28.—The Missouri supreme court denied the ouster asked by Governor Hadley when he was attorney general to dissolve the merger of the Gould lines of railroads and properties in this state.

Auto Plunges From Ferryboat.

New York, Nov. 28.—An automobile plunged from a ferryboat into the Hudson river and [illegible] ferry passenger into the river. The man was drowned. His body did not reappear.

Harvester Fine Reduced.

Jefferson City, Mo., Nov. 28.—The supreme court modified the decision in the International Harvester company ouster case, reducing the fine from $50,000 to $25,000.

HUNDREDS OF DEAD IN CITY

FIGHTING IS MOST DESPERATE

Imperial Troops Know They Will Be Massacred if Taken and They Prefer to Die in Battle.

Shanghai, Nov. 28.—The rebels have captured part of the city of Nanking, according to messages received from up river, following a desperate battle, which has been raging since early Sunday. The town's complete capture is imminent. It is still being heavily bombarded both from the land and river sides.

Nanking, it is believed, will be practically destroyed.

For twenty-four hours a rain of shells has been poured into it from the forts which overlook it on three sides and from the rebel warships in the river.

The quarter already captured was found in ruins. Corpses were scattered everywhere. It is estimated 2,500 persons inside the city have been killed.

Of the rebels, several hundred have fallen. The garrison on Purple hill showed no signs at last accounts, however, of surrender.

The imperialist soldiers will be massacred if they fall into the rebels' hands alive and evidently feel that they may as well die fighting.

Revolutionary leaders here are hurrying plans for a move against Peking. A force is ready at Canton to embark as soon as the rebel warships arrive to transport them to Tientsen, whence they will march on the capital.

SIXTY PRISONERS, BEHEADED

Rebels at Wuchow Avenge Recent Massacre.

Hongkong, Nov. 28.—Traffic on the West river has practically come to a standstill. Steamers to Wuchow from Hongkong have been withdrawn, but those from Canton are being continued on the assurance given by the British authorities that an effective patrol of [illegible]

Communication with Wuchow and Nanking is entirely cut off. Several passenger motor boats are missing.

At Wuchow the revolutionary soldiers are avenging the recent massacre. They have already beheaded sixty prisoners, some of them the sons of aristocrats. Afterwards they held an orgy, cutting out the hearts of victims, which they roasted and ate.

Companies of troops paroled the streets of Hongkong and Kowloon with fixed bayonets. This was done with a view to preventing renewal of recent disturbances. Some hooting and stone throwing occurred and two persons were injured slightly.

OIL KING DENIES CHARGES

John D. Rockefeller Replies to Merritt Brothers.

New York, Nov. 24.—John D. Rockefeller, in a statement given out here, replied to the charges made by the Merritt brothers before the Stanley steel investigating committee regarding the method used by Mr. Rockefeller in securing control of the Mesabi ore mines and the Duluth, Missabe and Northern railroad, pointing out that these charges were denied under oath as long ago of 1895 in litigation over the Lake Superior Consolidated Iron mines.

He furthermore submits the text of a paper bearing the date of Jan. 22, 1897, to which are attached the names of Alfred and Leonidas Merritt and "all the other members of the family," declaring themselves satisfied that neither Mr. Rockefeller nor his agents committed fraud or made misrepresentations in the manner in question.

Mr. Rockefeller then sets forth what he says are "the facts with regard to the loans" to which the Merritts testified and denies that the loans in question were ever called by him.

No Clew.

THE MAN SHE LOVED

By EDWARD BOLTON

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

When Arthur Thurston died at twenty-eight leaving a widow of twenty-two she felt that she must live a blighted life. Other women had loved twice, but not she.

Maxwell, a friend of the widow, remonstrated with her for this indulgence of grief, telling her that at her age a whole lifetime was before her. If she did not care to marry again she might at least live in the world like other persons. She could devote herself to music, art, charity, anything but hanging over a grave. To satisfy him she concluded to take up art.

Maxwell went to an artist friend, an attractive man, and said to him:

"Charlie, I know a young widow for whom I wish a husband. I have selected you for the position. She will not interfere with your career, for she has a small fortune. She has asked me to secure her a teacher in painting, and I have recommended you."

But Charlie Somerset, after hearing about the Widow Thurston and her grief, did not see how he was to win her. However, he consented to give her lessons, and the two were brought together. A month after the lessons began Maxwell met Somerset and asked how he was getting on with his pupil.

"Very badly," said the artist. "The only picture she is at all interested in is a portrait of her late husband, which she is painting from memory. She sits all through her lessons before it, giving a touch here and a touch there, sighing, sometimes sobbing, and all the time moping over her lost beloved. The worst of it is that I am sure if she could be relieved of this monomania—for that's just what it is—she would be adorable. I would give my head to"—

"Place where the other head is," interrupted Maxwell. "Don't be discouraged. Sympathize with her instead of showing jealousy of the dead, for in my opinion a live man is better than a dead one any day."

The two parted and did not meet again for several months, when Maxwell asked the same question as before and received the same reply.

"Do you mean to tell me that she hasn't finished that portrait yet?"

"Finished it? Yes, long ago; but she still keeps dabbing at it."

"When is her next lesson?"

"Tomorrow."

"Well, I'll drop in on you and see what kind of a picture a disconsolate widow will make of a dead husband by continuous work on it. I suppose she thinks she's turning out an archangel."

The next day Maxwell dropped in as he had promised. There sat Somerset painting a portrait at one easel and the widow painting her husband's likeness at another. Maxwell cast a glance at Somerset's work, which was the head of a woman; gave a grunt and, turning to the widow's painting, gave a low whistle.

"You two seem to be getting on very well. Charlie, whose head is that you're painting?"

"Oh, it's a fancy picture."

"Why, don't you know? He's the man I love."

"The man you loved?"

"Umph!"

Maxwell leaned over Somerset and whispered some words in his ear. Somerset arose, took his hat and went out. Maxwell drew a chair toward the widow's easel and said to her:

"That's a dead giveaway."

"What's a dead giveaway?" she asked, starting.

"The head you're painting. It's the man you love, is it?"

"Certainly."

"Well, I'm glad you love a live man instead of a dead one."

"What do you mean?"

"Why, that isn't Arthur Thurston; it's Charlie Somerset."

The woman looked at him in horror.

"I recognized it for Charlie the moment I entered. Come here."

Rising, he led her to Somerset's portrait. "Do you know who that is?" he asked.

"Why, it looks very like me."

"It is you. Charlie has been falling in love with you and has probably unconsciously been putting you on canvas, thinking he was making a fancy picture."

The widow blushed.

"Meanwhile you have been falling in love with him, and while thinking you were putting Arthur's head on your canvas you have been painting—the man you love."

The widow blushed crimson.

"Do you wish," added Maxwell, "that I shall tell Charlie what you have been doing. He's too stupid to see it himself."

"No."

"Well, then, stop this nonsense. He's in love with you and has been bothered, as he has told me, at thinking your heart is in the grave. I won't tell him that you have been painting the man you"—

"Stop!"

"Goodby. He'll doubtless tell you how he feels pretty soon, and you'd better not keep him waiting. There is his portrait on your easel a witness against you."

"Will you leave me?"

"Certainly. But don't forget to send me a bid to the wedding. Ta, ta!"

In due time the bid came.

Middle Aged Courtship

By ALEXANDER D. CHASE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

The marquis, a man of forty; the baroness, a woman of thirty-six, a young man of twenty and a girl of nineteen made up the group.

"Now, go," said the marquis to the two younger ones. "You, my dear nephew, have received my consent, and you, Cecile, have obtained the same from your aunt. I will take care of you, and the baroness will probably not be lacking in gifts."

"I certainly will do my part," said the baroness.

"Uncle," said the young man joyously, "you are one of nature's as well as one of the nation's noblemen."

"Aunty," said the girl, "I shall endeavor to be worthy of your kindness."

The young couple strolled off into another of the suit of rooms, leaving the older ones together.

"Nature as well as history," said the marquis, "repeats itself. Do you remember the day we received your father's blessing?"

"Perfectly, and how joyous I was. Then when the trouble between us came I was in despair. I did not know it was a blessing in disguise."

"How do you know it was a blessing?"

"From friends who have married and been miserable. I can count them on my fingers. There's Elise," putting the forefinger of her left hand on the little finger of her right, "and Annette, and Fanchette"—

"Yes, and among my friends I can count as many who are supremely happy."

"The romance fades"—

"But it gives place to an enduring affection."

"These young people who have just left us will keep up a pretense of deferring to each other till the day after they return from their wedding tour; then they will begin to quarrel."

"But they will gradually grow nearer and dearer to each other. They will wrangle, but that is because each knows the other will endure such wranglings from a mate."

"But there are those whose quarrels grow more and more violent."

"They are but a small proportion of the whole."

"Ah, marquis, you have been converted too late. You are not old, but too old to feel love based on companionship."

"First love I have passed through. Unfortunately fate did not permit in my case the succeeding state. I have been, as it were, in a condition of suspense."

She cast her eyes to the floor.

"Whose fault was it?" she asked.

"Fate's. I said fate prevented, did I not? Nothing but fate can come between a boy and girl who love. I was young, and I did not understand you. Lovers need to be tied together to prevent their flying apart. Marriage does that. Once married, they have to learn to bear with each other. And when the child comes there is another reason why they must not fly apart. Married and with a child, disunion is frightful. They will endure real wrongs rather than that."

"And think of the absurdity that caused us to fly apart!"

"I have forgotten what it was."

"We were playing tennis."

"I remember."

"A ball I sent you you claimed to be foul."

"Now I recollect."

"I accused you of purposely seeing wrong."

"So you did."

"And you told me you were not in the habit of being accused of cheating."

"That's right. Go on."

"I threw down my racket and, with my nose in the air, marched off the court."

"Ah, yes. I have it now, and I said to myself, 'I don't want a wife who acts like that.'"

"And from then till now not a word of love has passed between us."

"How stupid!"

"We should have been whipped and ordered to make up like children."

There was a short silence between them, broken by the marquis.

"Something of more substance than romantic love drives me to marriage. Youth having passed, I need companionship. Had I a companion I could bear a great deal from her."

"And children."

"For their sake I would bear anything."

"If you, a man, would bear anything for the dear little ones, how would it be with the woman who is much nearer to them than the man?"

"It is not too late."

"Yes: it is too late."

"No. Shall we risk it?"

She smiled.

"What amuses you?"

"The difference between this courtship and our former one."

"And, I trust our relationship shall not be broken by a tennis ball. See that young rascal in there? He is stealing his arm around your niece's waist. He is imprinting a kiss on her lips."

"You are crushing the flowers in my corsage."

"And taking the dew from your lips."

"Enough of this. We are too old."

"Well, when shall we get through the preliminaries and be settled?"

"When you like."

THE PURPOSE OF ALL IS THE PROGRESS OF HUMANITY

VOL. XXV THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1911. NO. 14

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THEY NARROWLY ESCAPED

Friday Morning the E. N. Johnson Home was Burned to the Ground.

Last Friday morning about 2 o'clock a very urgent fire alarm was sent pealing thru the frosty air. It was a call for the boys to protect the E. N. Johnson home and neighborhood on the East side. The hammer of the bell breaking prevented the proper ringing of the alarm and as a result few firemen and no teams responded. The water main that crosses the river was broken some time ago and had not been repaired so that formed an additional hindrance to the fire laddies present.

Mr. Johnson had heard a noise in the kitchen and upon investigation discovered the room in flames, slamming the door he rushed back to his room and with Mrs. Johnson and the two small children managed to leave the house in safety tho they were unable to save anything. The experience was a chilly one but Mr. and Mrs. Johnson feel thankful that they escaped bodily injury.

The many friends of the Johnson family have in the Golden Rule spirit of helpfulness assisted them as much as they could. One gift worthy of mention was a $100 check from A. M. Arpin. Mr. Johnson had formerly worked for the Northwestern Drainage Company but has not been in their employ during the past year but Mr. Arpin is a man who does not forget good service especially in time of need. Thus the many temporary needs of the family have been amply provided and Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are happy to have discovered so many true friends.

Leo. Peterson, superintendent of the Electric Light and Water Department went to Crookston on Wednesday afternoon with a view of securing tools with which to properly put in a new water main across the river to the East side. After the Johnson fire the public have been aroused to a full realization of the awful need of fire protection for that portion of the city.

It is to be hoped that this work will be pushed with all possible haste so that the East side mains may be properly connected with the city water within a few days.

PENNINGTON LOAN AND SAVINGS ASSOCIATION.

There is now being organized by T. A. McAllister, formerly state agent for the Union Savings and Loan Association of Sioux Falls, S. Dak., and C. J. Vollmer of Minneapolis, the Pennington Loan and Savings Association, this association to be strictly a local enterprise supported by local people, and organized primarily for the purpose of increasing the number of personally owned homes in this city and to care for the big influx of people that is sure to take place within the next few years.

The contemplated corporation is to be capitalized at $50,000, half of the stock having already been subscribed. Mr. T. P. Hamre is temporary treasurer. Some of our best business men are interested in this new association and it is expected that all the stock will have been taken in a short time. Mr. Vollmer has moved to this city with his family with the intention of making Thief River his home. Mr. McAllister expects his family in a few days, and he, too, will make this city his future home.

BIG GAME.

The Commercial-Normal basket ball team and the Freshmen High School played an exciting game Wednesday. The first half was a rough and tumble exhibition with the score even. Second half was a decided improvement and resulted in a score of 20 to 0 in favor of the Commercial-Normal.

LAND SHOW OPENS NEXT WEEK

After a year of preparation the Northwestern Land Show will open in the St. Paul Auditorium next Tuesday, Dec. 12 and continue until Dec. 23.

While called a land show, the exposition is in reality a "products show" just like the world's fairs and larger state fairs. It is agricultural, industrial, horticultural and includes displays from the farms, forests, mines, lakes, river and factories of seven states and Alaska. Some of the state exhibits are said to be finer than those which the states made at the Seattle or Portland expositions because the states have been in the "show business" and it takes experience to gather and arrange a good display.

Minnesota has a large part in this exposition, occupying 1,500 square feet. While the other states are represented, it has been shown that Minnesota always gets her share. The work of the railroads to secure settlers for the northwest results every year in Minnesota securing about 55 per cent of all the settlers who move west and pass through the Twin City.

LOW RATES FROM ALL MINNESOTA POINTS.

Railroads which granted low rates from points within two hundred and fifty miles of St. Paul and Minneapolis on account of the "land products show," announced this week that they would go a step further and put the rates in from all points in Minnesota. There was such a demand for the rates in the far northern part of the state that the railroads got busy and announced a rate of one and one third fares for the round trip. The tickets will go on sale Dec. 11 and will be good to return until Dec. 24. The show in St. Paul opens Dec. 12.

HOW WE ARE GOUGED

Prof. W. F. Ries, Socialist, gave Instructive Lecture Wednesday evening at Auditorium.

Professor W. F. Ries delivered at the Auditorium Wednesday night to a large and appreciative audience the socialist lecture "How We Are Gouged," it being the first of a series of lectures which will be given this winter. The following are a few excerpts from the lecture.

Excerpts.

The subject of Socialism is the greatest and most persistent question of this age. Since first it forced itself upon the attention of man it has leaped over every goegraphical barrier and gone into every land under the sun. It has found its way into palaces and huts. It is the issue of all issues. It inspires press, pulpit and forum; it is the theme of artists and poet; it is the problem of problems confronting the statesman.

While Socialism is the all-absorbing topic of discussion, it is a subject concerning which the greatest misunderstanding prevails.

From many sources we hear of the 57 varieties of Socialism. Others tell us that Socialism means "divide up," freelove," "busted homes," "loss of incentive," etc., etc. Let our standard authorities settle the matter.

Socialism being the product of social evolution, the only danger lies in obstructing it.—Rev. F. M. Sprague, The Great Devine.

Socialism is a theory of society that advocates a more precise orderly and harmonious arrangements of the social relations of mankind than that which has hitherto prevailed.—Webster's Dictionary.

The Socialist platform boiled down to a few sentences means that what the people use in common they should own in common; and what the people use privately they should own privately. Each accordingly to his "deeds." Much done, much received; nothing done, nothing received.

In other words Socialism means the collective ownership of the means of producing and distributing wealth, such as lands, Mines Factories, Railroads Mail, Express, Telegraph, etc., etc., etc.

Socialism also means the private ownership of wealth such as a Home, Vehicles, Furniture, Books, Pictures etc., according to the value of one's labor. Socialism means the Public Ownership of Capital, the Private Ownership of Wealth; the Public Ownership of opportunity, the Private Ownership of the Products of one's labor.

Civilisation in Practice.

The large and more elaborate they build their churches the bigger and more expensive and deadlier they build their battleships.

The larger and more elaborate they make the bibles to save souls the larger and more readily they make guns to destroy human life!

"Consistency's a jewel" not to be found among civilized nations where they build up with one hand, and slaughter and destroy with the other!

This farce and mockery has been going on for thousands of years in the name of "God" and "Justice."

Let the Nation Own the Trusts.

Do you know why living expenses are so high?

Socialism means The Golden Rule against The Rule of Gold.

The laws govern the poor, and the rich govern the law.

He that will not have new remedies will have new evils.

Do you know that 72 per cent of the American people do not own a home?

Do you know WHY those who do nothing have everything, while those who do everything have nothing?

The tramp is the complement of the millionaire. Mr. Roosevelt, you uphold the system that breeds both.

Labor receives wages and works for others: capital receives profits and works others. Do you see the difference?

Do you know why millions of small children are compelled to work in factories while strong and willing men are looking for work?

Dogs have fleas, society capitalists. The fleas are not good for the dog nor the capitalists for soicety. Both live on their hosts.

Peace between the worker and his master cannot be, because there is a constant struggle between them to get possession of labor's products.

Between the slums and divorce courts of capitalism, it doesnt' look like there will be many homes left for Socialism to break up. Isn't that so Teddy?

Equal Opportunity and therefore prosperity and happiness for all who are willing to work. That is Socialism. Why do you oppose it Mr. Roosevelt?

The conservation of natural resources and the conservation of popular government are both at stake. The one needs conservation no less than the other. The issue before the American people is: Shall this country be managed by man for human welfare or by money for profit?

Denied the right to exploit his fellow-man the restless activity of his mind would seek new fields of discovery and invention and his superior genius would be directed towards the end of elevating to a higher plane the physical, intellectual, moral and spiritual life of his fellow beings.

MESSAGE OF THE PRESIDENT

Mr. Taft Champions the Anti-trust Statute.

NEW REMEDIES SUGGESTED.

Not Repeal or Amendment, but Supplemental Legislation Needed—The Tobacco Trust Decision an Effective One—Federal Incorporation Recommended and a Federal Corporation Commission Proposed—The Test of "Reasonableness."

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

This message is the first of several which I shall send to congress during the interval between the opening of its regular session and its adjournment for the Christmas holidays. The amount of information to be communicated as to the operations of the government, the number of important subjects calling for comment by the executive and the transmission to congress of exhaustive reports of special commissions make it impossible to include in one message of a reasonable length a discussion of the topics that ought to be brought to the attention of the national legislature at its first regular session.

The Anti-trust Law—The Supreme Court Decisions.

In May last the supreme court handed down decisions in the suits in equity brought by the United States to enjoin the further maintenance of the Standard Oil trust and of the American Tobacco trust and to secure their dissolution. The decisions are epoch making and serve to advise the business world authoritatively of the scope and operation of the anti-trust act of 1890. The decisions do not depart in any substantial way from the previous decisions of the court in construing and applying this important statute, but they clarify those decisions by further defining the already admitted exceptions to the literal construction of the act. By the decrees they furnish a useful precedent as to the proper method of dealing with the capital and property of illegal trusts These decisions suggest the need and wisdom of additional or supplemental legislation to make it easier for the entire business community to square with the rule of action and legality thus finally established and to preserve the benefit, freedom and spur of reasonable competition without loss of real efficiency or progress.

No Change in the Rule of Decision, Merely in Its Form of Expression.

The statute in its first section declares to be illegal "every contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations" and in the second declares guilty of a misdemeanor "every person who shall monopolize or attempt to monopolize or combine or conspire with any other person to monopolize any part of the trade or commerce of the several states or with foreign nations."

In two early cases, where the statute was invoked to enjoin a transportation rate agreement between interstate railroad companies, it was held that it was no defense to show that the agreement as to rates complained of was reasonable at common law, because it was said that the statute was directed against all contracts and combinations in restraint of trade, whether reasonable at common law or not. It was plain from the record, however, that the contracts complained of in those cases would not have been deemed reasonable at common law. In subsequent cases the court said that the statute should be given a reasonable construction and refused to include within its inhibition certain contractual restraints of trade which it denominated as incidental or as indirect.

These cases of restrant of trade that the court excepted from the operation of the statute were instances which at common law would have been called reasonable. In the Standard Oil and tobacco cases, therefore, the court merely adopted the tests of the common law and in defining exceptions to the literal application of the statute only substituted for the test of being incidental or indirect that of being reasonable, and this without varying in the slightest the actual scope and effect of the statute. In other words, all the cases under the statute which have now been decided would have been decided the same way if the court had originally accepted in its construction the rule at common law.

It has been said that the court by introducing into the construction of the statute common law distinctions has emasculated it. This is obviously untrue. By its judgment every contract and combination in restraint of interstate trade made with the purpose or necessary effect of controlling prices by stifling competition or of establishing in whole or in part a monopoly of such trade is condemned by the statute. The most extreme critics cannot instance a case that ought to be condemned under the statute which is not brought within its terms as thus construed.

The suggestion is also made that the supreme court by its decision in the last two cases has committed to the court the undefined and unlimited discretion to determine whether a case of restraint of trade is within the terms of the statute. This is wholly untrue. A reasonable restraint of trade at common law is well understood and is clearly defined. It does not rest in the discretion of the court. It must be limited to accomplish the purpose of a lawful main contract to which in order that it shall be enforceable at all it must be incidental. If it exceed the needs of that contract it is void.

The test of reasonableness was never applied by the court at comman law to contracts or combinations or conspiracies in restraint of trade whose purpose was or whose necessary effect would be to stifle competition, to control prices or establish monopolies The courts never assumed power to say that such contracts or combinations or conspiracies might be lawful if the parties to them were only moderate in the use of the power thus secured and did not exact from the public too great and exorbitant prices. It is true that many theorists and others engaged in business violating the statute have hoped that some such line could be drawn by courts, but no court of authority has ever attempted it Certainly there is nothing in the decisions of the latest two cases from which such a dangerous theory of judicial discretion in enforcing this statute can derive the slightest sanction.

We have been twenty-one years making this statute effective for the purposes for which it was enacted. The Knight case was discouraging and seemed to remit to the states the whole available power to attack and suppress the evils of the trusts. Slowly, however, the error of that judgment was corrected, and only in the last three or four years has the heavy hand of the law been laid upon the great illegal combinations that have exercised such an absolute dominion over many of our industries. Criminal prosecutions have been brought, and a number are pending, but juries have felt averse to convicting for jail sentences and judges have been most reluctant to impose such sentences on men of respectable standing in society whose offense has been regarded as merely statutory Still, as the offense becomes better understood and the committing of it partakes more of studied and deliberate defiance of the law we can be confident that juries will convict individuals and that jail sentences will be imposed.

The Remedy In Equity by Dissolution.

In the Standard Oil case the supreme and circuit courts found the combination to be a monopoly of the interstate business of refining, transporting and marketing petroleum and its products effected and maintained through thirty-seven different corporations, the stock of which was held by a New Jersey company. It in effect commanded the dissolution of this combination, directed the transfer and pro rata distribution by the New Jersey company of the stock held by it in the thirty-seven corporations to and among its stockholders, and the corporations and individual defendants were enjoined from conspiring or combining to restore such monopoly, and all agreements between the subsidiary corporations tending to produce or bring about further violations of the act were enjoined.

In the tobacco case the court found that the individual defendants, twenty-nine in number, had been engaged in a successful effort to acquire complete dominion over the manufacture, sale and distribution of tobacco in this country and abroad and that this had been done by combinations made with a purpose and effect to stifle competition, control prices and establish a monopoly, not only in the manufacture of tobacco, but also of tin foil and licorice used in its manufacture and of its products of cigars, cigarettes and snuffs. The tobacco suit presented a far more complicated and difficult case than the Standard Oil suit for a decree which would effectuate the will of the court and end the violation of the statute. There was here no single holding company, as in the case of the Standard Oil trust. The main company was the American Tobacco company, a manufacturing, selling and holding company. The plan adopted to destroy the combination and restore competition involved the redivision of the capital and plants of the whole trust between some of the companies constituting the trust and new companies organized for the purposes of the decree and made parties to it and numbering, new and old, fourteen.

Situation After Readjustment.

The American Tobacco company (old), readjusted capital $92,000,000; the Liggett & Meyers Tobacco company (new), capital $67,000,000; the P. Lorillard company (new), capital $47,000,000, and the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company (old), capital $7,525,000, are chiefly engaged in the manufacture and sale of chewing and smoking tobacco and cigars. The former one tin foil company is divided into two, one of $825,000 capital and the other of $400,000 The one snuff company is divided into three companies, one with a capital of $15,000,000, another with a capital of $8,000,000 and a third with a capital of $8,000,000. The licorice companies are two, one with a capital of $5,758,300 and another with a capital of $2,000,000. There is also the British-American Tobacco company, a British corporation, doing business abroad with a capital of $26,000,000, the Porto Rican Tobacco company, with a capital of $1,800,000, and the corporation of United Cigar Stores, with a capital of $9,000,000.

Under this arrangement each of the different kinds of business will be distributed between two or more companies with a division of the prominent brands in the same tobacco products, so as to make competition not only possible, but necessary. Thus the smoking tobacco business of the country is divided so that the present in-

MICHIGAN IS FOR LAFOLLETTE

Strength of LaFollette is Increasing. Farmers will not support Taft if Renominated.

Washington, D. C. Dec. 6.—Michigan is certain to send a LaFollette delegation to the Republican National Convention. This is the opinion expressed by State Treasurer Dahl, of Wisconsin, after a tour of that state:

"I feel confident that Senator La Follette will carry Michigan. At present the state organization in Michigan is controlled by Taft men, but we have started a movement to organize every city, village and hamlet for the progressive movement. Governor Osborne was elected on a progressive platform, but he is considered a Taft man. United States Senator Townsend was elected upon a strictly progressive platform, but he, too, has come over to Taft. The farmers of Michigan are strong for LaFollette, and fully 80 per cent of the traveling men I met in Michigan were progressive. I met one farmer who told me he has voted for republican candidates for president from Lincoln to Taft, but that he would not support Taft if renominated. I found the same strong feeling everywhere I went."

"Logic."

"There is no escaping the logic of the Presidential primary. If it is right for the individual to vote at the election, why is it not right for him to vote at a primary also? If the individual is capable of choosing between Taft and Harmon—assuming that they are candidates at the election—why is he not also capable of choosing between Taft and LaFollette, between Wilson and Harmon?

"What Would the Candidates Say?"

"Is it conceivable that Taft would say: 'I am opposed to the Presidential primary; I prefer to trust my chances to the Federal officeholders and the bosses?' Is it conceivable that any of the various candidates, Democratic or Republican, would refuse to subscribe to this statement:

" 'I do not wish to be the candidate unless a majority of the members of my party want me?' ".—Colliers Weekly.

COLLEGE EXTENSION DIVISION NOTES

By A. D. Wilson, Supt.

Do not wait until spring to clean and grade your seed grain. Do it now while you have plenty of grain at hand from which to select. The best 25 bushels of grain out of 100 bushels is worth much more for seed than is the grain that can be cleaned from a much smaller amount in the spring. The cost of thus cleaning and grading the grain is very slight, and it enables one to have heavy, plump seed grain at very little outlay.

The most desirable communities in which to live are the communities in which people work nicely together and co-operate in the various enterprises common to the community. We have a letter from one of the Farmers Clubs in the state, stating that they have recently purchased 80½ tons of bran, through their club, at a saving to their members of from $2 to $3 per ton. Such things are possible only by working together.

One of the problems that should receive the attention of every rural community this winter is the matter of rural school consolidation. While it is not practical for every community to consolidate at this time, the advantages and possibilities of consolidation should be known and considered by everyone. Consolidation is one of the great modern movements that will tend to interest boys and girls in country life, increase the value of farm property, and better the conditions of life in the country.

Organize a Farmers' Club in your community and by so doing improve the social advantages of your own family and of your neighbors. During the busy season, when one seldom sees his neighbors, a feeling of indifference is likely to grow up in a community; which is, to say the least, undersirable. Calling a meeting by someone will give many people in the community pleasure, add to their interest in other people, and create a feeling of friendliness and helpfulness among all; and, if the meeting results in a permanent organization that will call the members together it will result in great good to the community.

There are three important reasons why the small independent farmer can not get the best prices for his products. In the first place, he has but a small amount of any one thing to sell, and it makes very little difference to the dealer whether he gets his small business or not. In the second place, the dealer who buys his products must also buy from a number of other small farmers, with the result that what he gets in any community is, as a rule, not uniform and must sell as mixed stuff and at a low price; consequently, he cannot pay as much as in many instances the product of the individual farmer is worth. The third condition is that as a rule, the small farmer has his product at a town or terminal market where, if he does not sell, he is under considerable expense to hold his product or to get it back to the farm. By cooperation farmers can produce uniform products. By cooperation in selling, they can offer for sale large quantities which will attract buyers; and by bringing the buyer to them, they can either sell their product for what is offered, or hold it on their farms. What co-operation has done for the butter trade it can do for other products.

Have the cows come fresh in the fall. If this practice were followed generally, there is little question but that at least 50 pounds of butter-fat per year would be added to the average product per cow in the State. Having cows freshen at this time brings the heaviest milking during the winter, when one has the most

CORPORATION WILL BUILD

$35,000 Building Corporation will construct a home for the Co-operative Store.

A meeting of the promoters of the Cooperative Building Company was held last Tuesday afternoon. An organization was perfected with the following temporary officers:

Peter Engelstad, president
J. O. Thorstad, vice president
J. P. Curtis, secretary
C. L. Hansen, treasurer.

Stock to the amount of $10,000 had already been subscribed and paid in and considerably more promised. The corporation will call for a capital stock of $35,000, and the principal object will be that of building a store building on the west fifty feet of lots 7 to 12 inclusive of block 39 of the original townsite of Thief River Falls. This ground was purchased a couple of weeks ago by Messrs. Engelstad and Knudson; and now that the building corporation has been completed, it is a certainty that the Co-operative store will be removed to new quarters just as soon as these quarters can be completed in the spring. This seems to make it a certainty that next year will be the strongest year in the building line that Thief River Falls has ever known.

POETRY.

Poetry is the science of teaching thought to shake its feet. It is one of the oldest of human habits, but has spread greatly in late years. Whereas at one time poets were so scarce that one poet was passed around among a thousand manors, they are now so plentiful that one editor has to be passed around a thousand poets.

Poetry has existed since the time of Homer, a blind man who peddled verses considerably B. C. A great many critics declare that the quality of poetry has not improved since then. However, the sale has improved greatly since Homer was in the business. Homer had to beg his bread while Rudyard Kipling now has his meterical grouches cabled all over the world as pure reading matter, and gets $1,000 a broumble with a bonus if it is against the United States.

In the very early days poets had to carve their verses on stone with a mallet and chisel. This was a splendid idea and kept down the output very nicely, as it took a poet a whole day to knock out a single line. Later on, however, ink was invented and since then poets have gotten entirely beyond control. The output has increased enormously and unruly and egregious poets are causing great distress—particularly in England, which is afraid that if it doesn't go to war Kipling will keep on writing poetry, and that if it does go to war Alfred Austin will begin again.

To make poetry one must have great emotions and a large supply of lithe, well manicured words. Minor poets are supposed to make the lines rhyme and meter—meter being 2-4 time or 3-4 time or jig time, or, in the case of Swinburne, Salome time. The greater poets do not have to rhyme their lines, and there are some few so great that they do not have to use rhyme or meter either. The reader tells this kind of potery from prose by the way he jerks and jumps while reading it.

Shakespere was a great poet, and so were Tennyson, Byron and Goethe. One of the greatest requisites for poetic greatness is to be dead. The late Mr. Poe of America adopted this method with success. However, America has produced very few great poets because life is too pleasant over here.

Poetry soothes the soul and deepens the mind and lightens the heart. It also fills the stomach and keeps the mills running in full blast. More than once in the last few years an American poet has kept a large breakfast food mill running day and night by putting two small lines of poetry in all of our leading streetcars.—Minneapolis Journal.

ON THE LAWN.

When the ground freezes, the lawn should be mulched with several inches of barnyard manure. Avoid that which is largely trash or bedding, if possible. The leachings during the winter and spring will stimulate the rapid and luxuriant growth, and this is one of the best features of the manure-mulch in the fall.

The manure-mulch should also be applied to the hardy perennial borders, and about the shrubbery. The tops of the herbaceous plants should be cut to within two or three inches of the ground, and the mulch applied right over the crowns.

With tender shrubs and roses, that must be protected, avoid swathing them in burlap, paper or cornstalks, to stand like mute Egyptian mummies, maring the view all winter long. Just as good a plan, as far as protection is concerned, and a far more pleasing one, is to drive some stakes, bend the tops down when no frost is in them, and tie them down with wire or small ropes. They may then be covered with leaves raked from the lawn, forest leaves or trashy manure. If the location is exposed, a twelve-inch board may be staked on edge about the group, to prevent the mulch being blown off. The covering should be several inches deep. If the lawn has been kept clean from weeds and trash, and there are no seeds or grains in the mulch, mice will not bother. In the spring at the proper time, the covering can be removed and the tops pulled back into position.—K. A. Kirkpatrick, Extension Division Minn. College of Agriculture.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Cold weather is upon us, and with it the time for putting on storm-windows and doors.

Remember to have at least one storm-window, in each room, hung on hinges so that it may be opened to admit fresh air.

Beds, bedding and sleeping room should be aired each day during the winter months, as wel as during the warmer weather.

Opening opposite windows in the living room occasionaly, during the day, will change the air of the room, and be a benefit especially to those who must remain indoors most of the time.

Don't forget to have the windows in the kitchen easily adjustable. A goodly supply of freshair is necessary to the comfort and efficiency of the persons working in the "laboratory" so closely connected with the welfare of the home.

When washing the outside of windows in cold weather, use kerosene, and avoid putting the hands in water.

Sprinkle a soft cloth with the oil and rub the window-glass with this. Allow it to remain on a short time; then wipe the glass with another cloth, and finally polish with either another cloth or a piece of soft paper.—Mary L. Bull, Extension Division Minn. College of Agriculture.

NOTICE.

Christmas Mail.

For the information of the patrons of this office who have their mail delivered by the city carriers, I wish to state that there will be no delivery on Christmas Day. For their convenience and to give relief to the congested state of the mail at this time I have arranged to have the carriers window open from (9 to 10 a. m.) Dec. 24 & 25 so those who have their mail delivered may have the opportunity to call at the Post Office for their mail if they so desire.

A CONTRAST.

The trial of Gus Bealieu and others which is now in progress at Fergus Falls on an indictment charging them with conspiring to defraud the government by inducing full-bloods to sell lands, brings out some interesting and curious incidents. Friday one of the government witnesses was Geo. Walters, who claims to be a full-blood. His brothers and sisters are, according to their claim, mixed bloods, but Walters says that they are liars. Incidently he testified to the fact that many people on the reservation regard him as a liar. Walters sold his pine allotment to the Nichols-Chisholm Lumber Co., receiving for it $14,000, which was at the rate of $10 or $12 per thousand feet. According to his testimony he took what the lumber company offered him and if that offer had been $1,000 he supposes that he would have taken that without here discussing the question of blood, which will probably be determined later, it is remarkable how solicitious the government is for the welfare of the Indians. In striking contrast to this case, which is but one of many similar ones, is one, the facts of which were brought in the trial of a civil case in the district court at Detroit last fall.

In 1897 Robert M. Allen, who was then the Indian agent at White Earth acting under a ruling of the department under which it was claimed that if any [illegible] acre tract contained more than 10,000 feet of pine the excess remained the property of the tribe, and not of the individual allottee, entered into a contract with a logger to cut a large quantity of timber for the government. Under this contract about 800,000 feet was cut from the alotment of O-bah-baum a blind woman, living near Pine Point. At the time the timber was being cut she protested to the agent and to D. S. Hall, the Indian commissioner. She obtained no satisfaction from either and the cutting went on. O-bahbaum did not give up. She still contended that the property had been wrongfully taken and in 1907 she employed Attorney J. T. VanMetre, of this place, to prosecute her claim. Mr. VanMetre immediately took the matter up with the commissioner of Indian affairs at Washington, who told him that there was no relief for his client. Mr. VanMetre was not satisfied with this and brot the matter to the attention of Congressman Steenerson and Senator Clapp, who secured the passage of an act of congress which was approved by the president and which authorized and directed the secretary of the interior to ascertain the amount of timber cut from the allotment of O-bah-baum and to pay for it from the Indian fund. This act was passed in 1909, more than ten years after the timber had been wrongfully taken by the government. The secretary of the Interior did not pay $12 a thousand feet for the pine. He paid $5 per thousand. But O-bah-baum did not live to enjoy the money paid her by the government having died in poverty a year before the final settlement was made. The money was paid to her estate.

The case of Geo. Walters is not an isolated one. Neither is that of O-bah-baum. The former received his money as soon as he had given a deed. The latter during her life time was denied the half-pay that the government was compelled to give her by congressional action. In the light of such facts as these there are those who rant about the Indians being the prey of the avaricious white man while in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred where the Indians has been despoiled of his property or rights he has fallen a victim to the avariciousness and greed of those who are in authority and are supposed to look after their national welfare.—Mahnomen Pioneer.

THINK THIS OVER.

This Offer Should Gain the Confidence of the Most Skeptical.

We pay for all the medicine used during the trial, if our remedy fails to completely relieve you of constipation. We take all the risk. You are not obligated to us in any way whatever, if you accept our offer. That's a mighty broad statement, but we mean every word of it. Could anything be more fair for you?

A most scientific, common-sense treatment is Rexall Orderlies, which are eaten like candy. Their active principle is a recent scientific discovery, that is odorless, colorless, and tasteless; very pronounced, gentle, and pleasant in action, and particularly agreeable in every way. This ingredient does not cause diarrhœa, nausea, flatulence, griping, or other inconvenience. Rexall Orderlies are particularly good for children, aged and delicate persons.

If you suffer from chronic or habitual constipation, or the associate or dependent chronic ailments, we urge you to try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Remember, you can get them only at our store. 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store.

Easy Enough.

Tommy's Mamma—Why aren't you a good boy like Willie Jones? Tommy—Huh! It's easy enough for him to be good. He's sick most of the time.—Judge.

Another life, if it were not better than this, would be less a promise than a threat.—J. Petit Senn.

An Inheritance.

"She claims that her ancestors stood torturing with redhot pincers."

"I believe it. She can wear shoes three sizes too small and look happy."—Harper's Bazar.

A Moving Force.

"What is the force that makes the world move?" asked the teacher.

Bluffed It Out.

The stories of the embarrassment of unsophistocated diners when faced by highly sophisticated menu cards are endless and usually amusing. A man whose career had confined his knowledge of things to eat to such standard products as ham and eggs and pork and beans found himself among a company who ordered intelligently from an extensive bill of fare. It contained so many classified dishes as to make a fair sized book, the pages of which he pawed aimlessly and in dismay. The waiter, who needed only his order to go to the kitchen, was standing at one side deferentially, with his order slip and pencil in hand. The delay was noticeable and irritating to the unskilled diner, and finally he pointed blindly to the middle of a page with his finger.

"Give me some of that," he said.

The waiter looked over his shoulder and remarked:

"That's mayonnaise dressing, sir."

"I know it. I can read."

"But," apologetically, "what will you have it on, sir?"

Prayer In an East Indian Court.

The noon hour struck, tolled by the rail gong at the treasury door, and in a moment all things came to a standstill. The Mohammedan lawyers, the village Moslems loitering about the court, even Mozuffer Khan with his guardian policeman, all reverently withdrew. A moment later they reappeared on the wide concrete veranda outside the window at my left. There they laid down their prayer mats, and, standing first with devoutly bowed heads and hands folded, they murmured the noon prayers of the prophet's religion; then knelt, still praying, and made obeisance, prostrating themselves before Allah the merciful, the compassionate. The reverence of their devotion was perfect and wholly free from the self conscious shamefacedness that I should have felt, supposing that I, the magistrate, had suspended court to pray there in public.—Charles Johnston in Atlantic.

The Russian Amsterdam.

St. Petersburg is one of the few great cities which have been made and not born. During his residence in Holland Peter the Great was so impressed by Amsterdam, perched upon the waters, that he determined to abandon Moscow and build a new capital which should have canals for streets. In his campaign against Sweden in 1702 he noted an island situated in the midstream of the Neva. "Here is my Russian Amsterdam!" he exclaimed and immediately began the building of a city there. The site was a marsh in summer and a frozen morass in winter. Two miserable huts were the only buildings. The erection of the citadel, a great fort in the shape of a hexagon, with a tower 360 feet high, on the north bank of the Neva was his first care. The cottage in which Peter lived while laying out the city still exists.

And Got a Lecture.

"Well, old man, how did you get along after I left you at midnight? Get home all right?"

"No. A confounded nosey policeman haled me to the station, where I spent the rest of the night."

"Lucky dog! I reached home."—Boston Transcript.

Conservation Too.

"What is this domestic science?" inquired the engaged girl.

"It consists of making hash out of the leftover meat and croquettes out of the leftover hash," explained her more experienced friend.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

FOR YOUR HAIR.

Here Are Facts We Want You to Prove at Our Risk.

When the roots of the hair are entirely dead and the pores of the scalp are glazed over, we do not believe that anything can restore hair growth.

But, when the hair roots retain any life, we believe there is nothing that will so surely promote hair growth as will Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. To prove that statement, we promise to promptly return all the money you pay us for Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, should it not please you.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic destroys the germs which are usually responsible for baldness. It penetrates to the roots of the hair, stimulating and, by promoting circulation, nourishing them.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic helps to relieve scalp irritation, to remove dandruff, to prevent the hair from falling out, and to promote an increased growth of hair. It comes in two sizes, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain it only at our store — The Rexall Store J. P. Curtis, 202 LaBree Ave. N.

Primitive Ideas of Hygiene.

Hindu ambassadors once sent to England by a native prince were regarded as so polluted that on their return to India nothing but being born again would purify them, and they were accordingly dragged through a gold image of the sacred Yoni.

A writer describes a curious custom of the Baretse in South Africa. A few days after the death of a man the doctor comes and makes an incision on the forehead of each of the survivors of his relatives and fills it with medicine to ward off the contagion and the effect of the sorcery that caused his death.

Leland calls attention to a custom of taking medicines on the threshold in ancient Tuscany, the idea being that the threshold was the border line between the outer world where evil spirits freely roam.

If a person dies within an Eskimo hut everything in the hut must be destroyed or thrown away as well as everything which had come into contact with the deceased.—Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette.

Scientific Manager.

One cold winter day some railroad officials while making an inspection of a large yard stepped for a moment inside a switchman's shanty to get warm. Among them was a general superintendent who was known to have a mania for "scientific management" and the reduction of expenses. As they were leaving the switchman asked the traveling yardmaster, whom he knew:

"Now, can ye be tellin' me who thot mon is?"

"That's the general superintendent," the yardmaster replied.

"What do you think o' that? He's a foine lookin' mon, and ye never would believe the tales ye are hearin' about 'im."

"What have you heard about him, Mike?" was the curious question.

"Why, they do say that he was at the funeral of Mr. Mitchel's wolfe and when the six pallbearers come out he raised his hand and said: 'Hold on a minute, boys. I think yez can get along without two of thim.'"—Everybody's Magazine.

Persia's Great Superstition.

The greatest superstition in Persia is what is known as the "evil eye." You must not say to some one whom you meet, "How well you are looking!" for if you do and that person is taken ill it will be because you gave him the evil eye. You must not say to a mother, "What a pretty baby!" "What a bright child!" for if you do and anything unfortunate happens to the child you will be considered responsible. Many mothers let their children go dirty and poorly clothed in order that they may not attract favorable attention. The sign which is thought to have some power to avert the evil eye consists in holding the second and third fingers of both hands close to the palms with the thumbs, while the other fingers are extended straight out. Then with the hands behind you you make a downward movement three times.—Los Angeles Times.

DANGER IN DELAY.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy and Bright's disease, follow as the kidneys get worse. Don't neglect your kidneys. Help the kidneys with the reliable and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Thief River Falls.

Mrs. O. Jaranson, of Thief River Falls, Minn., says. "I suffered from backache and kidney complaint for nearly five years. For several hours after getting up in the morning, I could hardly do anything and I was often dizzy and tired. I doctored faithfully, but did not improve. A friend, who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results, finally persuaded me to try them and I was surprised and delighted with the results. It was not more than three weeks before all my trouble had disappeared as if by magic."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

SAVED HIS WIFE'S LIFE.

"My wife would have been in her grave today," writes O. H. Brown, of Muscadine, Ala., "if it had not been for Dr. King's New Discovery. She was down in her bed, not able to get up without help. She had a severe bronchial trouble and a dreadful cough. I got her a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, and she soon began to mend, and was well in a short time." Infallible for coughs and colds, its the most reliable remedy on earth for desperate lung-trouble, hemorrhages, lagrippe, asthma, hay fever, croup and whooping cough. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all Druggists.

LIGHTNING KILLS FEW.

In 1906 lightning killed only 169 people in this whole country. One's chances of death by lightning are less than two in a million. The chance of death from liver, kidney or stomach trouble is vastly greater, but not if Electric Bitters be used, as Robert Madsen, of West Burlington, Ia., proved. Four doctors gave him up after eight months of suffering from virulent liver trouble and yellow jaundice. He was then completely cured by Electric Bitters. They're the best stomach, liver nerve and kidney remedy and blood purifier on earth. Only 50c at all Druggists.

Official Paper of The City.

FRIDAY, DEC. 8, 1911.

The Crookston Times seems to have an editor again—such as he is.—Itasca County Independent.

CHINA a republic and England a monarchy in 1911. History is full of pleasant little ironies.—Detroit Free Press.

A N. Dakota man who had $1,000 in his posession was jailed by the Omaha police in order to prevent him from losing his money. If some trust magnates had been jailed long ago, what a lot of money other people might have saved.—Lancaster Herald

Shorty McCabe in last Sunday's Minneapolis Journal expresses himself thusly: "Sure Poverty is a crime, But," referring to a poverty stricken man, "who's guilty, him or us?"

"PARTING OF THE WAYS."

Is the great wave of Socialism going to engulf the whole country? Have we reached the parting of the ways from the old order? Is the day here when the few may no longer fatten at the expense of hardship and leanness to the many? Sure as you are born the world is moving on to something better.—Post, Burlington, Iowa.

A farmer in the Colorado apple district put a card containing his name and address in each of the boxes of apples he prepared for market. On these cards he wrote, "When you find this card please write and tell me how much you paid for this box of apples." Many answered him, saying, $2.50, $2.75, $3.00. To each he replied: Thanks for the information. I received 20 cents a box at this end. Yours for socialism.—Fertile Journal.

The club women of Iowa interested in the problem of how to develop perfect babies have sent Dr. Margaret Clark to Europe to study the subject. If they really want to know, why did they not send her up to Minnesota, where perfect babies are indigenous. —Before sending the doctor abroad it wolud have been well if the women had considered such striking facts as this taken from the Crookston Times:—The average length of life among Paris-born families is 28 years and one month.

Crookston is exercised over the novelty of having elected a socialist as mayor. Roseau, as usual, was first also in this respect, electing a socialist for this honored position two years ago, who has neither broken into banks nor confiscated (appropriated) anyone's property, honestly acquired, but instead allowed Roseau to prosper in all its ligitimate enterprises, and Crookston will likewise flourish without a hitch under their new mayor. Socialists, as a rule, are possessed of common sense as well as fascinating theories.—Roseau Region.

COUNCELS EDITORS

Mayor Gaynor of New York Outlines His Idea of Ideal American Newspaper.

New York, [illegible]—In a series of questions propounded to him on the subject Mayor Gaynor issued an extended statement here today, outlining his ideas of an ideal American newspaper. Frequently in his speeches the mayor has criticized the press.

His honor thinks that:

A newspaper should show that there is a gentleman in control of it.

A newspaper should be true, its motive fair.

If the facts are not known an editorial should not be written.

He would confine expressions of opinion to the editorial column.

Headlines should be accurate, and introductions stripped of verbiage.

It would be a good thing if all articles were signed.

The news columns should give all political news without regard to party.

Readers do not want all the testimony in divorce trials and sensational criminal cases.

No influence from the advertisers should control news or editorial columns.—We wish that all the people or at least a majority of the people had such ideas of the Ideal American newspaper.

YOUR TUBERCULOSIS BILL.

Suppose a man, father of a family of three children, and earning $3.00 a day, is taken sick with tuberculosis. What does it cost him to get well, and what would it cost each person in the United States to have prevented him from ever having had the disease. Here are a few of the leading items of exepnse to him in getting cured:

Six months' treatment in sanatorium.................$250.00
Care, family of four at $8.00 per week for six months,......192.00
Loss of wages for six months, at $3.00 per day.............432.00

Total.....................$874.00

Now what would have been the man's share in the prevention of tuberculosis?

"An ounce of prevention" in the proper care of the body.....$00.00
A study of some literature on the prevention of tuberculosis, which can be secured free of charge 00.00
The stopping of all bodily excesses........................00.00
A timely examination by a doctor..........................3.00
The purchase of 100 Red Cross Seals as a share in the general preventive campaign against tuberculosis........................1.00

How much did the man lose?

zThe McNamaras trial came to an end suddenly by the confession of guilt by the McNamaras. Capital and labor have had their first legal battle—everything previous to this has been merely skirmishes. Labor was led into this battle by the faithlessness of some of their own men. The first legal battle is over. It was won by capital by the wretched treason of the very men who called on labor for assistance. That does not mean that every laborer who innocently contributed to a fund for the purpose of seeing a fair trial was guilty in so doing. It does not mean that capital was guilty of inducing treason. It simply means that the McNamaras were traitors to their friends and their class, and if their confessions be true as we assume they are they should suffer the full penalty of the law. In this the first great battle capital has recognized that there is a class war and are intensly elated over the victory they have won. Labor has made its first great united stand and have lost by reason of traitors in their own camp. But what of this? A battle does not necessarily signify the outcome of the war. For what war was ever carried on without a traitor. Or what war ever won without the loss of a single battle?

The people of Minnesota are facing a battle. Shall the breweries control the politics of this state?

Sooner or later the fight must be made, and why not next year?

The Eberhart alliances have not been satisfactory. The office of Governor has been belittled in Minnesota. The standard should be raised, and with that the issue should be jointed on anti-brewery lines in the matter of saloon ownership. The state is being corrupted by a multitude of saloons whose number is out of all proportion to the issue of all personal liberty.

The Journal would like to see the issue in the next legislative campaign limited entirely to brewery ownership as a first step. It would prefer to see county option, Prohibition and local license, as separate policies, all set aside for the time being for the larger issue.

Why should Minneapolis have over four hundred saloons, a large majority owned by breweries? Why should Alexandria have eleven saloons, eight of which are brewery-owned? Lets make a start in Minnesota for a sound liquor policy by passing, a year hence a law that will cut off the brewery control of saloons.

And while making the fight on that line, let the Republican Party call out as its candidate for Governor a man who will rise above gang methods and gang alliances. Give us a clean-cut candidate.—Minneapolis Journal. The only principle the Minneapolis Journal seems to have is that of patching up the bad jobs of the brewers and their henchmen. Governor Eberhart who was just It, during the last campaign, because he was considered a good tool, has been proven to be even in the eyes of the "Interests," a weak sister, and they are now afraid to run him again so poor Adolph is to be sidetracked for some man whom the people do not know quite so well and who can be depended on to be for the Brewers are beginning to realize that the length of the life of the saloon will vary directly with its control by the state. Let us have the issue of the saloons brought squarly before the people and have it settled on its merits. If they are a good thing let them remain unrestrained. If they are a bad thing we don't want them under any consideration.

time. It brings the care of the calves in the winter; it allows the feeding of the skim-milk to the calves in the winter, while they need it; and to the young pigs during the early summer, when it means so much to them. Calves dropped in the fall are ready for grass as soon as it comes in the spring. Cows freshening in the fall will, if well cared for, give a good flow of milk in the winter; and when the grass comes, a good flow during the early summer; and most of them will be dry during harvest and fall work, when there is plenty to do without a lot of milking. The average price of butter-fat will also be higher, because of a larger portion of it being produced during the winter, when prices are invariably higher than in summer.

for food and fuel, which within a few feet of them may be seen ugly pups with blankets and gold collars taken out to walk by silly women. This is the system you uphold, Mr. Roosevelt.

"Our whole species falls into three great classes—useful labor, useless labor and idleness. Of these the FIRST ONLY is meritorious, and to it ALL the product of labor rightfully belongs. But the two latter, while they exist, are heavy PENSIONERS upon the first, robbing it of a large proportion of its just rights."—Abraham Lincoln.

The Drones and The Bees.

Hitherto it is questionable if all the mechanical inventions yet made have lightened the day's toil of any human being. They have enabled a greater population to live the same life of drudggery and imprisonment, and an increased number of manufacturers, and others, to make large fortunes."—John Stuart Mill.

The negro slave of antebellum days has had his sufferings protrayed in novel, song and frenzied oratory. We have heard of the whip, the bloodhounds and all the paraphernalia used to force him to greater exertions.

We rejoice today that these things no longer exist.

But the South in the days of chattel clavery never saw what the wealthy North and South are alike seeing today—Millions of men and women and children begging for a chance to be SLAVES.

COMMERCIAL-NORMAL

The literary society held its first meeting Nov. 23. A good program was rendered and a successful season is assured.

Prof. O. A. Naplin spent Thanksgiving day with his brother, John in Polk Centre.

A. G. Hallstrom returned Monday from a trip to his parental home, where he spent the Thanksgiving vacation.

Raynard Engen and Einer Selstad appeared in school on Monday after a 10 day involuntary vacation. They were quarantined on account of diphtheria in the home of the latter.

Inquiries from young people who will enroll after the Holidays are coming in every day. You had better reserve yourself a place.

Classes in Civil Service were started this week. Mr. Naplin will have evening classes in these subjects if there is a demand.

The basket ball boys made a trip to Crookston Saturday, where they played the fast Agricultural College team. The score was large on both sides and overwhelmingly in favor of the Aggies. The game was interesting from start to finish and was devoid of any ill-feeling or haggling. The faculty and students proved themselves to be good sportsmen and royal entertainers. The C. N. S. boys will long remember the kind treatment received at the Crookston Agricultural School.

On the return trip from the school to the city, the covered sleigh tipped over and it required some time for the boys to extricate themselves. As the train was already at the station, the boys made a dash for the depot where they arrived just in time.

NEW SOLUM NEWS.

Weather is fine and not very much snow.

The meeting given at Paul Erickson's Sunday evening Dec. 3rd was well attended.

Mr. John Thompson visited with the Krogstad Bros. last Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. P. Stengelson visited with her daughter, Mrs. P. Sjolsvold last Sunday.

Jno. Remmem was among those who took in the meeting at Paul Erickson's Sunday evening.

Mrs. Ole Olby and daughter Martine visited at L. Thompson's Sunday of last week.

A basket party is to be given at the school house by O. Hall, Dec. 23. Let us all be there.

Mr. Jno. Remmem was supposed to visit his farm west of Strip last Sunday. He followed the railroad track as far as to the crossing and instead of going south he got off the track and went north and could not stop before he reached Thompson's, and he spent Sunday afternoon at Thompson's and Sjolsvold's. That's going some. "Skind handler."

EXCEL

The Malberg children came out from Warren and spent their Thanksgiving vacation at home, returning Monday morning to their school duties and Miss Mildred proceeded onward up to Argyle, near where she is teaching school.

Remember the spelling match and program in the County Line school Friday evening, December 8th. Everybody welcome.

Esther Kelberg, Alice Solem, Amy Whitman, Augusta and Sarah Swanson are among the High School students who spent their Thanksgiving vacation at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Kennison of Thief River Falls were out in this part of the country and ate their Thanksgiving turkey with J. Whitman's.

Irene, Mildred, Stella and Egbert Malberg spent Saturday evening at J. P. Swanson's

Mr. Walker of the Steiner school spent his vacation at Stephen with home folks.

Oscar and Edwin Swanson who are attending the Commercial-Normal spent a few days at home during the Holidays. Oscar left Saturday afternoon for Crookston, to assist the College Basket ball team against the Crookston Aggies. We are sure they won as Oscar is such a good player.

Quite a number of the young people around this community attended the dance at Holt last Thursday evening.

Mrs. J. P. Swanson spent Tuesday afternoon at Malberg's.

The River Bunch, consisting of a jolly set of young people, spent last Wednesday evening at H. Simenson's home. We are sure they had the most enjoyable evening.

GERMANTOWN

Hello! is the pass word of to-day. You have to use it a good many times as the 'phone is something new yet and is used for every little occasion, especially the kids, have lots of fun with it, and as luck gave them a few extra holidays, they made good use of it.

A number of invitations for Thanksgiving dinners were passed over the line and made some of us happy.

The line is not completed yet, as our linemen went to a basket social at Esplee, where it is said a number of charming school-ma'ams are the rulers, so we must excuse them for staying a few days over.

A number of neighbors went over to Frank Kains's last Saturday to help celebrate his 48th birthday.

Bessie Roller was also surprised by a number of her school mates Friday on account of her 12th birthday.

Thomas Clausen and Deslep Dau went to Naverly, Wash., last week for a visit with relatives.

Bennie Habedank returned Saturday from the Dakotas.

Freida Ristau and Elsie Bundhund came up from Thief River Falls to spend a few days with the old folks. They are attending german lutheran school there.

Peter Floe is building another addition to his barn to be able to handle the immense traffic on the road. We should think that Thief River should have undertaken some means to handle the people also, as it is certainly no fun after a drive of 40 and 50 miles to run around a couple hours to find room for a team.

Every family has need of a good, reliable liniment. For sprains, bruises, soreness of the muscles and rheumatic pains there is none better than Chamberlain's. Sold by all Druggists.

NOTICE.

Strayed upon lands owned by me, described as South East quarter of section twenty-five in the town of Goodridge, County of Pennington and State of Minnesota, where I reside, four spring calves about seven months old, described as follows:

Two red and white bull calves,
One red and white heifer,
And one black and white heifer.

They were found and taken up as estrays by me on the thirty-first day of October, 1911, and are of the value of six dollars each. The owner thereof is unknown to me.

Dated Nov. 1st, 1911.

E. H. Besaucen,
Residing on Sec. 25 in said Town.
Nicoly C. Urdahl,
Town Clerk.

SCHOOL NOTES.

According to the room reports for the month of November, the following is the enrollment to December 1st in the four buildings. Lincoln High School, 220; Central, 371; Washington, 350; Knox, 264. Total, 1205. It should be borne in mind that the eighth grade from the Central and the seventh and eighth grades from the Knox are enrolled at the Washington. This is the first report in the school history of Thief River Falls when the enrollment was over 1200, and to those familiar with conditions here, it would not surprise them to see this enrollment reach 1300 before next June 1st. Seven more students have entered high school since the above statement was prepared.

In the high school there are exactly twice as many girls enrolled as boys. This is about the ratio in other cities and the causes of this difference are the same everywhere.

Many of the teachers took advantage of the Thanksgiving holidays to spend the week end with relatives at their home towns.

The blacksmith shop will be formally opened next week. The equipment of tools is complete and this shop, like the woodworking establishment, is prepared for real work.

Miss Herrick returned on Friday from Little Falls, where she was called by the serious illness of her father. School Notes is pleased to state that he is now convalescing.

The weekly literary program in the high school is accomplishing the purpose of its organization. The students are taking part with greater ease and freedom and each week marks a decided improvement in the character of the exercises.

Supt. Hay was called to western Manitoba last week by the death of an aunt.

A carpenter has recently made many needed repairs to doors, partitions, windows, etc. A stitch in time saves nine in school as well as at home.

The short course class is increasing right along. The work is surely of a practical nature and will prove of great benefit to the students who are wise enough to enroll.

The normal cadets assume charge of the grade buildings at noon and see that those children bringing their dinners keep order and refrain from boisterous conduct.

Christmas programs are being prepared in the lower grade rooms. The first primary children will have decorated trees, but no candle lights or presents.

Reports from the University and other schools where the Thief River alumni are attending indicate that the students are meeting with success.

BLOW STAGGERS GOMPERS

Veteran Labor Leader Declares He Had Been Imposed Upon.

New York, Dec. 2.—"I am astounded, I am astounded; my credulity has been imposed upon. It is a bolt out of a clear sky."

The exclamations were those of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, when advised of the pleas of guilty in the McNamara case.

"If this is all true my credulity has been imposed upon," he declared. "I am astounded at this news. We have had the gravest assurances given to us by every one connected with the trial, either directly or indirectly, that these men were innocent."

PERSIA REJECTS RUSSIAN DEMAND

Ultimatum Turned Down by National Council.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 2.—In consequence of the rejection by the Persian national council of the Russian demands Russia has ordered the Russian troops now concentrated at Resht, capital of the Persian province of Ghilan, sixteen miles from Enzeli, on the Caspian sea, to advance on Teheran.

Teheran, Persia, Dec. 2.—The national council has rejected the Russian ultimatum by a big majority. The foreign minister has resigned.

The Russian ultimatum to the terms of which the Persian national council has refused to agree called, in the first place, for the instant dismissal of W. Morgan Shuster, the American who has for several months occupied the post of Persian treasurer general. A further demand was for a cash indemnity from Persia to cover the cost of the dispatch of Russian troops to that country.

The vote of the national council on rejection of the ultimatum was cast in open session. A subsequent secret sitting of the members was practically unanimous against compliance. A cablegram from the British foreign minister, Sir Edward Grey, was presented to the assembly during its sitting.

OFFERS TROOPS TO CHINA

United States Ready to Fulfill Treaty Obligations.

Washington, Nov. 30.—The United States formally offered to China the services of 2,500 American troops now stationed in the Philippines to aid in keeping open the railway from Peking to the sea and for the purpose of the protection of foreigners in China if the Chinese council of ministers desires to accept their services.

This is in no way to be considered a force of intervention, but merely the United States' part in carrying out, with the other powers, the provisions of the 1901 protocol for maintaining railway communication from Peking to the sea.

GOVERNMENT WINS CONTEST

Supreme Court Upholds Indictment in Alaska Coal Fraud Case.

Washington, Dec. 5.—The government won a sweeping victory in its [illegible] Alaska coal land [illegible] the supreme court of the United States decided that a person [illegible] location is limited to one coal land entry in Alaska.

Accordingly, the court held valid the indictment charging Charles F. Munday and Archie W. Shiels with land fraud conspiracy.

Spanish Meat Balls.

Spanish meat balls are as palatable as they are rare, and made thus: One can of tomatoes, one onion chopped fine, garlic or cayenne to taste. This forms the "Spanish." One and a half pounds of hamburg steak. Soak half a loaf of stale bread; drain off all water. Take one egg, pepper and salt to taste, mix together, roll into balls the size of an egg and cook in the "Spanish" three quarters of an hour.—National Magazine.

M'NAMARA BOYS CONFESS CRIME

JOHN J. ADMITS CAUSING IRON WORKS EXPLOSION

Said Men Will Be Sentenced One to Life Term and Other Fourteen Years.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 2.—James B. McNamara pleaded guilty to murder in the first degree in Judge Walter Bordwell's court. His brother, John J. McNamara, secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, entered a plea of guilty to having dynamited the Llewellyn iron works in Los Angeles on Christmas day, 1910.

James B. McNamara's confession clears up absolutely the tragedy of the explosion and fire, which at 1:07 o'clock on the morning of Oct. 1, 1910, wrecked the plant of the Los Angeles Times and caused the death of twenty-one persons. For nineteen of these deaths the McNamara brothers were indicted. J. B. McNamara was on trial specifically for the murder of Charles J. Haggerty, a machinist, whose body was found nearer than that of any other to the spot where the dynamite was supposed to have been placed.

Date of sentence for both men was set for Dec. 5, when it is expected District Attorney John D. Fredericks will ask for life imprisonment for James B. McNamara, the confessed murderer, and probably fourteen years for his brother.

As the two brothers sat together in the county jail refusing to see any one or make any statement an interest second only to the occurrence itself hung about the question, with reference to James B. McNamara—"why did he confess?"

To this opposing counsel gave the same answer.

Because He Was Guilty.

"He confessed because he was guilty and that's all there is to it," declared District Attorney Fredericks.

"He was counseled to confess because that was the best thing he could do, in the opinion of counsel," said Attorney Clarence S. Darrow, chief of counsel. "I will say now that there was no other reason or motive in it. I've studied this case for months. It presented a stone wall."

Darrow's statement was made as looking squarely in the faces of the charges that the recent arrest of Burt H. Franklin, an investigator employed by the defense, and two others with him, might have precipitated a situation untenable save by confession of the prisoner.

"Negotiations have been on for weeks," asserted Darrow, and this was corroborated by District Attorney Fredericks. "We expected at one time that Jim would confess last Monday, but he did not," said Darrow.

Darrow also denied that external pressure was exerted from union labor and Socialist sources, as General Harrison Gray Otis charged in a formal statement, or that the municipal election to be held next Tuesday, in which Job Harriman, one of the defense's counsel, is candidate for mayor, carried any weight. It was learned that Harriman was not consulted at all in the deliberations.

SENATOR WETMORE TO RETIRE

Rhode Island Solon Will Not Seek Re-Election.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 30.—United States Senator George Peabody Wetmore will not be a candidate for re-election when his present term expires next year.

Senator Wetmore has been a member of the senate since 1894, with the exception of one year, 1907, when there was a vacancy because of a deadlock in the state legislature.

HUNTING SEASON TAKES HEAVY TOLL

One Hundred Persons Killed and Thirty-seven Wounded.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—The hunting season which has just closed cost [illegible] lives and resulted in more or less severe [illegible]. Last year the dead numbered one hundred and the injured eighty-one.

The annual loss of lives in the pursuit of game has [illegible] the attention of the authorities of the government and, by direction of Secretary Wilson of the agricultural department, the biological survey is studying the accidents this year as well as statistics for the last five years.

TO PROBE ANTI-TRUST LEAGUE

Republican Leader Mann Introduces Resolution.

GOES TO RULES COMMITTEE

Action Follows Remarkable Speech by Congressman Littleton of New York in Lower House.

Washington, Dec. 5.—An investigation of the operations of the so called American Anti-Trust league was demanded by Republican Leader Mann in the house after a remarkable speech by Representative Martin W. Littleton of New York, who charged Henry B. Martin, secretary of the league, with attempting to defame him. It was the climax of the dispute between Mr. Littleton and Chairman Stanley of the house steel corporation investigating committee over methods of procedure since the filing of the government's suit against the United States Steel corporation.

Round after round of applause punctured Mr. Littleton's seventy-minute defense of his integrity and Democrats and Republicans assured him of their confidence in him.

Meantime Mr. Martin had handed to Speaker Clark a memorial and petition asking that Mr. Littleton be impeached on the grounds that he had "co-operated and conspired with heads of the trust" to prevent a continuance of the steel inquiry. This memorial, however, was not presented to the house.

Mr. Littleton assailed Martin and others as in conspiracy to use the steel investigating committee to depress the value of stocks in Wall street. Published articles characterizing Mr. Littleton as the champion of the steel corporation and resolutions adopted at a meeting here, at [illegible] Martin reiterated his charges formed the basis for the Littleton speech.

Mr. Mann's resolution was referred to the rules committee, which expects to take early action on it.

CARDINALS GET RED HATS

Concluding and Impressive Ceremony at the Vatican.

Rome, Dec. 1.—The concluding and most impressive ceremony connected with the creation of the new cardinals took place at the great public consistory at the Vatican, when fourteen princes of the church, including the three American prelates, Cardinals Falconio, Farley and O'Connell, were invested with the red hat, indicating their rank.

The Austrian and Spanish prelates were not given their red hats, as, according to the law of the concordat, the biretta must first be conferred upon them by the sovereigns of their countries.

ENDS HIS CAREER AS STANDARD OIL HEAD

John D. Rockefeller Retires From Business Life.

New York, Dec. 5.—John D. Rockefeller has terminated his career as head of the Standard Oil company. With him retired most of the conspicuous figures of the early days of the oil trust, not a Rockefeller remaining among the officers and directors of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, chief of the oil corporations, which was the holding company up to the time of the recent dissolution of the combine.

William Rockefeller, William G. Rockefeller, C. M. Pratt, H. M. Flagler, E. T. Bedford and others whose names have been prominent in the oil business, stepped out. John Archbold, one of the few members of the "old guard" to remain, became president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey and will control its destinies.

MRS. PATTERSON ACQUITTED

Jury Finds Her Not Guilty of the Murder of Her Husband.

Denver, Nov. 30.—Gertrude Gibson Patterson, accused of the murder of her husband, Charles A. Patterson, whom she shot to death while the couple were walking together in a suburb on Sept. 3, was declared not guilty by a jury in the district court.

As the clerk finished reading the verdict Mrs. Patterson sprang to her feet and caught the outstretched hand of her attorney. From outside the courtroom came a great roar of cheers.

New York, Dec. 5.—Undaunted by the bad luck which terminated his southern cruise last June, when the chartered yacht Virginia carrying him and a party of friends was wrecked on the Cuban coast, Commodore E. C. Benedict has this year chartered for a four months' cruise the four masted yacht Alvina.

He and a party of friends will sail to South America on the Alvina on Dec. 15. They will go as far as Buenos Ayres.

FEDERAL PROBE IS STILL UNDER WAY

Looking for "Men Higher Up" in Dynamite Cases.

Indianapolis, Dec. 5.—"Some persons that apparently have been so astounded by the pleas of guilty of the McNamara brothers at Los Angeles may soon be still further amazed," said a representative of one of the employers' organizations, watching the federal probe here into the alleged nation-wide dynamiting conspiracy. "No one at all informed believes the McNamaras were alone in operations that covered 100 explosions from coast to coast and cost an enormous sum of money."

Accountants and stenographers that are proceeding with an examination of records and correspondence of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, in the federal grand jury chambers, are seeking evidence, it was learned, as to the exact disposition of certain funds of the associations.

Specifically the federal inquiry is as to whether or not the statute governing interstate transportation of dynamite has been violated, but since the visit of Detective William J. Burns to this city it is intimated that prosecutions on more serious charges may follow if the federal grand jury returns indictments against men alleged to have been "higher up" in the McNamara conspiracy.

WILL DROP PROSECUTION

Four Corporations Sued in Steel Trust Case Legally Dead.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 5.—Four New Jersey corporations recorded as dead in the office of the secretary of state are among the defendants in the government's dissolution suit against the United States Steel corporation. The proceedings against them probably will be dropped as the result.

The defunct corporations are the Carnegie Company of New Jersey, the National Steel company, the American Steel Hoop company and the American Sheet Steel company.

All other defendants, individual and corporate, with the exception of Edmund C. Converse, have filed appearances. John D. Rockefeller and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., sent a messenger down with their writ of appearance.

ESTIMATES TRIMMED DOWN

Executive Departments of Government Ask Less.

Washington, Dec. 5.—Estimates of the treasury department for running the government during the next fiscal year, just submitted to congress, contemplates a saving of $21,283,921.43 as compared with the amount appropriated for the fiscal year, 1911-12. The total amount estimated for all expenses of government is $745,934,563. This amount does not include the appropriation of the postoffice department which is expected to be self-sustaining. The appropriations made by congress for the present fiscal year aggregate $767,218,485.

SUES NATIONAL CASH REGISTER

Government Alleges Conspiracy to Restrain Trade.

Complaint Filed in United States Circuit Court at Cincinnati Claims Company Is Using and Has Used Illegal Methods to Destroy Competition and Prays for an Injunction to End Such Practices.

Cincinnati, Dec. 5.—Suit was filed in the United States circuit court here against the National Cash Register company of Dayton, O., charging that the company is in a conspiracy in restraint of trade and that it be enjoined from further carrying on such illegal practices as is set forth in the petition.

The government does not seek to destroy the National Cash Register company as a corporation, nor to interfere with the legitimate business of the company, but asks that it be prohibited from selling cash registers and other registering devices in a manner that would prevent competition.

The suit was filed by United States District Attorney Sherman T. McPherson, who was assisted by Attorney O. E. Harrison, representing the interstate commerce commission. Those named as defendants are the cash register company and twenty-eight officers, directors and sales agents.

The government in its petition complains that the individual defendants, acting through the instrumentality of the corporation, are seeking by illegal acts to eliminate, stifle and suppress other manufacturers and dealers engaged in the business of making and selling cash registers and other registering devices.

It is further charged that the defendants have waged vicious, wrongful and unlawful wars of extermination against other competitors and have driven them out of business, procuring thereby about 95 per cent of the cash register business.

One of the main charges contained in the petition is that the company sold cash registers below the cost of production in various instances where competition was rife.

The individuals named as defendants are the following:

John A. Patterson, president of the company; E. A. Deeds, W. S. Dippus, Robert Patterson, F. S. Oswald, S. W. Davis, E. A. Bunstein, A. A. Thomas, T. J. Watson, Joseph Rogers, Alexander Harned, F. S. High, W. H. Cummings, George E. Morgan, W. O. Howell, C. H. Snyder, Walter Cool, E. A. Epperson, O. C. Edgerton, George G. Shaw, H. C. Carnell, M. J. Keefe, J. G. Laird, Pliny Ebes, A. A. Wentz, C. T. Wormsley, M. N. Jacobs and M. G. Lafley.

RUINED COMPETITORS "DEAD"

Impossible to Restore Conditions, Says Wickersham.

Washington, Dec. 5.—Attorney General Wickersham, in a statement on the equity suit against the National Cash Register company, declared that the government did not seek a dissolution of the corporation, but "to compel fair competition and to restrain the acts of savagery heretofore employed and now being directed against the few remaining competitors." He said the defendant concern had succeeded in ruining and destroying more than 150 cash register companies, thereby controlling 95 per cent of the trade.

The attorney general declared it would be impossible to restore former conditions through a dissolution of the concern, because "there is hardly a vestige left of any of the ruined companies outside of the 'graveyard' of the defendant company at Dayton." The "graveyard" is described in the petition as a room at the factory of the National Cash Register company at Dayton, where were displayed registers of competing companies, which, it is charged, had been forced out of business by alleged illegal methods.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that a petition, of which the following is a copy, has been filed in the office of the County Auditor of Pennington County, State of Minnesota, and that a hearing will be had upon said petition before the County Board, at the office of the County Auditor of said County, in the City of Thief River Falls, Minn., on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1911, at 1:00 o'clock P. M. Dated at Thief River Falls, Minn., this 4th, day of December 1911.

A. H. Fasel,
County Auditor.

PETITION FOR PUBLIC DITCH

To The County Board of the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota

The undersigned land owners, whose lands will be liable to be affected by, or assessed for, the expense of the construction of the County Ditch hereinafter described, would respectfully represent that the public health, convenience and welfare and the reclamation of wet and overflowed lands require the establishment and construction of County Ditch along the following route in the Towns, of Star and Hickory in said County of Pennington and that the construction of the same would be of benefit and utility.

A general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of said ditch is as follows:

Commencing at the South quarter post of Section Twenty (20), Township One Hundred Fifty-three (153), Range Thirty-nine (39), Town of Star, Pennington County, Minnesota, running thence east along the south line of said Section Twenty (20), to the Southeast corner of the Southeast quarter of said Section Twenty (20); continuing thence south on the section line between Sections Twenty-eight (28), and Twenty-nine (29), and Sections Thirty-two (32) and Thirty-three (33), to the south line of said Township of Star, continuing thence in a southwesterly direction as the fall of the water may indicate, and as the surveyor may find most expedient to intersect with the Red Lake River at or near where said river crosses the Section line between Sections Five (5), and Six (6) in the Township One Hundred Fifty-two (152), Range Thirty-nine (39), Town of Hickory, in said County and State; and terminated at Red Lake River at the point as aforesaid as its outlet.

And your petitioners pray that you will proceed to establish such County Ditch and cause the same to be constructed as provided by Chapter Two Hundred Thirty (230), of the General Laws of Minnesota for 1905, And the acts amendatory thereof.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutoinal treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

The Presidents Message

dependent companies have 21.39 per cent, while the American Tobacco company will have 33.08 per cent, the Liggett & Meyers 20.05 per cent, the Lorillard company 22.82 per cent and the Reynolds company 2.68 per cent. The stock of the other thirteen companies, both preferred and common, has been taken from the defendant American Tobacco company and has been distributed among its stockholders. All covenants restricting competition have been declared null and further performance of them has been enjoined. The preferred stock of the different companies has now been given voting power which was denied it under the old organization. The ratio of the preferred stock to the common was as 78 to 40. This constitutes a very decided change in the character of the ownership and control of each company.

In the original suit there were twenty-nine defendants, who were charged with being the conspirators through whom the illegal combination acquired and exercised its unlawful dominion. Under the decree these defendants will hold amounts of stock in the various distributee companies ranging from 41 per cent as a maximum to 28½ per cent as a minimum, except in the case of one small company, the Porto Rican Tobacco company, in which they will hold 45 per cent. The twenty-nine individual defendants are enjoined for three years from buying any stock except from each other, and the group is thus prevented from extending its control during that period. All parties to the suit and the new companies who are made parties are enjoined perpetually from in any way effecting any combination between any of the companies in violation of the statute by way of resumption of the old trust. Each of the fourteen companies is enjoined from acquiring stock in any of the others. All these companies are enjoined from having common directors or officers, or common buying or selling agents, or common offices, or lending money to each other.

Size of New Companies.

Objection was made by certain independent tobacco companies that this settlement was unjust because it left companies with very large capital in active business and that the settlement that would be effective to put all on an equality would be a division of the capital and plant of the trust into small fractions in amount more nearly equal to that of each of the independent companies. This contention results from a misunderstanding of the anti-trust law and its purpose. It is not intended thereby to prevent the accumulation of large capital in business enterprises in which such a combination can secure reduced cost of production, sale and distribution. It is directed against such an aggregation of capital only when its purpose is that of stifling competition, enhancing or controlling prices and establishing a monopoly. If we shall have by the decree defeated these purposes and restored competition between the large units into which the capital and plant have been divided we shall have accomplished the useful purpose of the statute.

Confiscation Not the Purpose of the Statute.

It is not the purpose of the statute to confiscate the property and capital of the offending trusts. Methods of punishment by fine or imprisonment of the individual offenders, by fine of the corporation or by forfeiture of its goods in transportation are provided, but the proceeding in equity is a specific remedy to stop the operation of the trust by injunction and prevent the future use of the plant and capital in violation of the statute.

Effectiveness of Decree.

I venture to say that not in the history of American law has a decree more effective for such a purpose been entered by a court than that against the tobacco trust. As Circuit Judge Noyes said in his judgment approving the decree:

"The extent to which it has been necessary to tear apart this combination and force it into new forms with the attendant burdens ought to demonstrate that the federal anti-trust statute is a drastic statute which accomplishes effective results, which so long as it stands on the statute books must be obeyed and which cannot be disobeyed without incurring farreaching penalties. And, on the other hand, the successful reconstruction of this organization should teach that the effect of enforcing this statute is not to destroy, but to reconstruct; not to demolish, but to recreate in accordance with the conditions which the congress has declared shall exist among the people of the United States."

Common Stock Ownership.

It has been assumed that the present pro rata and common ownership in all these companies by former stockholders of the trust would insure a continuance of the same old single control of all the companies into which the trust has by decree been disintegrated. This is erroneous and is based upon the assumed inefficacy and innocuousness of judicial injunctions. The companies are enjoined from co-operation or combination; they have different managers, directors, purchasing and sales agents. If all or many of the numerous stockholders, reaching into the thousands, attempt to secure concerted action of the companies with a view to the control of the market their number is so large that such an attempt could not well be concealed, and its prime movers and all its participants would be at once subject to contempt proceedings and imprisonment of a summary character. The immediate result of the present situation will necessarily be activity by all the companies under different managers, and then competition must follow or there will be activity by one company and stagnation by another. Only a short time will inevitably lead to a change in ownership of the stock, as all opportunity for continued co-operation must disappear. Those critics who speak of this disintegration in the trust as a mere change of garments have not given consideration to the inevitable working of the decree and understand little the personal danger of attempting to evade or set at naught the solemn injunction of a court whose object is made plain by the decree and whose inhibitions are set forth with a detail and comprehensiveness unexampled in the history of equity jurisprudence.

Voluntary Reorganizations of Other Trusts at Hand.

The effect of these two decisions has led to decrees dissolving the combination of manufacturers of electric lamps, a southern wholesale grocers' association, an interlocutory decree against the powder trust, with directions by the circuit court compelling dissolution, and other combinations of a similar history are now negotiating with the department of justice looking to a disintegration by decree and reorganization in accordance with law. It seems possible to bring about these reorganizations without general business disturbance.

Movement For Repeal of the Anti-trust Law.

But now that the anti-trust act is seen to be effective for the accomplishment of the purpose of its enactment we are met by a cry from many different quarters for its repeal. It is said to be obstructive of business progress, to be an attempt to restore old fashioned methods of destructive competition between small units and to make impossible those useful combinations of capital and the reduction of the cost of production that are essential to continued prosperity and normal growth.

In the recent decisions the supreme court makes clear that there is nothing in the statute which condemns combinations of capital or mere bigness of plant organized to secure economy in production and a reduction of its cost. It is only when the purpose or necessary effect of the organization and maintenance of the combination or the aggregation of immense size are the stifling of competition, actual and potential, and the enhancing of prices and establishing a monopoly that the statute is violated. Mere size is no sin against the law. The merging of two or more business plants necessarily eliminates competition between the units thus combined, but this elimination is in contravention of the statute only when the combination is made for purpose of ending this particular competition in order to secure control of and enhance prices and create a monopoly.

Lack of Definiteness in the Statute.

The complaint is made of the statute that it is not sufficiently definite in its description of that which is forbidden to enable business men to avoid its violation. The suggestion is that we may have a combination of two corporations which may run on for years and that subsequently the attorney general may conclude that it was a violation of the statute and that which was supposed by the combiners to be innocent then turns out to be a combination in violation of the statute. The answer to this hypothetical case is that when men attempt to amass such stupendous capital as will enable them to suppress competition, control prices and establish a monopoly they know the purpose of their acts. Men do not do such a thing without having it clearly in mind. If what they do is merely for the purpose of reducing the cost of production, without the thought of suppressing competition by use of the bigness of the plant they are creating, then they cannot be convicted at the time the union is made, nor can they be convicted later unless it happen that later on they conclude to suppress competition and take the usual methods for doing so and thus establish for themselves a monopoly. They can in such a case hardly complain if the motive which subsequently is disclosed is attributed by the court to the original combination.

New Remedies Suggested.

Much is said of the repeal of this statute and of constructive legislation intended to accomplish the purpose and blaze a clear path for honest merchants and business men to follow. It may be that such a plan will be evolved, but I submit that the discussions which have been brought out in recent days by the fear of the continued execution of the anti-trust law have produced nothing but glittering generalities and have offered no line of distinction or rule of action as definite and as clear as that which the supreme court itself lays down in enforcing the statute.

Supplemental Legislation Needed, Not Repeal or Amendment.

I see no objection, and indeed I can see decided advantages, in the enactment of a law which shall describe and denounce methods of competition which are unfair and are badges of the unlawful purpose denounced in the anti-trust law. The attempt and purpose to suppress a competitor by underselling him at a price so unprofitable as to drive him out of business or the making of exclusive contracts with customers, under which they are required to give up association with other manufacturers and numerous kindred methods for stifling competition and effecting monopoly should be described with sufficient accuracy in a criminal statute on the one hand to enable the government to shorten its task by prosecuting single misdemeanors instead of an entire conspiracy and on the other hand to serve the purpose of pointing out more in detail to the business community what must be avoided.

Federal Incorporation Recommended.

In a special message to congress on Jan. 7, 1910, I ventured to point out the disturbance to business that would probably attend the dissolution of these offending trusts. I said:

"But such an investigation and possible prosecution of corporations whose prosperity or destruction affects the comfort not only of stockholders, but of millions of wage earners, employees and associated tradesmen, must necessarily tend to disturb the confidence of the business community, to dry up the now flowing sources of capital from its places of hoarding and produce a halt in our present prosperity that will cause suffering and strained circumstances among the innocent many for the faults of the guilty few. The question which I wish in this message to bring clearly to the consideration and discussion of congress is whether, in order to avoid such a possible business danger, something cannot be done by which these business combinations may be offered a means, without great financial disturbance, of changing the character, organization and extent of their business into one within the lines of the law under federal control and supervision, securing compliance with the anti-trust statute.

"Generally in the industrial combinations called 'trusts' the principal business is the sale of goods in many states and in foreign markets—in other words, the interstate and foreign business far exceeds the business done in any one state. This fact will justify the federal government in granting a federal charter to such a combination to make and sell in interstate and foreign commerce the products of useful manufacture under such limitations as will secure a compliance with the anti-trust law. It is possible so to frame a statute that, while it offers protection to a federal company against harmful, vexatious and unnecessary invasion by the states, it shall subject it to reasonable taxation and control by the states with respect to its purely local business. * * *

"Corporations organized under this act should be prohibited from acquiring and holding stock in other corporations (except for special reasons, upon approval by the proper federal authority), thus avoiding the creation under national auspices of the holding company with subordinate corporations in different states, which has been such an effective agency in the creation of the great trusts and monopolies.

"If the prohibition of the anti-trust act against combinations in restraint of trade is to be effectively enforced it is essential that the national government shall provide for the creation of national corporations to carry on a legitimate business throughout the United States. The conflicting laws of the different states of the Union with respect to foreign corporations make it difficult, if not impossible, for one corporation to comply with their requirements so as to carry on business in a number of different states."

I renew the recommendation of the enactment of a general law providing for the voluntary formation of corporations to engage in trade and commerce among the states and with foreign nations. Every argument which was then advanced for such a law and every explanation which was at that time offered to possible objections has been confirmed by our experience since the enforcement of the anti-trust statute has resulted in the actual dissolution of active commercial organizations.

It is even more manifest now than it was then that the denunciation of conspiracies in restraint of trade should not and does not mean the denial of organizations large enough to be intrusted with our interstate and foreign trade. It has been made more clear now than it was then that a purely negative statute like the anti-trust law may well be supplemented by specific provisions for the building up and regulation of legitimate national and foreign commerce.

Government Administrative Experts Needed to Aid Courts in Trust Dissolutions.

The drafting of the decrees in the dissolution of the present trusts, with a view to their reorganization into legitimate corporations, has made it especially apparent that the courts are not provided with the administrative machinery to make the necessary inquiries preparatory to reorganization or to pursue such inquiries, and they should be empowered to invoke the aid of the bureau of corporations in determining the suitable reorganization of the disintegrated parts. The circuit court and the attorney general were greatly aided in framing the decree in the tobacco trust dissolution by an expert from the bureau of corporations.

Federal Corporation Commission Proposed.

I do not set forth in detail the terms and sections of a statute which might supply the constructive legislation permitting and aiding the formation of combinations of capital into federal corporations. They should be subject to rigid rules as to their organization and procedure, including effective publicity, and to the closest supervision as to the issue of stock and bonds by an executive bureau or commission in the department of commerce and labor, to which in times of doubt they might well submit their proposed plans for future business. It must be distinctly understood that incorporation under a federal law could not exempt the company thus formed and its incorporators and managers from prosecution under the anti-trust law for subsequent illegal conduct, but the publicity of its procedure and the opportunity for frequent consultation with the bureau or commission in charge of the incorporation as to the legitimate purpose of its transactions would offer it as great security against successful prosecutions for violations of the law as would be practical or wise.

Such a bureau or commission might well be invested also with the duty already referred to of aiding courts in the dissolution and recreation of trusts within the law. It should be an executive tribunal of the dignity and power of the comptroller of the currency or the interstate commerce commission, which now exercises supervisory power over important classes of corporations under federal regulation.

The drafting of such a federal incorporation law would offer ample opportunity to prevent many manifest evils in corporate management today, including irresponsibility of control in the hands of the few who are not the real owners.

Incorporation Voluntary.

I recommend that the federal charters thus to be granted shall be voluntary, at least until experience justifies mandatory provisions. The benefit to be derived from the operation of great businesses under the protection of such a charter would attract all who are anxious to keep within the lines of the law. Other large combinations that fail to take advantage of the federal incorporation will not have a right to complain if their failure is ascribed to unwillingness to submit their transactions to the careful official scrutiny, competent supervision and publicity attendant upon the enjoyment of such a charter.

Only Supplemental Legislation Needed.

The opportunity thus suggested for federal incorporation, it seems to me, is suitable constructive legislation needed to facilitate the squaring of great industrial enterprises to the rule of action laid down by the anti-trust law. This statute as construed by the supreme court must continue to be the line of distinction for legitimate business. It must be enforced unless we are to banish individualism from all business and reduce it to one common system of regulation or control of prices like that which now prevails with respect to public utilities and which when applied to all business would be a long step toward state socialism.

Importance of the Anti-trust Act.

The anti-trust act is the expression of the effort of a freedom loving people to preserve equality of opportunity. It is the result of the confident determination of such a people to maintain their future growth by preserving uncontrolled and unrestricted the enterprise of the individual, his industry, his ingenuity, his intelligence and his independent courage.

For twenty years or more this statute has been upon the statute book. All knew its general purpose and approved. Many of its violators were cynical over its assumed impotence. It seemed impossible of enforcement. Slowly the mills of the courts ground, and only gradually did the majesty of the law assert itself. Many of its statesmen-authors died before it became a living force, and they and others saw the evil grow which they had hoped to destroy. Now its efficacy is seen; now its power is heavy; now its

EIGHT GOVERNORS COMING TO BIG LAND SHOW.

That the governors of the Northwestern States might be present during a full week of the "Northwestern Land Products Show," the managers of the "Western Governors Special Train" have arranged to return to St. Paul Dec. 16, four days earlier than their schedule called for.

This means the executives of the following states will be present to speak and meet people who visit the show: , Minnesota, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Oregon, Wyoming and Colorado. Governor Eberhart will thus have an opportunity to be present on Minneapolis State Day, which is Saturday Dec. 16. Other governors will remain to speak on their state days.

FAMOUS PAINTINGS AT LAND SHOW.

Paintings of western life by Charles M. Russel valued at $50,000 will be exhibited at the Land Products Show in St. Paul Dec. 12 to 23. The arrangements have been made by Brown and Bigelow, a St. Paul firm which has the contract for reproducing the paintings.

In adition to Russel's work, the show management has secured a painting twenty four feet wide and fifty feet long of a Wenatchee, Wash., apple orchard and one of similiar size of the famous Spokane ranch, owned by President Lewis Penwell of the land show.

Three enormous paintings, among the finest ever made of scenes in Yellowstone National Park, will be displayed by the Northern Pacific railway company, which just bought the paintings in New York City. The Great Northern raliroad will show a collection of paintings of scenes in Glacier National Park, the new play ground of the people in Northern Montana. The exhibit of paintings at the Land Products show will be one of the largest and most distinctly western ever made at any exposition.

Free baked Minnesota potatoes will be served to visitors at the Land Show in St. Paul by the Duluth & Iron Range railroad company which has secured the exclusive privilege of giving away baked potatoes. They will be baked in a large glass electric oven and served with a lump of Minnesota creamery butter. salt and pepper.

CAMBRIAN GLEE SINGERS AT THE AUDITORIUM.

What was unquestionably one of the most satisfactory entertainments ever presented in this city, was pulled off Tuesday evening, at the Auditorium. This was the Cambrian National Glee Singers, appearing as the third number of the local Lyceum Course. The program presented by this famous organization fairly took the breath away from the audience, and aroused the enthusiasm of even the most unharmonious and unmusical person present.

The chorus numbers were particularily well received, and the truly marvelous work of the men in this line, can only be explained by the fact that each member of the chorus is a well trained musician, and a genuine artist, and that they have been trained to the point of perfection in ensemble work under the direction of their famous leader, Richard Thomas. The program was made up of chorus singing, quartet music and solos, with a pleasing admixture of the humorous.

Perhaps the most popular numbers on the program, were the comic songs of Alf. Thomas, known as the "Welsh Harry Lauder." His songs were greeted with a perfect furor of applause, and he was compelled to respond several times with enchores. No finer things in the way of mimicry and impersonations, have been seen than Mr. Thomas' impersonation of the Scotch comedian, Harry Lauder.

All in all, this attraction was a splendid one, and in itself is justification enough of the Lyceum Course which is furnishing a series of entertainments for the season.

ATTENTION SOCIALIST!

All members of the Socialist local are requested to attend a special meeting next Sunday at 2 o'clock p. m., at the Business College. Sympathizers of the Socialist cause are also requested to be present, because a question of great importanee will have to be decided.

THE FAIR.

The home talent play given under the auspices of the Presbyterian Ladies Aid was well attended and pleased the audience very much. When one considers the short time that was spent in rehearsals and the large number who participated the success of the various choruses, and drills seems even more remarkable.

The affair was also a success financially as the net amount turned over to the church totaled $100.24.

The Ladies of the Presbyterian Aid Society wish to heartily thank, not only those who so loyally took part in making their entertainment a success, but also the parents who assisted so materially by permitting their children to be a part of the play In the near future the ladies hope to put on another entertainment which will prove as satisfactory as the "Pennington County Fair."

GOOD ENOUGH FOR ONE YEAR.

One of our best farmers namely, Mr. Ole Omundson, who makes his home six miles east of this city bot a quarter section of land the fall of 1910 for $3,000, and last spring had E. L. Quist break up about a hundred acres with his traction engine. This he put into flax and this fall he has marketed 850 bushels from that piece.

Now he has purchased another quarter and we suppose he will do the same thing with this land. We wish more farmers would follow Mr. Omundson's example and our country would soon be settled up and under cultivation.

His sons did pretty well too, as they have raised over 10,000 bushels of small grain this year and this fall have also purchased another quarter section.

A FATHER'S VENGEANCE would have fallen on any one who attacked the son of Peter Bondy, of South Rockwood, Mich., but he was powerless before attacks of Kidney trouble. "Doctors could not help his," he wrote, "so at last we gave him Electric Bitters and he improved wonderfully from taking six bottles. Its the best Kidney medicine I ever saw." Backache, Tired feeling, Nervousness, Loss of Appetite, warn of Kidney trouble or Bright's disease. Beware: Take Electric Bitters and be safe. Every bottle guaranteed. 50 at all druggists.

object is near achievement. Now we hear the call for its repeal on the plea that it interferes with business prosperity, and we are advised in most general terms how by some other statute and in some other way the evil we are just stamping out can be cured if we only abandon this work of twenty years and try another experiment for another term of years.

It is said that the act has not done good. Can this be said in the face of the effect of the Northern Securities decree? That decree was in no way so drastic or inhibitive in detail as either the Standard Oil decree or the tobacco decree. But did it not stop for all time the then powerful movement toward the control of all the railroads of the country in a single hand? Such a one man power could not have been a healthful influence in the republic, even though exercised under the general supervision of an interstate commission.

Do we desire to make such ruthless combinations and monopolies lawful? When all energies are directed, not toward the reduction of the cost of production for the public benefit by a healthful competition, but toward new ways and means for making permanent in a few hands the absolute control of the conditions and prices prevailing in the whole field of industry, then individual enterprise and effort will be paralyzed and the spirit of commercial freedom will be dead.

Got a Free Lecture.

The agent for a handsomely illustrated book to be sold on long time credit—a feast to the intellect and an adornment to any library—leaned against the side of the house, caught his breath, clinched his fist and looked skyward.

"What's the matter?" asked a policeman.

"I've met the meanest man," he answered. "I've heard of him, and I've read about him in the papers, but I never expected to meet him face to face."

"Where is he?"

"Up in that building."

"How do you know he's the meanest man?"

"By the way he acted. I showed him this work of art, lectured on it for half an hour, pointed out the engravings, and when I hinted it would be a good thing to order what do you think he said?"

"I don't know."

"He said he never bought books, he didn't have to. He just waited for some idiot of an agent to come along and tell him all that was in 'em and turn over the leaves while he looked at the pictures. Nice, isn't it?"—Epworth Herald.

OLSON-PRICHARD NEW FIRM

O. H. Olson and H. R. Prichard Purchase Implement Business of Olson and Jacobson.

Thewell known implement firm of Olson & Jacobson have during the past week sold their Farm Implement Business to O. H. Olson and H. R. Prichard who will continue the same business under the firm name of Olson & Prichard.

Mr. Olson needs no introduction as he has been at the head of the business for the past six years and has made good as a business man. H. R. Prichard is the son of W. W. Prichard Sr., formerly of the First National Bank and tho he may be somewhat young in the ways of the world yet he is one of those young men who is able to stamp his individuality upon anything that he sets his mind upon and he will no doubt do so in this business.

Prichard Stone Company have purchased the site heretofore occupied by Olson & Jacobson and the firm of Olson & Prichard will continue the business on the old stand.

In addition to this the Prichard Stone Company will erect sheds and will put in a first class lumber-yard, lumber having already been ordered.

Considerable improvements will be made upon the site but Mr. Prichard says that he prefers to let actions speak rather than words.

Thus the Implement firm has been strengthened by the infusion of new capital and another retail lumber-yard has been launched all of which bespeaks progress for Thief River Falls.

NORRIS PREDICTS LA FOLLETTE

Judge Norris Insurgent Representative Says People Want La Follette.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—The One of the statements which is interesting Washington very much during the opening days of the session is that put forth by Judge Norris, insurgent Representative from Nebraska, relative to the nomination of Senator LaFollette. In an authorized interview given out at the LaFollettee headquarters the Congressman said:

"If the people of the entire country could express their choice for president at the primaries, I have not the slightest doubt in the world that Mr. LaFollette would be the next Republican nominee for President—and I believe," he added, "that he will be nominated anyway."

When asked about the south where there are almost as many votes among the federal office holders as there are at the polls in the general election, the Nebraska Representative said:

"Those fellows from the south are animated largely from selfish motives; they want to hold onto their jobs. They know that the only way they can do that is to have a Republican President elected. They don't care any more for Taft than they do any one else. Now, there are several states where the people will have a chance to declare their preference for presidential candidates at the primaries. Such states as Oregon, North Dakota, Nebraska, New Jersey and several others have given the people this right. These states will hold their primary elections early, and there is no doubt in the world, that they will vote strong for LaFollette. When those southern fellows get the idea into their head that Taft cannot be elected, they will all be for LaFollette."

HERMANSON—VELLIEUX

Yesterday morning at six o'clock occurred the marriage of Miss Marie Emily Vellieux of Minneapolis to Mr. Edward A. Hermanson. The ceremony was performed at St. Bernard's Catholic church by Rev. Fr. Adolph Dingman. The bride wore her traveling suit of white serge and was attended by her cousin Mrs Homer Mussey while Mr. H. Mussey was best man.

The bride who has been employed at the Times office for some time has made many friends during the short time she has made this city her home. The groom at present editor of the Plummer Pioneer has made this city his home for several years and both have the best wishes of their numerous friends for a most happy married life.

Mr. and Mrs. Hermanson left immediately after the ceremony for Plummer where they will make their future home.

LINDHOLM—BEATON

Tuesday at high noon at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. O. A. Baseth, occurred the marriage of Miss Edna Lindholm and Mr. George Beaton of Saskatoon, Saskatchewan.

The home was very prettily decorated for the occasion, the color sceme being green and white. The bride was dressed in white crepe de chun and carried bride's roses. Little Eloise Jensen made a charming little ring bearer and Miss Emma Braseth of Grand Forks and Mr. Wm. Lyons also of Grand Forks officiated as brides maid and best man.

The bride is a sister of Mrs. O. A. Baseth and has made this city her home for several months. The friends of bride and groom extend congratulations to the happy couple who left Tuesday afternoon for an extended wedding trip to Duluth, the Twin Cities and Winnipeg before going to Saskatoon where they will make their future home.

IVERSON—LEGVOLD

Thursday November 30th occurred the marriage of Miss Gertie Legvold of this city and Mr. John Iverson, of Mavie, Minn. The event took place at the home of the bride, at 5 o'clock p. m., Rev. A. B. Roseland officiating. The bride's maids were misses Clara Legvold and Hilda Iverson, while George Aspelund and Lewis Iverson attended the groom. The bride wore a white messaline silk dress and carried the bride's roses, and the bride's maids wore the white and pink carnations.

The rooms were decorated with smilacs and chrysanthemums.

After the ceremony the guests partook of a supper served by the bride's parents. The young couple left Friday for Mavie, Minn., where they will make their future home.

EXTRA SESSION NOT CALLED

Rumors Afloat That Leutenant Governor Gordon Would Call Extra Session.

Telegrams from the Capitol have given out the rumors that a special session to be called by Lieutenant Governor Gordon have been frequent but the storm seems to have subsided and at the time of our going to press it is not expected that there will be an extra session at all. We quote the following from the Bemidji Pioneer:

Lieutenant Governor Sam Y. Gordon has not yet decided as to whether he shall call an extra session of the legislature.

The lieutenant governor is in consulation with friends this afternoon and his decision is expected this evening.

Mr. Gordon stands ready to call the special session but Attorney General Simpson has, to a degree, thrown cold water on the plan.

Simpson Attempts Compromise.

The attorney general today announced a decision in which he said that the courts appeared to sustain the contention that a vacancy occurs when the governor is out of the state.

Mr. Simpson adds, however, that every absence from the state does by no means establish a vacancy.

"As I understand it," he says "the constitution and court rulings do not favor the possibility of the lieutenant governor slipping into the governor's chair at the disposition of the latter."

The attorney general assumes that there must be some important and urgent duty to be performed before the lieutenant governor can legally act in the governor's place.

Can Do It at Certain Times.

"Yet, it must not be supposed," adds the attorney general, "that under certain conditions, the lieutenant governor can not exercise the duties of chief executive."

It is the feeling here today that Mr. Simpson is attempting to assume a strictly neutral position and that his efforts are toward a compromise.

Mr. Gordon and his advisers are somewhat at a loss to understand just how far the power of the lieutenant governor can go and if they conclude that such power is sufficient the call for the extra session will be made this evening.

Wheelock Not Alarmed.

Ralph W. Wheelock, Governor Eberhart's private secretary, declares there is no occasion to become alarmed over the situation.

"Why even if the lieutenant governor makes the mistake of calling an extra session it only means that every bill passed by such a legislature will be attacked by the courts.

"It would be unfortunate because it would cause the state to become entangled in legal complications that would take much money and time to untangle."

The Gordon supporters, on the other hand, are urging Gordon to issue the call.

Politics, Says Governor.

Pittsburg, Pa., December 14.—(Daily Pioneer Special Wire Service)—Governor Eberhart, here with the special train of western governors, informed of the proposed extra session attempt, gave this brief comment: "There is no excuse for an extra session in Minnesota. Such a move is politics, pure and simple. I shall not alter my plans."

WILL START DRY CLEANING BUSINESS.

O. C. Damsberg, formerly in partnership in the dry cleaning and pressing business with Iver Vallacher, has decided to start a dry cleaning and pressing business of his own. After the middle of next week you will find him ready to take in business on LaBree Ave., next door to Korstad's clothing store. Mr. Damsberg has all the modern equipment for handling this line of business, and is himself thoroughly versed in the art of dry cleaning.

Rural School Notes

Permit me to call the attention of the school boards to the following extracts from Circular No. 11 of Department of Public Instruction:

"You are advised that the appropriation of $22,500.00 for public school libraries for the current year has been expended you will therefore not certify any more orders on the State Auditor for library aid for remainder of this school year.

Semi-graded schools that desire to secure special state aid for the current school year will nevertheless be required to expend $7.50, and rural schools of classes A. B. and C. will be required to expend $5.00 in making additions to their library.

The application of each of these schools for state aid next summer must be accompanied by a receipt for purchase of library books, unless the books were bought from the state library contractor, the St. Paul Book & Stationery Co."

So there can be no more certification as to library aid at this office. Get the required amounts for purchase of books any way and take a receipt therefor.

Quothing from Circular No. 12, the Department says: "State Aid."

"Owing to the increase in work at this office (Dept. of Public Inst.), and to the delay in having the aid distributed at the time required by law, due to correspondence for additional information relative to some of the applications for state aid, the applications will, hereafter, be acted upon from the information given in them. That is, an application for aid for a semi-graded or rural school will be either accepted or rejected upon the information given in the application without further correspondence.

"Co-Supt's. should therefore, examine carefully every application before sending it to the Department so as to be satisfied that the information given is correct and that every item pertaining to the school seeking aid has been answered. The payment of state aid for the past year to semi-graded and first and second class rurals have been made by the state treasurer to the treasurer of each county. The deficiency for the past two years also been made up. First and second class schools of classes A, B and C. Second class schools received $100 and first class schools $142 within $8 of the full amount."

In connection with this matter of state aid let me state the requirements for the same.

1. School Term, must be for class A and B that is, first and second class eight months; class C, or third class, seven months.

2. The teacher for first class must hold a first grade certificate; for second class, 2d grade certificate; the teacher for the third class must hold at least a second grade certificate.

3. School buildings must be suitable for school purposes, clean and well kept. Each school must be provided with foot scrapers and cocoa mats.

4. Equipments. Each school must be provided with:

(a) Blackboards. At least 100 sq. ft. slate preferred.

(b) Unabridged Dictionary. Must be Webster's International, the Century or the Standard.

(c) Abridged Dictionaries, Several copies, not less than five, of an abridged dictionary take the Webster's Academic.

(d) Supplementary Readers. At least two sets of readers for each class or grade, in addition to the regular basic readers.

(e) Maps. A complete set of eight maps, and a state map, mounted on rollers in a suitable case.

(f) Globe. A good 12 in. suspension globe preferred.

(g) Desks. Each school must be equipped with suitable seats and desks, properly arranged, for the accomodation of all pupils.

5. Library. Each school must have a well selected library to which there must be added yearly books to the amount of at least $10, purchased under the library law.

6. Heating and Ventilating. Each building must be adequately heated and ventilated in one of the following ways:

SECOND LECTURE ON SOCIALISM

Ernest Unterman at Auditorium at 8 O'clock Next Wednesday.

The second number of the Socialist Lyceum Course is a lecture by Ernest Unterman on the subject, "Why Things Happen to Happen." It will be given at the Auditorium next Wednesday evening December 20th.

ERNEST UNTERMANN.

Student, author, translator, lecturer, sailor, traveler, doctor of philosophy and world-citizen. Mr. Unterman is a native of Germany, studied at the University of Berlin, where he received his degree. He has lived much, including in his varied experiences a term as sailor before the mast. He was shipwrecked and landed on an island with all the thrilling inconveniences usually connected with such affairs. From that period of his life to the Idaho sheep ranch on which the picture opposite was taken, Mr. Untermann has managed to keep doing something worth while all the time.

Mr. Untermann comes before the public equipped with a rare fund of knowedge on his subject. He has been a member of the Socialist Party in America since its formation, and his scholarly familiarity with other schools of philosophy makes him especially well qualified to compare and contrast the Socialist point of view.

This will be a rare treat to all friends of Socialism to have a lecture on the fundamental philosophy of the party and anyone who does not thoroly understand it cannot afford to miss the explanations he will give. Everybody should hear him. Ladies will be admitted free.

BRATTON KILLED AT ERSKINE

Slips On Icy Platform, Rolls Under Cars, Body Is Cut In Two.

A young brakeman formerly of Superior, but temporarily working out of this city had the misfortune of slipping on an icy platform at Erskine to-day and rolling under the cars and his body cut in two. He leaves his mother to mourn his loss. The remains were brought here for preparation and later will be shipped to Superior for enterment.

WILL EXCAVATE IMMEDIATELY

The Board of Directors of the Co-operative Building Co., met yesterday afternoon and decided to proceed immediately with the excavation for the store building to be erected next spring on the lots purchased in Block 35. Excavation will be begun as soon as bids can be secured and contract let.

IN THE LOCAL WORLD OF SPORT

Kline Wins In Straight Falls; Com. Normal Trims High School; McIntosh Here Sat. Night.

Last Saturday night at the Lyceum Theatre, in the opening wrestling match of the season, William Kline, German champion, won easily in straight falls over Frank Swanson, Swedish champion; Kline securing the first fall in 6 minutes and 20 seconds with a half Nelson, and the second fall in 3 minutes with the ox hold.

At 11:26 to the tune of the Star Spangled Banner Kline stepped into the ring and, with a slight nod to the cheering crowd, calmly took his corner. Two minutes later he was followed by Swanson, who appeared a trifle nervous. Both men seemed to be a trifle overfeed and not in the best of condition.. Kline gave his weight as 175, and Swanson his as 183.

Promptly at 11:30 referee Smith announced the main bout of the evening and said that all toe holds and the srangle hold were barred. this being agreeable to both wrestlers. When the men came together Swanson was a little sleepy and allowed Kline to rush him off his feet and place him in one of the ringside chairs. Smith brought the champions back on the mat, and Kline soon had Swanson down and was working over him rapidly. After Swanson had broken several holds Kline secureed a half Nelson and rolleed over the Swedish hope. In the second round Kline approached his man with a great deal of confidence, immediateely grabbing him by the leg and throwing him to the mat. This time Kline didn't use any special hold, but simply turned Swanson over.

The bout ended amid cheeers and music by the orchestra. Everybody was well-pleased with the match, and thoroughly satisfied that it was on the square. The bout Saturday night was the beginning of a series of wrestling matches which will be pulled off here this winter. A large crowd attended the match, and the gate receipts were all that could be expected. After the match challenges were read from wrestling promoters in St. Hilaire, Bronson and Red Lake Falls. A man from one of these towns will probably meet Kline here next Weednesday night.

In an interview before the match Kline said: "I feel in first-class condition and expect to win. My weight is 175 pounds. I have never met Mr. Swanson, but understand he is on the square. I agree to meet any professional wrestler of my own weight and age. My wife does not seriously object to my following the wrestling game." After the match he said: "My wind was poor, but I worked fast and hard and won in the manner I expected to win."

In an interview before the match Swanson said: "I came here receently from Seattle, Wash. My home is here. I feel in good condition, but I havn't trained much or wrestled in four months. My last bout was with Carl Pokoyski, the Polish champion. I met him in Minot, N. Dak., and threw him in straight falls. My weight is 183 pounds and I am a single man." After the match he said: "I am not in as good condition as I thought I was. With a bunch of good hard training I can put up a much better exhibtion. I tired too easily tonight to show what I am really made of. Perhaps I underestimated my opponennt's ability."

The preliminaries were much livelier and better than have ever been put on here before. Oscar Carney and Dune Stanton went on in a wrestling match, which Carney won in straight falls; the first in 4 minutes and 30 seconds with a half Nelson, and the second in 14 minutes and 30 seconds with an arm hold. Albert Teal and Harold Stanton followed in a 3-round boxing exhibition.. Stanton had the best of it in the first round, and Teal in the second round. In the third round Stanton landed on the point of Teal's chin and put him down for the count. No special assistance was needed to resucitate him, and after taking a drink of water he felt as good as ever. Robert Fitzsimmons said that it did not harm a man any to put him to sleep with a tap on the chin, in fact, if he had a lot of conceit, it did him good.

Mr. Hans Angell, the promoter who staged the bout Saturday night, deserves considerable credit for the masterly way in which he handled the affair. Smith refereed the match in a fair and creditable manner.

HIGH SCHOOL AND COMMERCIAL-NORMAL.

The basket ball game last Friday evening between the High School and the Commercial-Normal boys was one of the best played on the local floor. The teams were evenly matched, and no one could be said to "star." Fossum at center for the High School played his usual style of high class basket ball and may be said to be a little the best man of all. Carlson as center for the Commercials was equal to the occasion and outjumped his opponent. He scored more than any other man. Fouls were frequent and the boys showed lack of close refereeing. The absence of foul lines and throwing the ball against the wall adds to the roughness of the game.

The second half was faster and not as interesting. The Commercial boys showed their staying qualities, and also that they have played some games this year. They came back strong and scored at will for the first few minutes. At times there were flashes of splendid team work on the part of the High School, but the defensive work of the Commercials prevented them from deriving any benefit from the fast passing. The game ended with a score of 23 to 16 in favor of the Commercials.

Some criticism could be made on the style of play used by some of the boys, and especially as to their treatment of the Referee and Umpire. Both officials did excellent work and were far above criticism. The "be all and end all" of an athletic contest should not be the winning of the game. It should be the developing of true sportmanship.

Line up:

High School		Commercials
Adolphs	L. F.	Thompson
Carter	R. F.	Jacobson
Brudie
Fossum	Center	Carlson
Iverson	L. G.	Linde
Boyden	R. G.	Ohm

McINTOSH AND THIEF RIVER PLAY SATURDAY EVENING.

Lovers of basket ball have a fine treat in store for them tomorrow evening, when the fast-playing McIntosh High School team will meet the local High School team in the new and adequately furnished gym., in the Lincoln building. The McIntosh boys are good players and will show the effects of competent coaching. The local boys will put up a much stronger game than they did last Friday. They have settled down to business for the past week under the excellent coaching of Wayne Richardson. Much interest is being taken in basket ball these days, because it is one of the cleanest, liveliest and most healthful games that young people can indulge in.

Dressing and Shipping Veal

The best age to market veal calves is when they are about six weeks old and weigh from 90 to 125 pounds, dressed. Young valves weighing less than 60 pounds—or, in Minnesota, when less than 4 weeks old—are condemned as unfit for food. Veal must be well fattened to bring the top market price. Skim-milk calves never sell as well as [illegible] fed calves.

In[illegible] select a dry clean place where the calf can be suspended by means of a [illegible] and rope attached to its hind legs. Stun it with a hammer, and then stick with a skinning knife just in front of the brisket, opening up the throat along the midline. If the calf is hung up for bleeding, there is no danger of blood going back into the chest cavity and soiling the carcass on the inside.

Remove the head by skinning on each side down to the throat. Remove it from the body at the "atlas joint" where it can be easily taken off. Skin out the front and hind legs, up to the knee and hock-joint, where the legs should be cut off. Remove the internal organs by opening the midline the full length, from top to bottom. Remove everything except the liver and kidneys. Veal with the liver removed often sells one-half cent below market quotation. Do not wash the inside of the carcass, but take a warm, damp cloth and wipe out all paticles of blood.

Spread the opening in the carcass, and hang in some place where it will cool. Every shipper of veal should be careful about this point, as much veal is spoiled because it is not properly cooled before it is shipped. A cold cellar, or the top of the opening in a well, is a good place. After it has been thoroughly cooled, prepare for shipment.

Either wrap the carcass in burlap or sew up tightly the opening in the midline with some stout cord. The hide which has been removed from the head and legs, should be tied securely to the throat and shanks, so as to keep the carcass from gathering dirt. The Minnesota law requires that all veal transported from one place to another must be protected from dust, flies, or other vermin if it is to be offered for sale.

Fasten the shipping-tag, with the name and address of the one to whom it is to be shipped, plainly written, securely on the carcass. Also, be sure to put the name and address of shipper on the tag.

Veal should always be shipped by express, unless fast refrigerator freight-service can be had. Manage to get the veal to market about the middle of the week, because on the last day and first two days of the week there is not much demand for veal. Most retail dealers buy their supply of veal for Saturday's trade before Friday noon.—W. H. Tomhave Extension Division Minn. College of Agriculture.

Senator Knute Nelson

Senator Nelson, the venerable United States senator from Minnesota, will soon be under discussion, unless he avows his intention not to be a candidate for reelection. There is no particular fault to find with the senator, either on account of his age or his personal acquaintances. The senator has lived in Washington so long that only the old-timers here know him personally. Of late years the senator has made no effort and seemingly has had but little desire to keep in touch with the people of the state which has honored him so many years. There is a feling among many that the senator should be allowed to die in the harness, while not a few are of the opinion that he should be permitted to retire and take a rest in his old age. Some are presumptive enough to suggest that he has served his country too long and the interests too much. There is very little evidence to support such a contention. It is true that the senator must have been aware that during his years of service in the senate; Aldriches, to the number of about six, controlled and directed all legislation [illegible] and [illegible] interests, and [illegible] the [illegible] by the bosses [illegible] out [illegible]manships of the important committees, and that a member of the senate who did not stand in with the "powers" amounted to about as much as a knot on a log. Of course the senator knew that for 17 years no amendment could be made to the interstate commerce law, that for 13 years it was impossible to pass a pure food act, that the de-natured alcohol law is practically a dead letter, and many other measures, which would have aided good government and incidently the people, but what could the senator do? It was a republican senate and the senator is a republican. This ought to silence all criticism. Senator Nelson has secured more than his share of money from the public treasury for the building of postoffices, custom offices and river and harbor improvements in Minnesota, and yet some are so unkind as to remark, "what does it avail if we gain a few hundred thousands for public improvements and lose millions to the people". Thank goodness there are only a few of these kind of men.

One prominent man exclaimed, "why cannot a public official be stripped of the halo which surrounds his name and be shown up!" He can but it won't do any good. Did not Senator La Follette denounce Senator Nelson and Senator Clapp with belonging to the Aldrich crowd? What good did it do? True, it was charged that the lumber interests run a bluff in on Clapp when Tom Lowry was pitted against him, but then it is claimed that all the lumber barons were after the Indian pine lands and they got them, altho there is trouble brewing in the United States Court at Fergus Falls over the manner by which these lands were obtained, the purchase of which was made possible by the Clapp bill. Senator Clapp has reformed and is now square with the people along progressive grounds.

Taking everything into consideration there can be nothing said against either Senator Nelson or Clapp which cannot be said against any other senator.

Senatorial courtesy forbids and rings the death knell of influence of a senator who dares to attack the methods of a fellow member. A United States senator can do no wrong.—Roseau Times.

A Statement of Facts Backed by a Strong Guarantee.

We guarantee immediate and positive relief to all sufferers from constipation. In every case where our remedy fails to do this we will return the money paid us for it. That's a frank statement of facts, and we want you to substantiate them at our risk.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause diarrhœa, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus overcoming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

Rexall Orderlies are unsurpassable and ideal for the use of children, old folks and delicate persons. We cannot too highly recommend them to all sufferers from any form of constipation and its attendant evils. That's why we back our faith in them with our promise of money back if they do not give entire satisfaction. Three sizes: 12 tablets 10 cents, 36 tablets 25 cents and 80 tablets 50 cents. [illegible] HOUSE

"Have you fixed up the chicken house?" This question was recently asked at a meeting of farmers, and only one raised his hand in the affirmative. That very night came the severe weather of early November, and one can state with confidence that there were but few fresh eggs to sell in that community.

Outside.—Nail down loose battens, siding, shingles or roofing. Put in whole glass where any is broken. Use building paper, rather than banking, for the latter is often wet from the eaves and causes dampness.

Inside.—If the house is of wood and single-boarded, line it with building-paper of some kind. The roosting-chamber should have two or three thicknesses of paper overhead and on all sides. This is commonly formed by the roof and sizes of the building, and the dropping-boards for the floor.

As the dropping-boards are commonly 3 feet 8 inches wide, this width will admit of using three roosts, which may be made of poles or 2x4's, slightly rounded, nailed edgewise on cross-pieces of 2x6 resting on the dropping-boards. The length of the three roosts will be determined by the number of fowls, allowing 8 feet for twelve hens.

The roosting-chamber must be made larger or smaller, according to the number of fowls kept, by a movable partition of light framework, covered with cloth or building paper. A curtain of muslin, or burlap, or some other material, is hung in front of the roosts, to prevent drafts and conserve the natural heat of the flock. By the use of the partition and curtain, the comfort of the flock may be maintained in all kinds of weather.

Ample nest-room should be provided, for supplying which cracker-boxes may be divided and placed on supports beneath the dropping-boards. Eight nests are sufficient for 25 hens.

There should be a hopper for dry-mash on the walls, also one for grit, shells, and charcoal.

A water-table should also be provided, so that the water may not be easily tipped over, or filled with litter when the hens are scratching. The floor, of whatever kind, should be covered with litter to the depth of 6 inches; and this should be renewed as often as it becomes foul or damp. The grain feed should be scattered in the litter to induce exercise.

Ventilation.—It is conceded that the muslin front gives the best ventilation, and it is generally used by poultry-men all over the State. Too much glass will cause the house to be too warm when the sun shines, and too cold at other times. At least one-half of the open surface should be covered with muslin, burlap or some other cloth material. In a house with gable room, a straw-loft may furnish [illegible] well the any house that is dry and comfortable, if fed a well-balanced ration of farm-grown foods.—N. E. Chapman, Ex. Div., Minn. College of Agr.

What Is Fun?

"I don't see what fun it can be for you to go on these fishing expeditions with your husband," said her best friend.

"That's because you don't know anything about fishing," she replied.

"Do you?"

"Indeed I do. I can sit in the stern of the boat and give advice to the best of them. And when a big fish gets away nobody can beat me telling how it ought to have been or might have been landed."

"I shouldn't think that would be much fun for you."

"Shouldn't you? Well, that's because you don't know how mad it makes my husband. Kid, you don't know what fun is."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

LIGHTNING KILLS FEW.

In 1906 lightning killed only 169 people in this whole country. One's chances of death by lightning are less than two in a million. The chance of death from liver, kidney — stomach trouble is vastly greater, but not if Electric Bitters be used, as Robert Madsen, of West Burlington, Ia., proved. Four doctors gave him up after eight months of suffering from virulent liver trouble and yellow jaundice. He was then completely cured by Electric Bitters. They're the best stomach, liver nerve and kidney remedy and blood purifier on earth. Only 50c at all Druggists.

Progressive News

LaFollette headquarters in this city today announce the receipt of resolutions adopted by the California Progressive Republicans. The resolutions were drawn up at a public conference of leading progressives held in San Francisco. Chester H. Rowell, editor of the Fresno Republican has been elected chairman of the league, The resolutions follow:

"The great political problem which confronts the American people at the present is the restoration of the functions and machinery of government to the people and to make that government responsive to the needs, to the aspirations and to the conscience of the people.

"We believe that the task of making government more truly representative of the people can best be accomplished in the nation through the same agency which accomplished it here in California, an aggressively progressive Republican party; one able to establish and willing to give us constructive legislation.

"Common consent has made Senator LaFollette the leader of the effort to make this movement nation-wide, and obvious consistency indicates California as one of the first states which should rally to his support.

"This conference hereby presents to the voters of California the candidacy of Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin for President of the United States."

"A few years ago," said Mr. Rowell, "the Progressive movement was an indifinite thing. Two years ago it was a very definite thing, but scattered among the states. Today we are making history in so far as we are taking action looking toward the unification of these individual definites. In Robert LaFollette we have a man who is capable of applying our own methods against state evils to the great national wrongs.

"The next national conventions will undoubtedly be the last to which the delegates will not be chosen by the people, and we are sure that when all of the delegations are chosen in the manner we are to choose ours there will be an end put to the reactionary tactics of these whose political life is fast coming to a close."

One of the most significant Progressive Republican measures relative to conservation is the bill introduced by Senator LaoFllete in the Senate on December 7, providing for the improvement of the public range by the regulation of grazing. This measure has been enodrsed by the National Conservation Association, of which Gifford Pinchot is President. It affects an erea of over 300,000,000 acres, or about one-sixth of the United States, and is of great and direct importance to sixteen states. It provides for the division of the public range into grazing districts, for the re-seeding of worn out areas, the eradication of poisonous plants, the extermination of wild animals which prey upon live stock, as well as of destructive rodents like the prairie dog.

The bill authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to regulate the number of stock grazed within each district and sets a minimum fee of 4c per acre for the first ten years. One of the most interesting features of the bill, the feature which shows it to be a genuinely democratic or representative measure, is that which provides that a committee of stock men elected by the stock men themselves shall decide, subject of course to the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture, on all important questions which immediately affect the use of the range in their particular district.

The prime purpose of this bill is the improvement of the public range. Unregulated grazing has resulted in greatly impairing the forage crop, which over considerable areas has been rendered practically worthless. The range is now carrying about one-half the stock it is capable of carrying if it were improved by regulated use and by resending. Senator LaFollette's bill is thus of great importance not only to the Nation, but to individual citizens. The carrying capacity of the public range directly affects the price of mutton, beef and wool. If this measuer, the result of many years of study, is passed, it will put an end to range wars, prevent range monopoly, and perpetuate and improve a great natural resource.

It is probable that the bill will not be opposed by the stockmen. The Forest Service has already shown within the National Forests, that the regulation of the public range is a benefit to the stockmen through the improvement of the range itself. As the result, stockmen in the main are favorable towards the regulation of grazing upon the entire public domain.

Miss Amy Boulton of St. Paul and Miss Wagner of Red Lake Falls were the guests of Mrs. H. Jones a couple of days the first of the week.

Miss Nellie Fostad of St. Hilaire spent Wednesday in the city visiting friends and doing her Christmas shopping.

Mr. and Mrs. K. Sannes returned to their home at Oklee Wednesday morning after a couple of days spent in the city looking after business interests here.

Miss Olga Swenson spent Tuesday in the city making her Christmas purchases and returning to her home at St. Hilaire Tuesday evening.

Among some of those who were in the city this week from Grygla were, O. C. Hoff, Paul Paulson and Karsten Paulson. While here they visited at the Lundgren home.

Miss Lena Robertson came up from Minneapolis, where she has been employed since her departure from this city, and will spend the holidays as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Seve Robertson.

Friends of Miss Blexrud, a former teacher in the city schools and Mr. G. Saxton who traveled for the Finch-Winslow Grocery Co., have received announcements of their marriage which occurred at Preston, Minn., last week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Taylor leave this week for Duluth where they will make their future home. Mr. Taylor who is the Soo Claim Agent having had his territory changed so that Duluth will be a more central location for him. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor have made many friends during the short time they have made this city their home, who regret their departure.

The quicker a cold is gotten rid of the less the danger from pneumonia and other serious diseases. Mr. B. W. L. Hall, of Waverly, Va., says: "I firmly believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be absolutely the best preparation on the market for colds. I have recommended it to my friends and they all agree with me." For sale by all Druggists.

LITTER IN THE POULTRY-HOUS.

Nothing is more conductive to health and vigor in the flock than an abundance of litter in the poultry-house. There is a fine stimulant to exercise when the daily grain ration is scattered in the litter, and the hens must scratch and work to find their food. Unthreshed grain is excellent for hens; and it is a good practice to stack some grain near the poultry-house for the use of the poultry. One of the best small grains is common pearl millet, well-ripened. This makes fine litter, and the small seeds are highly relished by poultry, old or young. If one does not have these feeds at hand, chaff from the straw-stack will make good litter, and there should be at least eight inches deep on the floor, and it should be renewed as often as it becomes damp and dirty.

The hens must not suffer from cold feet, either by going out on the snow or by standing on cold, damp floors. This, more than any other one thing, leads to disease in the flock and consequent lack of profit. Cold feet will reduce the hen's temperature, and thus expose her to the germs of disease. Pasteur, the French scientist desired to inoculate a hen with anthrax, but it was impossible to do so, until the hen's temperature was reduced by compelling her to stand in cold water. This proves conclusively that cold feet reduce the vitality of the flock.

Whatever kind of flour, whether of wood, earth, or cement, is used in the poultry house, it must of necessity be too cold for comfort, anywhere in Minnesota. Hence the necessity of an abundance of litter covering the floors. If straw is not available, fine hay may be used, or any other dry material. Shavings may be used, but they are not recommended, as often too much wood is picked up with the grain, and its fibers obstruct the crop. Dry peat may be used; and it gives good satisfaction in some parts of Minnesota. It must be stored in a dry place, and never used when damp.

Use an abundance of some kind of litter; for it is as essential as feed to success with poultry.—N. E. Chapman, Extension Div., Minn University Farm.

At The Lyceum.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday night of this week the Daniel Sisters will appear at the Lyceum in a very catchy singing and dancing act. They carry plenty of good recommendations. Photos of the sisters can be seen today in the theater window.

POETRY BY

Lloyd Walter Morton.

In Norway they do something, we don't do.
They put their shoes all in a row.
They don't hang up their stockings like we do.
They call their Santa Claus Krictine.
They cut down their trees, and before they cut down their trees the boys take their snowshoes and go 'round the tree.
They put Christmas toys on trees like we do,
And they give their toys away like we do.

LOOKING BACKWARD

Another year will soon be history, and its fortunes and misfortunes a matter of the past. However, it seems well that, while its results are still fresh in our memory, they should be canvassed thoroughly and with seerious thought.

Successful farming demands business management, and no business is well managed that is not thoroughly canvassed at least once each year. If you have no detailed account of the past season's operations, you at least have some mental notation of the things that have in the past season gone right or wrong. Now is a good time to call these to mind, study them from every side, and with the close of the year determine to do better in the future.

No one is infallible; all make mistakes; and an occasional mistake is worth while if we study the cause and profit thereby. Every failure should be made a guide-post to future success.—O. M. Olson.

Organize a hunt and get those rabbits about the orchards. It will be fun; they are good to eat, and many of the young trees will be saved.

Scions for next spring's grafting should be gathered now and stored in sand or sawdust in a cool cellar. Wood of this season's growth should be taken and kept dormant until needed next spring.

In Europe, suet or grain sheaves are often placed on poles so that the birds may feed thereon when other food is hard to get. Some of these birds will destroy fruit, but they will repay for it in the insects they destroy.

Why not set out some nut-trees about the farm next spring? Black walnuts and butternuts will grow quit readily in most parts of Minnesota. Small trees must be used, and the one who plants them may harvest but a few of the nuts. But they make better monuments than stone or marble, to leave when one passes on.

REBEKAH LODGE.

On Tuesday evening, Dec. 12th occured the Instituting of the Lyon Rebekah Lodge Number 69, under the direction of Miss Bolton, Grand Master of the Rebekah Lodge of the state of Minnesota.

The officers as elected and installed in their respective offices are: Mrs. Jones, Noble Grand; Mrs. Elizabeth Chittick, Vice Grand; J. A. Flynn Treasurer; Nellie Berg, Secretary; Herman A. Ohm was appointed District Deputy Grand Master.

Refreshments were served and the members enjoyed themselves getting acquainted with one another and having a jolly time.

When your feet are wet and cold, and your body chilled through and through from exposure, take a big dose of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, bathe your feet in hot water before going to bed, and you are almost certain to ward off a severe cold. For sale by all Druggists.

SCHOOL NOTES.

* * * * * * * * * *

School closes on Friday, December 22nd, for the customary two weeks of Christmas holidays.

The lower grade rooms are assuming a holiday appearance. Teachers and pupils exercise not a little ingenuity and display much good taste in making and hanging becoming decorations in the rooms. Brief closing programs will be held the last day of school.

The high school basket ball team will try conclusions with McIntosh team next Saturday evening at the gym. Everybody ought to attend this contest and experience the pleasing thrill of mingling with a couple of hundred jolly young people. The high school band will make its first formal appearance as a high school organization and will aid in supplying a part of the necessary enthusiasm.

The trophies of the chase in large quantities are found these days in Janitor Runnestrand's room in the mechanical building. They are all fast assuming lifelike shape under Knute's skillful hands.

Bernard Williams re-entered school last Monday, having been absent since early last September. Everybody is pleased to learn that he is fully recovered from the effects of the dangerous wound he received on a hunting trip last fall.

A high school band of fifteen pieces was organized at the school last Wednesday afternoon. The boys comprising this latest school organization decided to fashion the appellation of "Professor" to Ben Lonson, who is well qualified to direct the energies of the boys in their effort to transform compressed atmosphere into the sweet strains of music.

The school children have been singularly free from illness this fall. Not a single case of contagious disease has been reported in the schools

The first half year ends about the middle of January. At that time those children in the grades who by reason of age and advancement warrant promotion will be moved up a grade. The number will be small as very few children can complete the work of two grades in one year satisfactorily.

All kindergarten pupils who are qualified—and this will comprise about half the little people—will be placed in first grade in January. This will permit them to complete the first grade by the end of the first year in school.

Miss Goodwin and her normal cadets, on Wednesday last visited the schools taught by Misses Clara Backe and Katie Dahl northwest of town.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that a petition, of which the following is a copy, has been filed in the office of the County Auditor of Pennington County, State of Minnesota, and that a hearing will be had upon said petition before the County Board, at the office of the County Auditor of said County, in the City of Thief River Falls, Minn., on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1911, at 1:00 o'clock P. M. Dated at Thief River Falls, Minn., this 4th, day of December 1911.

A. H. Fasel,

County Auditor.

PETITION FOR PUBLIC DITCH

To The County Board of the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota

The undersigned land owners, whose lands will be liable to be affected by, or assessed for, the expense of the construction of the County Ditch hereinafter described, would respectfully represent that the public health, convenience and welfare and the reclamation of wet and overflowed lands require the establishment and construction of County Ditch along the following route in the Towns, of Star and Hickory in said County of Pennington and that the construction of the same would be of benefit and utility.

A general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of said ditch is as follows:

Commencing at the South quarter post of Section Twenty (20), Township One Hundred Fifty-three (153), Range Thirty-nine (39), Town of Star, Pennington County, Minnesota, running thence east along the south line of said Section Twenty (20), to the Southeast corner of the Southeast quarter of said Section Twenty (20); continuing thence south on the section line between Sections Twenty-eight (28), and Twenty-nine (29), and Sections Thirty-two (32) and Thirty-three (33), to the south line of said Township of Star, continuing thence in a southwesterly direction as the fall of the water may indicate, and as the surveyor may find most expedient to intersect with the Red Lake River at or near where said river crosses the Section line between Sections Five (5), and Six (6) in the Township One Hundred Fifty-two (152), Range Thirty-nine (39), Town of Hickory, in said County and State; and terminated at Red Lake River at the point as aforesaid as its outlet.

And your petitioners pray that you will proceed to establish such County Ditch and cause the same to be constructed as provided by Chapter Two Hundred Thirty (230), of the General Laws of Minnesota for 1905, And the acts amendatory thereof.

Dated July 10th, 1911.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutoinal treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Grimm Alfalfa

TO THE PUBLIC:

The extraordinary demand for the Grimm alfalfa, a very hardy strain of this invaluable forage plant, has rendered it difficult to secure the genuine articel, even at extraordinary prices. Those familiar with the market are aware that more seed is sold yearly under the name of Grimm alfalfa than is raised in many years. I am able to announce that arrangements have been made to supply a limited amount of genuine seed.

The history of the plant is simple. Mr. Grimm brought the seed from Germany some forty years ago and developed the variety on his farm near the Grimm homestead in Carver county. The seed now secured comes from a farm near the Grimm homestead and was produced the present season from stubble fifteen years old. Inasmuch as this stubble springs from seed obtained from the original Grimm fields, the pedigree of this seed is unquestioned. The supply is small and precious and it will be distributed for experimental purposes, as follows:

1. The price is fixed at $1.35 per pound, postage or express prepaid.

2. Orders from schools will be filled first.

3. Orders from individual farmers will be filled if the supply holds out.

4. Other conditions being equal, calls will be met in order of priority.

5. That all schools may have a chance to share in the distribution, no orders from individuals will be filled before January 1, 1912.

6. If more than five pounds be desired, the order should be divided, the supplementary order to be filled if the supply holds out.

7. All orders may be filled with the undersigned, or they may be sent to G. H. Booth, Stewartville, Minn.

8. Money must accompany the order.

For further information address the undersigned.

SEED TESTING

One of the first steps toward good farming is the sowing of pure seed. No person should sow seed until he knows what he is planting. A large percentage of the weeds are put on the farm by actually sowing the weed-seeds with the farm or garden crop.

It should be emphasized that every farmer should have a purity and germination test of his seed before it is planted. This test may be made either by the farmer himself or by the Seed Laboratory at this Experiment Station.

A purity test should show the following facts:

1. Percentage of pure seed.
2. Percentage of weed seeds.
3. Percentage of dirt, chaff, etc.
4. Kind of weed seeds.

A germination test should show the following facts:

1. Percentage of seed that will germinate.
2. In seed like clover and alfalfa, the percentage of "hard seeds."

A few hints regarding the selection of proper seed for planting are here given:

1. Be very careful in your selection of broom grass seed. It very often contains quack grass seed.

2. In buying imported alfalfa or red clover seed, be sure that it contains dodder seeds; also examine it carefully to see whether or not it is mixed with seeds of sweet clover or yellow trefoil.

3. Kentucky blue grass seed is often adulterated with seeds of Canada blue grass. The average person cannot distinguish the difference between these seeds. A seed laboratory test should be made.

4. Examine seeds of alsike clover, white colver, red clover, timothy and lawn grass seed, for seeds of Canada thistle.

5. Flax seed sometimes contains dodder. But the common weed seed which is found in flax is the seed of false flax.

6. Millet seed is often badly mixed with seeds of yellow and green foxtail [illegible]

7. The appearance of buchhorn plantain seed in red clover or alfalfa seed is an indication that the seed is imported.

8. In buying red top seed be sure that you are not getting three-fourths dirt and chaff.

9. Wild oats is most commonly found in the tame oat seed.

10. Mustard seed is most commonly found in the seed of red clover.

11. In a germination test of clovers and alfalfa the percentage of "hard seeds" should be determined. These hard seeds do not decay, nor do they germinate, unless the seed-coat is broken in some way. Often the percentage of "hard seeds" is as much as fifty per cent.

12. Corn should be tested by the "individual ear method." Bulk tests of corn are not safe.

13. Weak sprouts should not be counted as germinated, as a weak plant will be the result.

14. In seed-corn the "but" and "tip" kernels should not be used.

15. The Seed Laboratory at this Experiment Station will make seed tests for the farmer free of charge.

16. Weed-seed samples can be obtained from this Experiment Station at a small cost.—W. L. Oswald, Div., of Botany and Plant Pathology, Minn Agr. College.

PROTECTING SEED CORN FROM MICE.

One of the requirements in the winter storage of seed corn is to have it stored beyond the reach of mice. Many a bushel of good seed corn has been completely destroyed during the winter by the depredations of mice. There can be no excuse for thinking that the mice may not find it. They invariably do find it, and unless it is amply protected, serious damage is bound to occur. The only advisable course to follow is to prepare for them when the corn is put in storage.

If the corn is stored by hanging it up with string or twine, it is a good plan to stretch several lengths of strong fence wire in the store room, and suspend the strings of corn from these wires. Where it is stored on corn trees, the lower portion of the upright should be completely wrapped with tin for a few inches, or a circular piece of tin fitted about this lower portion.

Another good method of storage is to make up several crates and line them with window screen. They can be made up in any size, preferably about two feet by three feet, using four-inch fence board material in making them. By making the sides comparatively open, it permits a good circulation of air through the crate, and still the linings will prevent any damage from mice. Good seed corn deserves ample protection.—O. M. Olson.

McINTOSH 22 THIEF RIVER 17

McIntosh Takes Lead in First Half and Wins Hard Fought Victory.

Last Saturday evening in the High School gymnasium was played the best and fastest basket ball game that has been seen here so far this season. The contesting teams were the McIntosh High School and the local High School. The game was hard fought from start to finish, but the local boys let their opponents get such a start in the first half that they were not able to overcome it, and finally succumbed to the score of 22 to 17.

In the first half McIntosh outplayed their opponents, the half ending 15 to 8 in favor of McIntosh. For some reason or other the local boys were slow in getting in their team work, and Jensen at center clearly outjumped Fossum. The second half was all for Thief River, the score being 9 to 7 in favor of Thief River. In this half the local boys got thoroughly warmed up and used their team play to advantage. Fossum took a new lease of life and held Jensen to a standstill.

The High School boys showed a vast improvement in their play over that of the previous week. Richardson says that he will soon have as fast an aggregation of basket ball players as the northwest can boast of.

The score:

HERE FROM ALASKA

Mrs. Schalaben arrived in the city last Friday evening from Koggning, Alaska. She was accompanied by Gertrude and the Alaskan baby but Dr. Schalaben will remain in Koggning for the winter.

Mrs. Schalaben and the children left Sunday evening for other points in Southern Minnesota and her old home in Iowa but her many friends will be glad to know that she will make a longer visit here in the spring.

BROOTEN—OMUNDSON

Last Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Brooten at 601 Knight Ave., N., occurred the marriage of Miss Gurina Brooten and Mr. Gustav Omundson.

The bride has made this city her home for several years and has many friends here while the groom is a prosperous young farmer who makes his home about five miles east of this city.

The happy couple left the same day for Brooten, Minn., the former home of the bride and other points for a wedding trip and upon their return will begin housekeeping on the grooms farm.

REAL ESTATE ON MOVE

City Lots and Farm Lands Compete in Point of Turning.

A large number of city lots and many farms have changed hands within the last couple of weeks.

In Block 35 of the Original Townsite the west fifty feet of lots 7 to 12 was purchased by the Co-operative Building Co., for a consideration of $4500. Lots 1 to 6 were purchased by Rasmus Oen for an equal consideration. While A. Joe Giller purchased lot 18 for $4000. Mr. Giller also purchased the 36 feet east of the west 50 feet of lots 1 to 4 in Block 30. Prihcard Stone Co., recently purchased a large part of Block 34. All this in the business section of the city while the residence districts have been doing almost as well. Nor has the surrounding farm lands been allowed to lie dormant. G. O. Hollum of Kratka recently sold his farm for a consideration of $2,700. Peter Flo sold his farm in Agder for $3500. F. C. Peterson sold his farm in Silverton for $4500. Ole Grolid sold his farm in Silverton for $3200.

We could enumerate many more but these samples will be sufficient to show that there has been a general out-burst of prosperity in this locality and if the signs of the times do not fail us it is quite certain that we will have a very active year during 1912.

Has moved to New Quarters

Att'y. H. O. Kjomme, who has for some time occupied an office in the building east of the Oen Mercantile Co., has removed his Law office to the First National Bank building, where he now is established and ready for business. This removal, while furnishing Mr. Kjomme with better and more convenient office, was made necessary by the fact the building hitherto occupied, is about to be removed in order that the building operations contemplated by the Co-operative building Ass'n., may be commenced. A three story brick building is to be erected on that lot according to the plans of the Association.

Christmas Shoppers

'Twas the week before Christmas, and all through the stores
The people were crowding the aisles to the doors.
Mama buying 'kerchiefs and Pa buying caps
And the rest of the family making some "laps";
For the lists were so long and involved so much chatter,
That gift choosing seemed a most desperate matter.
They tossed and they tumbled the counter-spread stocks,
And asked to be shown the inside of each box;
They priced everything in the cases, and then,
Crossed a name off—and started all over again.
They pushed and they jostled and trod on the toes
Of those pressing 'round them, and nigh came to blows,
They haggled and struggled and gasped and perspired,
And vowed that next Christmas they couldn't be hired
To do Christmas shopping in any such way!
They'd begin to stock up, say, in April or May
But, between you and me and the jolly St. Nick,
They could, but they won't turn off any such trick;
And a week before Christmas, in all of the stores,
The same people will crowd the same aisles to the doors.

GRUNDY FAMILY LEAVES CITY

Will Make Future Home In Toronto, Ontario. They Leave Many Friends Here.

At a small impromptu reception given at the Antler's Club on Tuesday evening in honor of Dr. Grundy, the genial doctor was presented with a fine watch as a memento of the esteem in which he and his family were held by their many friends in this city.

Speeches expressing the appreciation of the citizens of this locality for the untiring work of the Doctor were delivered by E. M. Stanton, G. Halvorson, Prof. Hay and others. The evening was spent in visiting and playing cards.

The entire Grundy family left for Toronto, Ontario, on Wednesday evening and will make their future home in that city.

Dr. Grundy arrived in Thief River Falls on Jan. 28th, 1892, while the present prosperous city was in its infancy and has ever since that time made this city his home and the place of his practice.

The Doctor was always an energetic booster for all kinds of public improvements and every kind of public enterprise. Noteworthy among the things that have been accomplished for Thief River Falls in which he took an active part was the fight for the division of Red Lake County and it is safe to say that Dr. Grundy had more to do in bringing about the desired results than any other one man. Any time that the Doctor could make a move, whether public or private, that would be for the betterment of the city or adjoining territory, he was right there with the goods to start the ball rolling. Thus it is with regret that we chronicle the departure of one of our leading citizens and bid him Godspeed in his new field of action.

Mrs. Grundy and the large family of children will be greatly missed by their many friends here all of whom wish them a close circle of friends in their new place of abode.

RETURNS FROM INTERESTING TRIP

Dr. Gambell Tells Experience at Land Show. May Expect Land Boom Here.

Dr. Gambell, who has been away for a couple of weeks, returned yesterday morning on the "Soo." While away the doctor visited the Land Show at St. Paul, was thru Iowa, Missouri, and down to the Arkansas line.

He states that the Land Show was a collection of the products of the land from Minnesota to Alaska, and that the eastern part of the Red River Valley and the territory in this vicinity missed a great opportunity by not being better represented; for thousands of people were there and greatly impressed by what the different districts produced.

Nevertheless, he met many people who were anxious to know of this great Northern Minnesota. It was often stated to him that this was the place where the people were coming when the season opened up. Many were predicting a land boom in this locality.

The great trouble with the people in the South is that they think this is a timbered country, and no prairie land, or else they think the land has been covered with water and the great drainage system has left a dry lake bed. If these people could be enlightened, many would come to this region.

The weather in Iowa and below Kansas City was very little different from what the people have experienced in this part of the country for the last few weeks. Southern Missouri was covered with a blanket of snow almost two feet deep when he was there.

The farmers in this vicinity taking a practical view of the s ation when they decide to stay, these is no place in the country where they can do better than right here in Pennington County, State of Minnesota.

LEG BROKEN IN RUNAWAY

Matt Ramstad Suffers Severe Fracture. Two Dogs Cause of the Accident.

Monday afternoon while Matt Ramstad and Mrs. Olaf Ramstad were driving on Horace Avenue, near the Central school, a couple of dogs ran into the street and under the heels of the horses, causing the team to shy out and become unmanageable. In an effort to avoid the trees along the school yard Matt turned the team to make them cross the school lot. He guided the team between the trees, but the cutter tipped over and he and Mrs. Ramstad were thrown out. Matt still hung on to the lines and by so doing was caused to be thrown violently against a tree and have his leg broken near the hip. Mrs. Ramstad escaped unhurt. The team ran on and was stopped back of the West Hotel. Neither they nor the cutter were damaged to speak of.

Matt suffered a very severe and aggravating fracture, according to his attending physician, Dr. Mellby, but is in no serious danger.

The team being driven was a pair of young coach horses not given to running away. It seems that the dogs, which frightened this team, are in the habit of running out and bothering passers-by, and this team remembered them and was afraid of them. It is not likely that these dogs will have another opportunity of doing the same thing in this world.

Urges Park Proposition

Thief River Falls, Dec. 22, 1911.

To The Editor of the Press,

My dear Sir:

There has been a great deal of talk in the past few years about our city getting a park. If the City wants a park, I can sell them one and sell it in a way so that they can easily pay for it.

I will sell them the property east of the Soo depot and take $500.00 cash and the balance in 5 equal payments thereafter at a reasonable rate of interest.

This property seems the most available piece of land in this city for a park for the following reasons:

It is in the center of the city. The shore is the best, and best adapted for park purposes of any in the city.

And should the Soo Line build a fine new depot more people would see this park than any other that could be had.

It is the only piece of land in the city where pleasure boating could be carried on with ease and safety.

From what I have learned the Soo Line Officials are very anxious that this piece of land should be obtained for a park, and from the present outlook this will be a Soo town, and lying as it does would add much to the appearance of city and would afford a pleasant place for all to enjoy a pleasant evening during the summer months.

Sow it to grass, plant a few t and flowers, build a band stand, l it richly with electric lights an dare say no one would say but it was one of the best investm that was ever made by this city.

Yours truly,

George Elder.

Curious Benefits of Drought.

Drought is dreaded by farmers and gardeners because it injures grass and grain, fruits and flowers, but scientific observers testify that it brings as a compensation subtle gifts which enrich the soil and increase future crops. Nature has stored in the earth a rich supply of phosphates, silicates, carbonates and other chemical salts essential to vegetable life. Those on the surface of of the ground are soon exhausted, and the large supply at greater depths is often unreached by subsoil plowing. But a drought is nature's subsoil plow to bring up the rich nutriment below When the surface is parched the sun draws moisture from the deeper soil, and this moisture brings with it in solution salts of lime and magnesia, of potash and soda. The moisture evaporates, but leaves the salts for the use of plants and grain. Drought, therefore, does a double work. It parches the surface and lessens the present crop. It forces up rich nutriment from the deeper soil and enlarges future crops.—Harper's Weekly.

Sense In the Sickroom.

Every one who goes into a sick person's room should be bright and cheerful. Sick people are extremely sensitive to the manner of those around them, and any depressing influence has a most injurious effect. Hope is the best medicine. Unfortunately, the sick person's relatives often take the worst view of the case, and their anxiety is unmistakably manifested by their looks, voice and general manner. They even talk despairingly in the room, thinking that because the patient is quiet and dull he does not understand But his perception of everything relating to his illness is markedly acute Note the good effects of the visit of a cheery doctor. For hours after the patient seems better and is better Of course it does not do to be flippant, but if relatives would force themselves to take a hopeful view and show it in their manner they would in many cases actually save the sick person's life.

Anti-Tuberculosis Convention a Success

100 delegates from 45 counties present. Farmers in majority, next business men. Many County Boards and Commercial Clubs represented officially. Resolutions passed.

On Friday of last week the 15th inst., there was held at the St. Paul Hotel, St. Paul, a delegate convention to discuss a State program for the control of tuberculosis. The principal addresses were by Pres. George Edgar Vincent of the State University, Dean Albert F. Woods of the College of Agriculture, Dean F. F. Wesbrook, of the College of Medicine and Surgery and Mr. J. H. Beek of the St. Paul Association of Commerce. Many of the delegates made short addresses notably A. N. Farmer, Supt. of Schools, St. Colud; Mr. Ralph W. Wheelock, Sec'y., to the Governor; Dr. E. H. Bailey, Lake City, Rev. Edward Atkinson of Elk River, County Supt. of Schools, Carl V. Swain of Red Wing, and many others. Dean Woods pledged the cooperation of the department of agriculture of the State University in the work of spreading information in the rural districts. Pres. Vincent emphasized the fact that the control of tuberculosis was a community affair, Dr. Wesbrook said that the physicians could not solve this problem by themselves. Mr. Wheelock quoted from the letter written by Gov. Eberhart to speaker Dunn last winter during the session of the legislature urging adequate state provision for tuberculosis. The trend of the addresses was in the direction of a system of local but state-aided institutions near the homes of the people to care especially for the advanced cases. The necessity of apprec[illegible] the [illegible] of tuber[illegible] dwelt [illegible] the [illegible] tional propaganda.

A number of members of the last legislature were present and if any doubt had previously existed in their minds as to whether there existed wide-spread and substantial sentiment back of the demand for additional and substantial state appropriations for tuberculosis it was dispelled. The fact that the health of live stock was better looked after by the State of Minnesota than the health of human beings was mentioned again and again. A feature of the convention was the presence of quite a number of men and women who had found life and health at the State Sanatorium, and who had come many of them long distances and at great personal sacrifice to urge the completion of the State Sanatorium and the erection of other institutions of the same kind.

The work of the Minnesota Association for the prevention and relief of tuberculosis under whose auspices the convention was held was many times referred to and it was urged that it be better supported. A large amount of information about what is being done in the various communities was volunteered by delegates, so that delegates of other communities might have the benefit of it. It was shown that 7 county boards had already appropriated money for disinfection and visiting nurses and about a dozen cities are speending money for the same purpose, that a beginning had been made in systematically covering counties by holding a lecture in a school house in each township, and the result of this work in three counties were felt to be satisfactory enough to justify the extension of this method over the state. Very few of the important counties were not represented. The following were the resolutions that were unanimously passed.

Since it is the duty of the State to protect its subjects from preventable diseases, and since Tuberculosis is a preventable disease, which for years has been the cause of two thousand and more deaths within the state of Minnesota, and since the efforts of the state have not resulted in lessening its ravages to any appreciable extent.

Therefore be it resolved by this convention of the Minnesota Association for the Prevention and relief of Tuberculosis with delegates from 45 counties in the State.

1st. That all advanced cases of this disease should be provided with beds in State Institutions.

2nd. That these asylums should be near the homes of the people and should, consequently, be very numerous.

3rd. That they should be maintained by the counties, liberally assisted by funds from the state, and under state supervision and control.

4th. That every county institution shall maintain a free dispensary and have visiting nurses on its staff.

5th. That the State Sanatorium should be completed by the addition of kitchen, laundry, dining room, amusement hall and employees' home. That it should be enlarged from year to year until it can accomodate as many incipient cases as the country institutions desire to transfer to it.

6th. That registration of all cases be enforced.

7th. That a state lecturer on tuberculosis be provided for who shall carry on an active campaign of education throughout the state.

8th. That milk from herds not tested by tuberculosis shall not be sold.

9th. That open air schools shall be provided in the cities for weakly anaemic children.

TEARING DOWN MAIL BOXES

Notice is hereby given that the tearing down of mail boxes along the R. F. D. routes must be stopped, or someone will be taking chances of getting themselves into severe trouble A great many boxes have been torn down recently, either by people who are innocent of the severe penalty connected with such work, or by those who do it out of pure devilment. In either case, if evidence is secured the offender will suffer the full penalty of the law. It will pay pedestrians to be careful from now on, because such lawlessness cannot be tolerated.

ENDS WINTER'S TROUBLES.

To many, winter is a season of trouble. The frost-bitten toes and fingers, chapped hands and lips, chillblains, cold-sores, red and rough skins, prove this. Extension Division Notes

By A. D. Wilson.

Co-operation means the union of the efforts of a number of people for their common good. Successful co-operation, just like successful home. life, requires, on the part of each individual interested, more or less forebearance and some modification of one's idas of absolute individual independence, but it is worth while.

A Co-operative Dairy Breeders' Association has been organized in Douglas County, and successfully operated for two years. Many advantages can be secured, through co-operative breeding of this kind, that the individual cannot afford. Better sires can be secured; sires can be proved as to worth, and after a few years of operation only sires of known value need be used.

There is little doubt but that co-operation is one of the great forward movements in the country today. The best example we have of co-operation is that of the family. In the family we find all individuals working for the common good. Of course, it is impossible to carry this ideal relationship to all of one's neighbors; but the more nearly this same feeling of helpfulness and generosity can be duplicated, the more successful will a co-operative enterprise be.

The best suggestion we can offer to any community is that they organize a Farmers' Club if they have not already done so. The Division of Agricultural Extension and Farmers' Institutes is ready at all times to assist in the organization of such clubs, and to help make them effective when organized. Each month a set of timely topics, with references as to sources of information, is sent to each organized club in the State, known to the Extension Division. Secure Extension Bulletin No. 1 and "go ahead."

A careful study of the situation indicates that co-operative laundries in connection with co-operative creameries may reasonably be expected within the next few years. It appears that the total cost of a laundry equipped to wash and dry all of the clothes of from 100 to 300 families need not exceed $3,000; and that the total cost of operating such a laundry, including 10 per cent depreciation, 6 per cent interest, fuel, labor and loss of clothes, need not exceed $3,500. If such a laundry were serving 150 families, the cost would be approximately $24 per family per year, of 50 cents per week. Subtracting from this the cost of fuel, soap and machines, now used doing the washing on each farm, it would seem that the amount the women of the farms now save by their heavy labor in washing is ridiculously small, only $10 to $15 per year for the average family.

Co-operative marketing of eggs is another branch of co-operative effort that has given very satisfactory results. Mr. Alfred Carlstad, of Dassel, in describing the Dassel Egg Marketing Association, has the following to say: "We started the association with sixty members; we now have eighty. During the past eight months the association has handled 22,000 dozen eggs. It has paid for these $4,840, or22 cents per dozen. At the regular market, the same eggs would have brought approximately $3,300, or 17 cents per dozen; a difference of $1,540. $1,540 divided among seventy farmers equals $22 for each. So each member has received $22 for going to the small expense and trouble of placing a better quality of eggs on the market."

LIGHTNING KILLS FEW.

In 1906 lightning killed only 169 people in this whole country. One's chances of death by lightning are less than two in a million. The chance of death from liver, kidney -- stomach trouble is vastly greater, but not if Electric Bitters be used, as Robert Madsen, of West Burlington, Ia., proved. Four doctors gave him up after eight months of suffering from virulent liver trouble and yellow jaundice. He was then completely cured by Electric Bitters. They're the best stomach, liver nerve and kidney remedy and blood purifier on earth. Only 50c at all Druggists.

ORGANIZING BOYS' AND GIRLS' CLUBS.

Probably the best way for the teacher to arouse an interest in Agriculture and Home Economics in her school is by the organization of boys' and girls' industrial clubs. This need take but little time from the school, and can be done in almost every school.

Many rural school-teachers, feeling that they know little or nothing about Agriculture, hesitate to introduce some work of this nature into their schools. The organization of a boys' and girls' club is one of the ways in which a teacher, with no agricultural training, can arouse an interest in farm and home work.

The teachers who have organized such clubs in their schools have been much pleased at the interest taken. The children in every case have shown themselves willing and eager to form such a club. Where carefully supervised by the teacher, they have conducted their meetings with credit and enthusiasm. In many cases the clubs have continued their meetings during the summer vacation, in the absence of the teacher. In most cases the girls are interested in sewing and cooking and the boys in corn, potatoes, ropetying and splicing, etc. Where the teacher is unfamiliar with the points of merit of an ear of corn or a seed potato, the boys have been supplied with literature, and have studied out their own problems, or some good farmer has been asked in to help them out.

These clubs generally hold their meetings on Friday afternoons, after recess, and the teachers have found that the pupils do better in the regular work, where they have been allowed a little diversion in the shape of a meeting of the Industrial Club.

The members of such a club not only become interested in farm and home life, and in the affairs of the neighborhood, but they learn how to conduct a meeting, and the value of an exchange of ideas. They grow into a habit of getting together, which is useful to them in after life.—J. B. Lamson, Extension Division, Minn., Agr. College.

What the Jury Deserved.

Sir Matthew Begbie, chief justice of British Columbia, once had before him a man charged with having killed another man with a sandbag. The evidence was conclusive, and the judge charged the jury accordingly, but a verdict of "Not guilty" was promptly brought in. The judge was astonished "Gentlemen of the jury," he said, "this is your verdict, not mine. On your conscience the disgrace will rest. Many repetitions of such conduct as yours will make trial by jury a horrible farce and the city of Victoria a nest of crime. Go! I have nothing more to say to you." And then, turning to the prisoner: "You are discharged. Go and sandbag some of those jurymen. They deserve it."

The Law of Falling Bodies.

All falling bodies, whether they be crystal raindrops or meteorites, fall with what philosophers term "a uniform accelerated motion"—in other words, if a body be moving at a certain velocity at the expiration of one second from the beginning of its fall it will be moving with twice that velocity at the expiration of two seconds, gaining in speed at a uniform rate throughout the course of its fall.

FRIDAY, DEC. 22, 1911.

Politicians are predicting the death of S. Y. Gordon.

The hardest working man often gets the least for his labors.

It is not a sign that a man is well to do because he happens to be jingling a few dollars in his pocket anymore than it is a sign that a man is a seer because he can quote a few of Socrate's favorite expressions.

KRATKA GLEANINGS

* * * * * * * * * * * *

Julius C. Holm has sold all of his farming interests and is now planning on a trip to Norway, which he expects to do after Christmas.

Krist Larson, the Anton cattle buyer passed thru here with another big herd of cattle to the markets at S. St. Paul.

Carl Jensen, our ex Post Master, was in Thief River Falls Saturday.

Our teachers are all busy preparing their Christmas entertainments. The Misses Arnt and Henry have consolidated their two school districts together and a fine program will be expected Saturday.

Post master Singer, was recently authorized to move Kratka P. O. to the site where petitioned for last spring. Owing to some spite of ignorance the matter was protested which merrily was to delay the matter until the P. O. Department made an investigation of the matter, and the result was that an order was issued to move immediately.

Mr. Hedeen returned home recently from a trip to St. Cloud where he had been in attendance to the Northern Development Ass'n. Mr. Hedeen reports a warm time, and a strong fight for Thief River, but they lost, by a small majority.

Mr. B. Elson of Beltrami was visiting with his brother in law, Mr. Ole Hofdal the first part of last week.

Talk about your summer weather. How is December for an Indian summer?

Farmers are kept busy now days hauling in grain to Hazel and Thief River Falls.

Steven Singer has recently secured notice of the approval of his contract with United States for supplying the Indian Schools at Bismark, N. Dak., and Red Lake County with supplies for the year of 1912. We understand that these involve a large amount of supplies, amounting to several thousand dollars per year. Mr. Singer is certainly successful in securing this bid for the coming year.

A Merry Christmas.

SEVERSON—ORTLOFF

On November 30th occurred the marriage of Miss Elsie Ortloff to Mr. Albert Severson at the home of the bride's mother in Bray township, where a large number of invited guests had assembled.

The marriage was solemnized by Rev. H. Pope at 5:30 p. m. After many hearty congratulations and a fine supper the guests departed.

The bride's maids were the two Misses Severson, while the groom was attended by his brother and Hanney Ortloff.

The young couple will make their future home at St. Hilaire.

The bride and groom were the recipients of many beautiful and useful presents.

Goods Of a Known And a Guaranteed Quality

Late Christmas shoppers will find in my store a wealth of up-to-date jewelry suitable for Christmas presents. If you buy of me, you'll have the satisfaction of knowing that you will either get your money's worth, or your money back.

Diamonds

I have a well assorted stock of Diamonds ranging in price from $12 to $200. Every stone is perfect, extra fine and of a white grade. They are guaranteed to be just what I represent them to be. I buy my goods from one of the most reliable houses in the country, at the lowest possible price. Come in and examine my stock and I will explain further why it is safer and cheaper to buy diamonds at home.

Fountain Pens

I have just gotten in a new lot of the latest thing in fountain pens. These pens are finely manufactured; they can't leak; they have an extra heavy cap; they have a convienent and attractive safety attachment; the best and neatest self-filling device, and they're guaranteed to give satisfaction. The price is marked on the pen for your protection.

$3 to $4.00

I have a $400 piano which I will sell for $210. This piano would make a pleasing Xmas gift.

Labrador's Short Summer.

"How brief is the summer on the highlands of Labrador!" says Sesketh Pritchard in the Wide World Magazine. "Snow does not melt till July; then with a rush midsummer comes. Grasses and leaves grow almost visibly, the wild cotton soon flings out its little white pennons, millions of berries ripen on the ground, the loon cries, the ptarmigan calls, and you may even see a butterfly balancing in the warm wind. But then also wakens the countless army of hunchbacks, brown and gray mosquitoes, piping [illegible] for blood. So summer reigns. Then suddenly one day, at the end of August, after the sun has sunk [illegible] the barren [illegible] warmth of [illegible] to find everything [illegible] the first snow of anoth[illegible] ready falling."

WRESTLING MATCH

To-night at 9:30 at the Lyceum Theatre William Kline, local light-heavyweight, and Ludvig Munson, light-heavyweight wrestler of Holt, Minn., will meet in the squared arena for the purpose of giving the citizens of Thief River Falls an opportunity of seeing a strictly high-class wrestling bout. Both of the men are well-known in sporting circles here. Munson has greatly improved since his last appearance here at the Auditorium, and it is said that he stands a fair chance of throwing Kline. That means there will be something doing because Kline isn't exactly a kitten to handle. Preliminaries of a high order have been arranged for.

* * * * * * * * * * *

Two new students have joined our ranks since the last number of Commercial Normal Notes. Fred Lorentson, of Wylie enrolled for the Bookkeeping Course, and Alf Olson of this city is preparing himself to become a first class stenographer.

Basket Ball practice is again going smoothly after a slight hitch. We are thankful to the High School authorities for the use of the gym.

On Monday Ole Thorsgard was called to his home at Northwood, N. D., by the serious illness of his mother.

Six new oak desks were installed in the bookkeeping room this week.

O. A. Naplin, our instructor in Commercial Law, delivered a speech at the Karlstad meeting of the Kittson County Development Ass'n., last Saturday.

The basket ball boys have scheduled a game with the Plummer team for this evening. The Commercial boys have practiced hard and are in good condition for a fast game. The Plummer team comes well recommended, and the specators are assured of an interesting game from the sound of the first whistle.

GROUND BONE FOR THE POULTRY.

An Advertisement.

Rolland Bros., have lately secured a new and strongly built green-bone cutting machine, a large enough machine so that they can fill orders on short notice, and, usually keep a supply of ground bone on hand. At this time of the year ground bone is a very necessary food for the hens, because they are unable to pick up hard substances which are required to make the shell of the egg, and keep the digestive track in good order. You can buy the ground bone for 2 cents a pound at Rolland Bros., Meat Market on LaBree Avenue.

We hear a lot of railroad talk now days, but is it an air line that is to be built? Or shall the road follow the ground? We have heard so much hot air talk about railroads that we suppose it must be an air line that is to be built.

We Wish You a Merry Christmas

We take the pleasure at this time of wishing our many customers a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

We thank you for the generous support you have given us during the past year, and for the confidence you have reposed in us and our goods.

Your patronage has been greatly appreciated, and we hope in the future to be able to give you a still better service than we have in the past.

Sincerely,

* * * * * * * * * * *

Last week was a busy one. The creamery boys are filling their icehouse and the store got in a carload of coal, so every one who could drive a team, had to get out. Well the most of us got in a supply of fuel anyway.

A Christmas celebration is prepared for at the school house in district No. 120 in the evening Dec. 25th. Everybody is welcome.

The little ones are studying hard and behaving rather good, so Santa Claus will not pass them by.

Missionary Anderson, from the American Sunday School Union, was up here last Sunday conducting services in the Hopkins chapel.

Mr. and Mrs. Conrod Klappenback came up from Libley county for a visit with the old folks and friends.

Ed. Johnson was out Sunday trying his new cutter. Suppose he had some fair company.

Louis Hamre is reported getting better, so we may now see him aroud again.

SCHOOL NOTES.

* * * * * * * * * * *

School closes Friday for two weeks of Christmas holidays. Appropriate exercises will be held the last hour of the day in the lower grades.

A large class of young men and women is enrolled in the short course. There is room for more who desire to take advantage of this practical plan of school work.

The McIntosh basketball team defeated the locals in the gym., last Saturday evening by a score of 22 to 17. The weakness of the high school boys lies in their failure to throw baskets.

The December reports will mark the turning point in the career of several high school students. Despite the best efforts of the faculty and others interested in the schools, a few persist in attending irregularly, failing to prepare their tasks and in neglecting their studies. These will finally drop behind and disappear from school, as have others in the past who were determined to have a good time at the expense of their school work.

State High School Inspector, G. B. Aiton visited the shcools last Thursday. He devoted the greater part of his time to an inspection of the special departments in the high school. Upon the success of these departments rests the matter of securing the $2500 special state aid under the Putnam act.

The first half year closes January 19th. At this time a number of new half year studies will be introduced into the school and several other taught this semester will be dropped. Deserving promotions will be made in the grades.

The teachers who have received their certification from the local high school and who have been teaching in various parts of this state during the past three or four months are arriving home for the holidays. It might be of interest to Thief River business men to know that these young people earn over $1500 per month, the greater part of which is spent in this city.

January 2nd,

the Commercial Normal School of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, Begins Its Spring Term.

This popular Business College prepares young men and women for good positions in the business world. Our teachers are all College and University trained; our school rooms are light and airy and well equipped. Board and room can be had in private families at low cost.

Instruction is given in the following subjects:

Business Law
Bookkeeping
Accounting
English
Mathematics
Preparatory

Advertising
Letter Writing
Shorthand
Typewriting
Office Training
Civil Service

If you desire a good, practical business education--one that will be useful to you in your every-day work, that will increase your earning capacity fully 50 per cent, that will broaden and strengthen you and train you to think and to act--then write us to-day for full particulars, and make up your mind to be with us on the opening day, January 2nd.

LIVING MINERS REACH SURFACE

Rescuers Find Five Men Alive in Tennessee Colliery.

TRYING TO REACH OTHERS

Believed Several More of the Hundred and Fifty Men Caught by Explosion Have Not Perished.

Briceville, Tenn., Dec. 12.—Five men have been brought alive from the Cross-Mountain mine and rescuers are making frantic efforts to reach at least three more whom they believe still alive.

The men have been prisoners in the workings since Saturday morning when an explosion entombed more than 100 men. Hope had been abandoned when three men, alive and well, were found behind a brattice they had erected to protect themselves from noxious gases. Two others were found a short time later. The five are: Arthur Scott, Dore Irish, William Henderson, Milton Henderson and Irwin Smith.

Immediately after the explosion the Hendersons and Smith rushed to cross entry 19, where they quickly threw up a brattice that kept out the black damp that killed many of their fellow workmen. They took their lunch pails with them and the three subsisted for three days and two nights on what they expected to make their Saturday noon meal.

News that live miners had been found spread quickly through the town and relatives of other men who had been standing vigil at the mine's mouth until all hope was gone rushed again to the scene.

Twenty-two bodies have been removed and twenty cross entries explored. The rescuers are encountering great obstacles in penetrating the cross sections and it is feared that even should more be alive in the far recesses of the workings it will be impossible to reach them before they starve.

A new cemetery is being provided [illegible] the victims. It is on a hill near [illegible] mouth of the mine. Volunteers [illegible] to dig the graves. They are [illegible] arranged in a circle, in the [illegible] of which it is expected a monument will be raised.

BOTH ENTER FELONS' CELLS

McNamara Brothers Garbed in Prison Stripes in San Quentin.

San Quentin, Cal., Dec. 11.—The McNamara brothers entered San Quentin penitentiary, where James B. is condemned to spend the remainder of life for his confessed crime of murder and where John J., secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, is sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment for dynamiting.

The brothers entered the prison, it is fairly authenticated, believing that they had achieved much for the cause of union labor and had been cruelly misunderstood in their effort. The brothers refused to make any statement.

Whirled from Los Angeles on a fast train the men were taken from it, put on a little river steamer and landed two hours and a half later at San Quentin prison wharf on the shores of San Pablo bay.

SHERIFF'S SLAYER KILLED

Shot to Death in Battle With North Dakota Militia.

White Rock, S. D., Dec. 12.—After a running fight, during which a score of shots were exchanged, summary justice overtook John Weldemeir, the slayer of George E. Moody, sheriff of Richland county, N. D. Members of Company I, North Dakota national guard, and posses of citizens overtook Weldemeir seven miles southwest of here and shot one of the horses with which Weldemeir was making his escape.

The fleeing man abandoned his team and, rifle in hand, started across the fields. He was quickly surrounded by the men in pursuit and a single bullet from a militiaman's gun, which penetrated his forehead, caused instant death.

RIVER IS ON A RAMPAGE

Portions of Fond du Lac, Wis., Under Water.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Dec. 12.—An all night downpour of rain, coupled with the thaw of last week, has caused the east and west branches of the Fond du Lac river to go on a rampage, flooding basements of stores and manufacing institutions in the business district and a large part of the residence districts in the southwestern part of the city. Residents trapped in homes by waters which rose during the night were removed by police and firemen.

No Action by Supreme Court.

Washington, Dec. 12.—The supreme court of the United States declined to interfere at this time with the decree of the United States circuit court for Southern New York approving of the reorganization plan of the tobacco trust.

NAVAL BOARD MAKES REPORT

Declares Maine Was Destroyed by Exterior Explosion.

BLAST IGNITES MAGAZINES

Finding Confirms Report of Original Investigators Who Made Examination Following Disaster.

Washington, Dec. 9.—The United States battleship Maine, sunk in Havana harbor in February, 1898, by an explosion, was blown up from the outside. This was announced by the naval board, which has been examining the wreck. The finding confirms the report of the original investigators who made a superficial examination of the wreck shortly after the disaster.

The statement given out by the navy department is brief. Secretary Meyer does not believe it necessary to issue any extended explanation of the board's conclusions, beyond the flat statement that an exterior explosion was responsible for the loss of the warship and the lives of many men. The statement follows:

"The injuries to the bottom of the Maine were caused by the explosion of a charge of low form of explosive exterior to the ship between frames 28 and 31, strake B, port side. This resulted in igniting and exploding the contents of the six-inch reserve magazine, A-14-M, said contents including a large quantity of black powder. The more or less complete explosion of the contents of the remaining forward magazine followed. The magazine explosions resulted in the destruction of the vessel."

Secretary Meyer announced that there might be a further statement on the report of the board after it had been considered by the president. One member of the board was of the opinion that the report never would be published in full, but would be kept in the confidential archives of the navy department.

The declaration that a "low form of explosive" was used in the outside explosion indicates a belief that a mine and not a dirigible torpedo was the instrument of destruction.

This only deepens the mystery of the destruction of the Maine. A mine charged with sufficient gunpowder to blow in the bottom of the ship must have weighed several hundred pounds. To plant such a mine and lay the electric connections necessary for its discharge would have required the services of a number of men.

GOVERNORS AT NEW YORK

Western Executives Put In Strenuous Day in Gotham.

New York, Dec. 12.—As busy as have been the previous days of the Western governors who are visiting the East, New York put them through strenuous paces.

Rising early the governors were taken on a sightseeing trip through the city in automobiles, heard an address of welcome from Mayor Gaynor in the great hall of the city college and visited Grant's tomb.

In the afternoon they took a water trip around Manhattan island, witnessed an exhibition of the city's fireboats and then took a trip through Brooklyn.

In the evening they attended a dinner at the Union League club as the guests of Colonel John A. Sleicher.

ALASKAN PROBE DROPPED

Report of Controller Bay Committee Approved by House.

Washington, Dec. 10.—A formal report to the house from the committee on expenditures in the interior department dismisses from congressional consideration the Controller bay charges, the keystone of which was the widely quoted "Dick to Dick" letter, and the accusation that Richard S. Ryan was acquiring a monopoly of valuable Alaska harbor rights.

The committee's action was based on the recommendation of Louis D. Brandeis and Amos Pinchot, counsel for the committee, and a speech of Secretary of the Interior Fisher, which the committee regarded as voicing a message in the administration's attitude toward Alaska.

PAYNE BILL SIDETRACKED

Republican Tariff Board Measure Shelved by Democrats.

Washington, Dec. 8.—The Payne bill to create a permanent tariff board was brought up in the house committee on ways and means by Republican members, but the committee indefinitely postponed action through unanimous vote of the Democrats.

Twelve Murderers In One Jail.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Twelve convicted murderers, four of whom have been sentenced to be hanged and the rest to life imprisonment, are now in the Cook county jail. This number is far in excess of the average in recent years. The condemned men include two Chinese.

BERT FRANKLIN.

Accused of Attempted Bribery of Juror In McNamara Case.

FRANKLIN HELD FOR TRIAL

Detective Employed by Defense In McNamara Case.

Los Angeles, Dec. 12.—Burt H. Franklin, an investigator employed by the defense in the murder trial of James B. McNamara, just ended, was held to the superior court by Justice William P. Young to answer to charges of bribing a juror and attempting to influence the verdict of a jury. The $10,000 cash bond, furnished at the time of his arrest by counsel for the McNamaras, again was made surety for Franklin's appearance.

George N. Lockwood, a venireman who was arrested when Franklin was and later released, said Franklin told him he would see Darrow "and arrange how the money was to be paid."

Robert F. Bain, a juror who accepted a bribe, testified he came to do it and added Franklin had told him Darrow had given him the money "to use."

Franklin in court denied that he ever said anything of the sort. Attorney Darrow flatly denied any complicity in the affair.

MISTRIAL SEEMS LIKELY OUTCOME

Juror Mysteriously Disappears In Hyde Murder Case.

Kansas City, Dec. 12.—A mistrial of the second hearing of Dr. B. Clarke Hyde, charged with killing Colonel Thomas Swope, appears probable.

Made desperate by the sight of two of his children, from whom he had been separated for six weeks, in the courtroom last Saturday, Harry Walliron, one of the jurors, escaped from the jury's hotel quarters. The entire city police force and a dozen deputies from the county marshal's office have searched in vain for him since his absence was noted.

If Walliron is not located the eleven remaining jurors will be discharged, Judge Porterfield said. Or if the missing man is found and he cannot prove that he has not discussed the case during his absence the same action will be taken. Should he return in good health and swear that he has mentioned the trial to no one and the court is satisfied with his story the trial will proceed.

Fear that Walliron has killed himself grows hourly. He was in a highly agitated state when last seen, as, indeed, he had been almost every day since he was chosen a juror. He objected to serving when he was selected, saying that his business interests would not permit his absence. Later he was taken ill and begged piteously for his wife and children. After that his wife wrote him daily and he seemed more contented.

RUSSIANS DYING BY SCORE

Famine Threatens to Claim One Million Lives.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 9.—Russia is in the grip of a famine that threatens to claim more lives than that of 1891, when 800,000 died. The Free Economic society estimates the crop shortage at 50,000,000 tons.

In Ufa hundreds of children have lived for months on acorns, but these are almost exhausted. In the Samara province the people are eating dogs and shrubs, while scores are dying of starvation.

SUBMITTED TO CONGRESS

Report of Railroad Securities Commission.

Washington, Dec. 12.—The railroad securities commission, headed by President Arthur T. Hadley of Yale, has reported that it would be practically impossible at this time to place issues of railroad securities under federal control. The commission recommends that enforced publicity for all railroad financing is the most effective weapon against stock watering which the government has at its command.

SHERMAN NOT TO RUN AGAIN

Vice President, However, May Try to Succeed Dix.

Washington, Dec. 10.—It is said Vice President Sherman does not particularly aspire to a renomination. A close friend of Mr. Sherman said he did not believe the vice president had made up his mind on the subject.

It is reported that the vice president may be brought forward for governor of New York next fall.

LABOR LEADERS CONDEMN CRIME

American Federation Committee Issues Statement.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Branding John J. and James B. McNamara as "recreant to the good name and high ideals of labor" and expressing the satisfaction of organized labor that the "culprits have been commensurately punished for their crime," the McNamara ways and means committee of the American Federation of Labor, after a two-day conference here, issued a statement vigorously condemning the McNamaras for their "inhumanity" and declaring that organized labor should not be held "either legally or morally responsible for the crimes of an individual member."

The labor leaders assert that they "will welcome any investigation which either federal or state courts may undertake."

As to their knowledge of the crime to which the McNamaras confessed the committee in its statement asserts:

"We here and now, individually and collectively, declare that the first intimation of their guilt was conveyed by their confessions."

JACK JOHNSON.

Colored Fighter Says He Has Retired From the Ring.

JOHNSON RETIRES FROM RING

Colored Heavyweight Will Open Cafe in Chicago.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—Jack Johnson's fighting days are ended. Assuring his friends he will never fight again and weighing close to 300 pounds the colored heavyweight champion of the world sailed from Liverpool, Eng., for America. It is not of his own volition he is making the homeward trip. The serious sickness of his wife, who is dangerously ill with tuberculosis, has made it imperative for the champion to cancel foreign engagements and return as quickly as possible.

The champion's big racing car and a machine of foreign make which was purchased abroad have arrived at Chicago in charge of the chauffeur who toured foreign countries with Johnson. From members of his family it was learned that Jack will open a cafe on the South Side and devote his time to that on his retirement from the ring.

CHAUFFEUR CLEARS UP MURDER CASE

Tells Chicago Police Who Shot Mrs. Hattie Kaufman.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—Mystery surrounding the killing of Mrs. Hattie Kaufman, wife of Edmund Kaufman, a wealthy commission merchant, who was shot by robbers a week ago while returning home from a theater with her husband, was partly cleared, according to the police, by the arrest and confession of Thomas Jones, nineteen years old.

Jones is a chauffeur and the police say he admits having driven the automobile which carried three men to the scene of the crime on the North Side.

In his statement made to the police Jones implicated George Robinson, twenty-four years old, alias "Towhead;" John Stacey, twenty-four years old, said to be a bricklayer, and a man known to him only as Fred, who is about twenty years old.

Jones said robbery was the motive of the attack. The three men wanted by the police are believed to have left the city.

According to Captain Halpin, Jones confessed that on the evening of Dec. 2 he stole an automobile from in front of a South Side flat building, intending to take several of his girl friends for a ride.

He said later he met Robinson, Stacey and Fred and invited them for a ride. The chauffeur said that when they met Mr. and Mrs. Kaufman the men jumped out of the machine and ran toward the victims and a moment later a revolver shot was heard. He then drove the men to a South Side saloon, where he left them.

CANADIAN ELEVATORS BURN

One Million Bushels of Wheat, Oats and Barley Lost.

Owen Sound, Ont., Dec. 12.—Fire destroyed the elevator plant of the Canadian Pacific Railway company here, consisting of elevators A and B, two large wooden structures. One million bushels of wheat, oats and barley stored in the buildings were burned. The financial loss is heavy.

LUNA PARK BUILDINGS BURN

Fire at Coney Island Checked After Loss of $150,000.

New York, Dec. 12.—Fire threatened the destruction of Luna park, a great show place of Coney island, but was confined by firemen to the Luna park restaurant and an amusement resort adjoining. Both of these structures practically were destroyed at a loss of $150,000.

KENYON TO ASSIST FEDERAL LAWYERS

Iowa Senator Joins Counsel In Beef Barons' Trial.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—Selection of a jury to try the cases of ten Chicago meat packers who are charged with violating the Sherman anti-trust law's criminal provisions dragged slowly. Although there are twelve veniremen in the jury box apparently satisfactory to the packers it seemed probable that attorneys for the government would attempt to retire several upon peremptory challenges.

A second venire of fifty was ordered by Judge George A. Carpenter to report in the United States district court where the trial will be held.

The jury box contained three farmers, three merchants, a telephone inspector, a baker, a real estate agent, an engineer, a clerk and a tailor.

Prejudice against the meat wholesalers relieved many prospective jurors from service. Considerable emphasis was laid on the statute of limitations, which barred acts or accusations prior to September, 1907, from being considered in this case.

United States Senator W. S. Kenyon of Iowa, who has been connected with several government prosecutions of corporations, joined the staff of United States District Attorney James S. Wilkerson and will help in the prosecution. William Lawson, an assistant district attorney, also was added to the government force.

FOR RELIEF OF SETTLERS

Steenerson Introduces Bill to Extend Time of Entry.

Washington, Dec. 12.—A bill for the relief of settlers in Minnesota, Nebraska, the Dakotas and other states in the West was introduced in the house by Representative Steenerson. It provides that all persons who heretofore have filed declaratory statements and who under the present law are required to make entry by December, this year, shall be granted an extension of time to lapse May 15, 1912. The bill further provides that this extension shall not shorten the period of commutation or actual residence required by the homestead act.

GERMANS PAY HIGH RATE

Borrow Millions In Wall Street at 5½ to 6 Per Cent.

New York, Dec. 12.—A feature of the money market was the heavy borrowing by German banking interests at 5½ to 6 per cent for one year loans. The amount placed at these rates ran into millions of dollars and was accepted as public evidence of Germany's pressing needs.

Banking circles consider it not improbable that the demand will continue for the balance of the week and it is predicted that a higher rate will be established.

The Emperor's Bell.

One of the biggest bells in the world is in Cologne cathedral and is known as the "Gloriosa." It was cast from twenty-two French cannon captured in the Franco-Prussian war and was presented to the cathedral by the kaiser. It bears the German arms and two inscriptions. One, in Latin, expresses the emperor's gratitude for the divine mercy in granting him victory. The other, in German, declares: "I am the emperor's bell, and I proclaim his glory. I fill a sacred post, and I pray heaven to grant peace and prosperity to the German empire."

Wanted to Patent a Circus.

P. T. Barnum once came to the office to know if he could patent the three ring circus. In technical parlance his three ring circus was an aggregation and not a combination to produce a new result. Therefore it was not patentable, which information highly incensed the showman. "It will be adopted by every circus just as soon as I make it known," he declared. And it was.—Scientific American.

The Lonesome American Millionaire.

An English critic of American traits writing in the Metropolitan Magazine says: "In America the lot of the rich man is not a very happy one. He has very little to spend his money on. In England you might have an income of a hundred thousand pounds a year and still might possibly feel the want of money, because the means of spending money in England are almost unlimited. In America a man who had four or five feudal establishments, with great households of servants and dependents attached to each, a steam yacht, a racing stable and a stud of motor cars would be an isolated, lonely and unoccupied man. There would be no one to play with him. He might possess all these things, but he could not do anything with them. They do not belong to any recognized life in the country, whereas in England the man who is born to such possessions finds a whole society of other people also born to them whose life is spent in administering and using them, quite often with a grave sense of duty, self sacrifice and public service which is beyond the comprehension of any but the most intelligent Americans, simply because it is beyond their experience."

The First Flank Attack.

We have a record in the book of Joshua of "the stratagem whereby Ai was taken." This tells us how 5,000 men were set in ambush behind the city, so that when the king of Ai and his hosts were drawn forward to the fight a flank attack was made with overwhelming success by the warriors of Israel.

Not less disastrous was the fate of Leonidas and his brave little band of heroes when the Persians at Thermopylae, led by a traitor, took them in the rear, 480 B. C.

It was by a masterly maneuver nearly 300 years later that Hannibal dealt one of his heaviest blows against the hosts of Rome. Having concealed his brother Mago, with 2,000 horse and foot soldiers, among the reeds, he enticed the Roman forces across the river Trebia. The legions fought bravely and held their own until Mago, rising from ambush, attacked them in the rear and routed them.

Old Trotting Records.

Dexter, 2:17¼, held his record as champion for four years, when it was wrested from him by Goldsmith Maid in 1871, whose mile that year was 2:17. Three years later the Maid trotted to a new mark of 2:14, which was not beaten until 1878, when Rarus clipped three-quarters of a second from the mark. St. Julian and Maud S. followed soon after with new records of 2:11¼ and 2:10¼ respectively. This was in 1881, and the mare held her place against all comers from that year until 1885, when to a high wheeled sulky she trotted the fastest mile ever recorded at that time and possibly the best ever chronicled under the same conditions, her time being 2:08¾. Then along came the pneumatic tire with low wheel and exit the slow records, for since that innovation trotting marks have been held but a comparatively short time by any one horse.—Horseman.

SHE KNEW IT ALL

By HELEN WENTWORTH

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

When Miss Henderson went abroad her friends chaffed her in this wise:

"For mercy's sake, don't come home engaged to one of those stupid fortune hunting noblemen over there. He'll turn out a wife beater and make ducks and drakes with your money."

"Never fear," replied Miss Henderson, "that I shall be taken in, whatever I do. I am twenty-five years old, and a woman of twenty-five knows as much as she is ever going to know. I have cut my wisdom teeth, I assure you."

Miss Henderson did meet a nobleman, an Italian prince. Prince Baronetti was not as well off as some of his countrymen of title, but he was a good fellow and much respected. He fell desperately in love with Miss Henderson. That he was what he purported to be was manifest from the fact that he was a member of the Italian legation at Paris, where he met Miss Henderson. She was not averse to marrying a prince and gave Baronetti considerable encouragement.

However, if she married him it would be without love. The anticipation of being a princess was sufficient to induce her to marry a man she only respected, and the prince had great hopes of winning her. She told him that she was going to Rome and while there she would write him her acceptance or declination of his proposition.

"You will not marry me for love," said the prince gloomily.

"Why do you say that?"

"When a woman loves a suitor she will engage herself to him first and look into his affairs and his standing afterward. You are going to Rome to look into mine. If you find them satisfactory you will accept me; if not you will reject me."

Since this was the case Miss Henderson's denial was not very effective. However, she carried out her resolution and, finding the prince's status satisfactory in every particular, wrote him that she would marry him. Later she returned to Paris, where the two made their plans for their united future. Miss Henderson was to return to America, and the prince was to follow her in the spring. After their marriage he was to resign from the diplomatic service and stand for the Italian parliament.

When Miss Henderson bade goodby to her fiance it was with no especial regret on her part. But she was pleased with having secured a title and one of such high degree. She had taken pains to learn all about Baronetti and, remembering what her friends had said about marrying a stupid fortune hunting nobleman, thought how she would triumph over them in announcing her betrothal to a prince.

She had not long been on the ocean before the words of Baronetti that a woman in love engages herself first and looks up her lover's standing afterward occurred to her. On the steamer was Viscount Clarence Cheasley, an English nobleman, who, seeing her on deck the day after the vessel sailed, took such a violent fancy to her that he lost no time in securing a presentation. He was a handsome man and evidently a genuine British nobleman. Miss Henderson's brother had been a great deal in England, and she had often heard him speak of Cheasley. Mentioning the fact to the viscount, he said at once:

"Bob Henderson. I know him well. The last meeting we had in England was at the Ascot races. I remember it very well, since I borrowed a hundred pounds of him to back the favorite. I won, and we had a champagne supper in the evening to celebrate the event."

Miss Henderson was much pleased that her brother should have been so honored.

It was an eight day trip, short, but long enough for Miss Henderson to forget her Italian lover and give her heart to Cheasley. He proposed to her. She gave him an evasive answer, intending to write Baronetti that she had decided that she could not love him and must break the engagement.

Upon the arrival of the steamer Cheasley saw Miss Henderson to her carriage. He told her that he would not be able to visit her for a week or two, since he was going to Ottawa to see his especial friend, the governor general of Canada. The viscount was looking about him nervously and just before he closed the door handed the lady a gold headed cane, saying:

"Give that to Bob, with my compliments, and tell him I'll see him soon."

Miss Henderson was driven off, but the carriage was stopped at the end of the dock. A custom house officer opened the door and said:

"I'll trouble you for that cane."

Astonished, Miss Henderson gave it to him. He shook it and, hearing something rattle within, unscrewed the head and poured out a handful of diamonds.

"That cane, miss," he said, "was given you by Billy Mudge, one of the sharpest diamond smugglers in England or America. We were telegraphed that he was coming and have been on the lookout for him."

"He is Viscount Cheasley," gasped Miss Henderson, "and knows my brother."

"He was a tenant on the Cheasley estates and may have met your brother, but not as an equal."

Miss Henderson never mentioned this episode and is now Princess Baronetti.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutoinal treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Grimm Alfalfa

TO THE PUBLIC:

The extraordinary demand for the Grimm alfalfa, a very hardy strain of this invaluable forage plant, has rendered it difficult to secure the genuine articel, even at extraordinary prices. Those familiar with the market are aware that more seed is sold yearly under the name of Grimm alfalfa than is raised in many years. I am able to announce that arrangements have been made to supply a limited amount of genuine seed.

The history of the plant is simple. Mr. Grimm brought the seed from Germany some forty years ago and developed the variety on his farm near the Grimm homestead in Carver county. The seed now secured comes from a farm near the Grimm homestead and was produced the present season from stubble fifteen years old. Inasmuch as this stubble springs from seed obtained from the original Grimm fields, the pedigree of this seed is unquestioned. The supply is small and precious and it will be distributed for experimental purposes, as follows:

1. The price is fixed at $1.35 per pound, postage or express prepaid.

2. Orders from schools will be filled first.

3. Orders from individual farmers will be filled if the supply holds out.

4. Other conditions being equal, alls will be met in order of priority.

5. That all schools may have a chance to share in the distribution, no orders from individuals will be filled before January 1, 1912.

6. If more than five pounds be desired, the order should be divided, the supplementary order to be filled if the supply holds out.

7. All orders may be filled with the undersigned, or they may be sent to G. H. Booth, Stewartville, Minn.

8. Money must accompany the order.

For further information, address the undersigned.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

TWIGS FROM THE SPORT TREE

Wrestling and Basket Ball Occupy Center of Stage. Munson, Ada and Commercial Normal Win.

WRESTLING

Last Friday evening at the Lyceum Theatre Frank Munson, champion of Holt, threw William Kline, champion of the Soo Line, by means of the famous scissors hold after forty-six minutes of strenuous wrestling. After the first half the match was called off, owing to the fact that Kline had suffered a fracture of three ribs. Dr. Hieber says Kline is getting along nicely and that he should be able to go to work in a short time.

The Main Bout.

At 10:44 p. m., referee Smith announced the main bout, introducing Kline as the champion of the Soo Line, weighing 180 pounds, and Munson as the champion of Holt, weighing 170 pounds. The men shook hands and after sparring for holds for ten minutes Kline grabbed his opponent by the leg and threw him to the mat, but Munson was up on his feet in half a minute. The wrestlers were evenly matched and very fast, especially Munson. Kline was the aggressor and tried very hard to throw Munson, but he repeatedly broke away from dangerous holds. The room was rather warm and both men perspired freely. After twenty-six minutes Kline threw Munson to the mat and secured a full Nelson, which Munson immediately broke. From this time on Munson showed much more confidence. However, Kline was still the aggressor and tried hard for a fall. He secured several good holds, but could not keep them. Towards the end of the round the men were constantly down and up again, until finally Munson secured the scissors hold and Kline had to let go.

The Scissors Hold

When a wrestler secures the scissors hold he has his legs locked around the abdomen of his opponent and is in a position to use his hands either upon the upper or nether extremities of his victim. It may be used in connection with a leg or toe hold, or with a body or Nelson hold. The object of the "scissors" is to hold the wrestler securely and at the same time interfere with his respiration to such an extent that if he soon does not wriggle out of it he will be "all in." Whether or not this hold should be barred in civilized countries is an open question. The fact that Kline had his ribs broken may be looked upon as purely accidental.

The Priliminaries.

The preliminaries started with a wrestling match betwen Pat Mahone and Mr. Wasgren. Mahone was introduced as the champion of Ireland, and Wasgren as "Was-green" but he isn't green now. Wasgren won in straight falls, securing the first in seven and one-half minutes and the second in one and one-half minutes. The men put a creditable exhibition and were quite evenly matched, with perhaps a shade in favor of Wasgren in regard to strength.

The second preliminary was a 3-round boxing match between Joe Gilette, better known as Joe Gans, and Albert Teal, better known as Battling Nelson. The first round was Nelson's. He outpointed Gans and drew blood on him. The second round broke evenly. In the third round both men tried hard for a knockout, but neither could land the dreamland punch, tho Gans went to his corner a trifle groggy. Referee Smith declared the bout a draw.

BASKET BALL

Last Saturday evening at Ada, Minn., the local High School basket ball team went up against the Ada basket ball team, and lost by the score of 6 to 39. Ada has without a doubt the fastest High School team in this part of the state, and it is no disgrace to be beaten by them on their own floor, as they have trimmed the best teams in the state on the home boards.

The local team put up a much better game than in their recent tryout with McIntosh. They had many opportunities for baskets but, owing to a slight nervousness and the strangeness of the hall they were playing in, could not connect properly. The game was very clean as is evidenced by the fact that only one foul was called on Thief River and three on Ada thruout the entire game.

Fossum and Carter were the only men able to score for Thief River, Fossum securing a point for each foul committed by Ada and Carter securing one field goal. One point was awarded Thief River.

The next big game here will be early in January, when Ada will come hre to play.

The Score:

Thief River	F'd. g.	F'l. g.	F'ls. c.
Adolphs, l. f.	0	0	1

Fossum, c.	0	3	0
Iverson, r. g.	0	0	0

Final score 6, 1 pt. awarded.

Ada	F'd. g.	F'l. g.	F'ls. c.
Ralfe, l. f.	9	1	0

Final Score 39.

COMMERCIALS 33. PLUMMER SCOUTS 2.

Last Friday evening, in the local High School gym., the Commercial Normal basket ball team met the Plummer Scouts team and took them into camp to the tune of 33 to 2. The game was surprisingly interesting and the best of good feeling prevailed at all times.

Jacobson and Carlson were the stars for the Normal, the former scoring 15 points and the latter 10 points. Thompson and Ohm had even honors, each securing 4 points. Carlson at center very much outplayed his opponent, and almost invariably pushed the ball to one of his team-mates. "Jake's" basket throwing and Carlson's work at center were the features of the game.

The Plummer Scouts deserve high commendation for their sportsmanlike and gentlemenly conduct during the game. They were big, strong, well developed fellows; but were evidently out of practice in the game. They gallantly took their defeat and did not attempt any foul play when things went against them. On their part it was purely a question of not having had practice enough to be at all certain about making a basket, and the fact that they did get a single basket was looked upon as an accident. However, Plummer has the material for as good a team as travels the state.

The Commercial-Normal team has developed wonderfully since their last appearance, and exhibited considerable first-class team work. They have excellent material and ought to develop as good a team as any school in this neck of the prairie.

ALICE TEDDY THROWS "UNKNOWN."

Alice Teddy, the only bear in the world that skates on roller skates, appeared at the Lyceum this week. Beside holding the undisputed world's championship roller skating record among bears, Alice Teddy. This week ler of no mean ability. This week she wrestled an "Unknown" the best two out of three falls, no holds barred. The "Unknown" gave his age as 21 years and weight as 150 pounds. Alice Teddy gave her age as 4 years and weight as 217 pounds. Miss Alice secured the first and third falls, thereby winning the match. It was an excellent and amusing exhibition, a pleasant surprise to everybody present. In a wrestling Alice Teddy shows nearly a human intelligence and goes after the game like a veteran.

JUDGE SUSTAINS COMPLAINT

Case of J. A. Rawlston vs Carpenter Meehan and Maher will be heard.

Two actions have been started by J. A. Rawlston each for $2,000 against Michall Carpenter, John P. Meehan and John Maher as administrators of the estate of Pat and Mary Meehan.

The complaints set out that about a year ago while the Rawlston family were occupying rooms in the Meehan Building one of the radiators thru defect allowed steam to escape in such quantities that Morris Edward Rawlston the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Rawlston was scalded by this steam and sustained painful and permanent injuries about the face and head. His eyesight being permanently impaired.

The Plaintiff holds that the sudden escape of steam was due to defects in the heating plant and that the defendants, were responsible for this condition and alleges that due to these conditions his infant son was injured and asks to be re-imbursed to the amount of $2,000 for care for infant and also for $2,000 for his personal suffering from pain and future imperfectness.

The action was brought by Attorney Rowe of Crookston and the complaint was demurred to by Attorneys Stanton & Roberg for the defense, but the demurrer was overruled by Judge Grindeland and the case will be argued further.

This will be an interesting case if it goes to trial and will be watched with interest as it may establish a precedent.

A New White Hope

Rumors have been circulated this week to the effect that Thief River may have within its confines a new "white hope." If there is any truth in the report, it is time athletic promoter, Smith, was investigating.

Boost The Athletic Club.

Much boosting is being done towards the development of a city athletic club. Thief River has needed an athletic association for some time and has only been waiting for someone to start the ball rolling. Consider your duty to help keep the ball rolling in the right direction.

The gymnasium in the Auditorium is all that could be asked for in the way of an athletic room. All that is needed is an instructor, a little equipment, and permission from the city to use the room, provided the attending expenses are arranged to be paid for.

Dr. Booren, one of the members of the investigating committee, in an interview yesterday said: "We can not this evening report definitely on the athletic situation in other cities where athletic clubs have been formed, because we have not had time to receive and consider letters in response to our recent inquiries. However, we expect to make necessary arrangements for securing the gymnasium, and draft whatever by-laws are thought advisable."

LAFOLLETTE LEADS IN OHIO

Progressives Show much strength on Presidential Ballot in East.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—The following postal-card poll taken by the widely-circulated fortnightly magazine "Farm and Home" during the two months ending December 15, showed the following results. LaFollette's strength in New England and in the South, where the Taft managers have been making their most extravagant claims, is espically significant.

	LaFollette	Roosevelt	Taft.
New England	153	61	112
Middle States	459	57	210
Central West	910	99	289
Northwest	472	43	185
Western	205	10	99
The South	431	93	187
U. S. Total	2690	363	1062

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—As indicative of the strong LaFollettee sentiment in the President's own state of Ohio the following straw vote, which is but one of many, will be found valuable. It was taken on a preferential ballot. Each voter was asked to record for whom he voted in 1908 and his preference for 1912, the Republicans having the choice of Harmon, Taft and LaFollette, and the Democrats, Bryan and Wilson. Not all the voters filled out all the sections of the ballot and the poll, therefore, is in one sense imperfect. But in its definite pointing to LaFollette as the choice of the people there can be no mistaking the evidence.

The poll showed:

Taft	3
Fackler	1
Wilson	10
Harmon	16
Roosevelt	10
LaFollette	51

A Letter to The Editor

Minneapolis, Minn.,
Dec 22nd, 1911.

Editor, Thief River Press,
Thief River Falls, Minn.

My Dear Mr. Editor:

Our Immigration Commission have leased for a year with the privilege of three years a store building at 29 South Third Street, Minneapolis, for use as a permanent agricultural exhibit of the Northern Minnesota Development Association counties.

We believe all of the newspapers of northern Minnesota are deeply interested in this proposition and we respectfully ask that you give all publicity possible to the matter.

It is the intention of the Commission to keep on file all of the northern Minnesota papers who will send it to us gratuitously so that anyone coming in to look over the exhibit can also see the current copies of the local papers from each county.

We are asking the co-operation of everyone in your county in the gathering of exhibits for the headquarters. Also for financial aid for the enterprise. Mr. D. Shaw of Thief River Falls has been asked to receive the exhibits and contributions and forward the exhibits to Minneapolis, while the money will be sent to Mr. A. G. Wedge Jr., of the First National Bank of Bemidji, who is the treasurer of the Immigration Commission. Your hearty co-operation is asked in this work and it is hoped that this first year will prove to be fully up to all the wishes of the people of the northern counties.

Yours very truly,
W. R. Mackenzie,
Immigration Commissioner.

SIMPSON DENIED HIS AMBITION

Head of Legal Department Ruffled by Rebuffs from Smith and Eberhart.

It is a political development of today that Attorney General George T. Simpson twice has made application to be elevated to the Supreme Court bench, and as often has been refused.

The first disappointment came when he thought himself in line to be the successor to the late Justice Edwin A. Jaggard, the second when Justice David F. Simpson retired.

Second Refusal Ruffles Him.

It is taken by those who are in touch with the situation that his second refusal so ruffled his spirits as to make it comparatively easy for him to permit the publication of an interview he had with E. E. Smith, leader of the Republican organization, the purport of which Mr. Simpson heretofore has frequently discussed in private conversation.

Say Details Grow More Ealborate.

Those who have felt at odds with the attorney general have taken the pains to point out that, with each time he has related the conference with Mr. Smith, Mr. Simpson has elaborated on the details.

It has been known for some time that Attorney General Simpson desired a seat on the Supreme bench nearly as much as he wanted to be the Republican nominee for governor. Just a few days ago he addressed a letter to Mr. Smith, asking that pressure be brought to bear on Governor Eberhart, to have him succeed Justice David F. Simpson.

Was an Early Bird—But the Worm Was Abed.

When Justice Jaggard died, Gov. Eberhart was in Mankato. One of the first calls he had was a long distance telephone message from Attorney General Simpson asking for the appointment. Governor Eberhart told him that while he would like to name him, the place must go to Ramsey county and that he intended to appoint as Justice Jaggard's successor some one from that county.

Had Been Greasing the Rails.

Since that time, according to those close to the administration, Attorney General Simpson began to put grease on the track. In a number of opinions, it is said, he went out of his way to attempt to bring about Governor Eberhart's political downfall. The culmination, it is said, was the visit last August to Mr. Smith when requested the withdrawal of Governor Eberhart.

Mr. Goodrich Was Present.

Mr. Simpson has kept quiet the name of the third person who was present at the conference, but that also came to light this morning. C. G. Goodrich, president of the Twin City Rapid Transit company, a disinterested party, sat in at the conference. He did so purely at the request of Mr. Simpson. When Attorney General Simpson decided he wanted to run for governor and realized he needed Mr. Smith's indorsement, he called up Mr. Goodrich and asked him to arrange a meeting with Mr. Smith.

Stage Set in Street Railway Offices.

The program was for Mr. Simpson to call at Mr. Goodrich's office and then go over to see Mr. Smith. When Mr. Simpson arrived at Mr. Goodrich's office, Mr. Smith was there ahead of him and the demand that Eberhart be ditched was made then and there by Mr. Simpson. Mr. Smith refused absolutely to be a party to the affair.

J. J. Hill Also Had Discouraged Him.

Mr. Goodrich took no part in the conference, and, when Mr. Smith announced his decision, Mr. Simpson declared that he would retire from politics. Following this interview with Mr Smith, Attorney General Simpson reached the decision to resign. In speaking of the matter to a political friend, Mr. Simpson told him that he had been to J. J. Hill and to Arthur Norton of Winona in regard to his possible candidacy before he approa-

THE SECOND LYCEUM LECTURE

The Socialists of Thief River [illegible] had an interesting time on December 20th, when Dr. Ernest Untermau lectured on the subject of "Why Things Happen To Happen."

Among the startling but well supported statements of the speaker were many references from history, which threw a flood of new light upon many hitherto obscure happenings.

"The individual stalks largely thru the pages of our school histories," said Dr. Untermann. "Great men, out of all proportion with their environment, play with social and natural forces as a child plays with marbles.

"This individualistic and hero-worshipping history tells us nothing about the fundamental causes of historical happenings. It breeds illusions, paints perverted pictures of men and things.

"Workingmen, with prosperity badges on the labels of their coats and prosperity patches on the seats of their trousers, yell themselves haorse over their alleged liberty under the present system, which leaves them only the liberty to hunt for a master. They believe that the Declaration of Independence was written for their special beenfit, and that the Constitution of the United States guarantees them equal rights with bankers, captains of industry and millionaries.

"I am here to say that the Declaration of Independence does not mean what it says, and that it was never meant to mean what it says. Our Constitution is not a charter of popular Democracy, but a covenant of businessmen adopted in secret session for the purpose of preventing the mass of the people from having any share in the political government of this country.

"Not a single workingman signed the Declaration of Independence, not one workingman was present when the Constitution was discussed and adopted.

"To this day the government of this country is organized in such a way that the people have but a shadow of Democracy and the plutocrats have the substance of an oligarchy."

Referring to the true causes of the American Revolution, Dr. Untermann showed, that the Fathers of the Revolution were by no means inspired by the noble motive of realizing the eternal principles of Liberty, Equality and Justice, but by plain business considerations. And he made this so clear that even the old party voters who attended the lecture did not dare to challenge his presentation of facts.

That even morality and all higher beliefs are based upon changing material conditions and are altered when these conditions change, was illustrated by Dr. Untermann in various convincing ways.

"Everybody has noticed some time in his life," he said, "that people seldom practice what they preach. The careful observer can note every day that human lives are full of flagrant inconsistencies. Why is this? It is the force of our uncontrolled and unconscious environment over our minds.

"When Moses and the Children of Israel led a nomadic life in the desert, they believed that the doctrine of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth was inspired by God. To question the sacredness of this law [illegible] death to the doubter. The Jews under such an environment could survive only by killing their enemi[illegible] and avenging the death of their [illegible]riors. To be meek and for[illegible] under such circumstances mea[illegible] be annihilated.

"But when the Jews had been settled for centuries in the promised land of Canaan, when kings, high priests and wealthy parasites lived upon the products of the toiling masses, when the Roman conqueror established a foreign rule on top the class rule, then new prophets arose and taught a new morality. And the greatest prophet of all, the Carpenter of Nazareth, declared that the code of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth was a barbarian morality unworthy of a civilized nation. He taught that men should do unto others as they would that others should do unto them. Instead of revelling in bloody sacrifices and war, the Jewish God then demanded peace and the brotherhood of Man.

"Whether this new policy was of divine origin or not, there can be no doubt that it was the wisest thing for the working people of that time to advocate. The Jews as a nation were too weak to overthrow the Ror[illegible] Empire. The working people had [illegible] political rights. Violent rebelli[illegible] were useless. And the time for a [illegible]litical revolution of the working class had not matured. It was wise to preach meekness and submission under such circumstances. Nonresistance spelled a long life to the slave. If he did not offer the left cheek when his master slapped him on the right cheek, if he dared to resent the insult, he was thrown to the wild animals in the arena or crucified under a thousand tortures.

"So they looked heavenward for one Great God, who should bring down to them a Kingdom, in which there should be no war, no poverty, no master, but peace and good-will and full and plenty."

The speaker pointed out the fact, so often bemoaned by the good people of today, that it was not possible to be a successful business man and practice the Golden Rule at the same time.

He showed that all the many ludicrous inconsistencies in the public and private actions of our great old party statesmen were due to this inevitable clash between private interests and human goodness. He showed how degenerating the present system is upon men, women and children of all classes. And he proved that the human soul could not rise into a higher life, until the shakkles of private property in means of life and the chains of wage slavery were struck from the limbs of Labor.

"Mankind is driven forward in spite of itself," exclaimed the speaker "The ruling class itself is compelled to undermine its own foundation and to free the working class from its rule. The workers, united i[illegible] trially and politically in a clas[illegible] themselves, will build up a new better society, in which all men [illegible] women shall have equal economic [illegible] political opportunities. The human soul, freed from the evil forces that dominated it under Capitalism, will soar to greater hights than the ancient poets and philosophers ever dreamt. Workers unite! Forward to the Co-operative Commonwealth!"

Albin Johnson of Austin, Minn., spent Monday visiting at the home of Rev. Lasseson. Mr. Johnson also filed on a quarter section of alnd near Germantown and expects to move his family here in the spring.

START OUT RIGHT.

Farming is now considered as a business. To be successful as a business man, the farmer must adopt business principles. He should know the cost of production of the various farm products, and which products can be grown and sold at the greatest net profit and with the least draft on the resources of his farm. He should know what he has invested in his business, and the rate of interest his investment is paying; also whether he himself is earning anything, or whether his income is earned altogether by his money. If the latter, he may as well invest his money in 6 per cent mortgages and take it easy himself.

The only way to learn these facts is to take an inventory of the farm and equipment; start a simple accounting system, carrying it through the year, and taking a balance at the close of the year. The accounting system need not be complex, nor the labor exacting. January 1st to April 1st is a good time to take an inventory, as the stock is at its lowest usually during that season. There are many simple forms of accounting suitable to the farmers' needs, any one of which forms may be used.

The winter season offers many spare moments for studying these systems and putting one of them into use. Why not utilize the moments, and do something that will be useful and at the same time add to the knowledge of the farm business? Often a grown son or daughter may be induced to become the accountkeeper, thus getting a good business training and improving the mind at the same time. And it is surprising how much use will be made of the facts recorded, when once available. If any farmer is interested enough to desire to start a set of farm accounts, the Farm Management Division of the Minnesota Agricultural College will advise a system of accounting and aid in installing it.—Andrew Boss, Division of Agr. Minn College, of Agriculture.

Jean Valjean Didn't Fit in China.

The eloquent advocate, Maitre Gans once went to China with his cousin, Marcel Bing. When they found themselves at Sinanfou, in the heart of the Celestial empire, they made the acquaintance of a certain Ian, an underprefect, who prided himself on his literary attainments. He begged them to dine with him and served them a European repast, of which the first dish was a preserve of hot cucumbers. In the course of the feast he apprised them that a beautiful French novel had just been translated into Chinese. "It is," Ian explained, "the history of a very honest brigand who succors a poor unfortunate girl. He is the defender of the weak, and he has much trouble to escape a gendarme who has sworn his destruction. Do you know the writer? He is called Igterio?"

"Victor Hugo," corrected M. Gans, who with infinite perspicacity had comprehended that the novel "Les Miserables" was meant.

"Perhaps," said Ian. "It may be that I do not pronounce well. In China we call him Igterio. His romance is interesting, but it is a little disconcerting. There never was an honest brigand in China."—Cri de Paris.

London's Crystal Palace.

Crystal palace was originally built in Hyde park for the great exhibition of 1851, being afterward removed to its present site and re-erected. At the first state opening of the palace by Queen Victoria it was urged that the usual artillery salute should not be fired, the reason given being that the concussion would shiver the glass roof and the company assembled below, including her majesty, would be cut into mincemeat. Dire were the predictions of the scaremongers when the design for the palace was made public. The first gale, they said, would inevitably wreck it, while the heat engendered by the sun pouring its rays upon the domed glass roof would be so terrific that no human beings could withstand it. Consequently if they escaped an avalanche of glass they would be roasted to death inside the case.

A Royal Superstition.

Canterbury cathedral, England, like most Catholic cathedrals, is decorated with innumerable niches for statues. At Canterbury a series of these niches is occupied with statues of kings and queens of England, and there are only four niches left unoccupied. An old tradition has it that when all the niches are filled the throne of England will come to an end. Queen Victoria was approached with a view to a statue of herself being placed in one of the four remaining niches, but her late majesty was aware of the old tradition and refused. One wonders whether in the future there will be four monarchs of England sufficiently indifferent to superstition to defy the tradition and allow their effigies to fill the unoccupied spaces.

Rabbits and Squirrels as Swimmers.

A funny though able swimmer is the rabbit. He submerges his body with the exception of head and tail. The latter sticks away up into the air, and his hind legs make "soap suds" as he churns the water madly to get away. But with all his awkwardness he is a swift swimmer and is only beaten by the squirrel among the land animals.

The squirrel swims with his heavy tail sunk away down in the water and his head held high. He cleaves the waves like a duck, and a man in a rowboat has all he can do to keep abreast of the swimming squirrel.

CLAYTON'S CORDIAL

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

When you take a spinster who has got to be forty years old, who has got a large mouth, whose nose tips up at the end, who has a squint in one eye, who is tall and scrawny and has a limp, you must figure out that her chances of getting married are no more than one in a thousand.

Such a woman was Sarah Clayton of Harpersville. For thirty years she had been the champion homely girl and woman of Bennett county. She realized it, but she couldn't help it. Sarah's father and mother didn't like her looks at all. Some folks were mean enough to say that hastened their end. Sarah had two brothers. They ran away and went west to be killed by the Indians. Some folks say that if Sarah had been a reasonably good looking girl neither brother would have left home. At the age of twenty-eight she was an orphan and brotherless, and, while the property she inherited was enough to give her a comfortable living, it was not enough to bring a husband.

While Sarah realized all the drawbacks, she was not entirely discouraged. She had a belief that something would happen some day, and she didn't go around making herself and other folks miserable. Twelve years came and went and nothing happened, but she was still on the job.

At the state election with the temperance question as an issue, Bennett county and four others surrounding it went dry—no more of the foamy, no more corn juice.

You can't figure out what this temperance question had to do with Sarah Clayton, who scarcely knew what was going on until Bennett county was as dry as a bone. Well, homely as she was, Sarah understood the man side of human nature very well. She knew there would be an intense longing for the unattainable.

After the temperance movement was in full swing and the pinch was on "Clayton's cordial" appeared. It passed as a soft drink. Some folks said it was cider, some root beer and some thought it came under the head of ginger ale. Whatever it was, it bore the label as above, and it jumped into popularity at once. It filled an aching void. It soothed and comforted. It quenched that longing in the neck. It did more. It saved hundreds of homes on the point of being wrecked. It had got so that not one husband out of twenty in the five counties could speak a decent word to his wife once in three days. And then there were loss of ambition, indigestion, headaches, pains in the stomach and giddiness, and all these things the cordial was warranted to end and did drive away in short order.

Sarah made the first fifty bottles with her own hands. Then she had to hire a boy, then she had [illegible]

"But I am afraid you are actuated by mercenary motives," she said.

"Why, I've got enough to keep us both and am making more all the time."

"But you see I have made a whole lot of money out of my cordial."

"Cordial be hanged! If you have any money use it to buy clothes with."

"And you are not after the recipe?"

"Never had a recipe in my life and don't want one. I want you."

After the marriage Sarah was willing to sell the recipe. When the best offer had been reached she wrote it down:

"Old cider twenty parts.

"Ginger, two parts.

"Horseradish, five parts.

"Brandy, seventy-three parts."

"That is all," she said.

"And you've made $5,000 and a husband out of it?"

"Why—why, I think I've done fairly well for a homely old maid."

ENDS WINTER'S TROUBLES.

To many, winter is a season of trouble. The frost-bitten toes and fingers, chapped hands and lips, chilblains, cold-sores, red and rough skins, prove this. But such troubles fly before Bucklen's Arnica Salve. A trial convinces. Greatest healer of Burns, Boils, Piles, Cuts, Bruises, Eczema and Sprains. Only 25c at all Druggists.

CARE OF COLTS ON THE FARM.

There is a great tendency on the part of many to neglect the colts on the farm during the winter. It too often happens that there is an apparent shortage of feed, and the result is that colts are slighted. One way of ruining a young colt is to have his growth stunted during the first year or two. Most of the colts on the farm get a good start the first six months of their lives, from the fact that they are allowed to suckle the dam during that time. Early fall provides them with good pasture and possibly they have been receiving some oats or shared a part of the feed of the mare. Such treatment puts them in good shape for the winter, but liberal feeding must be kept up if a strong, well developed and matured horse is expected. The colt's system requires a considerable amount of bone and muscle building material, and this can [illegible] some [illegible] of corn [illegible] for the growing colt [illegible] be con[illegible] growing colt [illegible] compelled to [illegible] straw [illegible] a [illegible]

The question is often asked: Why do we find so many promising colts [illegible] during the fall and such poor yearlings? The foregoing statement is in part explanatory of such a condition of affairs.

One of the best forms of investment on the farm is the liberal feeding of farm animals of all kinds; and the colt is no exception. A well-bred colt, if properly taken care of and fed the right kind of feed during his first three years of life, will bring from 75 to $100 more when three years old than the one that is neglected and poorly fed. Good young horses are always in demand on the market, and can only be supplied from the farms where colts receive the proper care and treatment.—W. H. Tombave, Extension Division Minn. Agr. College.

START OUT RIGHT.

Farming is now considered as a business. To be successful as a business man, the farmer must adopt business principles. He should know the cost of production of the various farm products, and which products can be grown and sold at the greatest net profit and with the least draft on the resources of his farm. He should know what he has invested in his business, and the rate of interest his investment is paying; also whether he himself is earning anything, or whether his income is earned altogether by his money. If the latter, he may as well invest his money in 6 per cent mortgages and take it easy himself.

The only way to learn these facts is to take an inventory of the farm and equipment; start a simple accounting system, carrying it through the year, and taking a balance at the close of the year. The accounting system need not be complex, nor the labor exacting. January 1st to April 1st is a good time to take an inventory, as the stock is at its lowest usually during that season. There are many simple forms of accounting suitable to the farmers' needs, any one of which forms may be used.

The winter season offers many spare moments for studying these systems and putting one of them into use. Why not utilize the moments, and do something that will be useful and at the same time add to the knowledge of the farm business? Often a grown son or daughter may b induced to become the accountkeeper, thus getting a good business training and improving the mind at the same time. And it is surprising how much use will be made of the facts recorded, when once available. If any farmer is interested enough to desire to start a set of farm accounts, the Farm Management Division of the Minnesota Agricultural College will advise a system of accounting, and aid in installing it.—Andrew Boss, Division of Agr. Minn College, of Agriculture.

Jean Valjean Didn't Fit In China.

The eloquent advocate, Maitre Gans once went to China with his cousin, Marcel Bing. When they found themselves at Sinanfou, in the heart of the Celestial empire, they made the acquaintance of a certain Ian, an underprefect, who prided himself on his literary attainments. He begged them to dine with him and served them a European repast, of which the first dish was a preserve of hot gooseberries. In the course of the feast he apprised them that a beautiful French novel had just been translated into Chinese. "It is," Ian explained, "the history of a very honest brigand. He succors a poor unfortunate girl. He is the defender of the weak, and he has much trouble to escape a gendarme who has sworn his destruction. Do you know the writer? He is called Igtorio?"

"Victor Hugo," corrected M. Gans, who with infinite perspicacity had comprehended that the novel "Les Miserables" was meant.

"Perhaps," said Ian. "It may be that I do not pronounce well. In China we call him Igtorio. His romance is interesting, but it is a little disconcerting. There never was an honest brigand in China."—Cri de Paris.

London's Crystal Palace.

Crystal palace was originally built in Hyde park for the great exhibition of 1851, being afterward removed to its present site and re-erected. At the first state opening of the palace by Queen Victoria it was urged that the usual artillery salute should not be fired, the reason given being that the concussion would shiver the glass roof and the company assembled below, including her majesty, would be cut into mincemeat. Dire were the predictions of the scaremongers when the design for the palace was made public. The first gale, they said, would inevitably wreck it, while the heat engendered by the sun pouring its rays upon the domed glass roof would be so terrific that no human beings could withstand it. Consequently if they escaped an avalanche of glass they would be roasted to death inside the case.

A Royal Superstition.

Canterbury cathedral, England, like most Catholic cathedrals, is decorated with innumerable niches for statues. At Canterbury a series of these niches is occupied with statues of kings and queens of England, and there are only four niches left unoccupied. An old tradition has it that when all the niches are filled the throne of England will come to an end. Queen Victoria was approached with a view to a statue of herself being placed in one of the four remaining niches, but her late majesty was aware of the old tradition and refused. One wonders whether in the future there will be four monarchs of England sufficiently indifferent to superstition to defy the tradition and allow their effigies to fill the unoccupied spaces.

Rabbits and Squirrels as Swimmers.

A funny though able swimmer is the rabbit. He submerges his body with the exception of head and tail. The latter sticks away up into the air, and his hind legs make "soap suds" as he churns the water madly to get away. But with all his awkwardness he is a swift swimmer and is only beaten by the squirrel among the land animals.

The squirrel swims with his heavy tail sunk away down in the water and his head held high. He cleaves the waves like a duck, and a man in a rowboat has all he can do to keep abreast of the swimming squirrel.

CLAYTON'S CORDIAL

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

When you take a spinster who has got to be forty years old, who has got a large mouth, whose nose tips up at the end, who has a cast in one eye, who is tall and scrawny and has a limp, you must figure out that her chances of getting married are no more than one in a thousand.

Such a woman was Sarah Clayton of Harpersville. For thirty years she had been the champion homely girl and woman of Bennett county. She realized it, but she couldn't help it. Sarah's father and mother didn't like her looks at all. Some folks were mean enough to say that hastened their end. Sarah had two brothers. They ran away and went west to be killed by the Indians. Some folks say that if Sarah had been a reasonably good looking girl neither brother would have left home. At the age of twenty-eight she was an orphan and brotherless, and, while the property she inherited was enough to give her a comfortable living, it was not enough to bring a husband.

While Sarah realized all the drawbacks, she was not entirely discouraged. She had a belief that something would happen some day, and she didn't go around making herself and other folks miserable. Twelve years came and went and nothing happened, but she was still on the job.

At the state election, with the temperance question as an issue, Bennett county and four others surrounding it went dry—no more of the foamy, no more corn juice.

You can't figure out what this temperance question had to do with Sarah Clayton, who scarcely knew what was going on until Bennett county was as dry as a bone. Well, homely as she was, Sarah understood the man side of human nature very well. She knew there would be an intense longing for the unattainable.

After the temperance movement was in full swing and the pinch was on "Clayton's cordial" appeared. It passed as a soft drink. Some folks said it was cider, some root beer and some thought it came under the head of ginger ale. Whatever it was, it bore the label as above, and it jumped into popularity at once. It filled an aching void. It soothed and comforted. It quenched that longing in the neck. It did more. It saved hundreds of homes on the point of being wrecked. It had got so that not one husband out of twenty in the five counties could speak a decent word to his wife once in three days. And then there were loss of ambition, indigestion, headaches, pains in the stomach and giddiness, and all these things the cordial was warranted to end and did drive away in short order.

Sarah made the first fifty bottles with her own hands. Then she had to hire a boy, then she had [illegible] "Clayton's cordial." It [illegible] made [illegible] my orders [illegible] had calls [illegible] buy her [illegible] town [illegible] for it. [illegible] The [illegible] The [illegible] the cordial [illegible] family [illegible]

And one [illegible] bachelor [illegible] an old [illegible] spent part of his life in the woods and the farm [illegible] thought of [illegible] He wasn't a bad looking man [illegible] a good character. He happened to see Sarah Clayton in the [illegible] and in the jerk of a lamb's tail he was in love. In his eyes she was the most charming woman he had ever seen. She must be his or life would be naught to him. Without having heard of her cordial from any one he followed her home and told his love and gave her half an hour to make up her mind.

"But I am afraid you are actuated by mercenary motives," she said.

"Why, I've got enough to keep us both and am making more all the time."

"But you see I have made a whole lot of money out of my cordial."

"Cordial be hanged! If you have any money use it to buy clothes with."

"And you are not after the recipe?"

"Never had a recipe in my life and don't want one. I want you."

After the marriage Sarah was willing to sell the recipe. When the best offer had been reached she wrote it down:

"Old cider, twenty parts.
"Ginger, two parts.
"Horseradish, five parts.
"Brandy, seventy-three parts."

"That is all," she said.

"And you've made $5,000 and a husband out of it?"

"Why—why, I think I've done fairly well for a homely old maid."

Mutual Discontent.

"Woman will be famed as well as man!" she ejaculated as she threw down the book.

"Yes," responded old Cynicus, "for untold ages."—Boston Commonwealth.

ENDS WINTER'S TROUBLES.

To many, winter is a season of trouble. The frost-bitten toes and fingers, chapped hands and lips, chillblains, cold-sores, red and rough skins, prove this. But such troubles fly before Bucklen's Arnica Salve. A trial convinces. Greatest healer of Burns, Boils, Piles, Cuts, Bruises, Eczema and Sprains. Only 25c at all Druggists.

CARE OF COLTS ON THE FARM.

There is a great tendency on the part of many to neglect the colts on the farm during the winter. It too often happens that there is an apparent shortage of feed, and the result is that colts are slighted. One way of ruining a young colt is to have his growth stunted during the first year or two. Most of the colts on the farm get a good start the first six months of their lives, from the fact that they are allowed to suckle the dam during that time. Early fall provides them with good pasture and possibly they have been receiving some oats or shared a part of the feed of the mare. Such treatment puts them in good shape for the winter, but liberal feeding must be kept up if a strong, well developed and matured horse is expected. The colt's system requires a considerable amount of bone and muscle-building material, and this can [illegible] had by feeding nitrogenous [illegible] little bran, oil meal, and, if obtainable, some clover hay. The feeding of corn, as often practiced, is [illegible] for the growing colt [illegible] better be confined to the [illegible] horses. Access to the straw [illegible] hurt a growing colt, but it should not be compelled to rely on the straw pile for a livelihood.

The question is often asked: Why do we find so many promising colts at the county fairs during the fall and such poor yearlings? The foregoing statement is in part explanatory of such a condition of affairs.

One of the best forms of investment on the farm is the liberal feeding of farm animals of all kinds; and the colt is no exception. A well-bred colt, if properly taken care of and fed the right kind of feed, during his first three years of life, will bring from 75 to $100 more when three years old than the one that is neglected and poorly fed. Good young horses are always in demand on the market, and can only be supplied from the farms where colts receive the proper care and treatment.—W. H. Tombave, Extension Division Minn. Agr. College.

LIGHTNING KILLS FEW.

In 1906 lightning killed only 169 people in this whole country. One's chances of death by lightning are less than two in a million. The chance of death from liver, kidney or stomach trouble is vastly greater, but not if Electric Bitters be used, as Robert Madsen, of West Burlington, Ia., proved. Four doctors gave him up after eight months of suffering from virulent liver trouble and yellow jaundice. He was then completely cured by Electric Bitters. They're the best stomach, liver nerve and kidney remedy and blood purifier on earth. Only 50c at all Druggists.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

Hunting In Russia.

Nearly all the dogs used in hunting wild animals in Russia not only attack but endeavor to devour their quarry. With the borzoi and gontscho it is entirely different. At an early age they are put into training with old and experienced dogs, so that they soon learn how to properly attack their adversary. They are slipped three at a time after a single wolf. When one of the dogs gets nearly side by side with the wolf he makes one bold spurt and with the fore shoulder strikes the wolf so that he is knocked over or else grips him by the neck. Each of the other dogs, coming up, strikes the quarry in the same manner as he tries to rise, finally pinning him to the earth, so engaging him until the hunter arrives. The sportsman then either kills the animal or takes him alive, the latter being much more exciting.—Wide World.

Turned It to His Advantage.

An instance of the usefulness to other people of illegible handwriting is included in the vast collection of anecdote and fable that deals with the writing of Horace Greeley. One compositor could never get used to his appalling scrawl, and, in rage at the continual "typographical errors," Greeley sent a note to the foreman ordering him to discharge the man at once, as he was too inefficient a workman to be any longer employed on the Tribune. The foreman did it, but the compositor got hold of the note and took it to another office, where the foreman, after much puzzling, finally read it "good and efficient workman and long employed on the Tribune" and promptly took him on.—London Chronicle.

Some Shakespeare Statistics.

A Shakespearean enthusiast with a turn for statistics has discovered that the plays contain 106,007 lines and 814,780 words. "Hamlet" is the longest play, with 3,930 lines, and the "Comedy of Errors" the shortest, with 1,777 lines. Altogether the plays contain 1,277 characters, of which 157 are females. The longest part is that of Hamlet, who has 11,610 words to deliver. The part with the longest word in it is that of Costard in "Love's Labor's Lost," who tells Moth that he is "not so long by the head as honorificabilitudinitatibus."

Sticking to It.

Magistrate—Now can you describe the horse in question? How big was it, for instance? Witness—It was sixteen feet, y'r honor. Magistrate—Come, come! Remember you are on your oath! Don't you mean sixteen hands? Witness—Indeed, this, it was hands I meant. And did I say feet, y'r honor? Ah, well, I'm on my oath, so we'll let it stand. Sure, this, it was sixteen feet, y'r honor.—London Punch.

Depends.

"Do you prefer the expression 'among' or 'amid?'"

"It depends on circumstances. If you are referring to a pretty girl at Annapolis in June week it would be awkward to say 'amid middies.'"—Baltimore American.

LIGHTNING KILLS FEW.

In 1906 lightning killed only 169 people in this whole country. One's chances of death by lightning are less than two in a million. The chance of death from liver, kidney or stomach trouble is vastly greater, but not if Electric Bitters be used, as Robert Madsen, of West Burlington, Ia., proved. Four doctors gave him up after eight months of suffering from virulent liver trouble and yellow jaundice. He was then completely cured by Electric Bitters. They're the best stomach, liver nerve and kidney remedy and blood purifier on earth. Only 50c at all Druggists.

Both Sides.

She—Just look at the trouble money can get you into. He—Yes, but look at the trouble it can get you out of.—Louisville Post.

[illegible] Battles Are Won.

Napoleon [illegible] the way in which battles are gained: "In all battles a moment occurs when the bravest troops after having made the greatest efforts feel inclined to run. That terror proceeds from a want of confidence in their own courage, and it only requires a slight opportunity, a pretense, to restore confidence to them. The art is to give rise to the opportunity and to invent the pretense. At Arcola I won the battle with twenty-five horsemen. I seized that moment of lassitude, gave every man a trumpet and gained the day with this handful. You see that two armies are two bodies, which meet and endeavor to frighten each other. A moment of panic occurs, and that moment must be turned to advantage. When a man has been present in many actions he distinguishes that moment without difficulty. It is as easy as casting up an addition."

Hunting In Russia.

Nearly all the dogs used in hunting wild animals in Russia not only attack but endeavor to devour their quarry. With the borzoi and gontscho it is entirely different. At an early age they are put into training with old and experienced dogs, so that they soon learn how to properly attack their adversary. They are slipped three at a time after a single wolf. When one of the dogs gets nearly side by side with the wolf he makes one bold spurt and with the fore shoulder strikes the wolf so that he is knocked over or else grips him by the neck. Each of the other dogs, coming up, strikes the quarry in the same manner as he tries to rise, finally pinning him to the earth, so engaging him until the hunter arrives. The sportsman then either kills the animal or takes him alive, the latter being much more exciting.—Wide World.

Turned It to His Advantage.

An instance of the usefulness to other people of illegible handwriting is included in the vast collection of anecdote and fable that deals with the writing of Horace Greeley. One compositor could never get used to his appalling scrawl, and, in rage at the continual "typographical errors," Greeley sent a note to the foreman ordering him to discharge the man at once, as he was too inefficient a workman to be any longer employed on the Tribune. The foreman did it, but the compositor got hold of the note and took it to another office, where the foreman, after much puzzling, finally read it "good and efficient workman and long employed on the Tribune" and promptly took him on.—London Chronicle.

Some Shakespeare Statistics.

A Shakespearean enthusiast with a turn for statistics has discovered that the plays contain 106,007 lines and 814,780 words. "Hamlet" is the longest play, with 3,930 lines, and the "Comedy of Errors" the shortest, with 1,777 lines. Altogether the plays contain 1,277 characters, of which 157 are females. The longest part is that of Hamlet, who has 11,610 words to deliver. The part with the longest word in it is that of Costard in "Love's Labor's Lost," who tells Moth that he is "not so long by the head as honorificabilitudinitatibus."

Sticking to It.

Magistrate—Now can you describe the horse in question? How big was it, for instance? Witness—It was sixteen feet, y'r honor. Magistrate—Come, come! Remember you are on your oath! Don't you mean sixteen hands? Witness—Indeed, thin, it was hands I meant. And did I say feet, y'r honor? Ah, well, I'm on my oath, so we'll let it stand. Sure, thin, it was sixteen feet, y'r honor.—London Punch.

Depends.

"Do you prefer the expression 'amongst' or 'amid?'"

"It depends on circumstances. If you are referring to a pretty girl at Annapolis in June week it would be awkward to say 'amid middies.'"—Baltimore American.

LIGHTNING KILLS FEW.
In 1906 lightning killed only 169 people in this whole country. One's chances of death by lightning are less than two in a million. The chance of death from liver, kidney or stomach trouble is vastly greater, but not if Electric Bitters be used, as Robert Madsen, of West Burlington, Ia., proved. Four doctors gave him up after eight months of suffering from virulent liver trouble and yellow jaundice. He was then completely cured by Electric Bitters. They're the best stomach, liver, nerve and kidney remedy and blood purifier on earth. Only 50c at all Druggists.

Both Sides.

She—Just look at the trouble money can get you into. He—Yes, but look at the trouble it can get you out of.—Louisville Post.

One compositor could never get used to his appalling scrawl, and, in rage at the continual "typographical errors," Greeley sent a note to the foreman ordering him to discharge the man at once, as he was too inefficient a workman to be any longer employed on the Tribune. The foreman did it, but the compositor got hold of the note and took it to another office, where the foreman, after much puzzling, finally read it "good and efficient workman and long employed on the Tribune" and promptly took him on.—London Chronicle.

Some Shakespeare Statistics.

A Shakespearean enthusiast with a turn for statistics has discovered that the plays contain 106,007 lines and 814,780 words. "Hamlet" is the longest play, with 3,930 lines, and the "Comedy of Errors" the shortest, with 1,777 lines. Altogether the plays contain 1,277 characters, of which 157 are females. The longest part is that of Hamlet, who has 11,610 words to deliver. The part with the longest word in it is that of Costard in "Love's Labor's Lost," who tells Moth that he is "not so long by the head as honorificabilitudinitatibus."

Sticking to It.

Magistrate—Now can you describe the horse in question? How big was it, for instance? Witness—It was sixteen feet, y'r honor. Magistrate—Come, come! Remember you are on your oath! Don't you mean sixteen hands? Witness—Indeed, this, it was hands I meant. And did I say feet, y'r honor? Ah, well, I'm on my oath, so we'll let it stand. Sure, this, it was sixteen feet, y'r honor.—London Punch.

PARK PROPOSITION

The offer given last week by George Elder should be considered seriously. In fact it was never meant as a joke. Mr. Elder was in earnest in making his proposition and he certainly made it good enough so that the city can afford to consider it.

He asks for only $500 cash and is willing to take the rest in five annual payments at 6 per cent. The value of this property will increase more than at the rate of 6 per cent per annum in the future so the city could well figure the defered payments as not carrying any interest.

One thing is a certainty. We need a park and need it badly. Can we get a better location and better terms? If not why not take this proposition under consideration immediately. There are few things that could give the people in general more enjoyment in general than a nice park and in addition to that it is a good investment in the way of advertising the enterprise of our city.

MONEY WILL BE SPENT HERE.

Miss Emma Backe, local secretary of the Rde Cross Anti-tuberculosis Society, has been informed by C. Easton, executive secretary of the State Association, that the money raised in Pennington county through the sale of Red Cross Christmas and New Year seals will be kept in the county for use by the local society as them deem best.

Mr. Easton says that he wishes to encourage the Association work in the new county of Pennington. The local Association will keep the money for seals sold and return the unsold seals. You can help swell the fund by getting busy at once and buying New Year seals. They make every attractive and appropriate stickers for New Year mail.

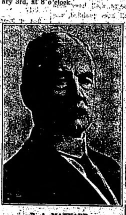
Possibly you have forty acres in corn, which yields only the Minnesota average of 30 bushels to the acre, or 1,200 bushels in all; worth, at 60 cents a bushel, $720. You figure that, if you could buy another forty acres from your neighbor, you could raise twice as much, and make your income from corn $1,440. But there are other farmers, not far aawy from you, who on similar land, but by the use of improved methods, get 60 bushels of corn per acre. These men get $1,440 where you get only $720. Why not adopt their methods instead of coveting your neighbor's land? The labor of man and horse that will produce 60 bushels per acre is but little more than that required to produce only 30 The secret of the larger yield, in most cases, is found in a careful selection of seed, a good rotation of crops, and manuring.—C. R. Barns, Ex. Div., Minn. Agr. College.

Explosion at Evelyn Hotel

This morning at 7 o'clock the air-tight coal-heater used at the Hotel Evelyn for heating water, and located in the basement directly under the dining room, exploded due to an over accumulation of gas. The explosion, which could be heard for sevaeri blocks, caused all the windows in the dining room and one window in the lobby to be broken. No persons were injured, but several were badly shaken up and many were much frightened. The fire department was called out, they reporting promptly. However, the danger from fire was slight. Immediatelyafter the explosion a body of men started work to make the necessary repairs. This accident will put Mr. Provencher to a lot of trouble and expense, yet he is very thankful that it wasn't worse.

THE GROWTH OF SOCIALISM

The Socialists are congratulating themselves upon the success that is attending their Lyceum course of lectures. They have put a lot of money and work into the present campaign, and they are delighted that, from their point of view, the investment is turning out to be a good one. Though only two out of the five lectures in the series have so far been delivered, they have resulted, according to our informant, in securing many new members for the party, in swelling the circulation here of Socialist papers, in arousing considerable interest among those who have hitherto paid little attention to Socialist doctrines, and in doubling the demand for Socialist books and pamphelts. If this pace is kept up, the Socialists will have entrenched themselves as a force in local politics. The next speaker on their Lyceum course is Mr. Maynard, who is to speak on "The War of the Classes," at the Auditorium next Wednesday, January 3rd, at 8 o'clock.



R. A. MAYNARD.

Mr. Maynard was formerly one of the editors of the Rocky Mountain News, and is widely known as a lecturer on nature topics, particularly Yellowstone Park. For many years, however, he has fought in the Socialist ranks. He comes to this city fresh from the battle field of Los Angeles, his home city, where he took a most active part in the recent campaign. He will no doubt shed considerable light on the intricate mysteries of the McNamaar Case. Nobody should miss this opportunity. The local is extending a special invitation to the ladies to attend free of charge.

Dr. Perkins' Fee

It Came to Him on Christmas Eve

By F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Dr. Edward Perkins was a surgeon who possessed one requisite for his profession, and in the place where another should have been there was a vacuum. He was a wonder in both diagnosis and in operating, but he had no ability to put on that urbanity which goes so far with a patient. Indeed, had the doctor not been recommended by other physicians he would never have worked his way into a practice. As it was, he had all the patients he wished, more than he wished, for many of them he treated without pay.

"That's a peculiar feature of our profession," he said. "A merchant may decline to sell a man goods without price, but a doctor who will decline to treat a sick person without a fee should be drummed out of the medical fraternity."

But the doctor wore himself out, as many physicians are doing nowadays, by trying to do more than he could.

The day before Christmas, after office hours, a well dressed man came into his office and asked the doctor to perform an operation on a member of his family.

"I can't," said the doctor. "I'm used up."

"What do you usually charge for performing such an operation?" asked the gentleman.

"A thousand dollars," replied the doctor, hoping to head the man off by the enormity of the amount.

"I'll give you $2,000."

"Don't want it. Go to Dr. Guilford. He's a better man at that than I in that line."

"But I want you."

"Well, you can't get me, and that's all there is about it. Good morning."

The gentleman retired, and the doctor, throwing himself on a lounge, pressed his hand to his throbbing temples. The door had been left unguarded, and a ragamuffin boy stepped into the room.

"Get out o' here!" shouted the doctor.

"But I've got the fee," said the boy, looking at the doctor pleadingly.

"The fee?"

"Yes; mother told me all about the doctors when she give it to me. She said the hardest thing me and the kids would have to meet was sickness and the doctors wouldn't do nothin' for us without the fee. Reckon she died, cos none of 'em wouldn't cure her, cos she hadn't no money to pay 'em. She left the kids in my charge. Sallie's down sick, and it's Christmas eve."

Meanwhile the boy was fumbling in his pocket and pulled out a silver half dollar, blackened through disuse. Approaching the doctor, he handed it to him. The doctor took it.

"How did you happen to come to me?" asked the surgeon.

"I sor the sawbones sign."

"Never heard of Dr. Perkins?"

"No; I only knowed you was a pill shover."

"Where do you live?"

"Out on the Parkeville road. I walked the hull six miles."

The doctor pulled himself off the couch, called for his automobile and prepared to go out. Entering a closet where he kept gifts from "grateful patients," he took down a thousand dollars' worth of presents that had been made him, in addition to his regular fees. Taking the boy with him, he went to the house of sickness. He found three little children in one room, a girl of six in a high fever. He bent down over her with the first kindly expression on his face that any patient had thus far seen there, smoothed her brow with his hand and talked to her about a lot of nice things he was going to send her. Then he took some tablets from his bag and instructed the head of the family—the boy who had summoned him—as to their use.

The doctor's next act was to draw from his overcoat pocket the presents from "grateful patients" and hand them to the boy.

"Take care of these, sonny," he said, "and when you want any money sell one of them. If anybody suspects you of having stolen them send him to me. They'll last you some time, and when they're gone I'll give you some more."

"But don't you want 'em?" asked the astonished boy.

"Want 'em? No. Haven't I got your fee instead? They have all been given me by rich people, some of them in genuine gratitude, others to make sure they can get me when they want me. They are better employed in your service than laying in my closet. I wish I had time; I'd try to get you fixed up in better shape. But I can't do that; I am breaking down from overwork. Good by, little girl; take your medicine bravely, and I'll tell Mrs. Doctor to send you or bring you all the nice things I've been telling you about."

Then, instructing the boy to step into a telephone station the next day and let him know how his sister was, the doctor got into his auto and his chauffeur took him home.

Christmas morning Mrs. Doctor stopped in her automobile at the house of "me and the kids" and, loaded with toys, good things to eat and clothing, went to the room where they lived and found the patient much improved. The gifts completed her recovery, and the children spent what was for them a merry Christmas.

Dr. Perkins keeps the silver half dollar for a pocket piece, and of all his fees he prizes it most.

[illegible] the Thermometer.

When a thermometer falls without breaking and the mercury becomes separated in the tube and thus fails to register correctly the best and quickest way to repair it is to put the thermometer into a small saucepan of cold water on the stove; allow the water to heat until the mercury is forced to the top, and then remove from the fire, and when it settles the mercury will go down the column unbroken

Picture Stories.

"What do you ask for this sketch?" said Sir Joshua Reynolds to a picture dealer whose portfolio he was examining. "Twenty guineas, Sir Joshua" "Twenty pence, I suppose you mean." "No, sir; I would have taken 20 pence for it this morning, but if you think the drawing worth looking at all the world will think it worth buying."

A London dealer who had made a few trifling purchases at a second hand furniture shop in the country was leaving it when he caught his foot in the string of a picture and fell. Having picked himself up, he examined the picture to see if it had been damaged It had escaped injury, and he found, to his surprise, that in this tripping he had literally stumbled upon a print of the Duchess of Rutland, after Reynolds, by Valentine Green, in its first state. The dealer bought the print for £4 and afterward disposed of it for £1,000.—From Jerningham's "Bargain Book."

Buried In Amber.

Amber is supposed to be the hardened gum of fossil trees. Lumps of it found in the natural state almost always contain foreign substances. Insects, berries, leaves, bits of bark and even cobwebs with drops of dew upon them are among the curious captives caught in amber and preserved there for all time. One of the finest pieces of amber ever found contains a scorpion, which must have fallen into the sticky mass in a dead condition, for the creature made no struggle. Often in the pieces containing insects it is easy to see by the disturbance of the substance that the insects must have fought hard for their lives, as the lines of light are broken and made prismatic for a short distance all around them. But this scorpion met his death before he was embalmed in the substance, for the amber is as clear as wine In polishing the piece, however, a part of the scorpion's head suffered, and this reveals the fact that all that remains of him has become lime. He was of the small yellow variety and not particularly formidable.—New York Press.

JUROR IS TAMPERED WITH

McNamara Defense Said to Have $500 to Wife.

Los Angeles, Dec. 5.—Further details have been learned of the plot to further influence the McNamara jury, the supposed frustration of which, by the arrest of Burt H. Franklin, a detective of the McNamara defense, is said to have been an important factor in forcing a confession of guilt from the McNamara brothers.

A signed statement was declared to be in the hands of District Attorney Fredericks, made by Mrs. Robert F. Bain, wife of the first sworn juror in the case, charging that $500 was paid to her by an agent of the McNamara defense to influence her husband to secure a disagreement if not an acquittal of James B. McNamara.

"Yes, it is true," Bain himself is quoted as saying, "and the money given to my wife has been given to the district attorney."

The two incidents of alleged bribery—that of Bain and Lockwood—are believed not to include all the attempts to affect the verdict which have come to the attention of the prosecution, and District Attorney Fredericks is given as authority for the statement that still anpther sworn juror has been tampered with.

Simpson Denied His Ambition

ched the chairman of the state central committee. In both instances he admitted that he got no satisfaction.

Next Clash Over His Successor.

The next clash with the administration came when Mr. Simpson presented his resignation. His choice as successor was Clifford L. Hilton of Fergus Falls, an assistant in his office and a former schoolmate. Governor Eberhart felt Lyndon A. Smith was the man for the place. He lives in the Seventh district and the appointment was made at a time when Sam Y. Gordon loomed up stronger than he does now. It is said that, after considerable wrangling, Attorney General Simpson consented that Mr. Smith be appointed.

Wrote to E. E. Smith.

When he learned Justice Simpson would resign, Attorney General Simpson wrote to Mr. Smith asking him to get the appointment for him. The slate was already arranged, however, as Judge Holt had been picked.

The Eberhart administration believes it always has treated Mr. Simpson with due courtesy. In the campaign text book issued for the last campaign about two-thirds was devoted to the collections Mr. Simpson had made while in office.

Some Think He Is Still a Candidate.

In some political centers where it was not known that Mr. Simpson was twice a candidate for the State Supreme bench, his authorized version of the Smith interview is taken as an indication that he will be a candidate for governor.—St. Paul Dispatch.

As the wife of the village carpenter Mrs. George Fane had few troubles and many happy days. They were not rich, but they had enough to eat and fairly good clothes to wear, and the taxes on their home were not too high.

Mr. Fane died one day. That could be counted as a trouble, but not too burdensome to be borne. Time lightens all griefs, and time lightened this one for the Widow Fane. When the year of mourning was up she found Solomon Williams, the village blacksmith, waiting to say to her:

"Widow Fane, I knew George for many years He was a good man and a good husband. I know you have mourned him, but a woman can't go on mourning forever. I want a wife."

"Well, Sol, I'll think it over and let you know," was the reply.

He called a week later, and she said she would marry him. No courting and no great display of sentiment. The wedding was put for a month ahead, but only two weeks had elapsed when the blacksmith got tangled up in a thrashing machine he was repairing, and his leg was so badly mangled that it had to come off. The widow gave him a month to recover from the shock and then visited him to say;

"Solomon, I'm a plain spoken woman."

"Drive ahead, Mary," he replied.

"I couldn't marry a man with a wooden leg, and you'll have to have one when you get up."

Two months later Farmer Griggs, widower, called. He had five children, and he wanted a wife. He spoke about the weather and the crops and then said:

"Widder, I wish you would consider me. I've often said to myself that you was a mighty nice woman."

"Give me three days to think it over."

At the end of three days Farmer Griggs called again, to be told that he was accepted.

Four days later a horse kicked Mr. Griggs smack in the face and smashed his nose so flat that the doctors had to make a long hunt to find it. When they found it they told him that he would be a noseless man from thence on. There wasn't enough of it to call a nose any more.

Of course the news was carried to the widow. She made three or four calls of condolence and waited six weeks and then came to the business in hand by saying:

"Mr. Griggs, I'm terribly sorry for you, but I never could marry a man without a nose."

"Surely you couldn't."

Next came Mr. Hardy, bachelor, owner of the sawmill in the next town, who drove over to call. He said he felt embarrassed, but managed to blurt out that if she would marry him he would be the happiest man in the state.

"Well, I kinder want to make folks happy," was the reply, "and if you are over this way next week drop in."

Mr. Hardy was surely "over that way," and called for his answer, and exclaimed aloud over his happiness. The wedding was set four weeks ahead this time. When it was known to the village there were people who predicted another calamity, but the widow smiled at the idea. Ill luck never followed anybody that far. Just a quiet wedding and a trip to Boston.

But it was not to be so. In bossing around his sawmill Mr. Hardy got in the way of the saw and lost both legs at a clip. His life was saved, but he would be almost a helpless cripple the rest of his days. The widow Fane sent him several messages expressive of pity, but said she couldn't marry him.

Three engagements, three accidents, three failures to marry!

"[illegible] that's enough," said the widow to herself, but fate had de[illegible]. It wasn't a month later when a man named Slater came to the village, thinking to open a [illegible]. He had sold a farm and wanted to make a change. About the time the Widow Fane was told that he was a childless widower he called an[illegible] [illegible] to hunt up my past and then say whether you will marry me or not."

"I had thought"- she began when he interrupted her with:

"I shall call next Saturday."

From all that could be ascertained, Mr. Slater was a very fine man, and when the next Saturday arrived and he called for his answer the Widow Fane said:

"I will accept your offer. I want Parson Hopes to marry us."

"He shall when the time comes."

"But the time is this very minute Can't you see I've got my Sunday clothes on?"

"Very well."

"He lives half a mile from here. I'll send a boy after him. You sit right there and don't stir. Don't hardly breathe. I'll holler for Mrs. Wise from the winder to come in and be a witness. This is the fourth time, and if anything happens it'll be the last time."

It was the last time, not because anything happened, but on the contrary. The parson came, the couple stood up and were married, and report says they have lived very happy ever since.

Woman, the Diplomat.

Herbert Spencer insinuates in one of his sociological works that the indirection, the coquetry, the finesse—nay, all the arts which we find so adorable in women—are modified forms of hypocrisy. Before the advent of civilization woman had in pure self defense to practice an elaborate deception. In order to please her brutal lord and secure predominance among dangerous rivals she had to disguise her natural sentiments and return caresses for blows and smiles for discourtesy. As she could not accomplish her purpose by force she became an expert in domestic diplomacy. The craftier, the more gulleful she was the better were her chances of survival. And thus it has come to pass that, though the necessity for intricate behavior is now much lessened, women practice today, in a more elusive and refined way, the arts which the instinct of self preservation imposed upon their barbarous ancestresses.—H. H. Boyesen in "Literary and Social Silhouettes."

Peru's Garden of the Gods.

"In the Andes, half a thousand feet higher than Pike's peak, is to be found the Peruvian Garden of the Gods, admired by every traveler fortunate enough to visit it," writes William V. Alford, F. R. G. S., in the Century. "It is locally called the Rock forest though in no sense of the word is it a forest. It simply resembles one when viewed at a distance of ten miles. The traveler may be forgiven the error of thinking it a forest as he sees it for the first time and forgets that he is no longer where trees grow, but within half an hour's ride of the highest city in the world, Cerro de Pasco perched like a condor on the high peaks of the Andes.

"The Garden of the Gods in Colorado boasts of a few spectacular rocks but they are few in number, and the area which they cover is not large The Andean garden covers nearly a hundred times the ground and in beauty and interest surpasses its northern counterpart in the same ratio."

To Give Him the Sack.

Two noblemen in the reign of Maximilian II.—1564-1566—one a German the other a Spaniard, who had each rendered a great service to the emperor, asked the hand of his daughter in marriage. Maximilian said that as he esteemed them both alike it was impossible to choose between them, and therefore their own prowess must decide it; but, being unwilling to risk the loss of either by engaging them in deadly combat, he ordered a large sack to be brought and declared that he who should put his rival into it should have his fair Helena. And this whimsical combat was actually performed in the presence of the imperial court and lasted an hour. The unhappy Spanish nobleman was first overcome, and the German succeeded in enveloping him in the sack, putting him upon his back and laying him at the emperor's feet. This comical combat is said to be the origin of the phrase "Give him the sack," so common in the literature of courting.

[illegible] Hay in Church.

A curious custom has been observed from time immemorial at Old Weston, Huntingdonshire, in England. The church there is dedicated to St. Swithin, and on the Sunday most nearly approaching St. Swithin's day the edifice is strewn with new mown hay. The tradition is that an old lady bequeathed a field for charitable purposes on condition that the tenant provided the hay to lessen the annoyance caused by the squeaking of the new shoes worn by the villagers on Feast Sunday. There are other explanations—one that it is an offering of the first fruits of the hay harvest and another that it is a survival of the custom of strewing the church (when the floor was only beaten earth) with rushes.

At The Lyceum.

Mr. Morgan secured for the benefit of his patrons, the first three days of this week, the biggest vaudeville hit so far this season—Miss Alice Teddy, the only bear in the world that skates on roller skates. This act was obtained at a big expense and Mr. Morgan did not get it with the idea of making any money on it. It was secured solely for the purpose of giving his patrons something unusually good in appreciation of the liberal patronage he is receiving this winter. Mr. Morgan tries always to secure acts that will please the people, and it isn't his fault if occasionally an act comes which is not up to standard.

GROUND BONE FOR THE POULTRY.

An Advertisement.

Rolland Bros., have lately secured a new and strongly built green-bone cutting machine, a large enough machine so that they can fill orders on short notice, and usually keep a supply of ground bone on hand. At this time of the year ground bone is a very necessary food for the hens, because they are unable to pick up hard substances which are required to make the shell of the egg, and keep the digestive track in good order. You can buy the ground bone for 2 cents a pound at Rolland Bros., Meat Market on LaBree Avenue.

A NEW YEAR'S MESSAGE

By ARTHUR P. WINDHAM

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

The chancellor of the German empire sat in his office writing when a young man entered and said:

"Your excellency sent for me, I be[illegible]."

"Yes, Von Arnheim," said the chancellor, looking up. "I have a very important mission for you. It is to the president of the United States and must be delivered on the 1st of January, when the president receives the diplomatic corps. I have selected this day because no attention will be attracted by a visit, and it need not be known that a call is on important diplomatic affairs. His majesty the emperor is desirous that the present struggle between Russia and Japan shall cease. Japan is not able financially to carry on the war and must soon give way on that account. This will give the czar a preponderance of power in the east antagonistic to German and other interests. No power in Europe is so situated on account of their varied interests to propose mediation. The only power fitted for such a purpose is the United States.

"His majesty the emperor desires to send by you to the president of the great republic a request that he will propose to the czar and the emperor of Japan a conference with a view to a treaty of peace. Since the czar knows of the financial stress of Japan he does not wish the war to terminate, but if a peace were proposed by the president of the United States the world's opinion would be so against Russia's refusal to treat that she would be obliged to yield. In a few weeks possibly he would win.

"Should [illegible] succeed in preventing you from delivering the message or delaying the emperor's request, obliging us to send another, the Japanese cause may collapse before a duplicate could [illegible]. You may be watched [illegible] leave here."

Von Arnheim [illegible] with the dispatch the same evening. The Russians at the German capital did not get wind of his mission until he had sailed, and there was only opportunity for [illegible] to instruct the Russian emissa[illegible] in America to endeavor to thwart [illegible] design after his arrival in New [illegible]k. He had reached that city, or, [illegible]ther, Hoboken, across the Hudson river, where the German steamers land, and was driving through a street that leads to the station of the Pennsylvania railroad when an auto came dashing along wildly, the chauffeur intentionally colliding with the cab in which the messenger sat. He lay for a few moments stunned, and the chauffeur, looking back and seeing that he did not move, sped on.

But Von Arnheim got up and with difficulty walked southward till he met another cab, which he hailed and reached the Pennsylvania station without further mishap. He was obliged to wait a couple of hours before a through train left for Washington and while walking to and fro in the station saw a man accompanied by a policeman coming toward him.

"That's your quarry," said the man to the policeman. "Arrest him. I have just come over in the same steamer with him, and he stole my watch."

Despite his protestations Von Arnheim was taken to a police station in Jersey City, and, being searched, a watch that did not belong to him was found in his pocket. Rather than make himself known and, having still a week before New Year's day, he stood trial the next morning and was sentenced to jail for six months. On the way to prison he asked those escorting him to step into a saloon and have a drink. While there he convinced them that the charge was a put up job, gave each one of them $50 and was permitted to leave the saloon by a door in the rear.

He had no further trouble on the way to the station and hoped that he might be permitted to reach the capital in peace. But he was disappointed. Just before arriving at Philadelphia a woman took a vacant seat beside him and as the train was passing through the city raised a cry, arose with feigned indignation and accused Von Arnheim of insulting her. Leaning out of a window, she beckoned to a policeman, who got into the car, and the woman called upon him to arrest Von Arnheim.

Here was another detention. Von Arnheim, still unwilling to make his identity public, stood trial, several persons who had been in the car with him testifying that they saw him endeavor to take liberties with his accuser, and he was sent up for sixty days.

It was now the 27th of December, and but five days remained before New Year's day. Von Arnheim sent a message to the German minister informing him of his situation. A member of the German diplomatic corps visited the prisoner, received his message and returned to Washington on the 31st of December.

When the president the next day gave his public reception the German [illegible]ssador, watching his opportunity, [illegible]oke a few words to him in a low [illegible]. The president replied in the [illegible] voice.

It was not very long after this that [illegible] announcement was made that the president of the United States had offered his services as mediator between the Russians and Japanese, and the announcement was followed by the treaty of Portsmouth.

On the 3d of January Von Arnheim was [illegible] by the [illegible] Pennsylvania.

LUCKY THOMPSON

By ELLEN B. CARNIEL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Doubtless any one permitted to examine the records of a chancery court would be surprised at the number of cases where fortunes have been left to those who cannot be found or, if found, only after years of search. Sometimes the heirs have died before the testator; sometimes they have mysteriously disappeared, never again to be heard from. The reason that property often passes through this phase is that the members of families as the years go by become separated and often lost to each other. When persons who have no one near and dear to them make wills, preferring that their property shall go to their own kindred, they usually leave their estates to such, possibly not having heard anything of the legatee for years.

Zachary Thompson when he was a boy ran away and went to sea. Fifty years ago and more that was a favorite escapade with boys. They don't do it so much now, for steam has taken the romance out of the life before the mast. Indeed, instead of a mast the modern vessel has a smokestack. Zachary, having read sea stories, became infatuated with the great deep and shipped as cabin boy on a barkentine trading between New York and Hongkong.

The boy made a trifling mistake in thinking he would like the sea. Even in that day there was no romance in being reproved by the captain, sworn at by the mate and flogged by the cook. Even the scullion tyrannized over little Zachary, and, having made one voyage, the boy remained ashore, though he was too proud to go home. Indeed, he got as far away as possible from his home and went to work in a store, his principal duties being to sweep out early in the morning, make the fires, clean up generally and run errands the rest of the day.

Thompson spent twenty years trying to keep his head above water, and with very poor success. The only thing about him that was successful was keeping up his pride.

When he was thirty years old he married a girl who should have had better sense. She, too, had never had any luck, and now there were two unlucky mortals who proceeded to bring into the world unlucky children. Thompson in order to fill the stomachs of his wife and children, though he had been born a gentleman, took up any occupation that appeared, at last accepting a position with an undertaker. This led him into that department of the mortuary business which pertains to carrying the dead to their last resting place.

He was taking his hearse to cover after a funeral one evening when he ran into a light buggy driven by a gentleman who, being nearsighted and darkness having come on, did not see him in time to get out of his way, and Thompson, who was dreaming on his bad luck and his luckless wife and children, collided with him and smashed the vehicle.

"You should paint your funeral wagon red or some other color if you're going to drive around nights running people down," said the gentleman. "It was your fault, and you'll have to pay for my buggy."

"I don't believe there is any law to compel me to do that," said Thompson.

"There isn't, eh? Well I think I ought to know since I'm a lawyer."

"Just my luck!" moaned Thompson. "If any one else had run down a wagon he wouldn't have happened to hit a lawyer."

By this time a small crowd collected, and a policeman was among the number.

"What's up?" he asked.

"This driver of black wagons for dead men on dark nights has run into me and smashed a $500 buggy."

"Shall I take him in?" asked the cop.

"Not if he will give his name."

Thompson was discouraged. He gave up his name without a murmur.

"Zachary Taylor Thompson."

The gentleman looked up from the memorandum book on which he was about to write the name.

"Zachary Taylor Thompson?" he asked.

"Yes."

"How did you happen to be named Zachary Taylor?"

"Born when General Taylor licked the Mexicans and named for him."

"Who was your father?"

"Edward Prentiss Thompson."

"Did you have any brothers?"

"Yes—one."

"His name?"

"Winfield Scott Thompson."

"And you consider yourself an unlucky man?"

"Never had any luck so far."

"Well, you've got it now. Ten years ago your brother, Winfield Scott Thompson, died and left you an estate worth $200,000, and the executors of the will are clients of mine. We've been hunting for you ever since your brother died, and if we hadn't found you before the end of this year your property would have gone to charity."

"By gum!" exclaimed the hearse driver. "My luck has all come in a lump."

A Split Coin

By ANNA B. WRIGHT

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

It was the poetess Mrs. Browning, I believe, who said that while love is but a portion of man's life it is a woman's whole existence, or words to that effect. While there are many exceptions to the rule, there is no doubt that women treasure a love, or at least its memory, longer than a man. Miss Amelia Dexter has the half of a silver ten cent piece which has been in her possession [illegible]. [illegible] she was [illegible] she has [illegible] who gave it [illegible]. What [illegible] nobody knows.

When Amelia was seven[illegible] ited her [illegible], the wife of a [illegible] of the [illegible] at Annapolis. There [illegible] midshipman who [illegible] showing a beau[illegible] white teeth, while his eyes laughed with every other feature. The girl collapsed at once. Whether her love for the young man strengthened is a question. More likely it was born all at once.

Nevertheless Cadet Williams and Amelia Dexter "paired off," as young people call being exclusively devoted to each other. Williams was Miss Dexter's escort to the cadet dances and accompanied her in her walks. No other girl aspired to any attention from him, and Amelia received no attention from any other cadet. In short, there was between them one of those innocent relations which have not the formality of an engagement—a sort of natural youthful emotion preliminary to mating. In a man it is usually a pleasant tenderness which may or may not take root. It may be the same in a girl, yet there are cases wherein it has been an undying love.

There were special auxiliaries in this case, the academy band discoursing martial music, the cadet corps marching on and off parade, the formal salutes between officers and between officers and cadets. There is an autocracy among men trained to fight as well as a certain swagger, probably intended to overbalance the fact that what they are being educated for is to be killed. Nevertheless it is fascinating to the young of both sexes, who take very little account of what it is for. It has always figured largely in love.

Amelia spent a couple of months at Annapolis, then went home to begin another year at school. The nearest thing to an understanding between her and her cadet lover was the split coin. As to an engagement, neither of them thought of such a matter of fact proceeding. They had not grown mature enough to make an arrangement for a lifetime. They lived and loved only for the present. The future was or seemed to be too far for their consideration. The split coin represented what they felt, and its intrinsic value (about 30 per cent of its current value) represented the real depth of their affection.

That is, for the boy. As to the girl, this is one of the cases the poet described. It was not an egg to be developed. It was born perfect and indestructible. She left Annapolis with her half a coin hidden away in her bosom, while underneath it burned a flame like that kept alive by vestal virgins.

What transpired from that time till thirty years had passed is not a part of this story. Miss Dexter is now an old maid. Williams is an admiral and a grandfather. One summer there was a naval war game on the Atlantic coast. At a reception given to the officers of the fleet Miss Dexter, an elderly spinster, was present. Admiral Williams was introduced to her. They chatted awhile, when Miss Dexter began to ask him leading questions. She spoke of a certain moonlight evening on the porch of one of the professors of the Naval academy. Then and there he had given her her first kiss. She contented herself with mentioning certain correlative incidents. The admiral didn't twig. She referred to a ride on the water in which they sat side by side in a retired corner, his arm encircling her waist. The admiral did not even remember the boat ride. She mentioned certain circumstances connected with their last parting. The admiral wondered what she was driving at.

Then the admiral began to rally her on not having married, saying that it was undoubtedly her own fault. She admitted that she had had an affair when very young with a naval officer and, taking [illegible] the gold chain she wore about her neck, drew from her bosom half a dime. She told the admiral that the man who had kept the other half had forgotten her.

"If you'll tell me who he is," replied Williams, "and if he is ever under my command I'll make him wish he had a better memory."

Miss Dexter sighed, but made no reply. The admiral blustered about the [illegible] of the navy in matters pertaining to woman, declaring that the saying that a sailor has a sweetheart in every port is a slur on the [illegible] away, he made a profound bow and continued to pour forth his repertory of complaints upon the next woman he met. A PECULIAR FACULTY

By ARNOLD TREAT

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

I am the black sheep of the family. I never liked to study when I was at school, and after quitting school I didn't like to work. I remember that as a boy during the marble season I took no interest in the game except "for keeps" and usually won all the other boys' marbles. When I came in from playing the game with my pockets loaded down with alleys and aces and bullseyes my father would look at them wonderingly.

When I was eighteen I was put to work. My employer owned a large number of dwelling houses, and they were mostly vacant. The reason for this was that he would do nothing for his tenants. They were all mortgaged to the same man, who couldn't get the interest on the mortgages. The mortgagee came into the office one day tearing mad and told my employer that he didn't know how to manage such property and the houses must be put into the hands of some one else. Hartwell, the owner, offered to put the management in my hands, to which Johnson, the mortgagee, assented. I suppose Hartwell thought he could make me do what he liked. But in that he was mistaken. I offered a big commission to agents to recommend the houses and gave the tenants everything they asked. The result was that within a year I had the houses all occupied, all in prime order and paying a good interest on the investment.

When I got things running I had nothing more to do, so I lit out into the world for a bit of excitement. I strolled down the street, with my hands in my pockets and saw a red flag out at the door of a handsome dwelling. I'd got some idea of the value of such property and thought I'd go in and attend the sale. Perhaps I would buy the property. I hadn't any money even to pay the percentage of the amount of purchase demanded when the property is knocked down to the highest bidder, but that didn't trouble me a bit. I had the assurance of Satan himself. So I went in and found a lot of bidders, each one acting as if he was afraid he would have the house on his hands. I estimated that the property was worth a lot more than any of the bids. I don't know why I did so. I only know that I felt certain of it. So I raised the last bid by $1,000. That scared everybody else off, for I put on a look as much as to say, "I'm bound to own this property if I have to pay double its value for it." The consequence was that it was knocked down to me for $21,000. The auctioneer called on me for the usual percentage of purchase, which was $2,100. As I had nothing but my wits to satisfy him, I proceeded to exercise them. I asked him if he would take my check, and he replied, "Not without it being certified." Then I asked him if he would wait till I sent a check to the bank for certification, and he said he would. Since I hadn't any check or check book—or bank for that matter—to draw on I was wondering what move I should make next, when the owner of the property rushed in and asked if the sale had taken place. When told that it had he sank in a chair and moaned.

"I've got the money," he said, "with which to pay off the mortgage."

"I thought the sale must be one of foreclosure," I remarked. "I've bought the property dirt cheap. I'm ready to sell it back to you for 75 per cent of what it's worth. I consider it worth $40,000. I'll sell it to you for $30,000."

The man fretted and fumed and dickered, but at last he accepted my terms.

"Just you give me $9,000 for my bargain," I said, "and I'll sign any paper you like."

He agreed to do so, and I made a quick profit. Then I told him that what I had said was true, and I thought I could sell the property for $40,000. He declined to bother with me, but within a year sold it for $60,000. It was all luck. A railroad terminal [illegible] near the property.

I slapped that $9,000 around in all sorts of investments and every time I put it in I pulled it out with a lot of other dollars sticking to it. Sometimes I doubled it, twice I trebled it and on one deal I increased it tenfold. When I had got a few hundred thousand together, I went home and asked father how he was getting on. He said he was very hard up. Our interview ended in my drawing him a check for double what he needed, then I sallied out to look around for more chances.

Not long after that a friend told me that he had asked my father to explain my success. My father told him that I was no good on the principle that govern ordinary mortals; that I had no sense, no management in the usual acceptation of that word—in short, that I was born for a ne'er-do-well, but there was something in my head somewhere to see things invisible to other people.

My friend asked father if he thought luck had anything to do with the matter. Father said that while luck had a lot to do with every man's success it had no more to do with mine than [illegible]

Farmer Josiah White was out in the barnyard milking the one horned cow when his wife came [illegible]. She spoke about the new wagon she [illegible], and the need of a pump for the well and finally got around to say:

"Josiah, you won't be mad, will you?"

"Have you broke a lot of dishes?" he asked as he looked up.

"No."

"Then I guess I won't be mad. What is it?"

"George Lee was over here to see Jennie today. He's got back from college. He didn't stay but an hour, and I was sittin' with 'em on the veranda all the time. Nothing to be mad about; is there?"

"Wall, no, but I should have talked right up to him if I had found him here. He knows I can't abide a lazy man, and that he can never marry Jennie with my consent. If she runs away to marry him, then she can never darken my door ag'in. So he's back, eh?"

"Yes; he's finished college."

"Wall, what's he goin' to do, now that he's got through college? Is he goin' to take right hold and work like thunder to pay the old folks back?"

"Josiah, I can't exactly explain what he's made of himself, but pickin' up stones has somethin' to do with it. Jennie knows, and after he was gone she said it was a good trade. Did you ever hear of what they call a golgist?"

"Never, by gosh, and I don't want to. Goin' to pickin' up stones, is he? Goin' around pickin' up stones instead of usin' a hoe in the cornfield. You needn't say any more, Sarah. I can see that he's turned out wuss'n I predicted he would."

Three years previous to the above conversation George Lee, a farmer's son, had come courting Jennie White. He was twenty and Jennie a year younger. He was called a smart young man, and Jennie was something of a belle, and from the farmer's standpoint it seemed to be a good match. It seemed so until young Lee announced that he was going to college. That changed Mr. White's opinion of him at once. Colleges were for shirks and squirts and one horse lawyers. They simply spoiled farmers' sons. Every rascal he had ever read of had been a college graduate. He didn't turn the young man out doors, but he gave him to understand that the daughter would be for some one who could tell a cabbage head from a burdock.

And unbeknown to him, though not engaged, the young people had maintained a friendly correspondence and met occasionally, and now things had reached a sort of climax. George Lee had boldly called at the house, and the farmer's wife had noted what she called "signs." That talk in the barnyard had been to prepare the husband and father for what might happen, for she believed that something would happen. George Lee didn't seem to be a bit afraid of anybody or anything, as she expressed it to herself, and she noticed that Jennie was very fidgety.

Yes, something happened. It came two days later. Mr. Lee called again, and, just in time to catch the father before going to the field for his afternoon's work. He stood right up like a man before father and mother and said that he loved Jennie, hoped she loved him, and wanted her for a wife. His coolness and dignity took the old man back for a minute, but presently he asked:

"Are you going to run the farm for your father?"

"No, Mr. White. I have something better."

"I heard it was goin' around and pickin' up stones in the fields."

"I shall pick up stones and I shall throw stones away. That is part of the profession. By and by I hope I shall find what I am looking for."

"Then you look for it and when you find it you can come back. Better stay away till you do. I don't want Jennie so upset that she can't help her mother make soft soap and put up pickled peaches."

Six weeks passed away, and one noon when Farmer White came up from the field he found young Lee waiting for him. At his feet was a heavy block of something done up in a newspaper.

"You told me when I found something [illegible] to come again," said the young man.

"But you hain't done it."

"I think so. Here's a block of building marble that I've taken from the ridge back there. There's thousands and thousands of tons of it, and it's all on your farm. There's a railroad only a mile away and a big city twenty miles off. Will you take $10,000 for your farm?"

"Young man, don't try to be funny."

"Will you take $15,000—$20,000?"

It took Farmer White a quarter of an hour to understand the situation. Then the young man said:

"I can sell the farm to a syndicate for you, or I can marry Jennie and [illegible] things and help you make a fortune. Which would you prefer?"

Farmer White studied for a moment and then looked at his wife and curtly asked.

"Dinner ready?"

"Half an hour ago."

"Is it a b'iled dinner?"

"Yes."

"Then put on a plate for George. I guess he'll be one of the family purty soon."

A Mystery In A Freight Car

By ADOLPH SNYDER

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

I am a brakeman on a freight train. One day during the winter season when we had come to a stop I was walking alongside the train and saw a thin smoke coming out from under one of the cars. Thinking it to come from a hot box, I stopped to examine the trucks, [illegible] gear was as cool as a cucumber. Then, looking up, I noticed [illegible] pipe protruding from the bottom of the car through which smoke was coming in little [illegible].

"[illegible]" I said to myself. "[illegible] with lead. [illegible] since it started three days [illegible], and a steam engine in it. Am I in my right mind or have [illegible] where I was [illegible] a spell ago."

I stooped a little lower and craned my neck [illegible] to get a better view. There was the pipe, evidently a part of a leader from a gutter belonging to the roof of a house. It extended a few inches downward, then turned with an elbow, the second part extending about a foot rearward. As I looked the puffs continued as regular as those coming from a locomotive making a steady gait.

What to do I didn't know. I was afraid to notify the conductor, for fear I'd find out that I'd had a stroke and saw things that didn't exist. Something occurred just then that made me think I'd surely gone daft. I heard a girl's giggle.

There wasn't any connection between a steam engine and a girl shut up in a box car, especially a sealed box car, but there was a good deal to excite curiosity. I stopped worrying about myself and began to wonder what there was inside that car. I stood off, looked at it and walked all around it. A freight train is made up of different kinds of cars, and this car was especially different from the others. It looked as though it might have been a caboose turned into a box. The thing most noticeable about it was a door at one end. Why I hadn't noticed this before I don't know unless it was because the end was only about two feet from the end of another car.

I saw that there was or had been a lock on the door. There wasn't any knob, but a nail had been put through the screw hole of the steel piece on which the knob had been fixed. I climbed up on the coupling and tried to turn the nail to open the door. I didn't succeed. I listened, but everything was still. But I didn't forget that giggle, and pretty soon I knocked. In a few moments I heard whispers within. Then all of a sudden the door was pulled open, and there stood a boy and a girl.

Besides these, I got a view of the car. There was a carpet on it, the worse for wear; in one corner was a mattress with bedclothing; in the center was a pine table, and at one side was a cook stove. And I noticed that the stovepipe was run down instead of up or horizontal and passed through a hole in the floor.

"Please don't give us away," said the girl, going for me with a pair of blue eyes not many could resist.

"You'd better let me come in," I answered. "If the conductor or any of the train hands should come along there'd be no need of giving you away."

I went inside and shut the door after me. Then I asked, "Will you be good enough to tell me what this means?"

"We're a bride and groom," said the young feller, who couldn't have been over seventeen years old.

"On our wedding trip," the girl added.

"A bride and groom on your wedding trip!" I exclaimed. "How did you git in here?"

"I'll tell you all about it," said the boy. "We're not only on our weddin' trip, but we're a runaway couple."

"Are you sure you're not a pair of escaped lunatics?"

The girl laughed; the fellow looked kind of queer and talked on.

"We were engaged, but neither her dad nor mine would let us git married till we were older. I had a clerkship in a railroad freight house, and I managed to git hold of this car, and one night when you men were making up this train I give the engineer a signal to hook up against it, and the next time he backed up against a car this was in the train. I'd fixed the door and put in the bridal furniture."

"The bridal furniture!" I said, looking around. "So this is a bridal chamber, is it?"

"Well, it's all we got," he answered.

"What have you had to eat?" I asked.

"Bread, bacon, eggs and a few other things. There's our stove. We get a good enough draft when the train's moving."

"And when it isn't moving you fan the fire?"

"Just so."

Hearing some one coming, I put my finger to my lips, and when the sound had passed I went out and shut the door. That was the most original wedding trip I ever saw or heard of, and I wouldn't have given the children away for a farm. I couldn't make up my mind whether they were really on a honeymoon journey or playing they were married, as children do.

When we got to the end of the run they disappeared, and I never found out what had become of them.

Her Husband's Letters

By HELOISE BRAYTON

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Edward Ballinger and his bride had just returned from their honeymoon and settled back into ordinary life. Though it was ordinary life, it was changed life. There was the difference between the single and the married state, which is a very great difference. Instead of remaining two individuals, they were to begin fusing into one double person. These matters in which a married couple must be welded are [illegible]. This story illustrates but one of them.

On returning from his office at evening on the day after his return from his wedding trip the young husband found that the postman had left several letters for him, [illegible] of which had been opened by his wife. He repressed any expression of the shock he felt and [illegible] them. They were [illegible] old chums, who, knowing of his arrival, welcomed him [illegible] facetious on his [illegible]. One was from [illegible] Ballinger's [illegible].

"Ned," said Mrs. Ballinger, "I don't see why your chum, Mr. Smith, should attack me in that way."

"What way?"

"Why," [illegible] deaf ear will come in handy. When she gives you a curtain lecture [illegible] all you have to do is to lay your well ear on the pillow and you won't hear her."

Mr. Ballinger was puzzled. He understood the pleasantry of his friend's remark perfectly. Mrs. Ballinger understood only its unpleasantry. He knew that an explanation would be hopeless. He didn't attempt one. He concluded rather to use the incident to break up in the beginning his wife's opening his letters.

"The remark was not intended for you," he said, "and you should not have seen it. Old friends, especially men, understand each other and what they say should be held in confidence. If you had not opened his letter you would not have read what he said and would not have been irritated by it."

Mrs. Ballinger thought a bit before replying. "Don't you think that a wife has a right to know what her husband's friends think of her?"

Nothing is so irritating as to be obliged to argue with one who starts with an incorrect assumption. Though Mr. Ballinger controlled himself, he erred in being led into an attempted explanation. After ten or fifteen years of married life he would have taken his friend's advice and covered his well ear.

"You see, my dear, that Smith, who is a good deal of a joker, has had a long experience in married life and knows"—

"Is Mrs. Smith a vixen?"

"Not at all. Mrs. Smith is a very lovely woman."

"Oh! Then it is Mr Smith who makes all the trouble in the family."

"There is no trouble in the family."

"Do you mean to tell me that there is no trouble in a family when the husband is obliged to cover up his well ear to escape what his wife has to say to him?"

"But, my dear, you don't understand. I don't know a more united couple than Mort Smith and his wife."

"H'm! I don't see how a couple can be united when the husband has to cover up the only ear by which he can hear to escape what his wife has to say to him. I suppose he irritated her beyond endurance."

"You are attaching an importance to a witticism that does not belong to it, putting a matter of fact construction upon it. Mort was not referring to you especially, but to women generally."

"Oh, I suppose he's one of those men called women haters who think that everything bad comes from women. I have no patience with such men."

Mr. Ballinger's self control began to give way. "You haven't [illegible] to understand this matter," he said, "and it shouldn't have come up before you. It's your own fault. Had you respected my correspondence you would not have read that which you can't fathom. In future you will oblige me by leaving my mail untouched."

These were the first harsh words Mr. Ballinger had ever spoken to his newly made wife. He had scarcely uttered them when he saw a tear gathering in her eye. She said nothing more. Indeed, it was all she could do to pent up her feelings. Ballinger tore up the letters viciously and threw them into the wastebasket. His wife went out of the room, putting her handkerchief to her eyes at the same time.

The newly made husband had learned his first lesson in married life. He had learned that the logic laid down by Bishop Whately and more recent writers on the science would not do for home use. He followed his wife, put his arms around her and kissed away her tears.

"You have been very unkind," she said.

"Forgive me. I'll never do it again."

And the first matrimonial quarrel was over.

"Mort, you are a fool to send such a letter to my house as the one just received. One would suppose a married man would have more sense."

"Ned, I admit the impeachment. I'll never do it again. Lunch with me tomorrow."

Raleigh at the Block.

Fate and justice worked some peculiar pranks in the olden days. Sir Walter Raleigh, with the death sentence hanging over him for eighteen years, sailing in his final voyage of discovery, returned to England and went cheerfully to the block. He left the Tower without the royal pardon in 1615. The adventurous but still condemned man had received permission to make another voyage to South America. If he should be successful in the outcome of his venture Raleigh knew the king's mercy would be granted him. But this last expedition, undertaken with such a vital interest at stake for Raleigh, was unfortunate in all its respects. At San Tomas, on the Cayenne river in Guiana, his men made a hostile attack upon a Spanish settlement. As England was then at peace with Spain, this act of war against the people of a friendly nation was a most grievous offense against the king. On Oct. 29, 1618, he suffered death by the ax. Having fingered the edge, he returned it and said, smiling to the sheriff, "This is a sharp medicine, but it is a sound cure for all diseases."

Had Fun With the Foreigners.

A passage in E. S. Bates' "Touring in 1600" makes the "bleeding" which Americans in Europe must expect seem a great improvement over other times:

"The two worst towns for brutality toward foreigners were, by general consent London and Toulouse. In the former, according to Giordano Bruno, the shop people and artisans on seeing a stranger make faces, grin, laugh, hoot, call him dog, traitor, foreigner, the last name being the rudest they can think of, qualifying him for any other insult. Should he take the offensive or put his hand to his weapon an army of ruffians seems to spring out of the ground, flourishing a forest of sticks, poles, halberds and partisans. In a more playful humor, one will pretend to run away behind a booth and come out charging on the stranger like an angry bull. If an arm gets broken, as happened to one Italian, the bystanders shout with laughter, and the magistrate sees nothing reprehensible in the affair."

Behind the Scenes.

"The people who had the coveted 'privilege of the stage' in the days of our parents used to tell about the chorus women killing time between 'calls' with knitting and sewing. They would open their eyes wide if they could get a peep behind the scenes in one of the great vaudeville houses of London today," says a letter from that city, "where the managers have provided for the spare time of the entertainers. There are ten rooms for the women, where comfortable furniture and rugs take the places of the rickety chairs and bare floors of long ago. [illegible] the men there are club rooms, [illegible] between 'turns' one may see [illegible] in all the various branches of [illegible] profession at billiards, pool, bridge [illegible] chess. A trained nurse and a physician are always within call, and the management provides a school, where the stage children are educated while mamma dances and sings and papa does his share toward the entertainment."—New York Tribune.

The Fifteenth Century Gambler.

In the time of King Henry IV. of England the "smart set" managed to play bridge or its equivalent without shocking the susceptibilities of those who think it wrong to play for money. The fifteenth century gambler, according to one historian, "played at cards for counters, nails and points in every house more for pastime than for gain." "Everie scholar or petyte little one that plaies for money is to be expelled," ordains a grammar school charter of the period. One of the duties of hospital sisters was "to make dilygentt searche amonge the poore for cards or dice."

Infection in the Home.

A German medical journal draws attention to a possible factor in the spread of infectious conditions of the mouth, nose and pharynx that is insufficiently recognized in many households. It points out that common table utensils, such as forks, spoons and glasses, which come into contact with the mouth, are usually washed all together, often with little care, and dried on the same cloth. This gives great opportunity for the distribution of infective agencies. For this reason particular care should be exercised in families where any member may be suffering from an infectious disease to sterilize the table utensils used in boiling water. People who complain of "catching cold" in many instances are merely catching infection from little understood and easily preventable sources. The infectious germ is so minute that the eye does not detect its presence. It is necessary, therefore, to keep up a constant effort for the destruction of hurtful germs and germ carriers by introducing as far as possible the precautionary practices of sanitary science into domestic use.—Philadelphia Record.

Juggling a Photograph.

"We're sometimes asked to do queer stunts with our pictures," said a New York photographer. "About the most unusual was a trick I had to play with a photograph taken of a large gathering of some organization. The committee in charge of the affair wanted one prominent man to take a conspicuous place in the group and so arranged the group. At the last minute a less desirable member of the organization crowded in and got the choice position, making him the most prominent person in the finished photograph. In desperation the committee came to me to help it out. When I suggested changing heads and putting the head of a prominent member on to the body of the undesirable one it was delighted. Fortunately it was a seated group, and the man's figure didn't make much difference either way. The exchange of heads was a great success, and the committee got a lot of praise for the way it had me juggle with that photograph."—New York Sun.

Beethoven's Spider Friend.

When studying the violin as a boy of eight it was Beethoven's custom to shut himself up alone in a little room because it was inhabited by a spider which loved his music so much that when the boy played it left its web and came near to listen and at last climbed upon the arm with which he was holding the bow. The young musician became really fond of the spider. But one day his aunt entered the room while he was playing, saw the spider walking along her nephew's arm and instantly knocked it off with a slipper and crushed it. Young Beethoven wept over his dead friend and refused to play his violin any more. It was only after a lapse of three weeks, and in another room, that he resumed his studies, and his first thought was to compose a plaintive melody to which he gave the title, "Elegy to My Friend Spider."

Strength of an Indian Beetle.

One day a native servant brought me a [illegible] beetle which he was carrying by its [illegible], while the beetle was carrying a stone weighing nearly half a pound. But how the feelers could stand the strain [illegible] in this fashion for about [illegible] and how the legs could retain their hold of a heavy stone [illegible] the length of the beetle [illegible] inches [illegible] the stone [illegible] was 1 inches in [illegible] Science—Gossip.

[illegible]

Very few people, even [illegible] know how a revolver ought to be handled.

Troops are taught in aiming never to look at the weapon at all, but to keep their eyes on the object to be struck. In quick firing, and especially in shooting from horseback, much better results are obtainable in this way.

A man throwing a stone does not look at his hand; neither does a billiard player sight along his cue. The same rules apply to the use of short weapons. Men have been trained to shoot excellently at a mark when they could not see their pistol sights at all.

Pieces of pasteboard were fastened just in front of the cylinders, which effectually prevented the men from using their foresights and greatly increased the rapidity of their fire.

Nearly any one can sight a pistol correctly, the inaccuracy of the aim being due to the trembling of the hands before the trigger is pressed. By hiding the sight the temptation to hold too long is removed and the first aim, generally the most accurate, is preserved.—Pearson's.

Oldest City of the New World.

Much of romance attaches to South America, growing out of the history of its ancient inhabitants and the story of the invasion of white men. In both respects Peru is richer than any other part of the continent. It was here that the Inca dynasty, founded by Manco Capac, son of the sun, had its seat, and here was the stage upon which moved the theatrical figure of Pizarro, greatest of the conquistadores. Not even Montezuma's capital can boast the antiquity of Cuzco. It is the oldest city in the new world and was ancient when the Spaniards looted its temples. A narrow strip of sandy coast stretches for 1,000 miles between Ecuador and Chile. At the back of it rises abruptly the purple wall of the Andes, capped by a cheval de frise of snowy peaks which seem to pierce the very skies. But at the greatest heights are massive ruins which indicate that here in the long forgotten past cities existed in this inhospitable region, where storms of wind, rain and hail are of constant occurrence.

Tungsten and Its Uses.

The mineral tungsten (the name meaning heavy stone) has been known for many years, but only comparatively recently has it become of economic importance. Its most important use, according to the United States geological survey, and the one which makes tungsten mining on an extensive scale possible, is in an alloy for tool steel. Lathes using tools made from tungsten steel may be speeded up until the chips leaving the tool are so hot that they turn blue, an operation which would ruin the temper of high carbon steel. It is stated [illegible] can be done with lathes built for such speed and [illegible] can be done by the same lathes with carbon steel tools. From [illegible] per cent of tungsten is ordinarily used in lathe tools. The melting point of tungsten is exceedingly high—5,576 degrees F. Tungsten also has an important use in making incandescent electric lamps, crucibles for electric furnaces and various other articles.

A [illegible] investigator in Europe, [illegible] Yung, [illegible] that the snail [illegible] see at all. He has made 2,400 experiments upon 176 specimens, and he says that when one puts snails into an inclosure where there are both light and shade their distribution is a matter of chance. The snail, he says, does not shun the light so much as he hunts for moisture. His conclusion is that the snail does not perceive obstacles in his path until he bumps into them. His speed being low, he escapes injury. Having once selected a resting place, flashing lights into his apology for a face does not disturb him. To complete his experiments Mr. Yung amputated the organs of sight from several snails and couldn't find that it made any difference in their happy placid lives.

A Bird Much Like a Fish.

The "birds of a feather" that "flock together" do not belong to the penguin family, as they are entirely destitute of feathers, having for a covering a kind of stiff down. Another penguin peculiarity is that it swims not on but under water, never keeping more than its head out, and when fishing coming to the surface at such brief and rare intervals that an ordinary observer would almost certainly mistake it for a fish.

The quicker a cold is gotten rid of the less the danger from pneumonia and other serious diseases. Mr. B. W. L. Hall, of Waverly, Va., says: "I firmly believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be absolutely the best preparation on the market for colds. I have recommended it to my friends and they all agree with me." For sale by all Druggists.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutoinal treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

A SINGULAR VEHICLE

By ELINOR STEWART CATON

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

A seedy man, out at the elbows and looking as though he had slept the night in the park, stopped a gentleman on the sidewalk and said:

"My friend, you haven't seen a family consistin' of a woman and four small children—two boys and two girls, the girls lookin' like me and the boys like their mother—go ridin' by here today in a two story frame house painted yaller?"

"Excuse me, my friend. I'm in a hurry."

The wayfarer passed on, leaving the seedy man standing looking after him as though he felt very much hurt. Leaning up against a tree box, he waited for another person to question. A lady came along, and the man, pulling the rim of his hat, accosted her.

"Beg your pardon, ma'am. Have you seen anything of a poor woman with four children enjoyin' theirselves on an afternoon ride in a yaller house on wheels down this here street?"

The lady looked sorrowfully at the man, took out her portemonnaie, picked out a silver coin to the value of 10 cents, gave it to him and walked on. He looked at the retreating lady, then down at the coin in his hand, and didn't seem to understand.

The next person to whom he applied was a benevolent looking gentleman with mutton chop whiskers and spectacles.

"I'm lookin'," said the seedy man, "for a family"— and stopped short.

"Well, my good man, tell me about what family you're looking for."

"I've tole that to two pussons already, and they don't seem to know what I'm talkin' about. I thort I'd just call 'em a fam'bly to you, so's I wouldn't mix you up, and say nothin' about the rest of it."

"But how can I help you to become reunited to this family without your telling me more about them?"

"Well, if you're sure you'll understand, I'm lookin' for 'em to ride by here about this time in a yaller house enjoyin' theirselves"—

"In a yellow house?"

"Yes, two story, shingle roof."

"My good man," said the other man contemplating him thoughtfully for some time, "tell me where you live. I'm going to take you home."

"My residence is anywhere from 74 Union street to no number at all at present, Hopkins street."

"Poor fellow!" sighed the benevolent man.

"I tole you you wouldn't understand me. None o' the others did. What's the use o' my tellin' people all about it? They only think I'm gone daft."

He looked very much troubled. Taking out his bandanna handkerchief, he blew his nose sonorously.

"Come with me," said the benevolent man coaxingly.

"I don't want to go anywheres with nobody. I just want to catch my wife and children as they go by and enjoy the rest o' the ride with 'em."

"I think I can take you where you'll learn all about it. Come."

"Where you goin' to take me?"

"Oh, I'll take you where you'll be cared for."

"I don't want to be cared for. I want to know whether my family has gone past. There's a puff of smoke blowin' around the corner now. I shouldn't wonder if it's them!"

"I see. They're coming in an automobile. You confused it with a yellow house."

"I didn't do no such thing. The smoke I'm talkin' about comes out o' the chimbly."

The gentleman assumed an authoritative tone. "Now, my man, either walk with me to a police station or I'll call a policeman and have you taken there by force. You're off your head. I don't know whether you are a dangerous lunatic or not, but you need to be shut up, if not for the public good, for your own."

"I knowed it," said the man lugubriously. "I knowed if I tole you the hull thing I'd get myself into trouble."

"Will you come?"

"Who are you anyways?"

"I'm the president of the Society of General Charities. Now you know that I intend you no harm. I wish to help you."

"But I don't need no help. There! There's another puff o' smoke. I reckon they'll be turnin' the corner purty soon. Will you wait a few minutes? If they don't come along just as I said they would I'll go with you."

"Instead of waiting I'll go with you if you are satisfied the smoke you see comes from another cause than what you suppose, perhaps you will go with me."

"Reckon I'll risk it."

They walked down the street to the one where they saw the smoke and, turning into it, saw a windlass pulled around by a horse. Ropes led from it to a two story yellow house about 100 feet away, which was being moved in the middle of the street.

"There she are!" exclaimed the seedy man. "Come on. I'll show you the family."

The gentleman hesitated. Then, with an expression of disgruntlement, he was about to go on his way when he changed his mind and followed the other. Sitting in a window darning stockings was a woman, while children were running about.

"Hello, Moll!" said the seedy man.

"Hello, John!" said the woman.

The benevolent gentleman took a bill out of his pocket, handed it to the mover and walked away.

A Sympathetic Burglar.

"I woke up suddenly the other night and thought I heard a burglar in the room. I sat up in bed, and that awoke my wife."

"What did she do?"

"She accused me, as usual, of having a burglar; said I'd never hear a real burglar if I lived a thousand years. I said I'd bet I would. She said she'd bet I wouldn't. And just then a shadowy form rose from behind the dresser, and a hoarse voice exclaimed, 'He wins, ma'am!'"

"Did you catch him?"

"Catch him! I didn't try. I just lay there and laughed and heard him slam the door and run down the street. And, say, my wife was so mad she didn't speak to me for a whole day. But I'll bet one thing."

"What is it?"

"I'll bet that burglar was a married man."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

His Suspicions Aroused.

"John, do you love your little wife?"

"Yes."

"Do you love me very much?"

"Oh, yes."

"Will you always love me?"

"Yes. Say, woman, what have you gone and ordered sent home now?"—Pittsburgh Post.

Bell Clappers of Opium.

The infinite patience of the Chinese is well illustrated in a smuggling story which I heard from an imperial maritime customs official at one of the "barriers" on the upper Yangtse. The incident occurred several years ago in an attempt to avoid duty on a small amount of Szechuan opium that was headed for Shanghai.

"An important article of down river trade," said the official in question, "is the little belled and spangled cap worn by the Chinese children from two to six years of age. In passing a number of boxes of these in the spring of 1906 I chanced to notice that the tinkle from the little bell in the center of the cap I was examining was rather muffled. Forcing it open purely out of curiosity, I was astonished to find a tiny pellet of opium hardly a quarter of an inch in diameter which had been substituted for the clapper. Of course we had to search the whole lot, and our aggregate haul from about 5,000 caps—a couple of days' work for us—was less than ten pounds of opium."—Wide World Magazine.

Gleaning in England.

There is a popular but quite erroneous belief that a common law right of gleaning exists in England. A legal obiter dictum that a man who enters a field for the purpose of gleaning cannot be prosecuted for trespass received the dubious support of Blackstone. But a majority of judges decided in a case which came before the old court of common pleas that to grant a general right to gleam would be contrary to public policy, because it would "demoralize the poor" and "open a wide door to fraud." In many parts of England the privilege is confined to the wives and children of the harvesters. Yet the privilege of gleaming became so firmly established in England that the local custom has been recognized by many acts of parliament. In some country districts the "gleaning bell" is still regularly rung from the tower of the parish church during harvest tide twice a day to let the gleaners know when they may commence and when they must finish.—Westminster Gazette.

Embryonic Ones.

They had been at school together. They had fought both shoulder to shoulder and face to face. Now, after the passing of years, they met again.

"How's the world treated you?" asked the long, thin one.

"Like a lord," said the short, fat one. "Got my own business, wife and three youngsters, two thousand a year. And how are you?"

"How?" replied the thin man. "Oh, anyhow!"

"Dear me! Sorry to hear it. Let me think. You went on the stage, didn't you?"

"Yes. But I had to give it up."

"Why was that?" asked the city man.

"Oh, I thought it best," said the other. "I had a few hints that I wasn't quite suited to the profession."

"Oh, I see!" nodded his friend knowingly. "The 'little birds' told you, eh?"

"Well, not exactly," answered the ex-actor, with a painful smile. "But they would have been birds—if they had been allowed to hatch."—London Answers.

Wholesale Prices

We want to go out of business; that's why we are selling goods at cost. But you must remember that the original cost of high-grade goods is considerable. For instance, if you come in and look at a suit that was originally marked $25, please bear in mind that that suit cost us—with expenses added—from $16 to $19 in real money, and probably it was nearer $19 than $16.

If you know good clothes when you see them come here and you'll find your choice at the cost of the suit to us. If you don't know good clothes, this is the place to come, because we are absolutely on the square.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOL. XXV THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, JANUARY 5, 1912 NO. 18

MAYNARD SPOKE WED. EVENING

Third Number on Socialist Lyceum Lecture Course Was Best Given So Far.

R. A. Maynard of Los Angeles, the third speaker on the National Socialist Lyceum Course spoke at the Auditorium on Wednesday evening. Respite the extensive cold over 300 people were present.

Mr. Maynard's subject was the "War of The Classes." He said in part: More than 10 years before the Science of Evolution made its appearance fifty years ago. Karl Marx as great a Scientist as Darkin or Spencer had studied the industrial and social systems of his time and given to the world the law of social growth.

Socialism is not a theory it is a Science. It is a stage in the Evolution of society. The law of social growth given by Marx was that the industrial must lead in development. In other words man is first of all an animal. He is much more than that. But he is a physical being first and his animal wants and necessities must be attended to first. Primarily, Socialism has to do with, meeting these wants and necessities—primarily it means, food, clothing, shelter—General Booth of the Salvation Army once said that he started out to organize the Army, before he had gone far he found that before he could feed men's souls, he had to feed their bodies. This is the Socialist position. There can be no justice in our Social System until we have it down at the foundation of Society in the industrial system and justice that means justice all the way through.

While the industrial leads and must lead—while bread and butter conditions determine for the most part what the superstructure of the social system shall be, yet the industrial would not lead, there would be no progress even, if not for another law—the law of the Class Struggle.

All history—all progress has come in the past and must come in the future through conflicts between Economic classes having opposing economic interests.

Today in industry the product turned out from mine, mill and factory must be divided into wages for the workers who create it all and profits for the men who own the industries and the tools with which the workers must work in order to live—the incentive of labor is the wage, the incentive of the Capitalist is profit, (or rent, interest and profit). Here arises the inevitable conflict in economic interest between the two classes—The Class Struggle.

This struggle is the dynamics of Social growth, the motive power of progress—this it is that is constantly making for social and industrial development.

Our present industrial system is one of exploitation—the struggle industrially between the men who own the tools they do not use and the workers who are compelled to use the tools they do not own is an unequal one, a losing battle. The Capitalist class are able under the system to get the Lion's share of the products—the worker creates all but his share is a mere pittance.

In this country during the past 50 years wealth production has been greater than in any 500 years of the world's history—yet it has nearly all gone to the enrichment of the few, the great mass has not shared in this enormous increase as it should have shared.

Our fathers 100 years ago fought political tryanny, political oppression—today we are fighting industrial tryanny, industrial oppression. Poverty is increasing—there is not a social ill today that cannot be traced directly to this system of exploitation, the system that enables the few at the top to fatten off the life blood of the many. So long as it endures conditions will continue and grow worse.

Not until the workers, the producers organize industrially and politically—not until there is class solidarity at the ballot box will the system be overthrown and the class struggle end.

There is but one party that is a party. All others would perpetuate the system. The workers and producers alone are responsible for the continuance of the system—they have the power economic and political—whenever they are ready to stop voting in the interests of the Capitalist, and that means to stop voting the Republican-Stand-Pat, or Insurgent, the Democratic, whether Old Hunker or Progressive tickets and vote the ticket of the class they can have things their own way—the responsibility rests with them, the power is in their hands.

PETIT JURY POSTPONEMENT

Petit Jury Need not report until Feb. 26, but Court opens January 22d.

Owing to a petition circulated by Pennington county attorneys, Judge Grindeland has ordered that all jury cases, criminal and vivil be held over until Feb. 26th. This means that all petit jurors need not appear until that time.

However, the district court will open on January 22nd, and all cases will be heard that can be settled without reference to a jury. Those applying for citizenship papers will appear at the opening of court Jan. 22nd, as theirs is not a jury case.

BISHOP TO DEVOTE TIME TO LAW PRACTICE

Judge J. M. Bishop, who has for several years presided over the municipal court of Thief River Falls, will in the future devote himself exclusively to the practice of law. During his term of office Bishop proved himself to be a very efficient and trustworthy officer. He is a man of excellent character, and is very well read in the law; so that his interpretations of the same can be relied upon. He is a public spirited man and has the interests of our city and county at heart. Bishop has many adherents who would like to see him hold a county office, and that coupled with his good ability, has led some of them to suggest him as a candidate for county attorney during the coming campaign.

Judge Bishop performed his last official performance last Saturday just before supper, when he married Harold G. Haraldson, a progressive young farmer living three miles south of town, and Miss Clara Bergen, of this city.

Geo. Burnam, formerly in the land business here with his brother, returned to this city yesterday after having spent the past month in N. D.

FIELD OF SPORT

Local H. S. Play City Team. Athletic meeting at Aud. Both Take place To-night.

A meeting of the city athletic club will be held at 8:30 tonight at the Auditorium gymnasium. This meeting will probably follow immediately after the basket ball game, and everybody can just as well attend both, if they so desire. The meeting tonight will be for the purpose of further effecting a definite athletic organization. Members will be accepted and the membership fee fixed at $1.00. If this fee is not sufficient to cover expenses, dues amounting to just enough to carry the club, will be collected from time to time.

If the men turn out and take hold of this affair the way they should, the expense per member will be very small. It is hoped to get an exceptionally large membership by not making the club at all exclusive. Nobody will be barred unless he is manifestly unfit, and that means that every business man and young man in Thief River Falls can belong, with hardly an exception.

Don't stand back and make the other fellow pull you into this. Get into the game yourself. You need the exercise. Every business man needs exercise of an athletic nature, or he can't keep on a smiling.

It is indeed a shame to let a fine gymnasium go to waste like has been done with that in the Auditorium. The room is amply large, being 26x50 with a 22-ft. ceiling. It has the necessary water connections, and only needs to be fitted up with some simple apparatus. Come to the meeting tonight and help determine what's doing.

BASKET BALL

At 7:30 tonight at the Lincoln High School gymnasium the city basket ball team and the High School team will meet in, what is expected to be, one of the most interesting clashes of the season. The city fellows havn't practiced much together, but every one of them knows the game from A to Z, and what they lack in team work they will make up in individual playing. Both teams are confident of winning. The betting odds are on the High School, however, owing to the fact that coach Richardson has been putting the boys through their paces, and says that the people can look for them from now on to play some real basket ball. The city has secured Jacobson to play withthem. This is equivalent to giving a positive guarantee that the ball will not all the time be in the possession of the High School.

They will lineup this way:

City	High School
Lambert, rg	Iverson, rg
Schuster, lg	Brudie, lg
J. Erickson, c	Fossum, c
Jacobson, rf	Carter, rf
Walt Smith, lf	Adolphs, lf
Chittick	Boyden
Richardson	Pope

FOR THE LADIES ONLY

Ladies, three of your gentlemen friends in office have decided to furnish one incentive for you to start the new year along right lines. They are clerk of court, Ives, Municipal Judge, Tarrant, and County Supt. of Schools, Mostue.

The truth follows: The first lady who applies for a marriage license and goes thru the operation without any outside assistance whatever—the same as the men do when they apply for a license—will obtain the license free of charge, and may then be married by Judge Tarrant or Supt. Mostue, without charge. Summed up the charges amount to $5.00. Whoever the lucky couple may be, they will start out in life with a five-dollar bill to the good. Who will be first?

DOING OF COUNTY BOARD

Annual January Meeting Held. Years Printing Let Roads Talked.

The annual January meeting of the Board of County Commissioners of Pennington County was held last Tuesday and Wednesday.

Several items of important business came up for consideration. The years printing was disposed of and went to the following: The Commissioners Proceedings, and Financial Statement to the Thief River Falls News at 15 and 10 cents. The publishing of the delinquent Tax List was awarded to the Eleven Towns at 2½ per description.

All of these figures were exceedingly low and the county is to be congratulated upon the securing of all independent bids.

The proposition of the making of the so called Telephone Line road east of the city into a State road under the Ellwell Law was also considered and it was decided to start improvement operations on this road as soon as the weather will permit the work to be done in the spring.

The proposition is to build a first class road along this line out from the city a distance of twenty miles and at that point it will join with a road on Judicial Ditch system No. 13 and thus will ultimately make a connection of good roads covering the entire territory lying to the east of this city. One thing is certain, no matter how much money is expended in the building up of a road system to the cost of this city every dollar that is expended will bring fruit an hundred fold both to the city and to the country so the real value of the improvement will be two hundred fold. Let us get out and boost for this road.

RAMSTAD

Action has been begun in the District court by Matthias Ramstad against Carl Froseth, for damages due to injuries sustained in the runaway on Horace Ave., of this city, which happened about three weeks ago.

The complaint alleges that Mr. Froseth was the owner of a vicious dog, of a ferocious and mischevious disposition and accustomed to worry, attack and bite teams passing along the street, and that the dog chased and worried a team driven by Mr. Ramstad, with the result that a runaway ensued, and Mr. Ramstad sustained the injuries complained of. It is also alleged that the dog had, for a long period back, been a bad actor, and had long ago developed a dangerous and mischevious disposition, to the constant menace of passersby, all apparently with the knowledge of the owner.

Mr. Ramstad was badly hurt, but may consider himself lucky in escaping more serious injuries. As it was, his leg was badly broken, and in such a way that permanent injuries may result. It is to be hoped that this action tho hard on the parties concerned, may be an object lesson to such of our worthy citizens who persist in maintaining perpetual and dangerous nusiances around their homes.

Thief River Falls certainly has its full quota of such dogs, as owners and drivers of horses will testify. Hardly a day goes but that we have a runaway, or an incipient runaway, due to the activities of the canine, and serious accidents, like that which happened to Mr. Ramstad, are bound to occur, unless something is done to abate the nusiances.

Legally, the owners are responsible for injuries caused by their dogs. This case may be the means of puting pernicious dogs at a premium in this vicinity.

The case, unless settled in the meantime, will in all probability be tried at the June term of the District court. [illegible]

LAFOLLETTE IS STRONG IN OHIO

LaFollette Supporters are Rapidly Increasing in Taft's Native State.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—President Taft now finds himself in the embarrasing position of being forced to go to his native state of Ohio in an effort to stem the tide which long ago set in against him. It is officially announced from the White House that the President will make half a dozen speeches in Ohio the latter part of January. This announcement following immediately upon the enthusiastic manner in which Senator LaFollette was received in the President's state, is regarded in Washington as a political condition of more than ordinary significance.

The prediction is now made by men familiar with conditions in Ohio that if President Taft continues as a candidate for another nomination he will find himself in the embarrassing position of going to the Chicago convention without the solid support of the delegation from his own state. It is declared by men who have canvassed the situation that the best the President can do is to get the support of the delegates from Hamilton County, delivered to him by "Boss" Cox.

Senator LaoFllette's speeches in Ohio have served to cement the opposition to Taft in his own state. The Senator from Wisconsin, thorough student of legislation and of the problems of the day, dwelt on each of these great problems in his several Ohio speeches. That he is thoroughly informed and ready to grapple with those problems is shown in the following terse paragraphs taken from his Ohio speeches:

Tariff

"The passage of the Payne-Aldrich bill was the most outrageous assault of private interests upon the people recorded in tariff history."

Trusts.

"The people, through Congress, must have their own commission to regulate the trusts. It would differ from the Interstate Commerce Commission in that it would not regulate prices directly, but would be required to investigate, ascertain, and prohibit all of those methods of unfair competition that would come under the definition of 'Unreasonable restraint of trade.'"

Labor.

"A law which treats investors as innocent if they form a trust are guilty if they form a labor union, does not command the respect, nor appeal to the sense of justice, of the American people. The fact is the law (Sherman anti-trust) was not derstood by the people to apply to labor organizations, and it is a mistaken judicial construction that has made it so apply."

Progressive Movement.

"All great movements in government and society are matters of growth. The Progressive movement today is as surely an outgrowth of conditions as was the Revolution or the Civil War. It is a people's movement; a people's cause."

Popular Government.

"If there is one thing more than another which has been kept to the front in this campaign by the Progressives, it is the demand for the election of delegates to the national convention by popular primary elections, and a provision by which electors might directly express their choice for president in their party ticket."

Alaska.

"The sensible and practical thing to do is create a Board of Public Works for Alaska, similar to the Isthmann Canal Commission. This Board of Public Works should undertake not merely to build a railroad from Controller Bay to the coal fields but it should secure all the railroads in Alaska and [illegible]

NEW COUNCIL TAKES CHARGE

City Affairs In Charge of Entirely New Set of Men. Five Socialists, Two Independents

Five Socialists and two independents took their seats in the council rooms last Tuesday evening for the purpose of getting started the business of the city for 1912. Gulrud, Roth, Mousley, Tanem and Bjorkman are socialists; Backe and Aker are independent.

After former city clerk, Anderson, had called the roll, Tanem was appointed temporary chairman and the ballots for president prepared. Tanem received 5 votes and Bjorkman 1. The new president's speech of acceptance was short and appropriate.

Who was to be vice president had apparently been forgotten, for it took three ballots to decide the question, Roth winning with a vote of 4 to Aker's 2.

Anderson next called the roll for the vote on city clerk, with the following result: W. H. Quist 4, Anderson 2; Aker and Gulrud voting for Anderson.

It was moved by Aker that the former city attorney, Richardson, be reappointed. All voted yes, but Bjorkman, and Richardson was declared elected.

Bonds for the city clerk were fixed at $1,000, and bonds for the city treaurer, E. M. Evenson were fixed at $16,000. Both bonds were at the same figure as last year.

At this time mayor Backe submitted for the approval of the council his police appointments. Those approved were E. O. Erickson for chief of police and Rudolph Warner for patrolman. No other business was taken up, the council adjourning until next Tuesday evening.

People Show Interest.

That the voters in Thief River Falls are taking a lively interest in city affairs was shown by the large and attentive audience at the meeting Tuesday night. Dear voter, you should attend these meetings for some time to come; not for the purpose of seeing where the graft comes in, but to find out that our city council has to grapple with many problems that would keep you guessing, too. Before you get thru, you will wonder why any man desires a position on the council under the present system. So far as we may know, the men on the council now are no better nor no worse than what we have had before. If they fail, they will fail for the same reason that their predecessors failed—because the system is wrong. If they make a success, it will be because they have unbounded enthusiasm and a willingness to neglect their own business. The "Press" wishes the new council all kinds of success, and it will be the first to doff its hat to them if they succeed. If they don't succeed, it will not criticise unfavorably, but will suggest the remedy—COMMISSION GOVERNMENT.

PROGRESSIVES HOLD MEETING

County Central Committee Held Meeting Last Tuesday Evening.

The Progressive Republican Central Committee held a meeting last Tuesday evening and decided on taking active steps towards securing an endorsement of some strong Progressive candidate for the Republican Nomination. A letter from the National Chairman to the local chairman lent considerable encouragement. It reads as follows:

Head Quarters of the Progressive Republican Campaign Committee.

December 27, 1911.

Mr. Andrew Trovaton,
Thief River Falls, Minn.

Dear Sir:

"Your good letter of the 18th is before me. I have read it with unusual interest, and desire to thank you for your clear statement of the situation, and the excellent suggestions you offer.

"The feeling that you have discovered to exist against Mr. Taft is the same elsewhere. For months past every informed person has conceded that only a miracle could bring about his election, if he should be nominated. Now he is going to pieces even for the nomination. There can be no doubt of that. At the present time the reactionary leaders realize that he cannot be nominated, and they are engaged in a desperate hunt for some other standpat candidate with whom to rally their scattering forces.

"Do not be deceived by anything that you see in the corporation papers. The weaker Taft becomes the more loudly they proclaim his strength.

"We are especially pleased to know of your Progressive organization, and trust that it will at once become militant for LaFollette. If you will send us the names of its officers and members, together with any other Progressives you may know, we will mail each of them speeches and literature.

"I want to keep in close touch with you, and shall be pleased to have you write often to give us your view of developments and the benefit of your counsel."

Very sincerely,
W. L. HOUSER,
Chairman.

JONAS-FOX

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Jonas, last Thursday afternoon, December 28th at five o'clock occurred the marriage of Miss Emma Jonas and Mr. Arthur Fox of Mahnomen.

Only a few of the intimate friends and immediate relatives of the bride and groom were present at the ceremony which was performed by Rev. F. J. Seltz, of the German Lutheran Church.

The bride, who was attired in a gown of white messaline satin and carried white bridal roses, was attended by her sister, Miss Kate Jonas while Mr. Arthur Tanem acted as best man, little Alice Yenger bearing the ring in a large rose.

Immediately following the ceremony a sumptuous wedding supper was served to the assembled guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Fox departed on the Soo flyer for their wedding trip and upon their return will make their home at Mahnomen.

The bride who has made this city her home for several years, will be missed among the young people with whom she is a great favorite. Mr. Fox is one of the "Soo men" and well known and well liked by his comrades. Both bride and groom have the best wishes of their many friends for a happy future life.

FRAUD ALLEGED IN LAND DEAL

Fergus Falls, Minn., Dec. 19.—The United States government has begun suit in the federal court in this city to cancel the patent issued to Lorenzo E. Miller, covering 160 acres of land in Beltrami county. The government alleges that Mr. Miller, in order to secure his patent and acquire title to the homestead, represented to the land office officials that he was a native born American citizen, but concealed the fact that he had been in Canada and had there declared his intention of renouncing his allegiance to the United States and becoming a subject of the king of Great Britian. He had also applied for a homestead in Canada. The government therefore alleges fraud and asks for a decree of the court setting aside the patent given him for his land, which is declared to be worth in excess of $2,000. The complaint is signed by Attorney General Wickersham and C. C. Houpt, United States district attorney.

REAL REVENUE FROM LICENSE.

There is no argument upon which the opponents of prohibition so depend as that the legalized liquor traffic will bring to the state a large amount of revenue, which will help to pay the taxes, decrease the deficit and promote financial prosperity generally. When skillfully presented the statement sounds plausible, but a careful examination of conditions in license communities shows that the facts are misrepresented. The Portland (Me.) Evening Express gives the following clear and convincing refutation of this stock argument of the liquor men, from which we quote:

"Massachusetts has license, and to that state we have the right to look for the evidence either for or against the statement. Very fortunately we do not have to guess at this matter, as Massachusetts has a state bureau of statistics and its report has recently been given to the legislature, in which we find the following:

"Of the adult paupers in the state of Massachusetts 75 per cent are addicted to the use of liquor.

"Forty per cent attribute their pauperism to their own intemperate habits.

"Of all the adult criminals 95.45 per cent are addicted to the use of liquer. In 84.41 per cent of all the criminals, the intemperate habits of the offender led to a condition which induced the crime.

"Of all the insane adults 51.44 per cent are addicted to the use of liquor. In 30 per cent the intemperate habit of the person led to insanity.

"Now let us look at the financial account. Without quoting the specifications in detail it is enough to say that the total cost to the state of the paupers, criminals and insane, made so by the use of liquors, for the past year has been $2,612,410. The total income from license fees during the same time was $838,474.

"These offical figures show beyond controversy that the state has made a direct loss from this one source of $1,175,945.

"Remember, this does not take into account the tens of millions of dollars squandered in saloons by those who still manage to hold down their jobs."

"And yet there are those who say that the licensed saloons will bring a revenue to the state!"—The Union Signal.

CONFERENCE IS REFUSED

Dairy Commissioner, Favoring Local Creameries, Won't Talk With Centralizers' Ally.

Refusing to hold a conference with Secretary G. L. Hubbell of the Northwestern Cream Shippers' association, State Dairy and Food Commissioner Joel G. Winkjer yesterday declared that he considered it the duty of his department to favor the local cooperative creameries of Minnesota, as opposed to the large centralizing creameries in the cities. This declaration, made in an open letter to Mr. Hubbell, was expected by many further to heighten the friction between the two classes of butter manufacturing establishments in the state.

Before writing the letter Commissioner Winkjer, after a telephone conversation with Secretary Hubbell, had agreed to a conference with the latter. He later decided, he explained, that no possible good could come of such a conference and became convinced that his views could better be expressed in a letter to Mr. Hubbell, which he made public yesterday.

In his letter Commissioner Winkjer calls attention to the requirement of law that his department "take all proper educational measures to foster and promote the manufacture of pure food products," and declares that the co-operative creamery system is the one to which the department will give special attention, as it has, he says, demonstrated its superiority over the centralizing system in many ways.

RETURN CONTROL BACK TO PEOPLE

La Follette Says Big Problem Confronts Country.

ASKS NONPARTISAN SUPPORT

Wisconsin Senator Is Touring Michigan In Behalf of His Candidacy for the Presidential Nomination—Discusses Trusts and Their Relation to the Tariff—Declares Few Men In Wall Street Control Affairs of the Nation.

Saginaw, Mich., Jan. 2.—After speaking at Flint and Bay City Senator Robert M. La Follette wound up his first day's campaign in Michigan in the interests of his progressive candidacy for the Republican nomination for president with an address at the Masonic temple here. He discussed the trusts and their relation to the tariff, the money trust as the climax of all, and the necessity of returning the government, as he said, to the hands of the people. He asked the support of all, Republicans and Democrats alike, in doing this.

The Dingley tariff law, he said, by raising the tariffs high enough to eliminate foreign competition, opened the way for the trusts. In describing their rapid growth since 1897, when the Dingley law was passed, the senator said trust capitalization had increased "over 54 per cent during the four years of the preceding administration, despite the fact that a number of prosecutions had been begun. By that time they had become so strong that they defied prosecution."

"Alexander Hamilton, Henry Clay and William McKinley," said Senator La Follette, "would never have spoken of the tariff as they did if there had been no competition. The stand patter today is the worst enemy of the protective system."

Says Wall Street Controls.

He declared that a few men in Wall street who have no politics but who are interested only in business, control the affairs of the country and that the big problem now is to return control to the people.

"If I did not believe the Republican party was the best instrument for getting control into the hands of the people," he said, "I would leave it. If I believed the Democratic party was a better instrument I would join it. If I thought another party would be more effective I would form it. But I think the Republican party is the best instrument there is.

"There is quite a progressive sentiment all through the North. I don't know of any progressive sentiment or any progressive legislation in the South and the strength of the Democratic party is in the South. If the sentiment of the Democrats of the South were the same as that of the Democrats of the North I think it would be as good an instrument as the Republican party.

"A true American believes in democracy. He believes men and women are equal and entitled to an equal chance. But the Democratic party of the South is not by inheritance that sort of organization. All the strength of the party in the South is the aristocracy. The Southern Democrat despises alike the poor white and the negro and that is not the sentiment that makes for popular government."

DECIDES AGAINST LAYMEN

Attorney General Refuses to Prosecute St. Paul Mayor.

St. Paul, Jan. 2.—George T. Simpson closed his official career as attorney general by sending a letter to Frank J. Clemans, head of the Methodist laymen of St. Paul, in which he turned down their request to have the attorney general's department start proceedings to oust the mayor and police commissioners of St. Paul for their alleged failure to enforce certain provisions of the state liquor laws. Mr. Simpson, in substance, holds that the laymen had not presented sufficient evidence upon which to make a case.

Official Paper of The City.

FRIDAY, JAN. 5 1912.

Tuesday with 37 below Zero registered the coldest we have had for several years.

China the oldest Monarchy in the world has now become a Republic. With such transformations among the Great Monarchies what may we not expect from our most advanced Republics.

President Taft in his hot air tour made several Hundred speeches and never once gave utterance to a sentence which will live in history.. In that respect two past presidents beat him to an innocuous frazzle.—Roseau Times.

During the last decade the farmers of Minnesota increased their wealth eighty-eight per cent, yet the number of farms remained almost stationary. This stagnation in immigration signifies lack of advertising the prosperity of farmers who are here.

During the past year the Great Northern Express company paid a dividend of 882 per cent on the capital invested. So long as those in position to relieve the people from such exortions do not feel called upon to exert themselves, is there any wonder that socialism grows in this country? —Roseau Region.

We wish our brother editors would stop talking about such nonsense as to what Governor Eberhart would have done if Gordon had called an extra session. We have hundreds or real live questions that need answering and until these have received proper attention we do not believe there is any sense in all this speculation about "what might have been.."

No less a man than John Wanamaker recently spoke as follows about newspapers: "A newspaper whose columns overflow with advertisements of business men has more influence in attraction to building up a town than any other agency. People go where there is business. Capital and labor go where there is an enterprising community. No power on earth is so strong to build up a town as a paper well patronized and its power should be appreciated. The man who overlooks his town paper injures himself by injuring his town and itself.

BEER AND WOOL.

The American Sheep Breeder sets forth an interesting discovery when it says:

"Al Knollin has been doing a little figuring and finds that the people of Chicago are great consumers of beer. The population of Chicago is two millions and a half. The majority in every big city are poor, and the poor drink more beer than the rich. Mr. Knollin finds that the consumption of beer per capita during the month of May was $9.35, while the consumption of wool per capita during the same month was 8¾ cents. People of Chicago evidently like beer better than wool."

At this rate the expenditure for beer in twelve months would amount to $112.20 while the expenditure for wool reaches a little more than one dollar! This shows what a fearful tax the tariff is.—Waseca Herald.

In an interview Monday, Governor Eberhart states that he is not in favor of appointing a state immigration commissioner until next summer, as the department has only $10,000 at its disposal for the rest of the year, ending Aug. 1, 1912. The delay in the making this important appointment should be no longer than is necessary to find a well qualified man. The amount of money at his disposal is not large, but the right kind of a man could use it to great advantage during the spring months. If the deputy commissioner is to carry on the work under the direction of the immigration board, the administration will be weak and result in no great benefit to the state. The governor, auditor and secretary of state are on sixteen other boards and it is a physical impossibility for them to attend to all their duties on half of them. The position of immigration commissioner is too important to be administered thru a proxy. It must be in charge of a man of ability, and it is to be hoped the appointive board will act decisively and wisely in this matter.—Roseau Region.

THE COST OF THE LAW.

While we are engaged in trying to revise the tariff in order to reduce the high cost of living, there are other things, too, that ought to be revised. Among them none demands more immediate attention than the matter of the expense that has grown up around everything pertaining to legal procedure.

Carl Snyder, an eminent writer and student who has been studying the matter says—

> "We have in the United States at least five times as many judges as there is any necessity for and the chief occupation of these judges is the obstruction of justice."

In England there are, including [illegible] judges handling civil and criminal cases. There are 30,000,000 people in England. There are over 4,000 judges in this country and less than three times the population of England.

There are nearly as many judges in New York City alone as in all England and the annual salaries of these judges total $1,735,000.

Seventy-six of these New York judges handle appealed cases. That is, they preside over courts empowered to hear cases appealed from a lower court.

Here is where the trouble lies.

In England cases are not appealed as they are in this country. Once a case is adjudicated, the matter ends unless there has been a very gross miscarriage of justice. In this country, the first trial is usually just a starter and judges permit new trials and great appeals on the most trivial technicalities. This practice, now a mania, has grown to such an extent that the legislatures are continually creating new courts—and most of them are courts of appeal.

Occasionally the ends of justice require the rehearing of a case but too often a court of appeal is simply a court of delay. It is much too often a court where justice is locked out and where the litigant with the biggest pocket book sits down to tire out the litigant of more modest means.

Hundreds and hundreds of judges in this country are regularly engaged in hearing new trials and appealed cases, in fact the whole system of legal procedure seems to have been built to encourage the practice of endless litigation. Judges by granting new trials on more technical points have flocked the upper courts with extra cases, a very large majority of which should have ended with the first trial. The upper court gets away behind and the legislature or congress either authorizes more judges or create new courts. The extra judges order their share of new trials and the new courts increase the number of decisions that can be "appealed." Pretty soon everything gets tied up again and more judges and more courts are demanded. The system grows and expands. More cases, more appeals. More appeals, more courts. More courts, MORE JUDGES TO PRESIDE OVER THE COURTS.

And there you have it, until today we are fast becoming a court and judge ridden nation. The securing of justice is the luxury of the few.

In Minnesota just now there is starting a demand for the creating of more Supreme Court justices "because the court is so behind with its work that it can not catch up.". The court is probably behind—if it isn't, it is the only appellate court in the United States that is not. The remedy, however, is not the inviting of more appealed judges on hand to receive them, but to so simplify legal procedure as to cut down the opportunity of appeal.—Long Prairie Leader.

THREE ACCUSED OF DYNAMITING

Further Arrests In Los Angeles Explosion Cases.

Los Angeles, Dec. 31.—Olaf A. Tveitmoe, secretary treasurer of the State Building Trades council, J. E. Munsey, leader of the Salt Lake union of Structural Iron Workers, and Anton Johannsen, organizer of the State Building Trades council, were indicted by the federal grand jury in connection with the alleged national dynamiting conspiracy. Their arrest followed.

The three labor leaders, who have been here for some time as witnesses in the government dynamite investigation, were arrested a few minutes after the indictments were filed in Judge Wellborn's court.

None of them expressed any surprise and when told by Deputy United States Marshal Albert Sittell that they were under arrest for alleged complicity with the McNamara brothers and were wanted at once in the federal court they proceeded there without a word.

Governor Dix Asks Health Officer to Resign at Once.

GOVERNOR DIX ASKS DR. DOTY TO RESIGN

Accuses Him of Incompetency and Negligence.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 29.—Governor Dix has asked for the immediate resignation of Dr. Alvah H. Doty as health officer of the port of New York, a position he has held since 1895. Dr. Doty's term expired last January; his removal was recommended recently by Charles N. Bulger, commissioner appointed by the governor to investigate.

In his letter to Dr. Doty, just made public, the governor reviews the report of Commissioner Bulger, who declared that the history of the business administration of the state's quarantine "is replete with evidence of gross incompetency and inexcusable negligence." The governor says the evidence shows "a condition of squalor and uncleanliness in the rooms where immigrants were kept that shocks one's sense of decency and makes one ashamed of his country."

When Hats Were Taxed.

Hat taxes were always more effective with regard to men's headgear than with women's. Queen Elizabeth taxed the blocked beaver out of existence, and Pitt's hat tax of 1784 brought a substantial revenue. Stamps were fixed inside the crown of the hat from threepence to 2 shillings, according to its price, while the penalties for selling unstamped hats ranged from £10 to £20, and the punishment for counterfeiting a hat stamp was death. But an attempt to tax women's French straw hats of the watteau style signally failed. They were smuggled over in large quantities, and before this could be coped with watteau hats went out of fashion, and the tax was a dead letter.—London Chronicle.

Women Street Cleaners.

Many women in Munich support themselves by street sweeping. Most of the recruits of this army come from the country, strapping daughters of small farmers or laborers, and the task is a coveted one to those stout and wholesome young women, so that there is always a waiting list. They dress in a kind of uniform—Tyrolese hat of green, with a feather at one side, blue petticoat, red jacket and a neckerchief.

His Delightful Bull.

An Irish editor in speaking of Ireland and her woes said:

"Her cup of misery has been for ages overflowing and is not yet full."

Single File.

When the Indians traveled together they seldom walked or rode two or more abreast, but followed one another in single file. It has been thought by some that this practice resulted from the lack of roads, which compelled them to make their way through woods and around rocks by narrow paths. If this were the real reason for the practice, then we should expect to find that the tribes who lived in open countries traveled in company as do whites. The true reason for journeying as the Indians did in single file seems to be a feeling of caste. This feeling was at the bottom of other customs of the Indians. It made their women slaves and rendered the men silent and unsocial. This peculiarity is Asiatic. How it has warped and disfigured Hindu life is well known. Home is scarcely possible where it prevails. To the women and children domestic life is bondage. The women of a Chinese household are seldom seen in the street. The children, when accompanying their father, follow him at a respectful distance, in single file and in the order of their ages.—Harper's Weekly.

Don't Be a Chatterer.

Do you chatter? If you feel you do, don't! Get rid of the habit as quickly as maybe. There is nothing so irritating or more dangerous. His chief asks the clerk a question which requires a brief answer. Instead of replying in a word, he irritates his superior by inconsequent meanderings, and he is surprised and hurt to be curtly cut short. His astonishment, however, would be greater could he but overhear a subsequent conversation. "Shall we send Jones on this special commission?" asks the head clerk. "No," replies the chief; "he chatters too much."

It has always been so. Famous generals have ever intrusted important messages to the man who would rather be shot than speak. Then, too, a chatterer has few friends, whether business or otherwise. Who can feel at ease with a man who babbles all you tell him in confidence to the next comer?—Pearson's Weekly.

Try a Single Rose.

"We read," said Lucinda, "about how Adolphus brought to Luella a great bunch of roses, and we can imagine their beauty. We are left to guess at their cost. But do you know it isn't really necessary in order to make home beautiful to have a bunch of roses as big around as a barrel; that a single lovely rose will do?

"Try this: If you have spent all your money for hats and gloves and Adolphus hasn't come—my brother Claude would say hasn't come to the bat—stop at the florist's and buy a single rose. It will cost very little—and take that home and set it in the proper vase, its red petals and green leaves to please the eye and its fragrance to fill the room, an individual flower of grace and beauty and joy. If you can't have a bunch try a single rose."—New York Sun.

The Everglades.

The region known as the Everglades of Florida is about sixty miles long by some fifty-five miles broad and is one vast swamp studded with islands [illegible] covered with dense thickets of shrubbery, or [illegible] occasionally with lofty pines and palmettos. The water is from one to six feet deep, the bottom, as a rule, covered with a growth of rank grass. During the rainy season, from July to October, the district comprised in the Everglades is practically impenetrable. The vegetable deposit of the Everglades is considered well adapted to the growth of the banana and other fruits, and when properly drained the region will undoubtedly be one of the most fertile on earth.—New York American.

Struggle of the Rivers.

The discovery that there is a kind of struggle for existence and survival of the fittest among rivers is one of the most interesting results of the modern study of physiography. A notable example of this contest is exhibited by England's two biggest rivers, the Thames and the Severn. Between their valleys lie the Cotswold hills, and exploration shows that the Severn by eating backward among these hills where softer strata underlie them has diverted to itself some of the headwaters which formerly flowed into the Thames.

She Made a Mistake.

Two girls, the story ran, were drinking tea and eating scones at a fashionable New York restaurant. The first girl said:

"Maud is so sorry she took Reggie's ring back to Dymon's to be valued."

"Why?" asked the other girl as she opened a fresh scone.

"Dymon kept it. He said Reggie hadn't been in to settle for it, according to his promise."

Too Sane.

"I don't believe this novel of yours will hit the popular fancy."

"What's wrong with it?"

"Your heroine acts at times as if she had sense."—Washington Herald.

MILA TUPPER MAYNARD.

It was learned from the local Socialists that the "Old Guard" forces in Los Angeles were compelled to spend $500,000 to defeat the Socialist ticket on December 5th last, while the Socialists spent only $25,000, all of which was contributed by working people. The Socialists circulated five million pieces of literature, 800,000 of these during the last seven days of the struggle. Eighty-five trained speakers were on the platform on the side of the Socialists, many of whom refused to be paid for their services, which accounts for the great difference between the campaign funds. The "Old Guard had to pay everyone and during the last days of the campaign lavishly lined the pockets of all that would join in the crusade of doing "anything to beat the Socialists."

A VALUABLE SATCHEL

By EDWIN C. SMITHSON

"Put a few things in a hand bag at once," I said to my wife. "I have a letter from a man in B. who says he will publish my novel and give me 20 per cent of the price of the book."

"Oh, Henry! Just think of it! From poverty we will jump right into comfort."

"H'm! If the book sells."

"Oh, my goodness gracious!"

"What's up now?"

"We have only one bag, and I loaned that yesterday to Maggie Jones."

"Well, wrap some things in paper. There's a trunk store on the way to the station. I'll stop and pick up a satchel."

Ten minutes later I kissed my wife goodby and started out with a light heart. I had worked two years on my novel and had used up all but enough money to take me to B. I had offered my story to ten different publishers, and all had refused it. Here, at last, was a publisher who had had the intelligence to discover its value. But he must be a poor business man or he would not have offered me 20 per cent when I would have been glad to get 10.

I stopped in at the trunk store and found a bargain in a leather bag a man had ordered, saying that he would call for it. The bag was marked with his initials, but he had not called. I paid half price for it, the vender agreeing to erase the initials on my return. I had no time for him to do it then. Dumping my belongings into it, I hurried on to the station.

When I reached B. I met with a shock. The publisher who had made me the liberal offer had done so for the reason that he proposed when he got me to B. to soak me for $300 with which to get out a first edition of the work. His letter was an advertising dodge to secure a customer for his printing business. I gave him a piece of my mind, but what did it avail? Nothing. I started for home to break the sad news to my wife.

I was sitting in the train waiting for it to start, with my eyes shut and my hat drawn down over my eyes, when some one sat down beside me.

"Fool!" he whispered.

I started up and looked at him, astonished.

"What do you mean by putting your initials on you bag?" he added.

"What do I mean?"

"Yes. Are you crazy?"

I was on to something; that was evident. What I didn't know. I must dissemble.

"How did you know me?" I asked.

"Why, by the bag, of course—'R. L. B.' Besides, you were described to me as a sawed off man with a bad eye, mutton chop whiskers and a hook nose."

This was not pleasant. My wife always told me that I was considered more than ordinarily handsome.

"Well, now you've got on to me, tell me what you want," I said.

"Half."

"When and where shall I turn it over?"

"You're going to A., aren't you?"

I wasn't, but I said I was.

"Where do you put up?"

"At the S."

"Suppose I see you at 8 o'clock tonight."

Now, it was as plain as the nose on your face that there had been some sort of getaway with property by a man whose initials were R. L. B. It occurred to me that I might have changed bags with him, but that couldn't be. I had bought the bag empty, and it now contained my belongings. I was sure of that, because ten minutes before I had opened it. I am a writer of detective stories and always looking for material. I was a trifle discouraged by my late experience, but once a man gets the literary fever he can't get it out of his system. I must follow the thing up. To meet the man that evening would be rather quick work. But what matter? I could have a police force in an adjoining room to listen and if the plan ripened could arrest my man. So I told him I would be ready for him.

The police came pretty near spoiling the next detective story I wrote by arresting me as I left the station. One of them, who was keeping a close watch, saw the letters on my bag and took me. Fortunately "my pal" had given them the slip by crawling under a train and getting out another way. I was taken to the station, where my bag was examined and a nightshirt, comb and brush and toothbrush found, whereas they were looking for $200,000 in negotiable securities. The reward offered was 10 per cent of the amount recovered. I offered to divide all over $10,000, and the offer was at last accepted, since I threatened to keep mum on any other terms.

Well, at 8 o'clock my man appeared, and by a lot of talk that I had been coached in by the police I got him to give away enough for them to get on to the right man. I didn't go home till I had followed the matter up. It was a quick job, and when I did go home I had $17,500 in my pocket.

"Oh, my dear," exclaimed my wife, "I thought you were never coming! Did you make a good contract?"

"First rate," I said.

The next morning it was in the newspapers that a detective story writer had snared a big haul, and I received twenty-four offers from publishers for the book I had [illegible]

A BARRIER TO HAPPINESS

By LUCILE BARKER

There lived in the city of Philadelphia a widower and his son who were always seen together. The father was a little over forty, the son about twenty-one. The two always dressed alike, talked alike, acted alike and had the same opinions on subjects. Those who knew them intimately spoke of them as Dombey & Son, though their name was Hardwick.

All went well between the two till the question of the son's marriage came up. Jimmie Hardwick fell in love with a girl who had no means whatever and if he married her had not sufficient fortune to keep up his position in the ultra fashionable golden circle to which he possessed a birth right. In vain his father held up to him the fact that if he made the intended match the relations that had existed between them must cease, the older man continuing in the same social scale, the son dropping out.

Emily Sherbourne was a very sensible, practical young woman. She had no ambition to hobnob with multimillionaires, but she loved Jimmie and was loath to give him up. Indeed, she did not propose to give him up.

The case dragged, poor Jimmie loath to give up the position in which he had been born, especially since it would put a wedge between him and his father. But one day Jim saw signs that his father was himself contemplating matrimony. None of the widows or young spinsters of society seemed to have attracted Mr. Hardwick's attention, for Jim kept watch of him whenever they were "out," and the older man's attentions seemed to be general. Confident that his father would not think of marrying out of his set, Jim made up his mind that he had been mistaken and there was nothing in it.

Then he concluded to make one more attempt to win his father to his own intended marriage. He begged Mr Hardwick to call on his betrothed, hopeful that a view of her would so attract him that he would fall in with the scheme. But the father said that he had never made visits other than within his own circle of acquaintances and declined to make an exception in this case.

In an interview with Miss Sherbourne Jim told her of his effort and of the suspicion he had had of his father's attraction for some woman. Emily asked her lover if he had entirely given up this suspicion, and when he said that he was still uncertain about the matter she advised Jimmie to watch. Jim admitted that his father who was too aristocratic to use street cars, now and again telephoned to a stable where he got his livery, order a carriage and drive away, whither the son did not know.

"Why don't you go, too?" asked Emily.

"How can I do that?"

"I will give you a plan. The next time your father orders a carriage go to the stable and bribe the coachman to let you take his place."

"But father would recognize me."

"Does he always have the same coachman?"

"No."

"Very well, if you wear a coachman's livery and make up for a colored man your father will never dream that you are his son."

"I have a mind to try it."

"Do so. It may be that your father is courting some one not of his set. If he is and you discover the fact he will no longer oppose your doing the same thing."

Jim made all his preparations, and when he next heard his father order a carriage he slipped out through a back door and went to the stable, where a burnt cork transformed him into an ebony instead of a white man. Then donning a livery he mounted the box of a coach and drove to his home. His father came out, opened the door, gave the address and got in.

When Jimmie heard that address the expression on his face was not only one of wonder, but of astonishment. His father had ordered him to drive to the house where dwelt Miss Emily Sherbourne. His first impulse was to get down from the box and ask his parent what the dickens he meant; his second was to drive on and see the matter to the end. He followed the latter. On reaching his destination Mr. Hardwick got out and, ordering the coachey to wait, rang the bell and went into the house.

Here was a pretty pass—the son sitting on the box while his father was inside courting the girl he would not consent to his offspring marrying. It seemed to Jim that the call was interminable. What could be going on? He worked himself into a fury, then got down from the box, stalked up the steps and rang the bell.

Mr. Hardwick was sitting on the same sofa with Emily Sherbourne when the tete-a-tete was interrupted by a negro coachman with a whip in his hand standing in the doorway.

"What does this mean, pop?" cried coachey.

Mr. Hardwick was paralyzed with astonishment, and Miss Sherbourne burst into a laugh.

How through a friend in the gilded circle she had made the acquaintance of the father of her lover and drawn him on to visit her was her own secret. Her ruse was successful. Mr Hardwick turned his supposed conquest over to Jimmie, consented to the wedding and the three gave up society to be happy in their own home.

There are a lot of men, men who know good clothes and shoes, who trade at our store regularly. They may have come here at first because of our advertising, or because a friend told them this was a good place to trade, or accidentally; what ever the reason, they always come back.

It's the quality of the goods, the workmanship, the individuality and attention to details that make men become permanent customers here.

Baffling Boston.

After ten days we were able to find our way around Boston, but not across it. If you start to walk out in Boston you always come back to the place from which you started unless you try to; then it is almost impossible.

The transportation is fine, after you have committed it to memory. The hospitality of Boston we shall always remember, but not its street car directions. A Boston street car acts like a broncho. You never know whether it is going through the air like a bird, under the ground like a mole or beneath the bay like a fish. The motorman seems to make up his mind as he goes along.

The Boston language is sibilant and stylish. The Boston people love the soft, boiled "r." Out west folks pronounce "r" a good deal like a dog chewing a bone. In Boston they deal as gently with it as they can, as if it were not to blame for being in the language, although it doesn't belong there.—Horseshoers' Journal.

DISMAL CRY IS HARMLESS

J. J. Hill Says Year May Be Quiet but Prosperous.

New York, Jan. 2.—James J. Hill believes that 1912 will be a quiet year, but he says "there are almost 100,000,000 people in this country and there is no group of men capable of arresting their development and progress permanently."

Alarmists should not be heeded, Mr. Hill thinks. He says:

"The most dismal sound in the world is the cry of the owl at night, but he is harmless."

HOW HE GOT LIZ

By G. B. MARTIN

When I was a young feller jist gittin' old enough to make up to the girls all the boys used to laugh at me for a flat. I don't think myself that it was because I was so awfully stupid, but I was dreadful homely. That was what put me at a disadvantage. My eyes and my hair were a different color, and I was kind o' rawboned. All I was good for above the other boys was that I could lick any of 'em. But when it came to sprucin' up for a dance I hadn't a ghost of a show alon[illegible]de the worst lookin' feller in the [illegible]

My [illegible] mother tole me onct: "Elijah, if y[illegible] want to win a woman's favor do somepin for her. Let her see that you think kindly of her. Your father wasn't a good lookin' man when I [illegible]ed him, jist a rawboned farm[illegible], and I tuk him in preference [illegible] best lookin' feller in them parts [illegible] he used to come round when he hadn't nothin' to do and churn and milk for me. When I saw him churnin' or settin' on a stool milkin' to save me work I forgot his red hair and his freckles and his big knees and elbows and sot my heart right on to him."

I didn't forget what mother said, and when Liz Bunker come to take the school and I thort she was the purtyest thing of womankind I'd ever seen and wanted her mighty bad I made up my mind I'd try to make her forgit my ugliness somepin like father made mother forgit his'n. But what could I do? Liz didn't churn or milk cows. She taught younkers readin', writin' and 'rithmetic. I could't spell her at that. I couldn't go to her school and say, "See here, Liz, you jist go out and sprawl yourself on the grass and I'll teach 'em for you." I couldn't say that 'cause I didn't know enough.

One day after school I met Liz comin' home, and she was cryin'.

"Why, Liz," I asked, "what y' cryin' for?"

"Oh, don't bother me."

"I wish you'd tell me."

"It's them big ones. I can't make 'em behave by bein' kind to 'em, and I'm not strong enough to whip 'em."

"How old are the children that make the disturbance?"

"Children! They ain't children. Ben Hooker's twenty and strong as an ox; John Wilkins is nearer twenty-one, though he isn't quite as big as Ben. Then there's Ollie Smith—he's eighteen and can whip either of the other two."

I remembered what mother'd said, but I didn't let on about it to Liz. I said to her, says I:

"I didn't know y' tuk such old men into your school. Ef I had I'd 'a' been a scholar myself. I hain't got no eddication, and I want some. Will y' take me into your school?"

Liz said she would. So the next day [illegible] I set on a bench with [illegible] before me, and while I [illegible]in' I jist kep' an eye on [illegible] fellers, waitin' for 'em to do their tricks. Purty soon Ollie Smith threw a spitball across the school and hit Lucy Ellis in the eye. I saw by Liz's expression that she dreaded what was comin', but I didn't say nothin'. She reproved Ollie gentle-like, and he sent another ball at Ben Hooker. Ben throw'd it back. John Wilkins threw a book at Ben, and there was a racket on sure 'nuff.

"Miss Bunker," says I, "which one o' these boys would you like to see made to behave fust?"

"Any one on 'em," she said, her voice tremblin'.

"I think," I said, "you'd better give us a recess. A lesson in good behavior might break some o' the school furniture."

"School dismissed," said Liz.

We all went out on to the grass plot in front of the schoolhouse, and I told Ollie that his lesson would come first; that I proposed to give separate lessons and if any one not gittin' taught manners interfered I'd break every bone in his body some time, even if I didn't do it then. I think this kep' 'em off durin' what follered. Anyway, no one of 'em interfered to help the other. I soon laid Ollie on the grass, and I pummeled him till he was sore all over. Then I tuk John, who was the biggest of the three, but he wasn't fightin' for a purty schoolteacher as I was, and at last I downed him with a blow that broke his jaw. Ben said he didn't want no lesson, so the instruction was over and school tuk in again with all the scholars present except John, who couldn't recite with a broken jaw, and he was excused from school for the rest o' the day.

When school was out I walked home with Liz. She was the most grateful girl you ever seen. She said I needn't come any more, 'cause she'd give me private lessons, but I went the next day to see the effect o' my instructions in deportment.

It was the quietest school you ever seen. John Williams never come back, and the other two o' my behavior scholars was as quiet as mice. After school I tole 'em that if they needed any more lessons Miss Bunker would send for me, but they'd learned it all at once, and Liz didn't have to send [illegible]

The private lessons wasn't tough [illegible] larnin', but they was [illegible] would never have [illegible] After all, I got my wife on the same general principle that father got mother.

SEEING THE CIRCUS

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

It was several years ago, but Deacon Spooner is still shivering over his narrow escape. There was to be a circus over at Darby's Ferry, and a good many of the simple people of Delhi calculated on going. The ministers and deacons and other Christian people frowned upon the idea, of course, and Deacon Spooner in particular used all his influence to keep people at home.

Whatever got the matter with him on circus day he himself could never explain, but he got up at daylight and walked seven miles, and when the performance opened he had a front seat. A hundred Delhi people saw him there, but he didn't seem to care. In fact, he appeared to be having the best time possible, and he didn't even get conscious stricken over it when he got home.

Of course, such a break could not pass unnoticed. When Deacon Tyler heard of it he called Deacon Williams, and the two together called upon the minister and others, and it was decided to bring Deacon Spooner to account. He got scared about it and wanted to go to Iowa and visit his sister, but he was held on to and put on trial. When he was asked if he wanted to make a statement, he rose up and said:

"I said I wouldn't go to the circus, and I advised others not to go, and whatever got into me I can't understand. I went to bed feeling that circus performances was invented by Satan to trap the unwary, and that my face was set agin 'em like a flint, but I got up at daylight and headed for Darby's Ferry and struck a gait of four miles an hour. I was there to see the circus come in."

"Deacon Spooner, does insanity run in your family?" asked Tyler in very serious tones. "Have you ever lost your mind for a day or so?"

"If so I don't remember it. I've been told that I lost my mind when I came pretty near marrying a widow with nine children, but I dunno."

"And neither your father nor mother was ever an inmate of an insane asylum?"

"I don't think so, though my father acted a leetle off at times."

"Then you couldn't truthfully say that insanity runs in your family?"

"No, I couldn't."

"Could you truthfully say that your mind was unbalanced for the time being? Did you seem to be yourself or somebody else? If you was crazy, of course, we can't hold you to blame."

"No, I can't say as I was crazy," replied the deacon.

"But do you lay it to sinful curiosity?" asked Deacon Williams.

"I guess I'll have to. I'd been hearin' about circuses for the last fifty years and had never attended one."

"But you found it sinful when you got there?" asked Moses Schemerhorn, who rings the bell for prayer meetings.

"No, I can't say as I did," slowly replied Deacon Spooner.

There was a long drawn sigh and a shudder all around, and the minister said:

"Deacon, you may tell us what you saw there."

"Waal, the first thing I run up agin was four elephants. They was flappin' their ears and eatin' hay, and I didn't feel no sinful thoughts as I stood and looked at 'em. Can't a body see elephants and be saved too?"

"Go on, deacon."

"Then I took in the camels and zebras and giraffes. I looked at 'em over and over agin, but I didn't boil over and want to swear and fight. Fact is, I felt powerful peaceful over it. Is it agin me to look at critters with humps and stripes and long necks?"

"But they was connected with a circus," protested Deacon Tyler.

"Yes, I believe they was, but I couldn't help it. After I got through there I went over to look at the rhinoceros. By gum, but he was a hefty critter! He weighed as much as two cows and a calf. I admit that I felt a little bit sinful when lookin' at him. I made up my mind that if a critter like that tackled me in the road at night I'd bust my suspenders tryin' to knock his horn off. Is it too much to ask that my sin be overlooked?"

"We will hear further," said the minister, who wasn't looking so solemn as he might.

"Waal, they had an ostrich, two alligators, four hyenas and a sacred bull from India. If I was hurt by seein' them critters and things I'm willin' to give in, but I'm sayin' that I don't feel like callin' any one a liar."

"And you didn't feel that you had sinned?" queried Moses Schermerhorn as he shook his head in a solemn way.

"Not a feel. I even wanted the hosses to go faster and the fellers to flipflop the harder. When a feller came climbin' around with pink lemonade and charged me 10 cents for a small glass I did wish I had him in a ten acre lot for about two minits, but the feelin' passed off as soon as I had drunk the lemonade. I guess you'd have all felt the same, wouldn't you?"

The deacon was turned out of the room, and the investigating committee went into executive session, and an hour later it had—

Resolved, That while Deacon Spooner had attended the circus, and was liable to feel sinful he saw the hippopotamus first and didn't feel sinful and was therefore exonerated from all blame and was advised not to do so again.

A REALISTIC PROPOSAL

By EDWARD L. SICKLES

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

It was a day in November, the gloom without rendering the room, lighted by a fire blazing on the hearth, cheerful by contrast. I had been asked by Daisy to [illegible] a cup of tea with her at 5 o'clock. She served the tea in the Dresden [illegible] pink [illegible] with [illegible] gave [illegible] bread [illegible] handed [illegible] plate [illegible] the [illegible] napkin [illegible] knee [illegible] the [illegible] one [illegible] open [illegible] spilled [illegible] the [illegible] It's just [illegible] several things at [illegible] either the bread and [illegible] Besides, I expected every minute to break one of a five dollar teacups.

This part of it was over at last. A maid came in and removed the agony, and we settled down to a tete-a-tete. Daisy was young, barely eighteen. I was twenty-nine. I should have talked about some subject with a bit of meat in it, but Daisy had just emerged from childhood and was making the transit into young ladyhood. So I must follow her lead under penalty of being considered old as Methuselah. She hadn't entertained many grown men, and her dashes at the job were spasmodic. In any case she brought out a book with a lot of silly printed questions, to which persons were supposed to write stupid answers.

Not that I minded this youthful nonsense. I was getting on to that age where I wouldn't have minded going back a few pegs. Daisy opened the book, handed me a pencil with a point on it any one would know had been shaped by a woman—that is, blunt as a nail head—and asked me to write an answer to the first question, "What is your favorite color?" I looked at Daisy's lips and was about to write "vermilion" when our eyes met and I put in "blue" instead.

My eyes are as black as a stack of black cats.

The next question was, "Are you fond of poetry?" to which I wrote, "I love it dearly." This was keeping in line very well, and Daisy was much impressed with my taste and the delicacy with which I expressed it, but when I came to reply to the question, "What poem do you most admire?" I blundered. I couldn't remember any poem except "Little Breeches," and it would never do to put that in. Finally "Paradise Lost" occurred to me, and I wrote it in the book.

"What kind of a paradise?" Daisy asked, cocking her head on one side and looking at me like a canary bird.

"A lovely girl."

"Is that really the paradise meant in the poem?"

Evidently John Milton's great work was not familiar to her.

"I couldn't answer for that," I replied. "It's the paradise I mean."

She looked down on the book for the next question: "What trait would you most value in one you loved?" I wrote, ignoring the true meaning, "I should like her to be a blond."

"I didn't think you preferred blonds," said Daisy consciously. "I thought you preferred brunettes."

"Why should you think that?"

"Oh, I have noticed your attentions to a brunette."

A wave of self condemnation swept over me at stooping to this "really" dialogue, but I can't say that I was bored. The next question was, "What is your favorite proverb?" To which I wrote in answer, "Faint heart never won fair lady."

There couldn't have been a proverb more inappropriate. Daisy was so unsophisticated, so tender, that she might easily be won by a circus man or a supernumerary in a theater. I groaned when I thought what I was sinking to. But I proceeded.

"What age would you prefer the woman you would marry to be?" was the next question, and, knowing that Daisy's next birthday would come in a month, I wrote "seventeen and eleven months."

By this time Daisy's color had heightened a bit and her shapely bosom was rising and falling a trifle more rapidly than usual. I turned the leaves to the part where were the questions for women and, pointing to a column beginning with the question, "What is your favorite flower?" asked her to do a little answering herself. But in handing her the book my hand touched hers.

That was the beginning of the second part. She took the pencil and tremblingly wrote an answer to the question.

"Yes."

"You have made me very happy," I said before I had noticed that she had by mistake placed her reply in the space allotted to "Does music affect you sentimentally?" But I was glad she and I had blundered. I quietly drew her to me and kissed her lips.

That was thirty years ago. Our oldest son is nearly as old as I was then. I wonder if when he asks a woman to be his wife—the most important negotiation in life—he will go about it in the fool way I did. Why cannot young persons do this thing with some approach to dignity?

Hilda's Christmas Gift

By LIZZIE W. GOLDWIN

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

This Christmas story really happened. It occurred at an orphan asylum situated in the United States, where a number of orphans and half orphans are received, some children being taken from parents who are unable to provide for them. The buildings are located in attractive grounds and near the margin of one of America's most beautiful lakes.

Christmas was coming on, and the children at the orphanage were invited to write letters to Santa Claus, mentioning such gifts as they would like to receive on the approaching anniversary. The boys asked for sleds, skates, bats, balls and such other articles as pertain to youngsters of their age. The girls would have dolls, dollhouses, toy pianos, kitchen sets and other girl toys.

Hilda was nine years old, and her affections had strengthened as her years increased. They were stronger than her love for playthings. Most children at that age doubt if there is such a person as Santa Claus, but the children of the orphanage, not mingling with the world, retain the innocence of their babyhood and their belief in the white bearded old gentleman who brings the Christmas gifts. Hilda was as innocent as the rest. She did not expect that Santa Claus would bring the children everything they asked for, but she did believe that he would read their letters and do what he could for all of them.

Hilda's letter was very different from all the rest. Instead of asking for toys to play with or some ornament to decorate her person Hilda wrote to Santa Claus:

I wish for my Christmas present this year to see my mam[illegible]

The letter was sent with the rest to Santa Claus. Who transmitted them is one of those mysteries that is as inexplicable as Santa Claus himself. Nevertheless he received every letter and set himself to work to gather in the things the children asked for. But Hilda's letter puzzled him. He could cram a doll in a stocking or hang it on a Christmas tree, but he could do neither of these with Hilda's mother. Besides, Hilda's mother lived some distance away, and it would cost a good deal of money to bring her from her home to the orphanage. If Santa Claus could bring her in his sleigh drawn by the eight tiny reindeer the case would be simple enough, but there was only room for the toys in the sleigh, and human beings are not used to riding up brick walls, over roofs and down again on the other side. No wonder Santa Claus was puzzled. It looked as if Hilda's present could not be given her. That would be too bad, because she had asked for nothing else, and if she could not see her mother she would get no Christmas gift.

Hilda, innocent child that she was, didn't trouble her head about all this. She didn't realize that she had given Santa Claus a knotty problem to solve. She had simply asked for what she wanted, just as she would ask for something in her prayers before going to bed.

Well, Christmas eve came at last. The children of the orphanage always receive their presents on the night before Christmas, and Santa Claus brings the gifts in person. On Christmas eve the children gathered in the schoolroom and while waiting for Santa Claus sang a Christmas carol. They had scarcely finished when there were a jingle of sleighbells without, a ring at the doorbell and a kicking of snow off Kriss Kringle's boots.

Every child rushed to the door at once. It was opened, and old Santa Claus, with a bag of gifts on his shoulders, came in, bringing a cold puff of wind with him. The children followed him back into the schoolroom where a large Christmas tree stood, illuminated with electric lights and covered with spangles and toys. There are so many children at the orphanage that Santa Claus couldn't bring all the toys for them with him and had sent the larger ones before.

He tossed a jumping jack to one, a doll to another, a mechanical cab to a third, the matrons and other grown persons assisting in the distribution.

Poor little Hilda did not see her mother in the room and sorrowfully made up her mind that Santa Claus could not give her her present. All the girls and boys received their gifts but Hilda.

When it was all over Hilda went upstairs to do some duty—for being one of the older girls she was assigned duties—and while she was at work she heard voices downstairs calling:

"Where's Hilda? Hilda Burton, come here!"

Hilda went downstairs, and there stood Santa Claus waiting for her.

"Are you Hilda?" he asked.

"Yes."

"I have a present for you that is too big to be put on the Christmas tree, so I must give it to you now."

He stepped aside, and there stood Hilda's mother.

She took her little daughter up in her arms and hugged and kissed her while the others looked on, some laughing, some smiling through tears of the happy reunion of mother and daughter.

How did Santa Claus get the gift to the asylum? For an answer for this you must ask the good people who contribute to the support of the orphanage.

The Superintendent's Daughter

By ALEX. VEERHOFF

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

I was at work in Moscow distributing revolutionary documents. This is a bald statement of a very intricate work. To distribute revolutionary documents is to place oneself in most frightful jeopardy. First, the matter must be written; second, it must be printed, and, third, it must be distributed. To be caught doing any of these meant to be loaded with chains and sent on the long march to Siberia to live a horrible prison life and probably never return. But before beginning to get out matter a society must be formed for the purpose. We had an admirable secret organized circle under the direction of a single head.

My part was in distributing. I was given small packages of printed documents, which I was to leave at various places without being seen doing so. I had done considerable of this work without exciting, as I supposed, any suspicion, when one day, while carrying one of my little packages, on crossing a street I saw a man on the opposite side standing on the sidewalk looking at me intently. I went on without appearing to notice him, passed him, but refrained from going where I had intended. I knew that if he were a government officer who was on my track he would not arrest me till I had reached my destination, where he hoped to find confederates. I stopped several times to look at something by the way, in order that I might partly turn and look back without appearing to suspect being followed. In this way I satisfied myself that the man I had noticed was shadowing me.

The problem that confronted me was how to get rid of the package I carried. I dared not drop it, for my shadower would see it and it would surely convict me. And yet if arrested with it on me I would meet a like fate.

How quickly one's mind will work on the eve of a great trouble which may possibly be averted! One thing took possession of my mind immediately—I must enter an inclosure where I could remain long enough out of sight of my follower to get rid of my package. Members of our circle were well instructed in the location of police offices and in the residences of the officials. I determined to play a bold game. I would go to the superintendent of police, give him the package and tell him I had found it on the street. This was certainly a desperate game to play as well as a bold one. But there was a chance in it for me.

I went to the superintendent's house instead of his office, rang the door bell, and the door was opened by a servant. I asked if the superintendent—Alexis Sheloff held the office at the time—was in. The servant was a stupid creature and knew nothing about her master, but a young lady came down the stairs and told me that the superintendent was at his office.

"I am sorry to hear that," I said. "I have something to turn over to him, something that it is dangerous for me to keep in my possession."

The young lady looked interested.

"In passing through an alley," I continued, "I noticed a package neatly wrapped and tied. I picked it up and on opening it found that it contained revolutionary documents. I realized at once the danger into which I had fallen. Possibly some one was watching me. I was tempted to drop it, but even in this there was danger. Then I resolved that I would do what it was my duty to do—turn it over to the government. I have brought it to the superintendent."

"Father will be at home in about an hour," she said. "You might wait for him or you can go to his office."

"I would not dare to go to his office for fear of being arrested before reaching it."

"Then you had better wait."

I noticed that the young lady was suppressing emotion. She showed me into a waiting room and left me, but soon returned, her manner changed.

"If these documents are found here," she said, "they may implicate me, and you will be under suspicion. Better destroy them. Give them to me."

She hurriedly snatched the package from me and disappeared. In a few minutes she returned and showed me to the door. There across the street stood the man who had followed me. I walked boldly past him and saw on his face a very bewildered expression.

I concluded that there was no use trying to shake him off and that I might as well go home. I did so, and the man followed me, for, looking out between the window blinds, I saw him loitering on the opposite side of the street. I wished to report my adventure to the head of my circle, but dared not attempt to do so. I had not been at home an hour before a lady called at the house and asked for me. As soon as she saw me she said:

"Your adventure this afternoon has been reported to the director of the circle. Tonight at 11 go out and walk westward on the street. A carriage will draw up at the sidewalk and take you in. You will go to America."

She handed me a package of bank bills and left me. I did as directed, was taken into the carriage, run off beyond the border and came here to America. I was sent away, being suspected, and that I might not implicate others.

The superintendent's daughter was a member of a revolutionary circle.

A Royal Test

By EMMA L. SHANKLIN

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

The king of Holland—all this happened several centuries ago—sent a messenger to his daughter, the Princess Sophia, to say to her that his majesty commanded her to come to his cabinet. When she reached it her father informed her that he had agreed to give her in marriage to the Crown Prince Carl of Prussia.

"But I have never seen the prince," she said.

"That has nothing to do with the matter," replied the king.

"If the prince wishes to marry me let him come and woo me," said the princess, and she left the room.

What action his majesty took in the matter was never known, but presently along came the crown prince of Prussia with a splendid retinue to ask the hand of the Princess Sophia. Nobody but those most interested knew what was going on except that the prince had come on an errand of marriage and that his stay was much longer than was customary on such royal occasions. There were social functions at the palace, but the crown prince of Prussia and the princess of Holland were seldom seen together.

The truth is that Sophia received her royal suitor coolly. She neither consented nor dissented from his proposition for her hand. The prince seemed to consider the affair a diplomatic one and spent his time in those diversions which occupy men alone, paying very little attention to the woman he sought for his wife.

The princess not only paid no attention to this neglect, but appeared to be infatuated with Baron von Schelwig, one of the members of the prince's suit. Von Schelwig was a very handsome man and though this was his chief attraction, he was universally acknowledged to be a lady killer.

Prince Carl did not seem to mind the princess' infatuation a bit. He hunted and skated and played cards just the same. The King of Holland, to whom the alliance was of great importance every day dreaded that his royal highness would withdraw his application for his daughter's hand and return to Germany in high dudgeon. But Carl, who had made a formal application on his arrival, paid no further attention to the matter, apparently waiting for his reply from the government of Holland. Meanwhile, the encouragement the princess gave Von Schelwig was noticed by all the court, every one wondering how she could accept the attentions of the subordinate when the master had come to make application for her hand.

One day after a hunting party which was attended by both men and women the Princess Sophia, who had kept Von Schelwig in attendance upon her during the entire day, the hunt being finished, entered her carriage to dine at the palace. When passing through an unfrequented place she was stopped by a masked horseman, who rode up to the window and addressed the princess:

"The crown prince of Prussia, who has come to propose for your highness' hand, is sensible of the slight put upon him by your acceptance of the attentions of a member of his suit. But as a prince of the blood and a suitor for your highness' hand it is unbecoming of him to make any protest. I therefore take it upon myself to resent the insult thrust upon him. But to prevent a court scandal I deem it advisable to warn you. Know then that if Baron Von Schelwig presumes to join you hereafter at any court function I will call him to account as offering an insult to my sovereign and my prospective sovereign and shall kill him."

"Your royal highness need not be so fierce about it," said the princess. "I would not for the world jeopardize the life of the crown prince of Prussia."

"You know me?"

"I knew you the moment I heard your voice."

Carl tore off his mask with an exclamation of chagrin. Seeing the princess smiling at him, he hung his head.

"Now that I know my acceptance of your subordinate's attentions are distasteful to you, I assure you, I will not again permit them."

"I regret my action, since it will deprive you of the company of the man"—

"I do not love Von Schelwig."

"Then why, may I ask, does a princess of the royal house of Holland permit the attentions of one holding the lowest rank of any of my suit?"

"That I might discover the sentiments of his master."

"My sentiments! What do you know of them, except that I have, by my father's order, proposed for your hand?"

"Was not obedience of your royal father's order sufficient? Did your duty to his majesty compel you to threaten to kill a member of your own suit, whose attentions I have permitted?"

"The slight."

"Would a duel with an inferior wipe out that slight?"

The prince knew that he had revealed the secret of his jealousy.

"Perhaps your highness will give your horse to one of my attendants and ride to the palace with me," added the princess.

Throwing himself from his horse, Prince Carl entered the carriage and the two drove on side by side.

The next day the prince and princess were formally betrothed.

The Widow That Was "Called"

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

When they had finished the Methodist meeting house in the village of Hampshire there was nothing left to buy paint. It had been hard work to get the last shingle on the roof. They said they would leave things as they were for a couple of years and then finish up, but the two years ran on to ten, and not an improvement had been made. The church building had become weather beaten and dilapidated, but Deacon Harner and Deacon Smithers said:

"The Lord ain't askin' us to put on style. He will keep track of us in a stable as well as in a palace."

The only kicker was the Widow Saunders.

There was talk at intervals of at least painting the pews, but it never amounted to anything more than talk. There seemed to be a general feeling that when the Lord got ready to have the pews painted he would give a sign. Meanwhile ministers came and went. It was a poor parish and poor pay, and there was no religious fervor. In addition to this, the Widow Saunders had to be reckoned with. She never kept still for a month at a time. She was full of schemes to improve those pews, and it was a cold week when she did not call on the parson to say:

"I am trying to live so that I may go to heaven when I die, but I dunno."

"Why, Sister Saunders, what is it?" would be asked, although the good man well knew what was coming.

"It's them pews. You may have noticed me there last Sunday. I went to worship the Lord, but I had a crick in the back, a twist in the shoulders and a limp in the left leg, and I was thinking of liniments instead of the golden shore. Parson, if I don't go to heaven them pews will be to blame for it."

More than one parson tried to get the congregation started on the delayed improvements. The men would come together and talk over what ought to be done, but at the same time find an excuse for putting it off a little longer. There is always a climax to everything, however, and one came in this case. Of course it was the widow who brought it about, though she didn't plan to. She went over to Medina to visit her sister, and there was a religious revival on. Her pulses were started. She made profession anew. Evening after evening she felt her soul throbbing, and she finally called on the revivalist to ask:

"Brother Bebee, do you believe that individuals have a mission for good or evil?"

"Certainly, sister—certainly," was the reply.

"Do you think a humble widow woman like me has one?"

"I do, and it is for good. There is no telling what you may accomplish if you set about it in the right spirit."

"I have sometimes thought I had a mission to paint the pews in my church over home, but I've worked for twelve years without accomplishing anything."

"But keep it up—keep it up. All of a sudden some day you may feel that you have a call, and then you will be shown the way."

As the widow afterward explained to her friends:

"The very next night I was awoke by a voice saying to me that I had a call to paint them pews myself. I had waited and waited for others, but they had fallen by the wayside. It was now for me to do the work with my own hands. I had never used a paint brush, but the call would guide my hand."

The widow's sister had a lot of left-over paint around the house. The colors were white, red and black. She sympathized with the mission, and she mixed them together and used kerosene to thin the stuff down.

Not until next Sunday morning did any one in the village even suspect what had been going on. Some of the congregation hardly suspected it until they had taken their seats. The paint hadn't dried. It wouldn't dry until the last trumpet blew and perhaps not then. It smelled and smirched and smeared and stuck. Some got more and some less, but each and every one carried away a portion. Of course there was no sermon. There couldn't be. There was an investigation instead, and something awful happened at that investigation. For the first time since he joined the church Deacon Smithers swore. When the widow explained that she had had a "call" to paint the pews he waved his arms in the air and bellowed:

"A 'call' be durned! By the great horn spoon, you orter be made to lick it all off!"

"Deacon Smithers," replied the widow, "the revivalist over at Medina said that"—

"Durn the revivalist!"

For a week the affair threatened to disrupt the congregation. Then various other people had "calls." The paint was scrubbed off as well as possible, the pews were torn out and refitted, and a painter hired to put on two coats of white, and, once having started the work, it was continued until the outside of the building was painted and a spire pointed to heaven.

And a little later the pews were cushioned, and the Widow Saunders could say to the minister:

"I can sit all through a sermon now and not have a kink or twist, and I am just as sure of going to heaven when I die as I am going to have buckwheat cakes for breakfast."

WRECK VICTIMS REMAIN AT SIX

No More Deaths In Great Northern Railway Accident.

INJURED NUMBER TWO DOZEN

Broken Rail Ditches Passenger Train at Sharon, N. D., and Four Persons Are Instantly Killed

Devils Lake, N. D., Jan. 1.—No additional deaths among the twenty-four persons injured in the wreck of the Great Northern train "Oregonian" at Sharon N. D., are reported. There is nothing to indicate that more than six persons lost their lives, though it has been reported that there were eight deaths.

The body of the sixth victim has not been identified.

The wreck of the Oregonian, the Great Northern's crack westbound coast train, has developed into one of the worst rail disasters in the history of North Dakota. Four lives were snuffed out instantly, the bodies of the victims being incinerated as fire devoured the debris.

A broken rail caused the wreck. Fire spread through the derailed cars and added to the horror of the situation.

The train was composed of a mail, express and baggage combined, smoker, day coach, two standard sleepers, a diner and the private car of General Manager Gruber, who was accompanied by Division Superintendent Ennis.

Laborers Escape Death.

The engine and first two cars did not go in the ditch. The smoker was loaded with laborers being shipped to the coast. This car went into the ditch, but the men were only slightly injured. The day coach, standard sleeper and diner were the marked cars.

It was from these that four of the victims jumped, only to be crushed under the tons of steel, as the cars rolled down the embankment, and burned to death.

The thermometer registered 20 below and intense cold was suffered by the rescuers, many of whom were thrown from their cars without hat, gloves or overcoat. Every one joined in the battle to save lives.

Harrowing tales of the wreck and the terrible scenes incidental to the accident are being recited in a graphic manner by the survivors, some of whom carry their arms in a sling, others have their heads swathed in bandages, others are limping about, but all express their thankfulness for coming out alive.

INSANITY ON THE INCREASE

Census Bureau Shows Affliction Is Growing Menace.

Washington, Dec. 30.—Insanity in the United States is increasing more than twice as rapidly as the population, according to a census bureau statement dealing with insane persons confined in institutions in 1910.

The number of institutions canvassed was 372; the number of insane persons in the institutions Jan. 1, 1910, was 187,454; the number admitted during 1910 was 60,603; the number discharged in that year was 53,880. At the last special United States census of the insane population in insane asylums Jan. 1, 1904, numbered 150,151, and the number of persons committed to insane asylums during the year was 49,622.

MAYOR RISKS LIFE IN FIRE

Washington Court House, O., Executive Saves Records of City.

Washington Court House, O., Jan. 1.—Firemen succeeded in extinguishing the fire which threatened to destroy this city. One business block was wiped out as a result of the conflagration and damage estimated at $422,500 done.

In combating the flames fire apparatus that was rushed here on special trains from Columbus, Wilmington and Greenfield was used and with the help of the firemen who accompanied the apparatus the flames were brought under control.

Mayor R. G. Allen succeeded, at the risk of his life, in saving the city's records.

TRIUMPH FOR REPUBLICANS

How Chinese Situation Is Viewed at Washington.

Washington, Dec. 31.—Members of the peace commission in Shanghai have adopted rules and plans for the government of the national assembly that is to provide for the future government of China, according to a cablegram received here from a reliable source.

This action is considered here to mean the complete triumph of the republican element in China.

Mother and Children Die in Fire.

Suffern, N. Y., Jan. 1.—Mrs. James Baker and her two children Lillian, five years old, and Ethel, three years old, lost their lives here when fire destroyed their home.

REBELS ATTACK CITY OF HANKOW

Fierce Battle Raging Between Opposing Forces.

IMPERIALISTS ARE DELIGHTED

Believe Renewal of Hostilities Will Put an End to the Work of the Peace Conference.

Peking, Jan. 2—An army of 4,000 revolutionary troops attacked the city of Hankow. An imperialist army estimated to number 20,000 men occupies the city. A fierce fight is now in progress.

According to reports current in government circles the leaders of the imperialists are delighted at the outbreak of hostilities as this will give them an opportunity of avoiding the result of the national convention agreed to by the edict of the imperial court and by the representatives of the party to the peace conference at Shanghai.

By the terms of the agreement delegates from all the provinces of China are to meet to decide the future form of government for China and the imperialists are of the opinion that the national convention is likely to culminate in the victory for the republican party.

Hankow was the scene of severe fighting between the two armies on several occasions before the recent armistice was decided upon.

DEATH LIST IS SIXTY-EIGHT

Mystery Surrounding Berlin Mortality Has Not Been Solved.

Berlin, Dec. 31.—Eleven more deaths have occurred from poisoning, bringing the total up to sixty-eight since Dec. 26, when a large number of the inmates of the municipal night shelter for the homeless were suddenly affected.

Thirty additional cases of sickness also are reported and the problem is becoming more mysterious, as among the victims one at least was never in a public shelter and some others did not partake of the suspected fish.

Official experts continue to insist that the sickness was brought about by ptomaine poisoning, but they cannot ascertain where the poison came from.

TRAMWAY EMPLOYES STRIKE

Traffic at Tokio Almost Completely Tied Up.

Tokio, Jan. 2.—Three thousand employes of the city tramway are on a strike and traffic is almost completely tied up.

The strikers are demanding an increase in wages in order to meet cost of living which has greatly increased by the "campaign of economy" being waged throughout the empire to clear up the huge war debt.

This is the first strike in the history of Tokio's tramway and a peaceful end is being predicted.

OHIO PROGRESSIVE REPUBLICANS MEET

Refuse to Endorse La Follette for President.

Columbus, O., Jan. 2.—Progressive Republicans of Ohio met, formed a permanent organization, adopted a declaration of progressive principles, but voted 52 to 32 not to give their endorsement to Senator Robert M. La Follette as a candidate for the presidential nomination.

After refusing the endorsement of the league the delegates voted 81 to 11 in favor of a resolution, as a personal explanation of the delegates, naming Senator La Follette as "the living embodiment of the principles of the progressive movement and the logical candidate to carry them to successful fruition."

The vote came after a three-hour debate on the floor of the convention and was on the adoption of an amendment to the report of the resolutions committee, which had been [illegible]

Save Your HIDES

Cattle and horses now contribute to the farmers' comfort in a new way. The hides, instead of being buried with the carcass or sold for a pittance are turned into soft warm robes, all at a cost that sinks into insignificance when compared to the future service to be rendered.

This is an economy coming into a wide practice among the more thrifty class of farmers. It will result in the saving of a good many thousands of dollars heretofore spent for new robes.

Big encouragement has been lent to the idea by Andersch Bros., a well known concern in Minneapolis, Minn. This firm of tanners is said to render quick satisfactory service not only paying better prices for all kinds of hides but doing efficient robe work at most reasonable prices.

DEATH IN ROARING FIRE

may not result from the work of firebugs, but often severe burns are caused that make a quick need for Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the quickest, surest cure for burns, wounds, bruises, boils, sores. It subdues inflamation. It kills pain. It soothes and heals. Drives off skin eruptions, ulcers or piles. Only 25c at all Druggists.

NOTICE

The Annual meeting of the Bray Mutual Fire Insurance Co., will be held at the hall in the village of St. Hilaire on the 8th day of January 1912, at 10 o'clock a. m., for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year and to transact other business that may come before the meeting.

SOLVES A DEEP MYSTERY

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart," wrote C. B. Rader of Lewisburg, W. Va., "for the wonderful double benefit I got from Electric Bitters, in curing me of both a severe case of stomach trouble and of rheumatism, from which I had been an almost helpless sufferer for ten years. It suited my case as tho made just for me." For dyspepsia, indigestion, jaundice and to rid the system of kidney poisons that cause rheumatism, Electric Bitters has no equal. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50c at all Druggists.

GERMANS ARE IN THE LEAD

Irish Third in List of Foreign Born Inhabitants.

Washington, Dec. 29.—Numerically the Germans lead all foreign born inhabitants of the United States, according to a census bureau statement. In 1910 the foreign born population of the United States was 13,342,500, of which 2,499,200, or 18.7 per cent were Germans.

Russia and Finland come second, with 1,706,900, or 12.8 per cent, and the Irish come third with 1,351,400, or 10.1 per cent. Italians are next with 1,341,800. Norway, Sweden and Denmark furnish 1,250,800, 9.4 per cent, and Great Britain is represented by 121,400 or 9.2 per cent. Canada and Newfoundland contribute 1,196,000, or 9 per cent.

Atwood Meets With Accident.

Lynn, Mass., Jan. 2.—When but a few hundred yards from the Point of Pines at the start of his flight to Portland, Me., Harry N. Atwood met with an accident and fell into the icy water with his hydroaeroplane. He crawled upon the top of his machine and waited for a boat to go to his assistance.

STARVES IN CITY HOSPITAL

Louisville Man Declines Food for Eleven Days.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 2.—Voluntary starvation resulted in the death of Barney Hack, fifty-eight years old, who died at the City hospital after he had refused for eleven days to partake of any food. Several years ago he fell from a ladder and received injuries about the head. He was placed in jail a short time ago by relatives, pending an investigation into his sanity. PROMINENT MEN APPROVE SCHEME

International Commission to Study Cost of Living.

FISHER WILL SEE PRESIDENT

Yale University Professor to Call Attention of Taft to Proposal for Creation of Body—Hopes President Will Invite World Powers to Join in Conference as Preliminary Step—Resolution May Shortly Appear in Congress.

Washington, Jan. 2.—Acting in accordance with a resolution adopted at one of the branch meetings of the American Economic association, held here last week, Professor Irving L. Fisher of Yale university will bring to the attention of President Taft the proposal for the creation of an international commission to study the cost of living. This plan has been publicly endorsed by Senators Lodge of Massachusetts, Crawford of South Dakota and Smoot of Utah and others prominent in public life.

It has the approval of many of the leading economists of Europe, among them Alfred Marshall of Cambridge university, Eng.; Paul Leroy Beaulieu of France, Dr. Gustav C. Schmoller of the University of Berlin, Leonard Courtney of Penwerth, Eng.; Sig. Nitti, Italy's minister of agriculture, and C. Morawitz, president of the Anglo-Austrian bank, Vienna.

Cabinet Members Favor Plan.

Three members of President Taft's cabinet have approved the plan—James Wilson, secretary of agriculture; Charles Nagel, secretary of commerce and labor, and Franklin MacVeagh, secretary of the treasury—as also have Charles H. Neill, federal commissioner of labor, and Howard Elliott, president of the Northern Pacific Railway company.

It is Professor Fisher's hope that President Taft, either on his own motion or acting under the terms of a resolution of congress, will invite the world powers to join in a conference as a step preliminary to the creation of an international commission to study the causes of advancing prices and to suggest remedies to the various countries concerned.

There is a strong probability that such a resolution soon will be offered by either Senator Lodge or Senator Crawford, both of whom were members of the senate committee that made an inquiry into the causes of the present high prices of the necessities of life.

Public Interest and Unrest.

"There is now a worldwide interest in the subject," said Professor Fisher. "The deep public interest and unrest in regard to the cost of living is expressing itself also in many ways, such as resentment against taxation, strikes, bread and meat riots and other demonstrations of discontent.

"So far as most of the alleged causes of high prices are concerned each agent of the industrial world is trying to shield himself and accuse his neighbor and, as the Massachusetts report shows, the farmer accuses the middleman, the middleman the jobber, the jobber the wholesaler, the wholesaler the retailer, the retailer the consumer, the consumer the trust, the trust the labor unions, the labor unions the tariff.

"Almost equally diverse are the suggestions as to remedies. At present the whole world is puzzled as to the situation. This suggests the advisability of creating an international commission to get at the exact facts."

MORE OPPOSITION TO HOOK

Nebraska Railway Commissioners Join in Protest.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 2.—The three members of the Nebraska state railway commission joined Governor Aldrich in a protest against the appointment of Judge Hook of Kansas to the vacancy on the United States supreme court bench.

The objection is based on Judge Hook's ruling in the Oklahoma rate case.

The protest was wired to United States Senators Brown and Hitchcock at Washington.

Cost of Plague War.

New York, Jan. 2.—In the war against tuberculosis $14,500,000 was spent in 1911 throughout the country, according to a statement issued by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. This is almost the same as last year.

Some Indian Chiefs.

Spotted Tail was a strong character, a wise and really great chief. He would have been a statesman, diplomatist or able governor if he had been a white man.

Crazy Horse was the incarnation of ferocity—a fierce, restless warrior, who had made a great reputation as a successful leader of raids and war parties and had become at the age of twenty-six the recognized leader of the Ogallallas, the most warlike tribe of the Sioux nation.

Sitting Bull of the Uncapapas * * * was the embodiment of everything hostile to civilization, a perfect type of the savage Indian, a natural born leader of men, cunning and courageous.

Chief Joseph was the highest type of the Indian I have ever known, very handsome, kind and brave. He was quite an orator and the idol of his tribe.—General Miles in "Serving the Republic."

New York City's Seal.

A man who has done research and writing in New York city history explained the other day the significance of the two barrels on the seal of the city. Of the four spaces cut off by four windmill blades, set at right angles to each other, two beavers occupy the upper and lower, while a barrel is in each of the spaces to the right and the left.

"I can understand the meaning of the windmill arms and of the beavers, but why should the city of New York be represented by a couple of beer barrels?" some one asked.

The barrels are not beer, but flour barrels. In early colonial times under the English New York got the exclusive right to bolt flour, which brought the town such prosperity that the flour barrel was naturally an appropriate selection for the city seal.—New York Sun.

Don't Miss This.

If a woman has one daughter, who goes away, the Mrs. misses the Miss and the Miss misses the Mrs. If she has two daughters and both are away the Mrs. misses the Misses and the Misses miss the Mrs. If she has three daughters and two are at one place and one at another the Mrs. misses the Miss and the Misses, and the Miss misses the Mrs. and the Misses. If it is four daughters she has and two are at one place, while the other two are away from home and separated, the Mrs. misses the Miss and the Misses and the Miss, and the Miss and the Misses miss the Misses and the Mrs., while the Misses miss the Mrs., and the Miss misses the Miss and the Misses and the Mrs. So they would all better remain at home with the Mr. of the Mrs.—Judge.

The Lotus Flower.

Poets and novelists alike have given mythical texture and color to the lotus. The elder Dumas spoke of a lotus flower "pure white and with petals as delicate as fine muslin." Nor did the ancients treat the matter with more truth. Herodotus spoke of the lotus as of a plant which habitually descended below the surface of the water at sunset to return to view only with the reappearance of the sun. The lotus known to modern man goes below the surface of the water, like all nymphaeas, when its beauty and its freshness have passed and when the time has come to ripen its seed pod. Then by the law of life it closes its corolla and goes away from the air and the sunshine down into the water to prepare for the future of its family. It goes at the time when the sun sets, but it does not reappear. When it goes down as an individual it is gone forever. The petals described by Dumas as being "as white as the snows of Himalaya" are not pure white, nor can anything be called with justice "as white as the lotus flower," because a lotus flower may be red or blue as well as white.—Harper's.

A Porterhouse Steak.

According to the Encyclopaedia Britannica, the word "steak" is apparently derived from Icelandic "steik," used in the same sense as the English word, "which meant properly roasted meat, from steikja, to roast—that is, placed on a stick or peg of wood before the fire (compare Swedish, stek; Danish, stek, roast meat)."

The same authority says: "A 'porterhouse' steak is a choice cut of steak from the loin, so named, apparently, first in New York from a well known 'porter house' and eating house where chops, steaks, etc., and porter or stout were served, at which these steaks were a specialty.

"A steak grilled between two other steaks, which are not served after the cooking is finished, is also sometimes called a 'porterhouse' steak."

Not in these days of high cost meat would such a practice as the latter be very generally followed, however.—National Provisioner.

Lord Brougham's Dream.

Lord Brougham was one of the most stubborn believers in the "common sense" explanation of ghostly appearances as dreams. At Edinburgh university he and an intimate friend drew up an agreement written with their blood that whichever of them died first should appear to the survivor. Years passed, the friend was in India, and Brougham had almost forgotten his existence. Arriving late one night at an inn in Sweden, Brougham had a hot bath, and was going to get out of it when he looked toward the chair on which he had left his clothes and saw his friend sitting on it. Brougham seems then to have fainted. On getting home he received a letter announcing that the other had died in India at the very time. Yet this incident, which most people would put down to telepathy, at least, was dismissed by Brougham as a mere dream and pure coincidence.

A Rogue Elephant.

In "Big Game Shooting In Upper Burma" Major Evans tells of a famous rogue elephant that had for some time terrorized the jungle and that had finally been laid low by a bullet from the major's rifle. The author says: "He measured nine feet seven inches at the shoulders and had but one tusk. That, however, was a beauty and weighed close to forty pounds. The other tusk had been broken off at the root, probably in a fight. I took a bunch of maggots as big as a football out of the broken tusk. The poor beast must have endured agonies similar to a toothache. No wonder that he had turned rogue. I believe that nearly every rogue elephant is suffering from some physical hurt or disease that causes him constant pain and turns him from an inoffensive beast into a savage man hunter."

Wasted Wit.

"Crude country, America," the visiting Englishman condescended to say.

"As how?" we ventured to ask.

"I see by this mawning's paper that a man was held up and robbed here yestehday in broad daylight. Such things nevah could happen in London."

"No, of course not. You never have any broad daylight in London."

We thought we had made quite a hit with this bonmot, but the Briton said:

"Oh, hang it, you miss the point, y' knaow!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

High School Trims City; McIntosh Slaughters Commercial Normal School; Bren and Munson meet Tonight.

CITY VS. HIGH SCHOOL

Last Friday night the local High School scored their most triumphant victory of the season when they defeated the crack city team by the score of 22 to 1. The game was fast and well-played thruout on both sides. The city men showed that at some time in the past they had played the game as it ought to be played. They went gracefully thru the maneuvers that in erlier days had undoubtedly meant "baskets for them." With them it was simply a case of being out of practice and not having played together enough to develop team work. At times the men displayed wonderful flashes of individual work, especially Jordan, who had the spectators gasping when he nearly threw a basket while lying on his back on the floor; but the heroic efforts were all in vain and the city team went down to defeat without securing a single field goal. Their one lone point secured in the first half when Jacobson tossed a foul goal.

The High School boys were in fine trim and plainly showed the result of efficient training under the direction of coach Richardson. They used considerable team work and frequently had open throws at the basket. They secured 5 field goals the first half and 5 the second half. They had more opportunities the second half, but seemed too tired to throw accurately, due to wrestling with their heavier opponents. Carter was the star, he securing 5 field goals and 2 foul goals. Referees, Smith and Naplin, were impartial, tho both allowed the boys to "rough it up" pretty much.

C. N. S. VS. McINTOSH

On Saturday morning the Commercial Normal basket ball team left for McIntosh to play the fast aggregation of that place at their new gymnasium. The McIntosh men played the local High School team shortly before the Holidays and won by a small margin. Since then they have developed into one of the strongest teams in this part of the state and their ambition is set on the championship of the Ninth Congressional District.

The new gymnasium is a credit to the village, and is built by the basket ball men for their especial use. It is well adapted to the style of play used by the local men, for a wall is always near at hand in which to smash a lighter opponent. The team is made up of some of the best players which the surrounding country could furnish and they have plenty of weight to back up their aggressive methods. They are trained in boxing and wrestling and can show as good a mixed exhibition as one would care to watch.

The game was fast with the shades in favor of the McIntosh men. For a rough and tumble scramble after the ball with the "do or die idea" uppermost, it was a huge success. The score was overwhelmingly on the side of the McIntosh men, which is little to be wondered at. Only one of the Commercial boys was able to throw his man, and as the referee was not sufficiently schooled in the wrestling game he failed to award the fall.

MUNSON VS. BREN

Tonight at the Lyceum Theatre, at eleven o'clock sharp, Ludvig Munson, of Holt, weighing 164 pounds, and J. E. Bren, of Hallock, weighing 160 pounds, will battle for the wrestling championship of this section of Minnesota. An excellent new stage will be erected in the center of the house, so that every spectator—no matter what seat he has—will be able to see easily the movements of the mat artists. Admission for any seat in the house will be 50 cents.

Local enthusiasts are well acquainted with the work of Munson and know that he can deliver the goods. By virtue of his defeat of Kline at the Lyceum a short time ago, he is looked upon as one of the most formidable wrestlers of his weight in the state. Last Friday night Bren won over A. Norland, of Hallock, by securing the last two falls. It is said that he will be a pleasant surprise to the wrestling fans of this city. The usual interesting preliminaries will take place before the main bout, the big men to appear promptly at eleven o'clock.

HIGH SCHOOL VS. CROOKSTON

The local High School basket ball team will meet the Crookston High School team in the Lincoln gymnasium tomorrow night, Jan. 13. The Crookston lineup has not been obtained, but it is known that they have three of last year's team, and that they are playing a very fast game. Sufficient is the guarantee to know they are being coached by Smith, the man who developed such a worthy foot ball team for the same school. Those who saw the local boys perform last Friday night know that they are playing an excellent game and will give a good account of themselves tomorrow night. There'll be something doing all the time, so limber up a bit and be there to do some good healthy rooting.

WILL HAVE USE OF AUDITORIUM GYM.

Nielai, Smith, Forder and Bjorkman talked before the council Tuesday evening in regard to the use of the Auditorium gymnasium by the City Athletic Club. It was pointed out that the gymnasium was built purposely to afford a place of exercise for the citizens of Thief River Falls; that the room might just as well be in use as lying idle, since it is all ready for the athletic equipment and was originally planned for such equipment; that the rent should be just enough to cover actual expenses, such as light, heat and janitor work. The council was thoroughly in sympathy with these statements and agreed to the small sum of $5 a month as rental. The members themselves will pay for the apparatus installed, and for that purpose will charge an initiation fee of $1.00 the member. After the apparatus has been paid for, it is not likely that the tax on members will amount to over 25 cents the month. Now that

LAFOLLETTE FAVORS DIRECT PRIMARY

Is Willing That Voters Name Republican Candidate For Presidency.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—One of the chief differences between Senator LaFollette and President Taft is to be found in the fact that Senator LaFollette is willing and anxious that all of the voters in all parts of the country be permitted to name the Republican candidate for the presidency, while President Taft is determined to have the nomination regardless of the wishes of the people. Senator LaFollette is willing to rest his case with the voters,—President Taft, unwilling to do likwise, proposes to have the delegates from the southern states tied in a knot and delivered to him en masse at Chicago. The presidential nomination situation is presented clearly, fairly and without prejudice in the current number of "The California Outlook," which says:

"A striking and significant contrast, and one that is agreeable for the liberal mind to contemplate, is the attitude of the National Republican Committee toward a presidential primary as against that of the California Legislature and the Governor.

"The point at issue is simple enough. Are the delegates to the national Republican Convention to be selected by the people or by the leaders and local bosses? Is the nomination to express the views of the membership of the party or of a few individuals who have managed to gain control of the machinery? The question was put squarely before the national committee by Senator Borah, and a veteo taken. The Taft people stood in a solid phalanx against the direct primary, and, as they have an overwhelming majority in the committee, it was voted down. They had nothing to offer against the plan, except that they were sure of the delegates as the case stood and they were not willing to take chances on a veto to their program by the mere common herd of the party.

PROVENCHER HOTEL CONTRACT LET

Wednesday afternoon the contract was let for building the Provencher Hotel, to be located on corner of Horace Ave., and 3d st, to the General Engineering Co., of Fargo, their bid being $21,850, the lowest of ten bids submitted. The highest was $26,688, submitted by J. H. Leeberg of Frago. Frank Robins, of St. Clair, Mich., secured the contract for plumbing, wiring and heating at $5,500.

Hardware	$ 400
Excavation	500
Lots	16000
Plumbing,heating, wiring	5500
Furniture	6750
Building contract	21850
Total	$46000

Mr. Provencher was very well pleased with the number of bids submitted, and the reasonableness of price, considering what the plans and specifications call for. Mr. Gillespie, of Haxby and Gillespie, Architects and Superintendents, Fargo, N. Dak., in an interview Thursday said: "We have planned a number of hotel buildings during the last five years, one being the Great Northern Hotel at Devils Lake and costing $250,000, and we do not know of a hotel we have planned that the owner gets more for his money than Mr. Provencher does."

LOG JAM TO BE INVESTIGATED

Complaints To Be Heard At Commercial Club Rooms Next Tuesday.

Francis R. Shunk, of the United States engineer force, will be here next Tuesday, Jan. 16, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the Commercial Club rooms, in the Auditorium, to give a public hearing for the purpose of investigating complaints as to the obstructions of Red Lake River at different points by log jams.

All persons interested in this matter are invited to be present. While oral statements will be considered, it is requsted that important statements be submitted in writing, two copies of the complaint to be furnished.

If you have anything to say in regard to the reported log jam near the outlet of Red Lake, now is the proper time to make known your complaint. Be prepared next Tuesday.

VERY IMPORTANT

Now that Mr. Shunk is coming it would be most opportune for the people to bring before him the advisability of putting in a dam at the outlet of Red Lake. A dam would solve the navigation problem of Red Lake River. The Commercial Club should take this matter up at once and determine what's to be done.

SECOND MEETING OF NEW COUNCIL

Peterson, Supt. Water and Light Department. O. Jacobson Manager Auditorium.

At their second meeting last Tuesday night the new council continued with the work of appointing city officials, H. O. Kjomme acting as attorney in the absence of Mr. Richardson. The appointmens are as follows:

Dr. Vistaunet, City Physician
Melby, Street Commissioner
Paul Medrich, Fire Warden
Ben Christianson, City Assessor
Peterson, Supt. Water & L't. Dept.
S. L. Severson, Sexton
O. Jacobson, Mgr. Auditorium
Aker, Gulrud, Roth, B'd of Health.

The City Clerk's bonds were accepted, and the Health Commissioner's bonds fixed at $200. The council agreed to give the City Athletic Club the use of the Auditorium gymnasium for the nominal rent of $5 the month.

Mr. Bjorkman moved that the council make arrangements with Mr. Doege to the effect that the fire apparatus be moved from its present quarters to the auxiliary electric plant building. The reason given was that it takes about two tons of coal a month to keep the present quarters warm, which amount is much more than it would take in the new building. It is expected that Mr. Doege will be agreeable to having the apparatus moved.

Mr. Smith will continue as manager of the Auditorium until Feb. 1, so as to give opportunity of checking up the accounts and carrying out the business connected with this month's attractions. Mr. Smith took the news paper men thru the Auditorium and verified his statement before the council that the building had not been abused while he had charge.

Lang and Walker, engineers from Chisholm, represented by Mr. Walker, expressed their willingness to locate in Thief River, if the city would give them something reasonable in the way of positions and agree to give them the engineering work of the city.

Mr. Forder called the attention of the council to the benefits that have accrued thru the Poor House; and to the efficient manner in which Mrs. Bang has handled the unfortunates who have been given over to her. He recommended that the salary per month be raised from $[illegible] to $[illegible], and [illegible]

FROM THE COUNTY SUPT.

Mostue G'ves Good Idea of What's Doing In Our County Schools.

A happy Ney Year.

A new year with new problems and new posibilities is upon us. May we grasp the golden opportunities given and reap a full year's share of profits yes, even so in educational achievements. It is encouraging to know that with every task a full measure of power and energy is given to perform it.

Our schools will open again generally after Christmas vacation this week. We have had a very profitable school year, so far. Teachers are doing good work and attendance has been very good. It is to be hoped that the weather will not seriously interfere with the work of the schools during the winter months.

All schools, excepting a very few, have been visited up to date. Notes have been taken of the wants and requirements for the schools and the work. Much might be said along this line, but let me admonish our school officers to encourage their respective teachers in their work and extend a helping hand of co-operation in the arduous work. This can be done in many ways, which will tell the betterment of the school. This office has left a few copies of the Legislative Mannual for 1911. Through the courtesy of Hon. D. P. O'Neill, our representative in the legislature, each school district is provided with a copy for its library. Some of these districts may not have been provided yet, if so; will the school clerks of such districts kindly make your wants known. The Manual is an ellegant volume and should be found in every school.

Attention is called at this time to the notices for Teachers' Examination which will be published this week. The examinations will be held Feb. 8, 9, and 10th. On the 8th will be held the examination for 1st grade and on the 9th and 10th the second grade subjects.

The examinations will be held in the Lincoln building; every teacher wanting to take the examination must be present at 8:00 o'clock, and must bring along ink, pen and pencil.

Quite a number of pupils in the rural schools succeeded last year in the state high school examinations held. The number of certificates secured goes to show that the scholars in our rural districts can attain the same proficiency in the subjects as those in the graded and the high schools.

This work must be encouraged and the teachers planning this kind of work last year are to be commended for their success.

Can we not do even better in this respect this year? We had four graduates from our rural schools last year. How about the prospects this year? Will the teachers that consider possibilities of this kind kindly confer with this office. Everything possible will be done to facilitate the work of Rural school graduation.

Will teachers that intend to have a high school examination in their schools inform me of the number of applicants and kind of standing in which to be examined not later than Jan. 20th. The state high school examinations for rural schools will be held, for high and graded schools, Monday and Tuesday Jan. 29th and 30th, subjects: Senior history, senior geography, higher algebra, solid geometry, history of English, physical geography; in high graded and rural schools, Monday, Tuesday March, 18 and 19th. Subjects: Arithmetic, english grammar, U. S. history, geography; for same school, Friday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday May 24, 27, 28 and 29. All subjects.

The teaching of agriculture and manual training is about to become a permanent feature of the instruction in our public schools. School

CO-OPERATION FOR PENN. CO.

Real Estate Men Started Ball Rolling at Meeting Monday Afternoon, You Can Help.

Last Monday afternoon the real estate men got together in Shaw's office to discuss ways and means for securing the justly needed and rapid development of Pennington county and Thief River Falls thru the co-operation of the city and county as a whole. The real estate men will take the lead and submit plans which should meet with the approval of the people and receive whatever financial support is necessary.

An Explanation

An explanation for the reason of their first shot follows: The Northern Minnesota Development Association has an Immigration Department office located near the Union depot in Minneapolis. This office has in connection a hall 35x100 feet, and each county is to have a given space for the purpose of displaying their products. One man is in charge of this office at all times, and another man is employed to meet all trains—this with the idea of directing prospective settlers to the Immigration office. This man speaks several languages and his business is to show the people the different exhibits, distribute literature to them, explain conditions as they actually are in each section and answer any questions that arise. In a word to give all the assistance a prospective settler needs to get connected up to the proposition he wants.

The First Shot.

The outcome of the meeting Monday afternoon was that they started arrangements for getting ready the proper literature for distribution, and for a good display, these moves being absolutely necessary for a proper representation of Pennington county. O. A. Naplin was delegated to draw the plan of a 24 or 32 page booklet of convenient size. The primary object of the booklet being to advertise the farm lands in Pennington county, and to contain some information in regard to this city. Just what is to go into the book will be decided at a meeting in the near future.

The development of Pennington is a matter of pocket-book interest to every farmer and business man. They are the ones that will be benefitted eventually. The real estate men will take a given number of books, and the citizens at large ought to raise enough funds to buy and send a large shipment to the Immigration office. A better developed county, a bigger city is what you want. Let everybody co-operate and this result can easily be accomplished.

WHAT TO DO WITH TRUSTS

Mrs. Maynard Shows the Solution; Public Ownership, Not Regulation, Advised.

"The next quarter century" said the speaker, "will see a greater change in society than has ever come to the race. It will mark a transition into a period of industrial freedom.

"The Trust is not the great bug-a-boo that is claimed. It is a national development which is destined to be the means whereby the people may become industrially free.

"There is no solution for the Trust problem but public ownership.

"These highly developed industries are all ready for public operation.

"They could be taken over as easily as a city can take over a street car plant, when a franchise has expired.

"The same men who run the trusts now would run them then. They would all work for Uncle Sam as readily as for Uncle John D. Rockerfeller.

Socialists do not call the trust owners wicked. They know it is the system which makes rich as well as poor.

Individuals Not Responsible

"As long as it is legal no one need blame individuals, only how very foolish for the great rank and file of us to allow these things to go on when we could so well do them collectively, do them scientifically, rationally, for the well of all, rather than for the indirect benefit of a few.

"The Insurgents can not get any permanent results. They are too confused in their theories and their following is too mixed in what they want.

"A good many of the reformers now days remind me of the boy's expression: 'I don't know where I am going, but I know I am on my way.' They just know they are going somewhere, but do not know the steps they are to take and do not know their destination. You can tell better where to stop the first hour in the morning if you know where you are going to land at noon. So I believe a political party, that is not merely for this issue or that, but for a long line program leading to the industrial freedom of the race, is the safest one to trust.

"Moreover, it attracts to you only such people as are either willing to ignore their individual interests, or else whose material interests are definitely unified in this one great cause of human weal. Therefore, even for immediate reforms, nothing is so effective as the Socialist party that knows what to do finally.

"You ask: What does it want to do in the end? Nothing worse than this: Only that eventually the means whereby we live socially must be socially controlled; only that there must be no exploitation; that no person or group of persons must live off the sweat of another man's brow. That is all there is to to it. (Applause).

Depend upon it, when you think it means something that is very foolish, remember that it could not have commanded the practical allegiance of so many hard-headed men as it does the world over if this were the case.

H. S. Dahlen with Peoples State Bank.

A deal was closed last week whereby Mr. H. S. Dahlen of Detroit, Minnesota and Edward Mobraaten of Wendell, Minn., purchased an interest in the Peoples State Bank of this city.

Mr. Dahlen has been the President of the Security State Bank of Detroit, Minn., and sold out his interests there as he expected a better future for the territory around Thief River Falls. Mr. Dahlen will become active Vice President of the Peoples State Bank of this city as soon as he can arrange his affairs in Detroit which will be about February 1st.

Mr. Mobraaten is the president of the Farmers' and Merchants' State Bank of Wendell, Minn., and is also owner of several mercantile enterprises and one of the wealthiest men of Grant County. He will not at present locate here but being interested here will use his influence to boost this territory.

The Peoples State Bank feels very much gratified over this connection as men of such ability and means are hard to find any day.

TAXES REDUCED BY GOV. HARMON

CORPORATIONS MADE TO PAY

Chio Executive Saved Real Estate Owners $7,000,000 Annually.

BY A. V. ABERNETHY.

Columbus, O.—(Special.)—To prevent extravagance in governmental affairs, the Ohio tax commission has forced several public officers, who fixed rates in excess of the legal maximum of 1 per cent plus extras for sinking fund and bonded indebtedness, to reduce to the proper limit.

It was the first time in the annals of the government that such action had been taken, and authority for it was obtained under a law which Governor Harmon secured. Probably in no other state of the Union can such a reduction in the public expense be made. Before the present year there was no limit placed on the size of tax levies that public officers could make, and the result was that tax rates ranged from 2 to 6 per cent and there were prospects of higher ones.

The Ohio executive has accepted an invitation to address the delegates to the Tri-State Grain and Stock Growers' association in Fargo, N. D. Jan. 17, and at that time he will tell of his work in Ohio, and fully explain his revision of the tax laws that has proved so beneficial to the Ohio man of moderate means.

Ohio public records show that these reforms have reduced the taxes of the Ohio farmer and home owner $7,000,000 a year, and brought about a corresponding increase to corporations, which, heretofore, had been too lightly taxed. Federal government experts have pronounced the Harmon tax laws to be the best economic measures ever enacted.

GOVERNOR HARMON.
He Obtained Many Reform Laws of Importance to the People of His State.

Before this administration, assessors throughout Ohio appraised property without the supervision of a central taxing body, and worked independently of each other. Corporate property was returned to county auditors and corporation officers fixed the values in too many instances. The result was that all classes of property were not uniformly taxed. Some real estate was appraised at 25 per cent of true value, some at 40 per cent and from that up to 75 per cent. Corporate property was valued at from 5 to 40 per cent of true value, and the real estate owners staggered under unjust burdens.

The Ohio governor's first step to correct this condition was the establishment of a state tax commission, which was given general supervision over all local assessors and was given authority to force a strict administration of all tax laws.

The Ohio constitution provides that all property shall be appraised for taxation at its true value in money. Governor Harmon worked on the theory that if that provision was lived up to there would be no cause for complaint in taxation affairs. It was foreseen that if that were done there would be an enormous increase to the tax duplicate, and property owners feared it would be used by public officers to get funds for extravagant purposes. But the executive answered these complaints by obtaining laws that reduced extravagance by limiting expenditures of public money and, as a further safeguard, placed a low maximum limit of 1 per cent on the tax levy that could be made. Before these laws were enacted, there was no limit to the amount of the taxpayers' money that could be expended by public officers, and, as a result, expenditures by the state, county, municipal and township government officers mounted at the rate of $4,000,000 a year. During the past decade the population in Ohio increased 14.5 per cent, the tax duplicate only 35 per cent, while the amount of money raised for taxation mounted at the rate of 68 per cent.

The following figures show how much faster the taxes increased in the past 10 years than the population and tax duplicate:

Name of City.	Inc. in Popul'n, Per Ct.	Inc. in Duplic., Per Ct.	Inc. in Taxes Per Ct.
Cleveland	46.9	70.9	92
Columbus	44.5	39.0	14.
Hamilton	47.5	66.5	7
Coshocton	47.2	93.0	12

But one of the Harmon tax laws stopped that by providing that 1911 no more money could be expended than was paid out in 1910. definite scale of percentages for increases to take care of additional expenses caused by natural growth of cities and towns is provided for in succeeding years.

The people realized that the failure of corporations to pay their just share of taxes was the cause for the extra burden borne by the man of moderate means, but before the Harmon administration no executive of the state ever undertook to equalize the taxes. To do this it was necessary to increase the property valuation of the corporations. Figures announced by the State Tax Commission, a body created to assist in equalizing taxes upon the recommendation of Governor Harmon, show that in 1911 the appraisement of Ohio railroads for taxation had been increased from $166,469,599 in 1910, before the Harmon tax reforms, to $580,000,000. The additions to public utilities aggregate $1,000,000,000 while an additional $1,000,000,000 has been added to private corporation property. In 1911 the railroads alone will pay $1,633,260 more taxes than than they did in 1910.

The big tax duplicates have brought about the following reduction in the tax rates per $100 of property in the following cities:

Name of City.	1910	1911
Cleveland	$3.18	$1.29
Columbus	3.12	1.35
Hamilton	3.13	1.09
Coshocton	3.60	1.16

In the country districts there also was a big reduction, as the following figures per $100 of property show:

	1910	1911
Wren dist., Van W. Co.	$3.27	.99
Fairfield dist., Butler Co.	1.55	.55
Hanover dist., Butler Co.	2.00	.60
Bedford dist., Coshocton	1.32	.79

After the revision, the property owners who had been paying the most taxes paid less, while those who had been too lightly taxed found their tax bills had been increased. This followed as a logical consequence of the policy of making the largest increases to the taxable values of property that had been favored with low valuations under the old system.

Records of the tax commission show farmers and home owners had been paying on a higher basis than holders of corporate property. Now the former are paying millions less annually as the following table shows:

1910 Realty duplicate	$1,661,669,958
1910 Tax rate	3 per cent
Taxes paid 1910	$49,850,098.74
1911 Realty duplicate	$4,246,428,560
1911 Tax Rate	1 per cen
Taxes paid 1911	$42,461,285.69
Reduction 1911	7,385,813.05

The corporations make up in increased tax payments the reduction of over $7,000,000, which the farmer and home owner obtained. And there has been no litigation, the corporations being satisfied they have been justly dealt with.

Many taxing officials and property owners have issued statements dealing with the benefits that have come with the tax reforms.

Auditor Alexander of Ross county recently declared, "In a number of taxing districts of our county the people can pay their whole year's taxes at the December collection and still pay out less money than they paid before for the half year. Ninety per cent of our people will pay less taxes than they paid last year. The other 10 per cent will pay more, because they have been escaping taxation in the past."

Frank R. Vance, a member of the Columbus board of tax review says: "One interesting effect of the new rate has been to make money much easier to loan in Columbus on real estate mortgage security. When the old $3.12 and $3.29 rates per $100 of property were in effect in Columbus, people invested their funds in nontaxable bonds, paying 3 and 4 per cent interest to escape the high tax rate. That investment was better than to loan money on mortgages at 6 per cent and have to pay over half of the income in taxes. With the low rate, the people can loan money at 6 per cent, list the mortgage for taxation and still be better off than they were when they put their money into bonds. The low tax rate is a great encouragement to home building. Take the case of the average citizen with a house worth $3,000. Under the old system it was appraised at $1,800 to $2,000, and the rate $3.12 brought the taxes to $60 a year. The full appraisal today is $3,000 and with a 1 per cent tax rate the tax bill is only $30 a year, a substantial encouragement to the man who wants to own the roof over his head."

These tax reforms are relied upon by Ohio friends of Governor Harmon to answer the charge, frequently made, that he is a representative of big business.

To get into line those skeptics who assert that Governor Harmon is not progressive enough to suit them, the Ohio executive has a list of bills enacted in the 1911 session of the Ohio legislature that, for progressiveness are the equal of any legislative program to the credit of any governor in the United States.

Slips of the Tongue.

In a case tried before a magistrate in Glasgow the defending agent made reference to a verbal agreement between the parties. "Let's see yer verbal agreement," the magistrate said "Hand it up here."

At a parish council meeting, when a petition for some increase of wages was under consideration, the chairman said peevishly: "A canna mak' heid nor tail o' this dockyment. It's jist like Alphy and Omegy—it's got neither beginning nor end."—Glasgow Herald.

The Steeplechase.

The first steeplechases were literally "chases to a steeple." The earliest we can discover was a match in 1752 between Edmund Blake and Mr. O'Callaghan over four and a half miles of stiff country between the church of Buttevant and St. Leger church spire.—London Tatler.

A UNIQUE CHALLENGE

By F. A. MITCHEL

During the days when our regular army's only active service was in western frontier forts, with an occasional brush with Indians, a misunderstanding grew up between Colonel Blakeslee, the commander of one of these posts, and Major Truesdale, the surgeon. Blakeslee was a very overbearing man. He was a good fighter, and as he was small in stature and of a swarthy complexion he acquired the sobriquet of "little black god of war."

A surgeon in the army cannot be called a noncombatant, for he must expose himself to fire the same as the fighters. Indeed, he has more need of nerve, because while he is unmoved by the excitement of battle, he must do his work with a cool head. Nevertheless Colonel Blakeslee in order to be annoying to his inferior was always making innuendos as to the unwarlike work of the medical department. Truesdale was obliged to bear these slurs because he had no recourse against a superior officer except preferring charges, and in his case there were no charges to be brought forth worthy of the consideration of a court martial.

There is nothing more galling than the petty slurs of one under whose control is the subject of the persecution. Truesdale suffered the colonel's innuendoes as men will endure a spattering of bullets coming from a shelter they are not permitted to move upon. The surgeon was a man of great equipoise, and no one noticed from his demeanor that he was annoyed. Nevertheless there was in his breast a smoldering fire. He would have challenged his commander to end their disagreement at the point of a pistol, but a challenge of a superior by an inferior would be mutiny. Besides, dueling has never been recognized in the United States army, and without a more tangible cause than the one in this case a challenge would have reacted upon the surgeon.

The colonel, not observing any effect from his slurs, began to inflict upon his subordinate acts of petty tyranny for which any superior officer can find causes without hunting for them. The doctor bore them all without complaint, but fire was ready to burst forth at any moment.

Then came one of those frequent breaks of the Indians from their reservation, and the command was ordered out to drive them back. One afternoon the little force of white men were confronting thrice their number of Indians. The colonel did not feel warranted in attacking them, especially as he was expecting any moment to be re-enforced. While he was consulting with his officers Truesdale rode up to the group and, saluting his commander, said:

"Colonel, if you will ride out to the skirmish line with me I think I can show you a weak point in the Indians' formation which, if attacked, will separate them and result in scattering them."

Now, the skirmish line was the edge of a wood, and the skirmishers were all concealed behind trees, the Indians occupying another wood beyond a clearing. Everybody knew that a ride on the skirmish line meant probable death, and every one who heard the surgeon's proposition knew that it was a covered challenge. No one knew this better than the "little black god of war." Turning his horse's head, the doctor riding beside him, he galloped to the edge of the wood. There he drew rein, but Truesdale rode right out into the clearing.

They were greeted by scattered bullets from the Indians, but the distance was considerable, and as they kept moving neither was hit. Truesdale now assumed the lead, the colonel keeping abreast of him. The two men, watched by their comrades, rode toward the center of the clearing. Every now and again a white puff of smoke would appear on the edge of the opposite wood, followed by a [illegible] but he rode on. Thicker came the balls, but neither flinched. Then the doctor's horse was struck, but his rider spurred him on. Reaching the center of the clearing, he turned by the flank and rode between the lines. The firing lulled for a few minutes. The Indians did not understand this strange performance.

Then suddenly, just as the two officers were nearing a clump of trees which would have protected them, the colonel's horse was struck by a shot behind the fore leg and pitched forward dead. His rider fell under him and was stunned.

The doctor was now face to face with his own especial work, that of succoring the wounded on the field of battle. Dismounting, he extricated his commander, lifted him on to the living horse and supported him while he made his way to the trees, and the two combatants in this strange duel were sheltered.

When the Indians were driven back on to their reservation and all were again settled to the humdrum of garrison life the colonel was a changed man. He knew that he had fought a duel against which the army regulations made no provision and that if he had not been worsted in bravery he had been outdone in magnanimity. Surgeon Truesdale suffered no more from spiteful remarks at not belonging to the fighting corps of the army and other petty tyrannies, and from that time forward he was the most respected man in the command.

A Genius.

"Your mother in law never pays you a long visit," said one man to another.

"How is that?"

"She did once, but I got my mother to come on a visit at the same time."

Cleaning an Ocean Liner.

Probably few people are aware that during the few hours a great ocean liner remains in dock she is cleaned thoroughly inside and out. The hull is repainted, the funnels scraped and cleaned and every piece of exposed metal polished. Meanwhile all carpets are taken up and beaten, the floors scrubbed and repainted and tables repolished, chairs regilded and stained, in every part of the ship. On the great boats there are more than 30,000 pieces of linen to be counted, sorted, prepared and laundered. Then there are 15,000 pieces of silverware, 25,000 pieces of glassware, some 60,000 dishes, plates, cups, saucers, etc. As soon as a piece shows signs of wear it is discarded and replaced, and all this work has to be done in a few hours.—Pearson's Weekly.

Vegetables and Character.

A Paris contemporary states that a well known doctor read a paper before a meeting of medical men on the influence of vegetables upon the character, the brain and the senses. According to the doctor, the potato develops an evenness of temper and calmness of thought. The carrot acts as a stimulant to the character and is recommended for biliousness and to peevish or jealous persons. Spinach develops ambitious dreams and energy. Sorrel, despite its acidity, induces sadness and provokes nightmare. All workers should eat white haricots.—London Globe.

A Thrifty Spouse.

A man whose illness threatened to develop into typhoid was taken to the hospital. Instead of growing worse he improved, and at the end of the fourth day, when his wife visited him, he asked to be taken home.

"But you have paid for a week," replied his thrifty spouse. "They won't refund the money. You had better stay your week out."—New York Herald.

Proving His Own Medicine.

Official Paper of The City.

FRIDAY, JAN. 12 1912.

The only way a man can know his own strength or weakness is by comparing his own power with that of other men.

The city of Duluth is entering into a red hot fight in which the public ownership of an electric light system of the city is envolved. In as much as that city has long owned a water and gas system and that has been absolutely satisfactory we can hardly see why they should hesitate in increasing their holdings.

The Editor had the pleasant privilege of spending a couple of days in Duluth since the last issue came forth. Duluth is certainly a progressive city. Its business men are wide awake and, altho the days that we spent there were the coldest of the season, yet every man showed distinctly his tendency toward hard work. By its Geographical location Duluth is destined some day to be the largest and most prosperous city in our state and it is to be hoped that the progressive spirit of that city will not only work incessantly for a larger but also for a better Duluth.

MAIL ORDER DEAL

Down in Oklahoma the other day a man went into a store to buy a saw. He saw the kind he wanted and asked the price. It was $1.65, the dealer said.

"Good gracious!" said the man "I can get the same thing from Sears Roebuck & Co., for $1.35"

"That's less than it cost me," said the dealer, but I'll sell it on the same terms as the mail order house just the same."

"All right," said the customer. "You can send it along and charge it to my account."

"Not on your life," the dealer replied. "No charge accounts. You can't do business with the mail order house that way. Fork over the cash."

The customer complied.

"Now 2 cents for postage and 5 cents for a money order."

"What——"

"Certainly, you have to send a letter and a money order to a mail order house, you know."

The customer, inwardly raving, kept to his agreement and paid the price.

"Now 25 cents expressage."

"Well I'll be——," he said, but paid it, saying, "now hand me that saw and I'll take it home myself and be rid of this foolery."

"Hand it to you? Where do you think you are? You're in Oklahoma and I'm in Chicago, and you'll have to wait two weeks for that saw."

Whereupon the dealer hung the saw upon a peg and put the money in the cash drawer.

"That makes $1.67," he said. "It has cost you 2 cents more and taken you two weeks longer to get it than if you had paid my price in the first place."—Square Dealer.

POSTALS SAVINGS DEPOSITS HAVE REACHED $1000.

Last Saturday the postal savings depository at the local postoffice had secured the first $1000. The accumulation of deposits has been slow, but steady. Several $100 deposits have been received. The money deposited is not taxable. There is reserved in the bank an emergency fund of $300. None of the local banks has qualified as a depository, so the deposits are at present being sent to the Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls.

Many people are wondering why the local banks do not take this money. It is purely a business reason; they cannot see where there is anything gained by it. The deposits the banks would receive are small and the amount of bonds they would have to put up with the U. S. government are large. They can't realize at the most more than 75 per cent. of what they can make by not putting up the bonds. If the postal savings deposits should become very large, it would pay to become a depository, but it isn't likely they will become very large in this community as the people have great faith in the local bankers, and the greater interest the banks pay appeals to them.

SOCIALISTS AT WORK

Korngold Will Give Review of the Socialist Movement

Wednesday night.

RALPH KORNGOLD.

Few people know that the Socialists control the elective officers of many of the largest cities of Europe. Nor do they know that all European countries, save Russia, and Turkey have adopted in whole or part, workmen's compensation laws, sick and accident insurance for workingmen, and old age pensions. All of these measurs are due to the Socialist movement. You will hear about these things in the closing lecture of the Socialist Lyceum course to be delivered by Ralph Krongold, for many years a lecturer of the National Socialist Party.

Mr. Krongold will speak at the Auditorium on Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Krongold took a very active part in the campaigns that brought about the Socialist victory in Milwaukee, and will tell especially of the work in that city.

The doors will be thrown open to the public, and an invitation is extended to exerybody to attend.

HOME & BOARD 89c FOR WEEK

Record of Blue Earth County Poor Farm Probably Unexcelled.

Mankato, Minn., Jan. 9.—The Blue Earth county poor farm the past month has taken care of an average of about twenty inmates and for a year has cost the county but $1,033 above the produce sold from the farm. This includes the salary of the overseer, $600, and a good bill of fare for the inmates. It is found that the cost to the county to feed and clothe the inmates was but 89 cents a week each. This includes all of the salaries, and the permanent improvements made on the farm. It is doubted whether another county can make an equal showing, especially as the poor farm comprises but 160 acres and only 65 acres are tillable.—Minneapolis Journal.

RUSSIA STRIKES BLOW AT CHINA.

Insists Upon Independence of Outer Mongolia.

UNABLE TO DEFEND HERSELF

Hereafter Desert of Gobi Will Mark Chinese Boundary on the Northwest and Russia's Position In Mongolia Is Greatly Strengthened—China Has Not Replied to Note, Is Powerless to Resist and May Appeal to Powers.

Peking, Jan. 9.—Two important developments intensified the interest in the situation in China. These were a renewal of hostilities and the demand of the Russian goverament that China recognize the independence of Outer Mongolia.

Revolutionaries from Shansi and Shensi, having captured the town of Shenchow, are advancing on Honan, while reinforcements have been dispatched to the imperialists. The armistice has not been renewed and there is a deadlock in the peace negotiations, so that early fighting may be expected.

In addition to requesting China to recognize the Kutukta of Urga as monarch of Outer Mongolia the Russian government has notified China that the independence of Outer Mongolia must be recognised as concerns internal affairs. Henceforth China will not be permitted to maintain military forces or send colonists to Outer Mongolia, but may retain control of external relations. To this note China has made no reply.

Undoubtedly a strong protest will be made by the Chinese government against the action of Russia, but China is unable to defend herself now or in the future with reference to Mongolia. Hereafter the desert of Gobi will mark the Chinese boundary on the northwest.

The general opinion here is that the Chinese government really suffers nothing from the loss of Mongolia, although Russia and the Mongolians probably will be greatly benefitted. Russia's position in Mongolia is now stronger than in Manchuria.

Peking officials look for British action in Tibet at a later date, as it is believed unlikely that Russia has taken the present step without previously consulting with Great Britain and Japan. Inner Mongolia so far has been left undisturbed.

NAVAL CHANGES ANNOUNCED

First Lord of British Admiralty Completes Reorganization.

London, Jan. 9.—The first lord of the admiralty, Winston Spencer Churchill, has made further important changes to those instituted in November last, when Admiral Sir Francis Bridgeman, Vice Admiral Prince Louis of Battenburg, and Captain William C. Pakenham became first, second and fourth sea lords, respectively. An admiralty memorandum just issued completes the naval reorganization by the creation of a naval war staff, of which Rear Admiral Ernest Trowbridge, heretofore private secretary of the first lord of the admiralty, becomes chief.

DOUBLE TENEMENT BURNS

Two Children and Seven Firemen Hurt at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Jan. 9.—Two children and seven firemen were injured; fifteen persons, only partly clad, escaped over roofs and down ladders in a spectacular manner; sixteen others were driven into the street and property valued at $35,000 was destroyed in a fire that wrecked all save the outer walls of a double tenement and business building here.

The two children were overcome by smoke and one of them is in a serious condition. The injured firemen were all able to resume their duties.

Striving Vainly to Please.

"And did you?"

"No; I was afraid the mother might [illegible]."

BITTER FEELING DURING SESSION

Bryan Makes Hard Fight In Democratic Committee.

ATTACKS COLONEL GUFFEY

Nebraskan Tries to Have Pennsylvania Member Unseated but Committee Decides Against Him.

Washington, Jan. 9.—William Jennings Bryan made his fight in the Democratic national committee and lost. He made Colonel James M. Guffey, member of the committee from Pennsylvania, the issue and the committee declined to unseat Colonel Guffey by a vote of 30 to 18. Mr. Bryan at once appealed from a decision of Chairman Mack and was defeated, 37 to 13.

The committee session was marked by extreme bitterness of feeling. Once the lie was passed and blows seemed imminent. Mr. Bryan from first to last was the central figure in the proceedings and the fight precipitated at the very moment the committee was called to order lasted throughout the day.

So much time was devoted to the contested seats in the committee that the important matters of choosing a convention city, fixing the time of the gathering and adopting a form of call to include the "permissive primary" plan of selecting delegates went over.

Baltimore stood out well to the fore of all her competitors. The representatives of that city displayed a certified check for $100,000 as their bid for the convention. St. Louis seemed to hold second place, with Denver and Chicago under consideration and New York far behind.

Many members of the committee favor June 25 as the date of the convention. This will be just one week after the Republicans gather in Chicago.

Apologies Finally Offered.

The committee began its sitting with open doors, but as soon as Mr. Bryan began his fight they were closed and remained so throughout the day. It is said there was no mincing of words by any of the speakers, but at the end of the day apologies were offered and when adjournment was taken all of the members seemed outwardly on the best of terms.

Colonel Guffey gave the lie to Representative A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania, who was contesting for the seat. Later Colonel Guffey declared his temper momentarily had got the better of him and he was sorry. Mr. Palmer said that although he had been thrown out of the committee it would not affect his loyalty to his party in any way.

Mr. Bryan, arraying himself against some of his friends of old, including National Chairman Norman E. Mack and Senator William J. Stone of Missouri, inveighed bitterly against Colonel Guffey and is said to have been unsparing in his arraignment of the Pennsylvania member. Representative Palmer had accused Colonel Guffey of consorting with the Republican "machine" in Pennsylvania and of disloyalty to his party. Mr. Bryan repeated all of this and more. At the end it is said he had no apologies to offer and undoubtedly he will carry on his fight against Colonel Guffey.

DAUGHTER HELD BY POLICE

Suspected of the Murder of Her Aged Parents.

New York, Jan. 9.—As a sequal to the finding of the mutilated bodies of two aged East Side residents, Isaac Futterman and his wife, in their home, victims of a shocking double murder, Etka Futterman, the forty-year-old daughter of the slain couple, was taken to Bellevue hospital for observation as to her mental condition.

She became hysterical when informed of the double killing and a search of an apartment in the house where she lived, some distance from her parents' home, revealed, according to detectives, a bloodstained shirtwaist and various other articles of apparel stained with blood.

ALL PLEAD FOR HARMONY

Democratic Leaders Gather at Jackson Day Dinner.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Democratic leaders of the country at the Jackson day dinner here urged their followers to stop fighting each other and assail the common enemy, the Republican party, with a united front. Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, Speaker Champ Clark, William J. Bryan, William Randolph Hearst, Joseph W. Folk and other Democratic chieftains, who have differed in the past, joined in a unanimous plea for harmony in 1912 and predicted that political victory would follow.

Charles Taylor Catlin Dead.

New York, Jan. 7.—Charles Taylor Catlin, prominent for the last thirty years as a dramatic reader and reciter, is dead of pneumonia at his home in Brooklyn. He was seventy-seven years old. Mr. Catlin was graduated from Yale in the class of 1854.

Long Sessions in the Commons.

A recent nineteen hours' sitting of the house of commons created a sensation. But it is almost a trifle compared with what happened in the spacious days before the closure was introduced. There was the Irish "night" of July 31 and Aug. 1, 1877, when the chaplain, arriving to read prayers at noon for the Wednesday sitting, found the Tuesday sitting still in progress. "Ah," said Erskine May to him, "we are past praying for." But the record was achieved by the forty-one hours' sitting of Jan. 31 to Feb. 2, 1881.

CUMMINS MAY ENTER PRESIDENTIAL RACE

Iowan Will Be Guided by Advice of Colleagues.

Washington, Jan. 7.—A dispatch to the Chicago Record-Herald says:

Another Republican presidential candidacy is hanging in the balance. It is that of Senator Albert B. Cummins and the Iowa situation may cause it to become a reality within a short time. With the situation in his state before them for consideration, Senator Cummins, it is understood, will ask some of his colleagues in Washington to advise him what to do and his course of action is likely to be guided largely by their conclusions.

When congress adjourned for the holidays Senator Cummins went to his home in Des Moines with the intention of calling in his lieutenants from around the state and having them report exactly what the conditions are regarding the fight, which up to this time, has been drawn on Taft versus La Follette lines.

If necessary to deliver Iowa to La Follette he will become a candidate.

SHOT BY BERLIN MILLINER

Prominent American Is Probably Fatally Wounded.

Berlin, Jan. 7.—Norbert H. Rodkinson, a prominent member of the American colony here, was shot, probably with fatal effect, by a milliner named Alwyne Siede. The woman was intercepted as she was escaping from Mr. Rodkinson's officer and immediately fired a bullet into her own body which is not likely to prove fatal.

The affair, according to the allegations of Miss Siede's friends, was brought about by the interruption of long standing relations with Mr. Rodkinson and his refusal to support her two children.

district No. 165 has instituted a course of training in this subject in its school. Prof. Otto Olson in charge. It will be a pleasant surprise for our teachers and school officers to pay the school a visit and note the interest and kind of work done. The shcool is one of the associate schools with the Highschool in district No. 18, Thief River Falls.

The County Superintendent wishes to thank the county press for its hearty co-operation. By giving space for these various articles, it has rendered our cause a great help. Thank you.

Respectfully submitted,
E. A. Mastue.

LaFollette Favors Direct Primary

"In California conditions are exactly reversed. The Progressive, Anti-Taft element is in control both of the Legislature and the machinery of the party in the state.

Thus the Progressives can, if they choose, name LaFollette delegates to the national convention. But as they believe in the principle of the people's rule, the legislature provides for a direct primary and accepts the chance of losing the delegation to the Taft faction.

"Governor Johnson has given a little more high light to the contrast by the publication of a letter from Senator LaFollette in which he frankly recognizes the fact that the adoption of a primary law may result in transferring the California delegation from his column to Taft's but nevertheless advises that the primary be ordered—because it is right.

"Thus far no letter from Mr. Taft to the National Committee urging the adoption of a direct primary because it was right has been made public. In fact the utterances of the President on the recall and direct legislation and his general attitude toward democracy and the rule of the people seem to indicate that he is entirely at home in the company of the majority of the National Committee that was opposed to allowing the membership of the party a chance to express its wishes.

"The Manchus of the National Republican party are destined to pay dearly for the open display of contempt for the rank and file of the organization. Gradually it will sink into the programmed voters of the Eastern region that their brethern in the Progressive States enjoy privileges with the party that are denied to them, and they will demand to know the reason. No doubt we would all of us be in favor of an aristocracy, if we could only have the assurance that we were to be of the favored few. The National Committeemen are doing very well, thank you, and would rather have things continue just as they are. But a little later they will begin to hear from the back counties.

"One point will continue to puzzle the politicians of the LaFollette faction, and that is this: If the Taft candidacy is in such perfect order as we have been led to believe, with the South perfectly solid, the East unbroken and even the Middle West almost unanimous, why were his supporters in such terror of a popular vote on him as against the field? What prompted this sudden and determined refusal of the presidential primary? Was it bad politics or bad sportsmanship, or just a desire on the part of our political aristocrats to administer a swift kick to Mr. C. People, Esq., so that the fellow may learn to keep his proper place?

A Saving Plan

Permanency BANK

SOLIDITY

A school teacher it was who adopted this simple plan of saving money and banking it at interest.

She made it a rule to save a cent the first day of each month, two cents the second, three the third and so on. This runs to an average of $4.78 a month or $57.38 a year.

Her savings are banked the last day of every month and draw 5 per cent interest which adds nearly two dollars more in the year.

You could do the same. If your salary is larger, try it on a nickel basis.

Mrs. Dosk went down to Crookston Wednesday evening for a few days visit with friends and to attend the Elks ball.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Gjivre of Nekoma, N. Dak., on a honeymoon trip, are visting for a few days with Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Nelson.

Miss Marie Gilbertson returned to her school at Larimore, N. Dak., Saturday after spending her vacation with her mother and sister.

Supt. E. A. Mostue was at Crookston Tuesday attending the reception given by the Agricultural School that evening.

Miss Mary Weeks returned to her home at Detroit Monday after a week's visit with her sister, Mrs. F. Dablow.

Rev. Wallgren of Chicago will preach in the Swedish Mission church Thursday evening the 18th of Jan., at 8 o'clock. Everybody welcome.

Francis Bourque left for St. John's Academy at Collegeville Sunday evening having spent his Christmas vacation with his parents here.

P. E. Pirath arrived home this morning from Grand Forks, N. Dak., where he has spent the past month as a guest of his daughter, J. E. Cross.

Miss Mabel Venoes of Alexandria arrived in the city Monday and has taken charge of the pupils in the seventh grade at the Central school formerly taught by Miss Swanson.

Miss Alice Thompson of Lanesboro, Minn., a sister of Mrs. A. H. Fasel, arrived in the city and will make her home with Mr. and Mrs. Fasel for the winter.

The next meeting of the Northwestern Teachers' Association will be held at Crookston February, 22-24, and an exceptionally good program is being prepared for the occasion.

A. H. Fasel departed Wednesday evening for a short business trip to the Twin Cities and a few days visit with his old friends at his home at Albert Lea.

Miss Mary McGinn, Miss Anna Connelly and Miss Eleanor Connelly returned home last week from Fordville, N. Dak., where they spent their vacation as the guests of Mrs. Herrick.

Karsten Paulson, who has been visiting at Perley, Minn., the last month, returned here last week enroute for his home at Grygla. He was accompanied by his wife, who has been staying with her daughter, Mrs. A. N. Lundgren.

Neal Panabaker left Sunday evening for Prince Albert, where he will take Chan Fuller's place at the lumber office of the Prince Albert Lumber Company. Mrs. Panabaker and the children will remain here until spring.

Dr. Swedenburg retunred Sunday morning from Chicago where he has been doing postgraduate work. The doctor may now be found in his former office over McGinn Hardware Co. He comes back to Thief River with a lot of the new methods that are being used successfully by the best physicians in the "windy" city.

Mr. A. C. McMillin returned Thursday noon from Crookston, where he had been attending the Farmers' Short Course offered by the School of Agriculture. He reports a good attendance, but not as good as there would have been had more farmers realized the great benefits to be derived. Mr. Farmer don't let this Short Course get by you next year.

The Misses Ida Ove, Bagna Halseth, Martha Tanem and Laura Halseth took the Soo flyer for Plumemr Saturday evening and from there went to their various schools to resume work after spending their vacation at their respective homes in this city. Misses Ove and Magna Halseth went to Lillo, Miss Tanem north of Plummer and Miss Laura Halseth at Plumemr.

Lake Park may get electric lights. H. W. Hicks, the Verndale electrician, was in our city Wednesday looking over the situation with the view of installing an electric light plant. He was very favorably impressed with the prospects of making a success of it here, and said that if satisfactory arrangements can be made he will either remove his Verndale equipment to this place or buy new machinery. Lake Park has reached a point in its development where a good lighting system is indispensable, and the absence of it a decided drawback.—Lake Park Journal.

R. F. D. NO. 1

John Quam left last Tuesday for a few days visit with friends up by Mavie.

Rev. Nordhus made a flying trip to C. E. Aus last Monday, and was very unfortunate by having an exciting runaway. However, no one sustained any injury excepting his cutter, which was robbed of its Pole, and could not be along on that swift trip between C. E. Aus and E. Gravlie, where the horses were caught. One of the horses got a few barb wire cuts, tho none serious.

Mrs. N. Rhodegnard called at Samuelson's last Monday afternoon.

Louise Netteland returned last Sunday to assume her duties as teacher in district number 127. Miss Netteland was accompanied by her brother, who returned home the same day in spite of the blizzard.

E. Gravlie was called to Minneapolis last Thursday by the sudden illness of his daughter, Clara, who is receiving medicial aid at the Thomas Sanatorium. Mr. Gravlie returned Monday, as she then was a little improved.

Alina Iverson returned to Thief River Falls on Wednesday of last week after spending Christmas at home.

Mrs. J. Ostrom and Mrs. S. Wiberg visited at Samuelson's last Saturday. Mrs. Ostrom a former resident of this vicinity, and now residing in Sask., Canada, is back to Thief River visiting with friends and relatives.

There will be services in the Dimmen school house on Sunday, Jan. 14th at 11 a. m.

Mr. C. E. Aus made a trip this week thru the vicinity east and north of here, trying to secure more shareholders in the telephone company. However he was not fortunate enough to secure the desired number, making it possible to put another wire to T. R. Falls.

MUST REMAIN ON TICKET

Roosevelt and Bryan Cannot Withdraw From Nebraska Contest.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 7.—Theodore Roosevelt and W. J. Bryan may be running for the presidency, at least in Nebraska, unless they get busy and check a movement now under way.

The Roosevelt primary petition was filed ten days ago by John O. Yelser, an Omaha attorney.

Another Omaha man, A. A. Arter, invaded the Nebraska statehouse and filed a petition, including the required twenty-five names, making Bryan a candidate before the coming April primary.

What Roosevelt and Bryan can do about it is something of a puzzle. Secretary of State Wait has handed down the novel ruling that neither Roosevelt nor Bryan can get off the primary ticket unless the petitions are withdrawn by the men who made the filings.

LEAVE FIFTY DEAD ON FIELD

Moroccans Attack Sefrou, but Find French Gallant Defenders.

Tangier, Morocco, Jan. 6.—A large force of revolting Moroccan tribesmen attacked the town of Sefrou, a day's journey to the south of the capital. The garrison of the town, which is under the command of French officers, offered a gallant defense, beating off the fanatical tribesmen again and again, although they were far outnumbered.

The tribesmen continued to carry out wild rushes, but after eight hours fighting the little garrison finally succeeded in repulsing them and making them retreat to the desert, leaving fifty of their number dead on the field. The garrison lost five kiled and fifteen wounded.

COAL MINE STRIKE LIKELY

One of Greatest Walkouts in History of England Is Planned.

London, Jan. 7.—Reports from the coal mining districts indicate that the United Kingdom will be tied up by one of the greatest strikes in history on March 1.

A minimum wage scale will be demanded in addition to a number of other minor concessions.

Car Drops From Bridge.

Cincinnati, Jan. 7.—Four persons were fatally injured, while another was seriously hurt when a street car jumped from the Central bridge, which connects this city with Newport, Ky. The car turned completely over in its drop of fifty-five feet to the pavement below.

ONE THOUSAND MOROS SLAIN

Army Officers Say Natives Are Proving Difficult to Subdue.

San Francisco, Jan. 9.—Resistance to the government's order for their disarmament has cost the Moros the lives of nearly 1,000 warriors, according to army officers arriving from the Philippines on the transport Sherman. The task of subduing the natives, they said, turned out to be more serious than the army anticipated.

The weather of late has been cold and stormy and hard on fuel.

T. Tuenheim left last Friday with a bunch of cattle.

J. O. Berg accompained Tuenheim with a bunch of cattle. He was going to St. Paul for medicail treatment.

Andrew Kjos is chore boy at Berg's place this week.

A crew arrived here last week to repair the dredge which left here last fall. Knut Hougen has been hauling some wood to the dredge lately.

Martin Anderson and Andrew Kjos returned home last Wednesday, after a few days visit with friends at Thief River and Holt.

Well leap year is here, but it has been too cold for the ones that are going to hustle. So girls watch for the good weather when it comes.

Edwin Wallins baby died Saturday morning. When getting out of bed in the morning they discovered the baby was dead. The writer has not heard if it was a case of sickness or not.

GERMANTOWN

Did you start the new year right? If not, it is time yet.

With the new year the winter has given us a severe test, and with the mercury 40 below it is no fun to be outside. Well as far as we found, the most of us are busy keeping the stove warm, and to get fresh air are doing the chores.

Henry Paulson and Wm. Jones, with their families, visited friends near Thief River.

Aug. Ristau made a visit west of Thief River and at the same time bought a horse.

The young folks had a party at N. Bundhund's Friday evening and had a very good time.

School in district number 120 will start next Monday, the 15th.

The Creamery Associaion will hold its annual meeting next Monday.

The stockholders of the Telephone Co., will have a meeting Wednesday the 10th.

Emil Hanson, one of our bachelors, has been off for a visit for three weeks and our bachelor colony is afraid that Emil is lost for them.

Charles Klockmann is also off for a tour and is expected to return with a better half.

KRATKA

A HAPPY NEW YEAR!

Even the fool has his uses. He serves to a point of moral.

Floyd Boyland, of Manchester, Io., arrived last Thursday for a visit with his cousin Chas. Henry.

Peter Hedeen leaves Wednesday for Alexandria, where he will make his future home. Mr. Hedeen says he will return in the spring to look after his farming interests here.

Knut Austin left Tuesday for Crookston on business mission.

Nobody gets something for nothing, not even thanks; and he who endeavors to get nothing for something generally gets nothing for something.

We note that a creamery meeting was held last Saturday and some important business was transacted.

Miss Stella Arnt commenced her spring term of school last Monday, and found that the recent cold weather was too severe and school was finally adjourned for two weeks.

An exchange classifies Town Killers as follows: First those who go out of town to their shopping. Second those who want a quiet town, in place of one of push and business. Third those who imagine they own the town. Fourth those who oppose everything that does not appear to benefit them. Fifth those who deride public spirited men. Sixth those who oppose everything that does not originate within themselves. Seventh those who seek to injure their neighbors and the public interests if they are not personally benefited. The exchange is right, but it forgets the most dangerous "Town Killer" is the Town Officers, who are so narrow minded that they are afraid their neighbors might be a little more interested, and knows more for public necessity, and thereby fortunate enough to be benefitted by the move.

An effort is being made to organize a telephone company, which will connect the neighbrohood on one line and meeting will be called to this effect this week.

COMMERCIAL-NORMAL

This is the first issue of Commercial-Normal notes since the Christmas vacation.

School opened on Jan. 2nd. Six new students presented themselves for enrollment. New ones have been coming in alomst every day.

Hans H. Hanson of Newfolden who was forced to discontinue his work in December on account of ill health, is again with us.

Evening school opened last Monday Jan. 8th. We welcome all who cannot attend the day classes to join in the evening work. Civil Service and all the common branches are given. The typewriting class is already quite large.

Esther Wilson resigned her position as teacher near Badger and enrolled for the Bookkeeping Course at the Commercial Normal.

The Literary Society resumes its work on Saturday with a program. All who are interested are invited to attend.

The basket ball boys arrived home from McIntosh last Sunday morning slightly worse for wear. They have been busy trying to take an inventory of the different and diverse bruises received ever since, but so far no one has succeeded. There are so many new ones appearing continually.

Edward Guloch was late in arriving after the holidays on account of a bad cold which detained him at his home.

Thoe. Tandberg will assist as instructor in the evening classes.

"Sunkist" Oranges

Their Small Cost

The price of "Sunkist" Oranges—the finest fruit grown—is no higher than that which you have paid for oranges of much less quality. Madam, merely ask for "Sunkist" and insist that each orange you buy is wrapped in a tissue paper, marked "Sunkist." For every wrapper is valuable. They identify the best oranges in the world. By saving these wrappers you receive beautiful "Sunkist" silver premiums at but a trifling additional expense. Many wide-awake women are furnishing their dining tables by this means. Read carefully particulars below.

Seedless, Tree-Ripened Navels

The choicest crop of 5,000 California groves. They are oranges with no seeds. They are solid, ripened on the trees and picked by gloved hands. Juicy and delightfully sweet. The most healthful of all fruit. You will get genuine "Sunkist" Oranges with the valuable wrappers by insisting on them. Your family serves this most healthful and economical fruit.

Get This Splendid Rogers' Orange Spoon

Save 12 "Sunkist" orange or lemon wrappers, or trademarks cut from wrappers, and send them to us, with 12c in stamps to help pay charges, packing, etc., and we will send you this genuine Rogers' silver orange spoon. For each additional spoon send 12 wrappers or trademarks and 12c in stamps. Not responsible for cash sent through the mail.

Fruit Knife for 24 Wrappers and 20c in stamps. Excellent quality—genuine Rogers.

"Sunkist" Premiums

Send for full description, number of wrappers and amount of cash necessary to secure each article.

Table Knife, Table Fork, Dessert Spoon, Sugar Shell, Bouillon Spoon, Coffee Spoon, Salad Fork, Oyster Fork, Child's Fork, Orange Spoon, Butter Spreader, Fruit Knife, Teaspoon, Tablespoon

Trademark Registered

Thin-Skinned, Juicy "Sunkist" LEMONS—Of the same superior quality as the oranges. Economical because solid and extra juicy. Wrappers same value as Orange wrappers. Recipe Booklet Free (121)

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Know What a Prism Is?

John Smith and Henry Jones are eating lunch together. John Smith casually takes two cubes of sugar and places them side by side.

"That makes a perfect prism, doesn't it?" John Smith remarks casually.

"Prism nothing!" replies Henry Jones. "That isn't a prism."

"Sure it is," remarks Smith. "Don't you know a prism when you see one?"

"I certainly do," is the retort. "A prism is a triangular piece of glass used to divide light into the primary colors. Can't you recall enough of your school days to remember that?"

"Oh, yes! I remember that all right. But these two cubes of sugar, placed side by side, make a prism too."

"Bet you the lunch you're wrong," challenges Jones.

"You're on," promptly agrees Smith, and a dictionary was sent for.

Jones had to pay the bet. If you don't believe it, look in a dictionary yourself and see.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Sad Case.

"What's the matter with the man who's talking to the policeman?"

"Why, that's Brown, the professor of mnemonics. He's forgotten the number of his street."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

OLD SOLDIER TORTURED

"For years I suffered unspeakable torture from indigestion, constipation and liver trouble," wrote A. K. Smith, a war veteran at Erie, Pa., "but Dr. King's New Life Pills fixed me all right. They're simply great." Try them for any stomach, liver or kidney trouble. Only 25c at all Druggists.

Lincoln's Passes.

Lincoln's humor often got him out of trying situations and tempered his refusal of favors, as happened during the civil war when a gentleman asked him for a pass through the federal lines to Richmond. "I should be happy to oblige you," said Lincoln, "if my passes were respected. But the fact is within the last two years I have given passes to Richmond to a quarter of a million men, and not one has got there yet."

Heart Failure.

"Turrible thing happened to Bill to the poker game las' night."

"What was it?"

"Heart failure."

"You don't mean it."

"Yes; he held four hearts and drew one card: got a spade."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Poor Business.

"The milliner, as usual, is six weeks behind with my hat."

"Serves you right," growled her husband, the eminent magnate. "You women will deliberately place a big construction order without a sign of a penalty clause."—Washington Herald.

Like Father, Like Son.

"I won't pay another penny of your debts for you, you disgrace. You must either go bankrupt or get married. I had to do the same."—London Opinion.

Beauty is the first present nature gives to women and the first it takes away.—Mere.

DEATH IN ROARING FIRE

may not result from the work of firebugs, but often severe burns are caused that make a quick need for Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the quickest, surest cure for burns, wounds, bruises, boils, sores. It subdues inflamation It kills pain. It soothes and heals. Drives off skin eruptions, ulcers or piles. Only 25c at all Druggists.

Constipation is the cause of many ailments and disorders that make life miserable. Take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, keep your bowels regular and you will avoid these diseases. For sale by all Druggists.

A New Creation.

Margaret, aged eleven, had just returned from her first visit to the zoo.

"Well," said her mother, smiling, "did you see the elephants and the giraffe and the kangaroos?"

Margaret looked thoughtful.

"We saw the elephant and the giraffe and the dan-ger-roos."

"What?" said Mrs. Blank.

"The dan-ger-roos. It said, 'These animals are d-a-n-g-e-r-o-u-s.'"—Harper's Magazine.

Still "Johnny."

One summer when an admirable ex-secretory of the navy was visiting his native village of Buckfield in Maine he sent some clothes to the village washerwoman and, driving by the next week in company with a representative to congress, stopped to ask for them. The woman turned to her assistant. "May," said she, "is Johnny's washing done yet?"—Christian Register.

Revenge is a kind of wild justice which the more man's nature runs to the more ought law to weed it out.—Bacon.

SOLVES A DEEP MYSTERY

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart," wrote C. B. Rader, of Lewisburg, W. Va., "for the wonderful double benefit I got from Electric Bitters, in curing me of both a severe case of stomach trouble and of rheumatism, from which I had been an almost helpless sufferer for ten years. It suited my case as tho made just for me." For dyspepsia, indigestion, jaundice and to rid the system of kidney poisons that cause rheumatism, Electric Bitters has no equal. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50c at all Druggists.

WHY IT SUCCEEDS

Because It's for One Thing Only, and Thief River Falls People Appreciate This.

Nothing can be good for everything.

Doing one thing well brings success.

Doan's Kidney Pills do one thing only.

They help sick kidneys.

They relieve backache, kidney and bladder trouble.

Stickney Gasoline Engines
ARE THE BEST

Buy Brains and Honesty

Loam is loam and clay is clay, but there is a vast difference in the values of adjoining farms caused by the men who work them.

Iron is iron and steel is steel, but the difference between gasoline engines produced of iron and steel is caused by the brains and honesty of the maker. This is why the Stickney Gasoline Engine gives universal satisfaction.

Thief River Grocery Company
Jobbers of Y. B. Cigars

The late Joseph Jefferson and his sister, Mrs. Cornelia Jackson, famous as Tilly Slowboy in "The Cricket on the Hearth," were standing at a studio window on Beacon street, Boston overlooking the Old Granary burying ground. They had been discussing the famous persons whose graves were spread below them, when, breaking a short interval of silence, Jefferson said in the most mournful of tones, "Connie, my dear, that is the best place for me, after all."

With a horrified expression on her face, as her brother always avoided gruesome subjects, she asked, "What do you mean, Joe?"

With the twinkle in his eye that three generations of the world have known, the actor remarked blandly, "I said 'after all,' Connie."

In a flash his sister retorted, "No, Joe, dear, that's no place for you. There are too many deadheads there."—Boston Post.

What Hichens Heard.

While still a student of music Robert Hichens wrote many short stories verses and songs. In one year, he says, he earned over $500 by writing scores and lyrics for music. One song, "A Kiss and Goodby," was sung by Mme. Patti in Albert hall, London.

"In the natural pride of my heart," Mr. Hichens said with reference to this occasion, "I took a seat in the stalls and waited in a fever of excitement to hear how it would go off. It was received with so much enthusiastic applause that I was lifted into a delicious heaven of delight, but was suddenly tumbled headlong by hearing two voices from the seats immediately behind me.

"'What a lovely song that was,' one exclaimed rapturously.

"'Yes,' the other grudgingly agreed, 'but what awful rot the words of those songs always are.'"—Exchange.

REV. BARACKMAN DELIVERS FAREWELL SERMON

A large audience gathered at the Presbyterian church Sunday evening to listen to Rev. F. J. Barackman's farewell address. As a preface to his sermon Rev. Barackman reviewed the history of the church showing its growth from a mere handful with a tarpaper shack for a meeting house to a membership of 117 and a modern stone church.

Mr. Barackman will move his family to Duluth next week and will at once enter upon his new duties as pastor at large of Duluth Presbytery. His departure from this village will cause deep regret not only within the church but also throughout the village and neighboring towns.

A public reception will be tendered Rev. and Mrs. Barackman at the City Hall tomorrow (Thursday) evening.—Blackduck American.

FIND REFUGE AT BERMUDA

Hamilton Harbor Crowded With American Destroyers.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Jan. 9.—The small dock yard here is crowded with storm tossed and weather beaten American torpedo boat destroyers. Seven reached port, the Perkins, Walker, Ammen, Sterett, Preston Trippe and Paulding. Two, the Mayrant and McCall, have not yet been heard from.

After encountering a northwest gale Thursday and Friday, which the officers and men describe as a hurricane, the flotilla ran into a southwest gale Sunday night. The Paulding, which suffered in the first storm, felt the fury of the gale more than the others.

FOUR KILLED IN CANADIAN WRECK

Passenger Train Crashes Into Another at Station.

Montreal, Jan. 9.—Four persons were killed and five injured when a train from Quebec crashed into a train from Montreal at St. Vincent de Paul station, about thirty miles from this city.

Both trains were crowded with passengers bound for their homes after attending special Epiphany services in both Quebec and Montreal. Officials say the train was standing west of the St. Vincent de Paul station when the Quebec train overran a switch at which it should have taken a siding, with the result that the baggage car and the passenger coach following were telescoped.

The lives of three passengers in the day coach were crushed out and a brakeman named De Haranais was killed. The passengers killed have not been identified.

ACCUSED OF BANK ROBBERY

New York Police Arrest Man for Canadian Crime.

New York, Jan. 9.—John McNamara of San Francisco, known to detectives of half a dozen cities as "Australian Mack," was arrested here by central office and private detectives on a warrant charging him with the larceny of $375,000 from the Bank of Montreal at New Westminster, B. C., which was dynamited Sept. 14. Eleven hundred dollars was found in his wallet and detectives are searching the city for $240,000 of the bank's funds which he is believed to have brought to New York.

For ten days McNamara has been under surveillance after traveling over the United States and Canada for more than two months, it is said.

STORM UPSETS NAVAL PLAN

Probable Abandonment of Scarch Problem on Big Scale.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The dissipation of the units of the Atlantic fleet by the severe storm which raged off the coast since last Friday completely has upset the plans framed by the naval war college for a search problem on a great scale involving the detection of an enemy supposed to be approaching the Atlantic coast.

It is believed the problem will be abandoned and that the vessels of the fleet undamaged by the storm will proceed to Guantanamo for the winter drills, while the others will return to the Northern navy yards to refit.

New Mexicans Take Seats.

Washington, Jan. 9.—New Mexico's five members of congress, George Curry, Republican, and H. B. Fergusen, Democrat, were sworn in as members of the house amid generous applause. They were presented by Mr. Sulzer of New York.

NOTICE

Clerk of the District Court, Ives, has been notified by judge Grindeland that the trial of Court cases will begin on the morning of Jan. 23d. No cases will be tried on the 22d. All motion, and citizenship papers will be heard on Jan. 22d.

NOTICE OF ANNUAL MEETING

Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting of the Thief River Falls Manufacturing Company will be held at the office of the Company in the City of Thief River Falls, in the State of Minnesota, on the 6th day of February 1912, at one o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing Directors for the ensuing year and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

AN APPEAL TO THE PEOPLE OF THIEF RIVER FALLS AND SURROUNDING COUNTRY

The people of Thief River Falls and surrounding country are certainly going to be benefited by the bona fide price reducing sale, which will begin on Saturday, Jan. 13th under the management of the T. K. Kelly Sales System, high-class merchandise brokers, known to be the greatest bargain givers in the Northwest.

Mr. Erickson informs us that the prices quoted on his stock are in a great many instances less than he could purchase the same at the factory in case lots. His reason for making this great sacrifice sale, is that he never carries any merchandise over from one season to another, so he considered it good business judgment when the people are in need of the goods, and he has therefore inaugurated this mighty stock reducing sale of his fall and winter stock, no matter how great the loss may be.

The Kelly Sales System is now in charge of the entire store, re-arranging and marking down at their own prices, as Mr. Erickson's instructions to them were to close out these lines, even to the bare walls, no matter how great the loss might be.

This will give the people of Thief River Falls and surrounding country the greatest bargains ever placed before the public in the history of Minnesota merchandising. This sale will surely prove to be a great boom to the people, who are never slow at taking advantage of an opportunity such as this mighty stock reduction sale will afford, and from the large number of people inquiring about the sale, and waiting for the opening day, it bespeaks of I. L. Erickson & Son doing a record breaking business.

This firm has never carried any except the most realiable dependable merchandise, and we expect to see hundreds of people in attendance, daily during this great sale, as the people realize when they can purchase high-grade merchandise at less than manufacturers cost, it is high time they grasped the chance. It is safe to say a sale such as this comes but once in a life-time, and the public will no doubt buy out the combined stock quickly.

A large force of extra sales people are in attendance, to be able to serve all quickly, and as it is evident that there will be rare bargains offered, we expect to see I. L. Erickson & Son's store a Mecca for hundreds of bargain seekers during the next thirteen days. Mr. Erickson tells us the sale will positively close on Saturday, Jan. 27th, 1912.

STILL TIME TO GET THE COMPANION FOR $1.75.

The publishers of The Youth's Companion announce that they will accept yearly subscriptions at $1.75 up to the end of March. The new rate of $2.00 will go into effect promptly on April 1. The large number whose subscriptions run over into the early weeks of the year, as well as those who were unable to send in new subscriptions before January 1, will have this opportunity to get The Companion for another fifty-two weeks at the old price. If you had no other periodical reading for your family, The Youth's Companion would be sufficient—sufficient for keen enjoyment by every one, young and old; sufficient to keep you posted on the important news and events of the day; sufficient to give you a mind richly stored with useful knowledge. The new departments have become indispensable features of the paper. The page devoted to the interests of boys in school and college always has an article of expert advice on athletics by some one who speaks with authority, whether it is football, baseball, skating, swimming, or other vigorous pastime. The page for girls suggests useful occupations at home and profitable occupations in the community, without forgetting that girls like to be ornamental as well as useful. And there is the family page, which in the course of a year fills the place of a domestic encyclopedia.

FOR FORMING LAFOLLETTE CLUBS

Minn. Hist. Society (State Capitol)

Letters Being Mailed in Response To Nation wide Demand For Such Organizations.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—The LaFollette headquarters in this city has just mailed thousands of letters to prominent Progressive Republicans all over the country in response to requests for aid in forming LaFollette Clubs. This action is evidence of the growing and nation-wide demand for an organization whose purpose it will be to further the presidential candidacy of the Wisconsin Senator.

The system of organization is simple and effective. Voters in a locality may start a LaFollette club, elect officers, and through their connection with the Washington headquarters, organize the progressive sentiment. The plan will permit of independent organizations, covering any amount of territory, and will also allow the affiliation of these independent clubs into larger clubs.

An outline of LaFollette's record during his 20 year struggle for popular government, first as Representative in Congress, then as Governor of Wisconsin, and then as U. S. Senator, has been put out by the Progressive managers, and is an unusually strong campaign document. This record is in itself a platform.

Accompanying the LaFollette club blanks is a letter of direction of which the following is a part:

"You know that the Progressive movement stands for popular government and progressive principles. You also know that opposed to these desirable ends are the Special Interests seeking Special Privilege.

"You wish the people to rule and you are willing to help bring it about. The important thing now is the election of the right man for President; and now is the time to organize LaFollette Progressive Republican Clubs

"A LaFollette Club is the most effective means you can employ to arouse interest in your locality; and you will lead others to do likewise elsewhere.

"At any time, not later, however, than thirty days before a primary or convention, you may, if you choose, make your organization permanent, and then 'go to it.' The purpose of the Club, remember, is to elect delegates to the National Convention who will name LaFollette for President."

The Progressive Republican managers announce that the organization of LaFollette Clubs is a strong feature of the Progressive Republican campaign.

FROM THE NATION CAPITOL

Beginning of a Weekly Letter Which Tells What's Doing In Congress.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—The Congressional Record, which reports each day the doings of Congress, is a very tame affair just now. In fact it has been about as stale as a last year's almanac. The reason is that Congress has not "settled down to its steady grind." Also remember this: The House Democrats, who control the House programe, are as busy as beavers setting the scenery and arranging accessories for the big show which will shortly open. The curtain will go up on one of the most spectacular and melodramatic political dramas that the country has witnessed in many years. The Democrats will be the central figures in a play of intense interest, entitled "Why We Ought To Elect A Democratic President in 1912." The star performers will be such well known

RIVER IMPROVEMENT REQUESTED

Enthusiastic Meeting Held January, 15th Showing Serious Condition along Navigable Stream.

The hearing called for by Col. Shunk was held on Tuesday at 10 a. m., as slated. A large number of farmers from up along the Red Lake river were in and presented their case in a few but concise terms. A. D. Brown presented a large number of figures showing daily variances of the flow of water in the river at times when large amounts of logs were being floated down the river. Mr. Brown contended that logs in the river would retard the flow of water even tho there were no real log jam.

Walter McAndress argued that the cause of death of millions of fish in the river is due to the fact that the log jam has prevented them from returning to the Red Lakes where they could spend the winter months in deeper water and in perfect safety. He stated that the watr was now so He stated that the water was now so that a man could stand up straight at an opening in the ice and smell the stench from the water. Peter C. Wold states that the water in a cold condition is not so bad but if it is taken into the house and heated it will soon drive everybody out of the house.

These conditions have existed up along the river for some time and it is predicted that this city and others farther down the stream will have a sample of it before the end of this month.

After a couple or hours discussion a motion was made by Andrew Trovaton and seconded by D. N. Winton that the meeting request Col. Shunk to use his influence toward securing a lock and dam at the lake outlet and to improve the river and keep it strictly under government control to the end that these conditions may never again prevail.

This motion was unanimously carried.

We give herewith a full report of Col. Shunk's findings on his late trip up the Red Lake river and it is thot that this together with what the Col. has learned from some of the old settlers here will prevail upon him to take the matter up with the War Department and thus secure an improvement of the river and a stricter governmental supervision.

The Colonel's report is as follows:

Shunk's Report.

The following report was recently made to the chief of engineers' office by Major Shunk, who holds that the trouble lies with the low stage of Red Lake and not with log jams:

United States Engineer Office,
St. Paul, Minn.,
December 16, 1911.

1. Respectfully returned to the chief of engineers.

2. Survey has recently been made of Red Lake and Red Lake river by the U. S. geological survey, in connection with the drainage commission of the state of Minnesota. The engineer of the drainage commission informed me some time ago that Red Lake was unusually low, and I have subsequently learned from his office that the normal level of the lake is 1178.5 feet above sea level, and that its level on September 21, was 1174.

3. Complaint similar to the within was made on July 26th. It was investigated by Mr. Patrick F. Joyce, junior engineer, and report (to which I would respectfully refer) was submitted by me on August 15th. The essential part of Mr. Joyce's report is as follows: (I was referred) "to a delegation of Thief River Falls officials, who, during July, this year, made an examination of the river between Thief River Falls and the source, the outlet of Red Lake, a distance of 95 miles. This delegation was composed of Dr. G. W. Booren, [illegible] Milton Forder, and J. C. Berg. The object of the examination was to locate the cause of the low-water conditions on the river, the city of Thief River Falls having for the past twelve years utilized a portion of the water power developed for purposes of electric lighting and water supply. On account of the low water which has prevailed this year, steps have been taken to procure a steam plant for these purposes.

I consulted with Mr. Forder and Mr. Berg, and their account of the examination indicated that lack of water was evident all the way from a point about four miles up stream from the Thief River Falls dam to the outlet of Red Lake, the river between these limits being a succession of pools connected by a thread of water through which a skiff could be poled with difficulty. While logs are found scattered along the whole route, they do not appear in considerable quantities until a point about 60 miles above Thief River Falls is reached. From this point on, logs are evident everywhere in the river bed, but there are no log jams, the logs lying side by side. The pools above referred to are not caused by stoppage of water by logs, but by difference in depth, the greatest depth noticed being about four feet.

Red Lake is at present 3½ feet lower than normal. An old resident remembers that the same condition prevailed 42 years ago, but between that time and the present stage was quite uniform—between 3 and 4 feet higher than the present greatest depth. The outlet of the lake is contracted to less than 75 feet in width, the greatest depth being 18 inches, and this for only a short distance mid-stream. The delegation waded the river at this point.

4. The persons interviewed by Mr. Joyce were representatives of the power plant at Thief River Falls, who had made an examination for the purpose of seeing if anything could be done to get water for their wheels, and found that nothing was to blame but lack of rainfall.

5. If the water in the lake had really risen since July, the increased head could not fail to produce an increased discharge, whatever the obstacle may be. The average monthly discharge from the records of the U. S. geological survey have been as follows:

July, 68½ feet per second.
August, 39.4 feet per second.
September, 29.3 feet per second.
October, 36.3 feet per second.
November, 17.

It is obvious that the lake has not risen. If it had, it would have been different from any other body of water in northern Minnesota. Since streams which are barely flowing do not carry much sediment, I have no doubt that the sand observed by the gentlemen mentioned in the newspaper clippings was the bar at the outlet, exposed for lack of water to cover it.

6. I should like to make an examination of the locality, but it is not practicable. There are no roads and no places to stay. The only avenue is the river, which is closed, so that it would be necessary to organize an expedition with horses and provisions. Nothing would warrant the expenditure. The interests of navigation and Commerce are not concerned, and cannot be until next summer. The present complaint and the previous one were not made in the interests of navigation, but by persons who believe that fish will die, stock suffer and health impaired by failure of water in the river. [illegible]

MESSAGE ON ECONOMY AND EFFICIENCY

President Taft Reviews the Report of Special Commission, Commends Findings and Urges Continuance.

Shows a Prospective Saving in Government Expenditures of Upward of $5,000,000, With Investigation Only Begun—Waste in Single Item of Distributing Public Documents Amounts to $250,000 Annually—Saving in Order to Spend More Wisely.

Following are the recommendations of the president in relation to the report made to him by the commission on economy and efficiency.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I submit for the information of the congress this report of progress made in the inquiry into the efficiency and economy of the methods of transacting public business.

Efficiency and economy in the government service have been demanded with increasing insistence for a generation. Real economy is the result of efficient organization. By perfecting the organization the same benefits may be obtained at less expense. A reduction in the total of the annual appropriations is not in itself a proof of economy, since it is often accompanied by a decrease in efficiency. The needs of the nation may demand a large increase of expenditure, yet to keep the total appropriations within the expected revenue is necessary to the maintenance of public credit.

Upon the president must rest a large share of the responsibility for the demands made upon the treasury for the current administration of the executive branch of the government. Upon the congress must rest responsibility for those grants of public funds which are made for other purposes.

Reason For the Inquiry.

Recognizing my share of responsibility for efficient and economical administration, I have endeavored during the past two years, with the assistance of heads of departments, to secure the best results. As one of the means to this end I requested a grant from congress to make my efforts more effective.

An appropriation of $100,000 was made June 25, 1910, "to enable the president to inquire into the methods of transacting the public business of the executive departments and other government establishments and to recommend to congress such legislation as may be necessary to carry into effect changes found to be desirable that cannot be accomplished by executive action alone." I have been given this fund to enable me to take action and to make specific recommendations with respect to the details of transacting the business of an organization whose activities are almost as varied as those of the entire business world. The operations of the government affect the interest of every person living within the jurisdiction of the United States. Its organization embraces stations and centers of work located in every city and in many local subdivisions of the country. Its gross expenditures amount to nearly $1,000,000,000 annually. Including the personnel of the military and naval establishments, more than 400,000 persons are required to do the work imposed by law upon the executive branch of the government.

Magnitude of the Task.

This vast organization has never been studied in detail as one piece of administrative mechanism. Never have the foundations been laid for a thorough consideration of the relations of all of its parts. No comprehensive effort has been made to list its multifarious activities or to group them in such a way as to present a clear picture of what the government is doing. Never has a complete description been given of the agencies through which these activities are performed. At no time has the attempt been made to study all of these activities and agencies with a view to the assignment of each activity to the agency best fitted for its performance, to the avoidance of duplication of plant and work, to the integration of all administrative agencies of the government, so far as may be practicable, into a unified organization for the most effective and economical dispatch of public business.

First Complete Investigation.

Notwithstanding that voluminous reports are compiled annually and presented to the congress, no satisfactory statement has ever been published of the financial transactions of the government as a whole. Provision is made for due accountability for all moneys coming into the hands of officers of the government, whether as collectors of revenue or disbursing agents, and for insuring that authorizations for expenditures as made by law shall not be exceeded. But no general system has ever been devised for reporting and presenting information regarding the character of the expenditures made [illegible]

WHEN THE SPORT BUGS GATHER

Munson Wins In 25 Minutes; Crookston Wins By 3 Points. Athletic Club a Certainty.

Ludvig Munson, champion of Holt, won over J. E. Bren, champion of Warren, at the Lyceum Theatre last Friday night, securing the first and only fall after 25 minutes of the most strenuous wrestling ever witnessed in Thief River Falls. Bren left the stage after the first fall, and in a few minutes referee Smith announced to the then curious audience that Munson was the victor, owing to the fact that Bren was "all in" and could not appear for a second round.

Up to the time Bren whispered in Munson's ear that he was ready to give up, the bout was one of intense interest, neither man apparently having much on the other and both men putting up a first class exhibition with Bren a shade the aggressor. Before the match the weights of the men was announced as 160 and 164, but Bren seemed to be at least 10 pounds the lighter man.

The wrestlers, accompanied by their seconds, appeared at 12:02, and 3 minutes later, amid great applause, were announced by referee Smith and the main bout was on. The wrestlers spent the first 15 minutes sparring for holds, with Bren trying repeatedly for Munson's leg. Bren seemed anxious to hurry the round and they mixed it, going to the mat with Munson on top, but Bren was up on his feet in a second. From then on the match was fast and furious, Munson often securing dangerous holds and Bren easily breaking them, including Munson's favorite—his famous scissors hold. Bren showed that he knew the game and that he was there with the goods until his wind gave out, when he caved in and Munson easily threw him.

The theatre was crowded with enthusiastic fans. A few of them were disappointed that the men did not go on for a second fall, tho the majority agreed the affair well worth the price. Hans had a very substantial stage erected in the center of the house, and the seats arranged so that everybody could see. Hans has staged all his bouts with the best of intentions, so here's hoping the next one will be a "hodoo breaker."

CROOKSTON H. S. 24 — THIEF RIVER 21

Basket ball fans who witnessed the game last Saturday night at the High School gymnasium between the Crookston H. S. and the local H. S. were treated to the best and most hotly contested game of the season, Crookston winning with the narrow margin of 3 points.

The local High School rooters under the competent direction of yell-master, Roseland, started their boys off with lots of ginger and they had things their own way the first half, it ending 16 to 9 in favor of Thief River. Carter, especially, had his tossing arm in condition and obtained several cleverly executed field goals.

In the second half enthusiasm ran high, but the local boys did not live up to the standard they had set in the first half, and several times missed goals that seemed a certainty; while Crookston had with them [illegible] and the referee. During the second half 9 fouls were called on Thief River and only 2 on Crookston. Whether or not this made the boys nervous is an open question. However, from the spectators view point the game was anybody's until the final whistle.

The local boys showed wonderful development in the science of the game over what they have dished up previously, which fact is due to the careful attention being given them by coach Richardson. If the team improves as much this week as they have in the past two weeks, Richardson will have the honor of developing one of the fastest and best playing teams in the state.

THE ATHLETIC CLUB

It is an assumed fact that the City Athletic club will be firmly established in its new quarters in the Auditorium gymnasium by February first. An enthusiastic meeting was held on Friday last and final arrangements were made for the launching of the new organization.

A committee composed of Wm. Smith, F. C. Nichai, Dr. Geo. W. Booren, R. J. Jordan, H. L. Turnbaugh, Frank Effinger and Hans Angell is canvassing the town securing members

The membership fee has been set at the reasonably low price of one dollar.

The Expenses of maintaining the club will be very light and as a consequence the members will not be subject to assessments. The aim of the directors is to secure two hundred members before Feb. 1. After that date the fee will be raised from one dollar to a much higher figure.

The subscription lists which were signed some time ago are in the possession of the secretary. Whenever a person buys a membership card his obligation as noted on the subscription list will be considered fulfilled.

That the directors are doing all in their power to hasten the organization of the club is shown by the fact that on Monday of this week they ordered one of the finest gymnasium equipments that money can buy. Each piece of apparatus will be strictly first class in every sense of the word. The feature articles contained in the order are—parallel bars, horizontal bar, flying rings, trapeze, punching bag, boxing gloves, chest weight, Indian clubs, dumb bells, and mats.

THE SOCIALISTS AT WORK

Korngold Shows Milwaukee Has First Administration Free From Taint and Graft.

Bismarck once said that if it were not for the Socialist Movement, and if many were afraid of its growing power, the small reforms which have been accomplished would not have been accomplished.

No truer word has ever been spoken.

Thus we have seen in the United States a Roosevelt appealing to the Senate to give the people reforms while holding over it the bogey of Socialism. Thus we see even a Taft trying vainly to stay the progress of the Trusts in order to save the nation from Socialism. Socialism is the sword of Damocles which is hanging above the head of Capitalist Society. It is the fear of Socialism that is back of nearly every reform offered the workers in almost all civilized nations. By giving up a little the exploiters of labor hope to be allowed to keep much. But what they are receiving merely whets the appetite of the working-class. The bribes which Bismarck offered the workers of Germany in the form of Old Age Pensions, State Accident Insurance, etc., did not stay the progress of Socialism there. Every improvement in the condition of the working-class is gladly accepted by the Socialists, because it means increased stamina for the workers in their fight against capitalism. The workers will obtain reforms in proportion as they cease voting the old party tickets.

As To Milwaukee

"Whatever else they say of the Socialist administration in Milwaukee they are compelled to admit that it is perhaps the first Milwaukee administration absolutely free from the taint of graft. So sure are our opponents of this that when some time ago the Civic Societies of Milwaukee wished to institute an investigation into the financial affairs of Milwaukee, the Mil

FLAX CULTURE

By H. L. BOLLEY, Botanist

The Department of Botany of the North Dakota Agricultural College and Experiment Station hopes to aid the farmers of the Northwest in their effort to retain the flax crop as a permanent element in their agricultural work.

On account of the diseases and other difficulties which affect the crop, this cannot be done unless special methods of handling the seed and soil are followed. It will be necessary for all farmers to aid in this work, as the diseases which injure the flax crop are infectuous troubles which spread from one farm to another by means of farming emplements, stable manures, wind, wash-waters, etc.

Flax is not Hard on Land: It is an error to suppose that the flax crop is especially hard on land. That idea arises wholly because certain root-rot or blight diseases cause the crop to die out on those lands which have once been infected by poor disease bearing seeds. The flax crop does not use up as much moisture or of soil fertility as either wheat or oats. The following summaries, in part, illustrate these features:

TABLE NO. I.

Showing Comparative Draft upon Soils by Different Crops:
(See Bulletin No. 71—pp. 161-162.)

Crop	Nitrogen Lbs.	Phos. Acid. Lbs.	Potash Lbs.	Lime Lbs.	Sicilon Lbs.	Ash. Lbs.
Wheat—20 bu.	35	20	35	8	116	210
Barley—40 bu.	40	20	38	9	72	216
Oats—50 bu.	50	18	45	11	75	205
Corn—65 bu.	75	20	60	12	90	200
Peas—30 bu.	..	25	60	75	10	240
Mangles—10 tons	75	35	150	30	10	350
Potatoes—150 bu.	40	26	75	25	4	125
Flax—15 bu.	54	18	27	16	3.5	87

Showing Available Plant Foods left in Soil at harvest time:

	Mineral matter.	Soluble Nitrates	Sol. Phosphates
Left after wheat	22.8 grm.	0.199 grm.	0.170 grm.

TABLE NO. 3.

Again, in a reliable determination of the water content of the top 21 inches of soil at harvest time, it has been found that there was left in the soil:

(a) After a normal flax crop.................. 14.3 % of mositure
(b) After a normal spring wheat crop....... 13.94% of moisture

Experiments conducted by the Botanical Department and in large plots on the Experiment Station farm of the North Dakota Agricultural Experiment Station, definitely illustrate that the flax crop is not particularly destructive upon soil; for by developing a disease resistant type of flax we have been able to grow heavy crops of flax seed on the same soil, year after year, for sixteen years, and where ordinary flax fails to grow. We do not recommend such constant cropping, but the experiment proves that the so-called flax-sick soil is not chemically exhausted.

The Agricultural Department of the North Dagota Experiment Station has also demonstrated quite clearly that considerably better crops of wheat may be raised after flax than after wheat.

Growing Flax on Old Farmed Areas: Many farmers in the Northwest have this year effectually demonstrated our contention that heavy flax crops can be produced upon old farmed areas. Many others have failed to get good results. Those who succeeded paid attention to the thought that flax must not follow too closely after crop. They used good bright, plump seed. They treated the seed. They plowed deep and packed the soil thoroly until almost as firm as new broken prairie; or they planted it on well surfaced, properly worked, unplowed, corn lands of the previous year. Properly worked corn lands when smoothed down make a great seed bed for the flax crop. In flax cropping, crop rotation pays.

Have you ever treated flax seed to prevent wilt? What results did you get?

Late vs. Early Sowing: In this latitude, late seeding of flax usually gives the largest yield, if it chances to get mature before frost strikes it. Flax should not have to blossom during the hottest weather.

The light frosts of late spring are not apt to injure the young flax. It is my belief that those farming in the more northern counties of Minnesota North Dakota and Montana will, one year with another, reap best results from early sowed flax. Sow there as early as possible and yet avoid the last killing frosts in the spring. In the more southern counties, it is probable that June 10th to 20th will, year by year, give the best results.

Feeding Green Flax: I am interested in learning what has been the result of the feeding of flax straw to stock. I would be pleased to hear from anyone who has experience in feeding flax straw of flax screenings to stock.

1. Did they eat it with relish?
2. Did it seem to prove beneficial?
3. Were there any indications that the feeding of such straw or screenings was harmful?
4. If harmful results followed from feeding flax straw or screenings, under what conditions was the feeding done?
5. Was the crop green or mature when cut? Was it mouldy or bright straw, etc.
6. What weeds, if any, were present in the crop?
7. Was it green and frosted?
8. Was the starw or screenings which was used, properly sun-dried?

Flax for Seed in 1911: Flax seed of high quality for sowing purposes will again be rather scarce in many districts. In some regions drouth prevented any crop, in others late seeding and fall rains with heavy frosts have prevented many from procuring seed suited for sowing purposes. For the future of the flax crop it is of the utmost importance that those who have bright mature flax seed should retain the best of it for their own use and for to their neighbors.

Pure Seed: Send us a half pound sample of your seed, with your name and address attached, and we will inform you quite exactly as to its quality and seed value and how to improve it. We hope to be able to place those who have good flax seed for sale in touch with those who wish to buy good seed for sowing purposes. We do this by furnishing lists of those who have good seed to sell to those who wish to buy good seed.

St. Andrews' Bottle Dungeon.

St. Andrews is perhaps the most distinctive of the old castle towns of Scotland. It was built early in the thirteenth century, and it was here that Bishop Kennedy showed James II. how to break the power of his nobles by taking a bundle of arrows, separating them and snapping them one by one. In Stewart Dick's "The Pageant of the Forth" the author says: "Under the sea tower, in the heart of the rock where it juts into the sea, is a grewsome dungeon known as the 'Bottle dungeon,' so called from its shape. In the floor of the lower room in the tower is a hole five feet in diameter. Down it goes for nearly twelve feet. The neck of the bottle then widens out to form a chamber nearly twenty-four feet in breadth. There is no light, no ventilation, no exit of any kind but the neck of the bottle. A prisoner there had no more chance of escape than a crab has in a creel."

When Gladstone Spoke.

Gladstone was one in whom nervousness had become mannerism. When he rose to speak he began with a few gracious words as the speech [illegible] was no doubt to get his breath. His next act was to raise his right hand over his head, the thumb bent down, and gently scratch his skull. That is rather common among public speakers. The third action of Mr. Gladstone was his peculiar and individual sign. Throwing his arms downward by his side he would with his fingers seize the cuffs of his coat and draw these down over his shirt cuffs so as to conceal them completely. The ordinary practice is just the reverse, the desire being to expose and not conceal the white linen of the shirt cuffs. These were the invariable preludes to the great commoner's speeches. —Pall Mall Magazine.

"Brother Jonathan."

The origin of the term "Brother Jonathan" as applied to the United States is as follows: When General Washington, after being appointed commander of the army of the Revolutionary war, went to Massachusetts to organize it he found a great want of ammunition and other means of defense and on one occasion it seemed that no means could be devised for the necessary safety. [illegible] Brother Jonathan on the subject. The general did so and the governor was successful in supplying many of the wants of the army. Thenceforward when difficulties arose and the army was spread over the country it became a byphrase, "We must consult Brother Jonathan," and the name has now become a designation for the whole country as John Bull has for England. —C. C. Bombaugh, "Gleanings For the Curious."

Kept Her Word.

"Miss Tenspot always declared that she wouldn't marry an angel from heaven," announced Mrs. Gazzam, "and yet she is actually engaged to marry young Mr. Skidmore."

"That's all right," commented Mr. Gazzam. "No one who knows Skidmore will accuse him of being an angel from heaven."—London Answers.

BALD HEADS NOT WANTED.

Baldness Is Too Generally Considered a Sign of Advanced Age.

A bald-headed person does not have an equal chance with one blessed with a healthy head of hair, because baldness is too generally accepted as an indication of age. Many large corporations have established an age limit, and refuse to take men over 35 years of age as new employees.

Probably 65% of bald-headed people may regain a good head of healthy hair if they will follow our advice and accept our offer. We have a remedy that we positively guarantee to grow hair on any head, unless the roots of the hair are entirely dead, their follicles closed, and the scalp has become glazed and shiny. We want people to try this remedy at our risk, with the distinct understanding that unless it does exactly what we claim it will, and gives satisfaction in every respect, we shall make no charge for the remedy used during the trial.

We know exactly what we are talking about, and with this offer back of our statements no one should scoff, doubt our word, or hesitate to put our remedy to an actual test.

We want every one who is suffering from any scalp or hair trouble, dandruff, falling hair, or baldness to try our Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. We want them to use it regularly—say until three bottles have been used—and if it does not eradicate dandruff, cleanse and refresh the scalp, tighten the hair in its roots, and grow new hair, we will return every cent paid us for the remedy for the mere asking. There is no formality expected, and we exact no obligation from the user whatever.

We make this offer with a full understanding that our business success entirely depends upon the sort of treatment we accord our customers, and we would not dare make the above offer unless we were positively certain that we could substantiate it in every particular. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store.

NEW MODELS WILL BE SHOWN

Minneapolis Automobile Exhibition Promises to Be Great Success.

The week of Feb. 17-24 has been selected for the fifth annual exhibition of the Minneapolis Automobile Show Association. Every foot of available floor space in the great Armory building was allotted as fast as names of applicants could be recorded. The show is assured manufacturers' exhibits direct from Chicago, which means show models complete in every detail.

Walter R. Wilmot, the manager, announces, after visiting leading manufacturers, some notable changes which will be of interest to both dealers and prospective purchasers. The most important, perhaps, is the introduction of a practicable self-starter, applicable to many different makes, which will put the gasoline automobile on an equality with the electric, and fits the gas car to the average woman's use and almost marks the passing of the chauffeur. The closed cars will show many advances. The front, or operator's seat, is housed. The diversity and luxuriousness in appointments of auto cars will be especially interesting. The conventional touring car has been fitted with bodies much improved in many details. Seats are to be wider than heretofore, doors to the front as well as to the rear are to protect the driver as well as the party. More length for leg room, easier cushions and such conveniences as robe rails, foot rails and folding seats for extra passengers are included in [illegible]

DISPLAY OF ADVANCED IDEAS

Minneapolis Automobile Show Will Be Greater Than Ever.

Motorists throughout the Northwest are turning their eyes toward Minneapolis, because of the Fifth Annual Automobile Show to be held Feb. 17th to 24th in the National Guard Armory on the Kenwood Parkway. This Annual Show bids fair to be more representative than ever before, and enthusiasts who are interested in motor cars are more keenly interested than ever in the display of advanced ideas to be seen at this show.

There will literally be hundreds of automobiles, both pleasure and commercial cars of gasoline and electric power, to be seen in the big Armory commencing Feb. 17th. Fifty-five makes of cars will be shown complete, representing 92 per cent of the cars distributed through Minneapolis. The selection of this week for the show was fortunate because it permits the elaborate displays of the Chicago Show being shipped to Minneapolis.

Elaborate decorative schemes have been worked out for beautifying the immense building; band concerts, afternoons and evenings, assisted by well known vocalists, and other entertaining features will combine to make this the most interesting show of its kind ever held in Minneapolis.

Whistler's Tart Comment.

Whistler one afternoon called on a young painter of his acquaintance who did the pretty little sort of things that are popular. In the course of the conversation that followed the young artist turned to a little head he was painting and, daintily balancing a square palette by one corner between two finger tips, took a fine sable brush and as daintily began to tickle a piece of bad drawing into a "sweet expression," saying:

"A pleasant art, ours, isn't it, Jimmy?"

"Yes," was Whistler's response, "but what are you doing, Frank?"

"Oh," said the young artist, "I am painting a replica of a little thing some one liked because, you know, I can always sell two or three of the same subject if it's a taking one."

"Ah!" commented Whistler, "you must be a genius, Frank, and I, alas, am like the simple minded hen who, when asked to do so, protested that she could not lay the same egg twice!"

A Grave Discussion.

OWEN WILL OPPOSE HOOK

Oklahoma Senator to Make Fight on Confirmation.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Senator Owen of Oklahoma announced that if President Taft sent to the senate the nomination of Judge W. C. Hook as a member of the supreme court he would fight confirmation indefinitely. Senator Owen also said that he would introduce a resolution calling for copies of all of [illegible] the endorsements of Judge Hook.

The fight against the naming of the Kansas jurist has grown out of his decision in the Oklahoma 2-cent fare cases.

STORE BLOWN UP BY BOMB

Fourteen People Thrown From Beds by Infernal Machine.

Milwaukee, Jan. 9.—Police and city detectives lent all efforts to trace alleged Black Hand letters which preceded the explosion of a bomb under the grocery store and home of Tony Morrello, in the Italian district. The front of the building was wrecked.

Fourteen persons were thrown from their beds, but miraculously none was injured seriously.

Morrello had received letters demanding $300.

The Old Oaken Bucket's Gone.

One day's excursion out of Boston is southward through the birthplace and ancestral home of the brilliant essayist Quincy to the boyhood haunts of Woodworth and the scenes which inspired his sweetest lyric. In Scituate, by the village of Greenbush, we find the well of "The Old Oaken Bucket" remaining at the site of the dwelling where the poet was born and reared. Most of the "loved scenes" of his childhood—the wide spreading pond, the venerable orchard, the flower decked meadow, the deep tangled wildwood—may still be seen, little changed since he knew them, but the rock of the cataract has been removed and the cascade itself somewhat altered by the widening of the highway; the "cot of his fathers" has given place to a modern farmhouse, and the "moss covered bucket that hung in the well" has been supplanted by a convenient but unpoetical pump.—Theodore E. Wells, "Literary Shrines."

A Poor Robin Almanac.

One of the scarcest and most amusing of the early English almanacs is entitled "Poor Robin, an Almanack of the Old and New Fashion * * * containing a twofold Kalendar—viz. the Julian, English or Old Account, and the Roundheads, Fanatics, paper-scull'd or Maggotheaded New Account," etc. It is a pamphlet of sixteen pages and is dated London, 1690.

The dedication is "to the world" and in it Poor Robin says: "With Pipers, Ballad-singers and Fiddlers it is a merry World; with Prisoners, Sick-people and Money-less persons it is a sad World; with a Soldier it is a hard World; with a Divine a wicked World; with a Lawyer a contentious World; with a Courtier a slippery World; with most men a mad World, and with all men a bad World." Some of the earlier of these "Poor Robin Almanacks" have been attributed to Robert Herrick.

She Learned the Lesson.

A Baltimore lawyer had an office boy who was given to telling in other offices what happened in that of his chief. The lawyer found it necessary to discharge him, but, thinking to keep him from a similar fault in the future, he counseled the boy wisely on his departure.

"Willie, you must never hear anything that is said in the office," he said. "Do what you are told to do, but turn a deaf ear to conversation that does not include you."

A happy inspiration! He would see that the stenographer learned the same lesson in passing, so, turning to her, he said:

"Miss Brown, did you hear what I said to Willie?"

"No, sir," she returned promptly.—Lippincott's.

The wider a vision a man gets of the world the smaller a niche he will realize that he fills in the world's great sphere.

Robert M. LaFollette seems to be gaining ground every day during the campaign. He certainly will make [illegible] for the standpatters in the [illegible] of Minnesota.

The old and naturally conservative men of today should not be surprised if some of the younger element is slightly more conservative than they are.

The Democratic National Convention will be held at Baltimore, Maryland. That looks good for a victory for Woodrow Wilson. That may be good politics and it may not be. One thing is certain. It is another feather in LaFollette's cap.

It seems as if Canada in spite of its turning down Reciprocity has to depend on this country taking a large share of its grain. The storage capacity at Port Arthur and Fort William is taken up so that the farmers of the Canadian Northwest have nowhere to dispose of their grain unless it comes across the line. Many of them have hauled their grain to town and had to wait several days before being able to dispose of it. Those living near enough to the U. S. line have paid the duty and driven across and marketed it on this side. Our railroads have met the difficulty and have made a rate of 18 cents per bushel on wheat from Regina to Duluth which will mean that wheat will be pouring down to Duluth and Superior.—Herald-Rustler.

NO NEW THING

The drift to the city from the country, which so many deplore is no new thing. It has always been so, for history shows that the great cities of old as well as those of modern days were not built up by natural increase of their own population, but by constant accretion from the country. In fact the city is an immense maelstrom remorselessly sucking in the brain and brawn of the country.

That, on the whole, it is a misfortune few will question. For every one person who goes from the country to the city and benefits by the change there are probably a dozen who do not benefit, for with most of them the change means a deterioration, physically, financially and morally. But this fact does not stop the migration; for it is not the failure of the dozen that is considered but the success of the one.

The man who can solve the problem of how to keep the young men and women on the farm and in the small town will prove one of the greatest benefactors of all time. Many plans have been proposed and country life has more advantages than in former days, yet the drift continues. Perhaps nothing but the force of economic circumstances will cause a turn in the tide.—Ex

Twin Cities Get Another Special Discriminatory Passenger Rate This Week.

The State Fair Society is holding its annual meeting in St. Paul this week. There will be about three hundred attend this meeting if the number who attend is the average. For this meeting six of the big railroads of the state have granted a round trip rate of two cents per mile between January 5 and 11 inclusuve subject to some restrictions calculated to prevent scalping the tickets. The two cent rate is good to Minneapolis although the meeting is held in St. Paul. Just why Minneapolis is included in the cut rate is not announced. This is the second time with in thirty days that the railroads have cut rates to the "confiscatory" rate in order to help travel from the country to the Twin Cities. So far as we know, the railroads since the rate raise have never cut a rate to help travel from the cities to the conutry. The annual convention of the Northern Minnesota Development Association was attended by more delegates than will attend the State Fair annual meeting and it was just as important a convention. There was no reduced rates granted for this meeting. The meeting was not held in the Twin Cities.

Under the present system of no regulation and no control, the roads constantly discriminate in favor of the big cities. The policy is not just. It can not be defended upon any grounds. However, it will continue to be the policy followed in Minnesota until the people want it changed.

The hardest job the Progressives seem to have is to determine what the difference is between a Progressive Republican and a Progressive Democrat.

Col. Roosevelt has gone into silent quarters at Oyster Bay and says he has no preference to express for the Presidency. We presume the Colonel wishes the old rule: "Silence means consent," to be accepted.

Bob Dunn's support of Eberhart, in view of his well known opinion of the present state administration, gives color to the common report that there has been formed an Eberhart-Dunn coalition which has in it something good for Bob. If it develops that such an alliance has actually been formed it will not tend to strengthen the admiration thousands of Minnesotans have had for the blunt Princeton editor, nor will it confirm his friends in their faith in his political integrity.—Ex.

LAND SHOWS BY MOVING PICTURES

Great Northern Railway Exhibit cars containing products of the Western States and Moving Pictures of Western Harvest Scenes are proving the greatest corroborating factors the Western Governors have. Without these realities for the people of the east to look upon the Governors admit that their flood of oratory would fail to paint an effective picture in the mind of the average easterner. However, seeing is believing, hence the state executives naturally are placing great dependence upon what the exhibit cars and moving pictures show.

Through the courtsey of Louis W. Hill, President of the Great Northern Railway, who donated the Governors' Special Train, making the eastern trip possible, the moving pictures of the Governors' Party, which are taken in each city, are sent on ahead to be produced in the various vaudeville houses, so the Governors themselves as well as the public may see them.

All records have been broken for attendance in the exhibit cars since they left St. Paul. In Buffalo 6,500 people passed through the cars in a single day. Althogether more than 100,000 persons have viewed the exhibits thus far on the eastern expedition of the Governors.

AUDITORIUM RECEIPTS

There has been considerable talk about town regarding the management of the city Auditorium. The following figures can be varified by anyone who will take the trouble of going to the City-Clerk's office and doing so.

During the ten months that Mr. Halvorson was manager the gross earnings of the house was $1805.43, which with $150 deducted for Mr. Halvorson's salary left a net earning of $1655.43.

During the nine months following, the Auditorium was under the direct supervision of members of the City Council for the first two months and during the remaining seven months it has been under the management of Wm. Smith. The gross receipts for the entire nine months as shown by the report was $685.06 and Mr. Smith was allowed a salary of $175, which leaves a net earning of $510.06, for the nine months.

The Press has no bones to pick with Mr. Smith and we publish the foregoing figures at the request of several of the citizens and that inasmuch as we are informed that an itemized statement will not be published at this time as was the case when Mr. Halvorson completed his report.

Prichard Busy

W. W. Prichard is busy with a crew of men grubbing out the row of boxelder trees on the corner of Horace and 2nd, that have so long been a landmark, in order to make room for office buildings for his lumber business for which sheds will be erected across the street.

The house built by and for many years the residence of F. H. Kratka has been purchased by Mr. Prichard and will be moved from its present location some feet nearer the Presbyterian church. This looks like big operations on Horace ave. during the coming season and it now looks as if LaBree and Main were to have a rival.

It is expected that most of the equipment will be on hand before February. The apparatus will be installed immediately upon its arrival and the gymnasium will be open to the public.

Each member will be provided with a key to the place so he may make use of the gymnasium at any time he cares to.

With the co-operation of the citizens, the directors are in a position to give this city one of the finest gymnasiums in the northwest. Fortunately the members of the board of directors, each have at some time or another, been connected with similar organizations in various cities and are capable of efficiently managing the club here. The more members they secure, the cheaper the runnnig expenses will be for each member. Let's wake up to the fact that there is a gymnasium here! Let's all join! And let's each make it a special point to see the endeavor meet with the unqualified success that it deserves.

celebreties as Champ Clark, speaker of the House; Oscar W. Underwood, chairman of the House Committee on ways and means, and majority floor leader; John J. Fitzgerald, chairman of the committee on appropriations, not to mention a few others hardly less luminous. The aforementioned gentlemen are the heroes, played up strong in the lime-light. In marked contrast will be other well-known characters, to wit: Joseph G. Cannon, former speaker of the House; John Dalzell, late chairman of the committee on rules, Sereno E. Payne, recent chairman of the committee on Ways and Means, and others. These will be painted as bad, very bad, indeed. They will be the villians of the play. The dictionary will be well nigh exhausted in ransacking for black and villanous-sounding adjectives to adequately describe how virtuous Democracy feels about the alleged depravity of the G. O. P.

Time or space will not permit further elaboration of the 1912 political play. The Dmocrats will play politicals and play it strong. Legislation and all connected therewith will be with reference to one thing, and that one thing will be the Presidency, which the Democrats hope to capture. Undoubtedly, the term "explosivista" coined during President Taft's sojourn in Minnesota last fall, will fairly describe the character of the present session of Congress. There will be much noise, booming of cannon and applause (on the Democratic side.) The whole affair will be timed with reference to the Democratic nominating convention, which is June 25th.

Well, the National Democratic com. met and did some things and there was the Jacksonian banquet, which all admit was a great success and a harmony feast. Out of these two events grew conclusions: Bryan is still the Peerless leader of Democracy, the dominating factor in the party, but will not be the party nominee. The other conclusion forced upon Washington observers of the national game of politics was that Woodrow Wilson is the strongest presidential candidate the party has today. The Washington meeting and banquet certainly advanced Wilson stock well to the front. There are many who are of the opinion that Wilson's nomination is practically assured.

It is also pointed out that the progressives within the Democratic party will be the controlling force in the presidential campaign. Bryan [illegible] will be exerted to make the party progressive and not permit it to be dominated by the Parker-Harmon-Underwood faction, which is reactionary or at least ultra-conservative. It is generally understood that Bryan's mission in Washington was to head off any reactionary move and to get the party machinery well started on the progressive road. It is the general belief here that Bryan was successful. It is conceded even by Bryan's staunchest supporters that the Commoner has eliminated himself as a possible candidate, but thereby has placed himself in position where he can throw his influence to great advantage in the selection of some progressive as the Democratic standard bearer.

In the opinion of Representative Hammond of Minnesota, Woodrow Wilson is "sanely progressive," without being too radical. Hammond likes Wilson's style, and although he does not know him personally and intimately as he does Speaker Clark, yet the second district Representative has great admiration for the New Jersey governor. He virtually admits that Wilson is the strongest man the party can put up. Last summer Mr. Hammond gave out a statement stating his personal preference for Mr. Clark for President. However, this preference was a personal matter, the result of his long and intimate friendship with the Democratic Speaker, and would not prevent him from being a consistent Wilson supporter later on.

• • •

Frank A. Day and Fred B. Lynch, the latter the National Democratic Committee-man from Minnesota, who were in Washington during the recent Democratic activities, report a strong Wilson sentiment in Minnesota. "If Taft should get the nomination, and the Democrats put up Wilson the latter would carry the State by——," one of them stated, but the figures given wouldn't really look well in print. In connection with the Wilson candidacy is the report quite well authenticated, that the brewing interests of Minnesota would oppose him for the nomination.

One of the most important Congressional hearings ever conducted by a legislature committee are those now in progress before the Clapp committee on interstate commerce. The Minnesota Senator is making a thorough investigation of the entire trust question. The hearings will continue for several weeks longer. The probable results and remedial legislation growing out of this investigation are so important that an entire letter will be devoted to this subject in a week or two.

Representative Anderson has introduced a bill amending a section of the United States Civil Code, relating to the taking of testimony. As the law now stands the testimony in previous trials cannot be used in a new trial. The Anderson bill provides that where the testimony has been given by a witness in behalf of either party and the opposite party has had opportunity to cross-examine such witness, the notes of his testimony may be available at any subsequent trial of the case, in case the witness has died or become insane.

Congressman Lindbergh will shortly appear as a full-fledged author. He has been at work for several months investigating certain public questions and the result of his investigations and researches will appear in the form of a book. The work will treat of politics, money and finance, transportation and speculation. Mr. Lindbergh is of the opinion that we need a correction of our money and credit system; a correction of our trasportation system, and the prohibition of speculation.

The Major Shunk report on the improvement of the Minnesota River is still before the board of engineers for rivers and harbors. The additional information called for by the Government has been filed. It is expected that a report to Congress will be made some time this month. Congressman Volstead is among those who think that the board will recommend the opening up the river for navigation as far as Chaska, or perhaps Mankato.

stream that is used and considerably used for boat navigation. It is noteworthy that during the past season of low water, although navigation was entirely suspended, there has not been a single complaint from any owners or master of boats, or any one else interested in them. These gentlemen doubtless know very well what is the matter with the river.

7. The Thief River Falls Lumber Co., has suffered more from lack of water in the river than any one else in the world. It may be assumed as a fairly self-evident fact that as soon as this company can do anything to induce a log to float down the Red Lake river, they will do so, as until that time they will be out of business. The boatmen who have made no complaint have also suffered pecuniary losses. The grievances of the present complainants, so far as they are not imaginary, are trifling, and such as do not come within the sphere of federal authority.

8. There is nothing in these complaints. Red Lake and Red Lake river in common with the United States reservoirs and everything else in northern Minnesota, are in need of water, but nothing the government can do will supply it. The supposed log jams are merely logs stranded for lack of water to float them away. The Thief River Falls Lumber Co., has violated no law and done nothing blameworthy. I therefore recommend that no action be taken.

Iver T. Howick returned from Warren Saturday evening having undergone an operation for appendicitis. Iver is progressing nicely and his friends hope to see him back at his old place at the Oen Mercantile Store before very long.

ON THEIR WAY

The local High Shcool basket ball team left this morning for Fosston, where they will play this evening. Tomorrow night they will play the Crookston Agricultural College at Crookston. The boys will be up against a fast team each night, but with things breaking even for them should win both games.

A. C. McMILLIAN WORKING FOR FARMERS INSTITUTE

Mr. A. C. McMillian is out this week among the farmers and business men with a view to stimulating their interest in a rousing Farmers' Institute. He has put the proposition up to the business men and the Commercial club. If interesting lectures have not previously been arranged for, the matter will be taken up in earnest. There is no question that Pennington county needs "intensive" farming, and that the right kind of institutes will enlighten the farmers and bring this about. Better cultivation and more diversified crops is what is needed, rather than more acreage with the single-crop idea. A man's success as a farmer is not measured by the number of acres he has in crop, but by the amount of produce he [illegible] average to the acre.

LOST MOTION

Most of us are acquainted to some extent with the nature and evil effects of lost motion. It consists of a motion which gets nowhere, which does nothing useful. If neglected, its results may be far reaching. In small pivot bearings it means unreliable and uncertain action, perhaps no action at all. In a watch it means uncertainty and annoyance, possibly heavy loss of property or life. In a locomotive or steamship it courts disaster and death.

There is lost motion in men. Did you ever see a bungling fellow try to work? Did you notice how he reaches two or three times for a tool, how his screw driver slips out of the slot again and again? How he makes a connection only to find it wrong? How he rushes hastily out to hunt trouble on the line, when the fault is in the office? These are all lost motions and cost somebody good money.

Then did you ever watch an expert at work? No, not the kind who are merely called experts, but the real man. See how he makes every movement count. He knows exactly where everything goes and how it should fit. He is noted for how little work he does, for that little touches the spot. If something unexpected turns up, he knows the value of a moment's careful thought. As a result his work seldom has to be done over again on his own account.

Direct, clear-cut, decisive, correct action is much in demand. Men want work which will not require patching up. And it can be done.—Telephony.

SCHOOL NOTES.

* * * * * * * * * *

The enrollment of children up to December 22nd was as follows in the several schools: Lincoln High School—boys, 80; girls, 148. Knox—boys 137; girls, 128. Central—boys 195; girls, 177. Washington—boys, 154; girls, 176. Total—1195. It might be stated that the enrollment in the high school is near 239 and in the whole system quite a little above 1200.

The high school enrollment at Crookston high school is 265, not very much above that of Thief River Falls. The local school is increasing much more rapidly in numbers than the down river high school.

Gymnastics are held every day for all high school students. These exercises are carefully planned and give the children vigorous and valuable bodily exercise. The big gym. is of more service in thus providing a place for the conservation of the health of the students than it is for a playground.

With the exception of some frozen pipes the schools suffered none from the recent cold spell. The janitors spared neither fuel nor energy in maintaining a comfortable temperature in the buildings throughout the very cold weather.

No pupils except those from a distance will be permitted to remain in the buildings during the while the weather is mild. Cadets are in each building at noon time to see that those who bring their lunches maintain order.

The short course is gradually growing every week. It now enrolls some 32. The course of studies offered is practical and appeals to the mature student with but four or five months in which to attend school each winter.

It is an unfortunate condition which obtains in this and other cities, that outside attractions are so numerous and varied that the high school boy or girl whose parents do not control them with old time vigor loses interest in school tasks. Old fashioned coercion would be a splendid thing in some cases and would make honorable and valuable citizens of many bright young people who are so distracted by town diversions that they will finally become lost to the school and develop into nobodies in later life.

The basketball team played a brilliant game last Saturday evening against the Crookston boys, but a few fouls and some [illegible] decisions turned the tables against them again. A score of 23 to 21 shows the closeness of the game and the meaning of a doubtful decision or two either way.

The high school of 240 pupils had more cases of tardiness in December than were counted in the grades. This will be corrected this month, even if it means the staying at home of those who fail to appreciate the value of promptness in school attendance.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

JAP ARMY IN HAWAII

General Carter Says 35,000 Former Soldiers Are on Island.

Washington, Jan. 13.—A statement by Major General Carter, assistant chief of staff of the army, that there are 35,000 former Japanese soldiers in Hawaii who would support Japan if that country and the United States went to war, made a deep impression on the house committee on military affairs.

General Carter expressed the belief of the general staff officers that the United States must enlarge greatly its military forces or dispose of some of its insular possessions.

ITALIANS SINK TURKISH SHIPS

Severe Naval Battle Occurs in the Red Sea.

Rome, Jan. 13.—A severe naval action occurred Jan. 7 in the Red sea when seven Turkish gunboats and an armed yacht were destroyed by Italian warships. Details of the battle have just been made public.

The division of Italian cruisers which has been scouring the coasts of the Red sea in search of Turkish war vessels and ships conveying contraband destined for the Turkish garrisons in the Yemen province in Arabia encountered the flotilla of Turkish gunboats and at once opened fire. The Turks replied, but their feeble armament succumbed to the superior weapons of the Italian war vessels.

The Italian warships cruising in the Red sea since the beginning of the war include the cruisers Piemonte, Calabria and Puglia and a flotilla of destroyers. Massawa is the base from which they operate. Several weeks ago they bombarded the towns of Shiek Said, Mocha and Akabah.

SIX KILLED BY DYNAMITE

Workers Meet Death in Pennsylvania Colliery Explosion.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 11.—Six men were killed and two probably fatally injured by an explosion of dynamite in the Parrish colliery at Plymouth, near here. The dead men, all laborers, were engaged in timbering a stope of the Parrish colliery when the explosion occurred. As all of the men who were at work were either killed or fatally injured it is impossible to ascertain what caused the explosion.

RANCHER KILLS HIS FAMILY

He Wields Ax on Wife and Daughter, Then Commits Suicide.

Milligan, Neb., Jan. 11.—Word has reached here that Peter Brothers, a wealthy rancher living near here, murdered his wife and four-year-old stepdaughter with an ax and then committed suicide by slashing his throat with a razor.

Jealousy caused the wholesale killing.

CARNEGIE ENDS HIS TESTIMONY

Ironmaster Through With Steel Inquiry Committee.

OPPOSES IMPERIALISM POLICY

Laird of Skibo Admits Giving $15,000 to Prevent Annexation of the Philippines.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Andrew Carnegie concluded his testimony before the house steel trust investigating committee. He admitted that in 1900 he contributed $15,000 to oppose the policy of imperialism and the annexation of the Philippines, assailed Wall street and branded "stock jobbers" as parasites, urged the Roosevelt trust policy in preference to that of President Taft for dealing with the trusts and asked congress to consider carefully that problem.

After a day of examination on many subjects Mr. Carnegie was subjected to a fire of questions which put him on his mettle. Chairman Stanley elicited from him an attack on stock jobbing that probably will influence legislation to be proposed by the committee and Representative McGillicuddy of Maine took the ironmaster over some political jumps that were altogether unexpected.

"Mr. Carnegie," asked Chairman Stanley, "in the organization of the Carnegie Steel company of New Jersey why did you divide your stock into $1,000 shares?"

"To keep them off the stock exchange," was Mr. Carnegie's quick reply.

"Why did you want to keep them off the stock exchange?"

Opposed to Stock Jobbing.

"Because I do not believe in stock jobbing. Because I did not wish to have my partners in business tempted to speculation. I never in my life bought or sold a share of stock on the speculative market. I was reared differently. I had a grandfather in Scotland ruined by stock speculation. I resolved that it was ruinous when a young man and throughout my business career I never bought long or sold short."

Chairman Stanley, producing an old document, read from a statement made by Mr. Carnegie many years ago in which the ironmaster said: "Stock gamblers are parasites feeding on values and creating none."

"Are you still of that opinion?" he asked.

"Mr. Stanley, the other day you referred to something I had said about competition and you said you would like to have it engraved on a memorial tablet," Mr. Carnegie answered. "I wish you would take the quotation you have just read, engrave it on a tablet and put it in the stock exchange."

Representative McGillicuddy somewhat confused Mr. Carnegie with a fire of questions seeking to show that a plan was formulated to organize the United States Steel corporation before Mr. McKinley was elected president in 1900 and that the deal was consummated soon after his election.

BIG SOCIALIST GAINS SHOWN

Feature of Recent Elections to German Reichstag.

Berlin, Jan. 14.—Unofficial returns of the result of the polling for the elections to the reichstag have been received from all of the 397 constituencies, but owing to discrepancies in the tabulations it is still difficult to make any definite predictions of the complexion of the new reichstag. There are 189 constituencies in which a second ballot will be necessary.

The Conservative-Clerical coalition, which has had domination of the imperial parliament since the fall of Prince von Buelow, has been badly shaken on this occasion.

The Socialists have run up the number of their elected members already to sixty-four, or, according to some reports, to sixty-six, of whom twenty-six wrested their seats from members of other parties, and the Socialists also are concerned in 122 second ballots.

They need only to hold their own in the reballots in order to return to the reichstag as strong numerically as they were in 1903, when their representation reached high water mark.

Elgin, Ill., Jan. 16.—A decision by junior members of the quotation committee of the Elgin butter board that the "market could easily sustain a 1-cent increase," was declared by Joseph Newman, pioneer Elgin butterman and member of the price committee, to be responsible for the 40-cent quotation returned by the committee. This is the highest figure reached on the Elgin board in twenty-four years.

HARMON SPEAKS AT MILWAUKEE

Ohio Governor Sees Hope for His Party Next Fall.

HANDICAPS THROWN ASIDE

Democratic Candidate for Presidential Nomination Declares Impression That Wilson Tariff Bill Caused Hard Times In the Nineties Is Wrong and Points to Panic In 1907 When Dingley Law Was In Operation.

Milwaukee, Jan. 16.—A wrong impression that the Wilson tariff bill caused the hard times in the nineties and that the Democratic party, having been so long in political exile that the country was made to believe that it was not competent to manage the government were reasons given by Governor Judson Harmon of Ohio for the four successive defeats of the Democratic party, in an address under the auspices of the Jefferson club of Milwaukee.

He declared that these handicaps had been thrown aside and that the united Democracy of the nation looks forward with hope and confidence in the coming contest.

In his address he spoke in part as follows:

"The Democratic party approaches the election this year under peculiar conditians. Never before in its history, barring the Civil war period, has it met four successive defeats. It has labored under two handicaps:

"First—That the Wilson tariff bill caused the hard times in the nineties, the inference being that Democratic success would bring hard times again.

"As the hard times began in 1892, then the close of the Harrison administration, and reached their worst in 1893, they could not possibly have been due to the Wilson bill, which was not passed until 1894. Yet this false belief was created and kept alive by the persistent assertion which, it is said, makes a lie as good as the truth for some purposes at least.

Refers to Panic of 1907.

"But it was finally disposed of by the panic of 1907, which broke out when the Dingley law was in full blast and there was not a Democrat in control of any office under the government.

"Second—The Democratic party having been so long in political exile, the country was made to believe that it was not competent to manage the government. Full as it was of able men they lacked experience. So the Republicans must be retained in charge of affairs so they would be properly conducted.

"The past four years afforded ample proof that the Democrats could at least have done no worse than the Republicans have done. Their broken faith on tariff reductions roused the voters all over the country so that in 1910 a house was elected Democratic by an enormous majority and many Democratic governors and other officers in states usually Republican.

"This house has shown fidelity, courage, ability and economy. These state officers have now the confidence of the people by honest and able administrations.

"So both these handicaps have been thrown aside and the united Democracy of the nation looks forward with hope and confidence, while the Republican organization, rent and discredited, enters the contest with all the omens of defeat. We are all confident that the Democratic house will at the present session keep up the good work begun at the last session. We all believe the Democratic state administrations will keep up their record of economy and reform. Then the voters, pleased with these samples of Democratic government, will order a full line next fall and the responsibility will be ours to make full and fair delivery."

SCORES IMPERILED BY FIRE

Dozen Women Made Unconscious by Blaze in Cleveland.

Cleveland, Jan. 16.—The lives of scores of clerks were endangered and a loss of about $400,000 was caused when fire broke out in the five-story building occupied by Browning, King & Co., and B. R. Baker-Baum & Co., clothiers, and the Miller Millinery company, on Euclid avenue, in the heart of the retail district.

A dozen women employed in the millinery store were made unconscious by smoke. The flames were started by an explosion in the basement. What caused the explosion is unknown.

Commercial Telegraphers' Union Favors Government Ownership.

New Orleans, Jan. 16.—Organized telegraphers of the country heartily endorse Postmaster General Hitchcock's proposed recommendation of government ownership and operation of the telegraph lines of the United States, according to a statement here by S. J. Konenkamp of Chicago, international president of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America.

MACKAY FROWNS ON PLAN

Would Become Colossal Political Machine, Says Postal Head.

New York, Jan. 16.—Clarence H. Mackay, president of the Postal Telegraph company, declared that, if the government took over the telegraph lines of the country, as is desired by Postmaster General Hitchcock, he believed the investment would be unprofitable. He said the cost would be enormous and he did not believe the plan would be carried out as long as there was competition in the telegraph business.

"The step would lead to taking over the telephone lines also," said Mr. Mackay. "Moreover, the government would then be employing hundreds of thousands of clerks, telephone girls, telegraph operators, managers, etc. It would be a colossal political machine."

SENATE WILL DEBATE TREATIES IN PUBLIC

Only Eight Votes Cast in Favor of Closed Doors.

Washington, Jan. 16.—The senate voted to admit the public to its debates on the pending arbitration treaties with Great Britain and France. The vote was decisive, only eight senators of the sixty-six recorded being in favor of closed doors.

The controversy as to whether the discussion should be public or closed was brought to a head when Senator Rayner announced it was his purpose to make a speech in relation to the treaties. Senator Lodge said the delicacy of the entire subject of foreign relations demanded that discussion of it be executive.

Senator Rayner resisted the movement, but Senator Bacon, who was president, sustained a motion by Senator Lodge, seconded by Senator McCumber, that the senate go into executive session. After the doors were closed Mr. Lodge reiterated with vehemence that if the discussion were public things might be said of a character likely to embarrass the relations of the government with the European parties to the treaties.

Senator Smith of Michigan took the lead in demanding that the debate be open to the public. It was argued by Senator Smith that the senate might have good reasons for insisting that the form of the treaties should be changed and that the public should be given the reasons.

Why She Left Them at Home.

"Have you any references?" asked the lady of the house.

"Yes, ma'am. A lot of 'em."

"Then why didn't you bring them with you?"

HITCHCOCK AND TAFT MAY BREAK

Postmaster General on Carpet at White House.

ANNOUNCEMENT UNEXPECTED

Administration Not Informed of His Belief In Government Ownership of Telegraph Lines.

Washington, Jan. 16.—President Taft summoned Frank H. Hitchcock, his postmaster general, to the White House and called upon him to explain why, without having consulted him, he had announced publicly that he would recommend to congress the taking over by the United States government of all the telegraph lines of the country.

Mr. Hitchcock replied that he had intended to confer with Mr. Taft on the subject, but after having made arrangements for publication was hurriedly called out of town. He recalled to Mr. Taft's mind that he had discussed the government ownership question with him a year ago, when he (Hitchcock) had embodied it in a preliminary draft of his annual report.

President Taft accepted Mr. Hitchcock's explanation and the talk of an immediate break between them has been allayed. It remains, however, for President Taft still to say whether he will accept or reject Postmaster General Hitchcock's recommendation for government ownership of telegraph lines.

Everything in President Taft's record of utterances indicates that he will reject it. He has declared repeatedly against the government ownership idea as applied to the railroads of the country on the ground that it would place too great a power in the hands of the president.

Crisis May Come Soon.

Postmaster General Hitchcock's government ownership recommendation will come before the president now in Mr. Hitchcock's annual report, which will reach the White House in a few days. If Mr. Hitchcock is turned down by the president after the publicity episode the crisis that has been imminent in the Taft cabinet for some time may be reached.

After Postmaster General Hitchcock's conference with President Taft the White House issued a statement which obviously was intended to help Mr. Hitchcock out of an embarrassing situation.

At the same time President Taft scrupulously refrained from committing himself in any way in the statement in regard to the Hitchcock proposition. The statement refers to the conference which Mr. Hitchcock had with President Taft on the subject of government ownership a year ago, but omits to disclose definitely whether the president at that time actually favored government ownership of the wire service of the country.

Developments at the White House have not altered the fact that the relations between Mr. Taft and the postmaster general are strained. The bald truth is that President Taft and some of his advisers want to avoid any open break with Mr. Hitchcock.

Where Books Were Pawned.

In primitive days books had a recognized and settled value. We know how they were exchanged for a horse or half a dozen sheep, but few people know the extent to which books were pawned in the middle ages. Oxford at one time had twenty giant chests full of these valuable pledges, and the process when stock was taken had to be conducted with care. The book fairs served to alter things, and presently as Smithfield market grew it set up a subservient industry on its outskirts, where the butchers sold skins and the parchment dealers bought. And this bookish street on the edge of Smithfield under the shadow of St. Paul's bore the pious name of Paternoster row.—Pall Mall Gazette.

MESSAGE ON ECONOMY AND EFFICIENCY

I [illegible] the [illegible] cost of [illegible] the [illegible] expenditure [illegible] compared [illegible] the results [illegible] with the sacrifice required.

I am convinced that results which are really worth while cannot be secured, or at least can be secured only in small part, through the prosecution at irregular intervals of special inquiries bearing on particular services or features of administration. The benefits thus obtained must be but temporary. The problem of good administration is not one that can be solved at one time. It is a continuously present one.

Plan of the Work.

In accordance with my instructions the commission on economy and efficiency, which I organized to aid me in the inquiry, has directed its efforts primarily to the formulation of concrete recommendations looking to the betterment of the fundamental conditions under which governmental operations must be carried on. With a basis thus laid it has proceeded to the prosecution of detailed studies of individual services and classes of work and of particular practices and methods, pushing these studies as far and covering as many points and services as the resources and time at its disposal have permitted.

In approaching its task it has divided the work into five fields of inquiry having to do respectively with organization, personnel, business methods, accounting and reporting and the budget.

Organization.

I have stated that the congress, the president and the administrative officers are attempting to discharge the duties with which they are intrusted without full information as to the agencies through which the work of the government is being performed. To provide more complete information on this point the commission has submitted to me a report on the organization of the government as it existed July 1, 1911. This report, which is transmitted herewith, shows in great detail, by means of outlines, not only the departments, commissions, bureaus and offices through which the government performs its varied activities, but also the sections, shops, field stations, etc., constituting the subordinate divisions through which the work is actually done. It shows for the services at Washington each such final unit as a laboratory, library, shop and administrative subdivision and for the services outside of Washington each station and point at which any activity of the government is carried on.

Specific Economies Demonstrated.

With this outline as a basis the commission has entered upon the preparation of three series of reports.

The first series deals with the manner in which the services of the government should be grouped in departments.

The second and third series of reports deal, respectively, with the organization and activities of particular services and the form of organization for the performance of particular business operations.

One of the reports of the second series is upon the revenue cutter service, which costs the government over $2,500,000 each year. In the opinion of the commission its varied activities can be performed with equal or greater advantage by other services. The commission therefore recommends that it be abolished. It is estimated that by so doing a saving of not less than $1,000,000 a year can be made.

Another report illustrating the second series recommends that the lighthouse and life saving services be administered by a single bureau instead of, as at present, by two bureaus located in different departments. These services have much in common. Geographically they are similarly located; administratively they have many of the same problems. It is estimated that consolidataion would result in a saving of not less than $100,000 annually.

In a third report the commission has recommended the abolition of the returns office of the department of the interior. This action, in its opinion, will cause no loss in service to the public and will result in a direct saving of not less than $25,000 a year, in addition to a large indirect economy in the reduction of work to be performed in the several offices.

In another report the commission has recommended the consolidation of the six auditing offices of the treasury and the inclusion in the auditing system of the seven naval officers who now audit customs accounts at the principal ports. The changes recommended will improve in many ways the auditing of public accounts and will result in an immediate saving of at least $135,000 annually.

A third series of reports is being prepared on those branches of the organization which are technical in character and which exist for the service of the government as a whole—branches which have to do with such matters as public printing, heating, lighting, the making of repairs, the providing of transportation and the compilation of statistics where mechanical equipment is essential.

Abolition of Local Offices.

Perhaps the part of the organization in which the greatest economy in public expenditure is possible is to be found in the numerous local offices of the government. In some instances the establishment and the discontinuance of these local offices are matters of administrative discretion. In other instances they are established by permanent law in such a manner that their discontinuance is beyond the power of the president or that of any executive officer. In a number of instances these laws were passed nearly a century ago [illegible] changes in economic conditions have taken place which have had the effect of rendering certain offices not only useless, but even worse than useless in that their very existence needlessly swells expenditures and complicates the administrative system.

The responsibility for the maintenance of these conditions must naturally be divided between the congress and the executive. But that the executive has performed his duty when he has called the attention of congress to the matter must also be admitted. Realizing my responsibility in the premises, I have directed the commission to prepare a report setting forth the positions in the local services of the government which may be discontinued with advantage, the saving which would result from such action and the changes in law which are necessary to carry into effect changes in organization found to be desirable. On the coming in of the report such offices as may be found useless and can be abolished will be so treated by executive order.

Personnel.

In my recent message to the congress I urged consideration of the necessity of placing in the classified service all of the local officers under the departments of the treasury, the interior, postoffice and commerce and labor.

As yet little if any attempt has been made by law to secure, either for the higher administrative positions in the service at Washington or for local offices, the qualifications which the incumbents of these positions must have if the business of the government is to be conducted in the most efficient and economical manner. Furthermore in the case of many of the local officers the law positively provides that the term of office shall be of four years' duration.

Extension of Merit System.

The next step which must be taken is to require of heads of bureaus in the departments at Washington and of most of the local officers under the departments qualifications of capacity similar to those now required of certain heads of bureaus and of local officers. The extension of the merit system to these officers and a needed readjustment of salaries will have important effects in securing greater economy and efficiency.

In the first place, the possession by the incumbents of these positions of the requisite qualifications must in itself promote efficiency.

In the second place, the removal of local officers from the realm of political patronage in many cases would reduce the payroll of the field services. At the present time the incumbents of many of these positions leave the actual performance of many of their duties to deputies and assistants. The government often pays two persons for doing work that could easily be done by one. What is the loss to the government cannot be stated, but that it is very large cannot be denied when it is remembered how numerous are the local officers in the postal, customs, internal revenue, public lands and other field services of the government.

In the third place, so long as local officers are within the sphere of political patronage it is difficult to consider the question of the establishment or discontinuance of local offices apart from the effect upon local political situations.

Finally the view that these various offices are to be filled as a result of political considerations has for its consequence the necessity that the president and members of congress devote to matters of patronage time which they should devote to questions of policy and administration.

Dangers of Fixed Term System.

The greatest economy and efficiency and the benefits which may accrue from the president's devoting his time to the work which is most worth while may be assured only by treating all the distinctly administrative officers in the departments at Washington and in the field in the same way as inferior officers have been treated. The time has come when all these officers should be placed in the classified service. The time has also come when those provisions of law which give to these officers a fixed term of years should be repealed. So long as a fixed term is provided by law the question of reappointment of an officer, no matter how efficiently he may have performed his duties, will inevitably be raised periodically. So long as appointments to these offices must be confirmed by the senate and so long as appointments to them must be made every four years just so long will it be impossible to provide a force of employees with a reasonably permanent tenure who are qualified by reason of education and training to do the best work.

Superannuation.

I shall submit in the near future for the consideration of the congress a plan for the retirement of aged employees in the civil service which will safeguard the interests of the government and at the same time make reasonable provision for the needs of those who have given the best part of their lives to the service of the state.

In every case where technical processes have been studied it has been demonstrated beyond question that large economies may be effected. The subjects first approached were those which lie close to each administrator—viz. office practices. An illustration of the possibilities within this field may be found in the results of the inquiry into the methods of handling and filing correspondence. Every office in the government has reported its methods to the commission. These reports brought to light the fact that present methods were quite the reverse of uniform. Some offices follow the practice of briefing all correspondence; some do not. Some have flat files; others fold all papers before filing. Some use press copies; others retain only carbon copies.

Cost of Handling and Filing Correspondence.

The reports also show not only a very wide range in the methods of doing this comparatively simple part of the government business, but an extraordinary range in cost. [illegible] handling of incoming mail the average cost by departments [illegible] departments vary from [illegible] to $69.89 per 1,000. This does not include the cost of preparation, but is confined merely to the physical side of the work. The variation between individual offices is many times greater than that shown for averages by departments.

It has been found that differences of average cost by departments closely follow differences in method and that the greatest cost is found in the department where the method is most involved. Another fact is of interest—viz. that in the two departments above referred to, which show the lowest averages, orders have been issued which will lead to large saving without impairing efficiency. It cannot be said what the saving ultimately will be when the attention of officers in all of the departments has been focused on present methods with a view to changing them in such manner as to reduce cost to the lowest point compatible with efficient service. It, however, must be a considerable percentage of nearly $5,000,000, the total estimated cost of handling this part of the government business at Washington.

Need For Labor Saving Office Devices.

The use of labor saving office devices in the service has been made the subject of special inquiry. An impression prevails that the government is not making use of mechanical devices for economizing labor to the same extent as are efficiently managed private enterprises. A study has been made of the extent to which devices of this character are now being employed in the several branches of the government and the opportunities that exist for their more general use. In order to secure information as to the various kinds of labor saving devices that are in existence and as to their adaptability to government work, an exhibition of labor saving office appliances was held in Washington from July 6 to 15, 1911. One hundred and ten manufacturers and dealers participated, and more than 10,000 officers and employees visited the exhibition. There is no doubt that the exhibition served the purpose of bringing to the attention of officers devices which can be employed by them with advantage. The holding of this exhibition was, however, but a step preparatory to the contemplated investigation.

Unnecessary Cost of Copy Work.

The efforts of the commission resulted also in the adoption by several bureaus or departments of improved methods of doing copying. The amount of copy work heretofore done by hand each year in the many offices is estimated to aggregate several hundred thousand dollars. The commission exhibited at its offices appliances that were thought to be especially adapted to this kind of government work. Following these demonstrations methods of copying were introduced which have brought about a saving of over 75 per cent in offices where used for six months. This change in one small cross section of office practice will more than offset the whole cost of my inquiry.

Waste In Distribution of Public Documents.

Going outside the office, one of the business processes which has been investigated is the distribution of departmental documents. This is a subject with which both the congress and administration heads are familiar. The prevailing practice in handling departmental publications is to have them manufactured at the government printing office. Each job when completed is delivered to the department. Here the books or pamphlets are wrapped and addressed. They are then sent to the postoffice. There they are assorted and prepared for shipment through the mails. From the postoffice they are sent to the railroad station, which is only a few steps from the government printing office, whence they started. The results of this laborious and circuitous method is to make the use of the best mechanical equipment impracticable and to waste each year not less than a quarter of a million dollars of government funds in useless handling, to say nothing of the indirect loss due to lack of proper co-ordination.

Wasteful Use of Properties and Equipment.

The use of equipment is a matter which also has been investigated. Up to the present time this investigation has been in the main confined to the subject of electric lighting. The government pays over $900,000 per year for electric current. It has made large capital outlays for wiring and fixtures. With the increasing demands in many buildings the present equipment is taxed to its limit, and if the present methods are continued much of this wiring must be done over. In many places employees are working at a great physical disadvantage, due to inadequate and improper lighting and thereby with reduced efficiency. In every place where the inquiry has been conducted it appears that there is large waste; that without the cost of rewiring, simply by giving proper attention to location of lights and the use of proper lamps and reflectors, the light efficiency at points where needed may be much increased and the cost of current reduced from 30 to 60 per cent. Other inquiries into the use which is being made of properties and equipment are contemplated which promise even larger results.

Unnecessary Cost of Insurance.

It is the policy of the government not to insure public property against fire and other losses. Question has been raised whether the government might not apply the same principle to other forms of risk, including insurance of the fidelity of officials and employees. A report is now in preparation on the subject which will show opportunities for large savings. I believe that the present expense for insuring the faithful execution of contracts, which, though paid by the contractor, is more than covered in the added price to the government, can be largely reduced without taking away any element of security.

The importance of establishing and maintaining standard specifications is found not only in the possibility of very materially reducing the direct cost of government trading, but also in securing to the service materials, supplies and equipment which are [illegible] conditions which make it extra hazardous for persons to enter into contractual relations. This not only deprives the government of the advantage of broad competition, but causes it to pay an added margin in price to venders who must carry the risk.

Excessive Cost of Travel.

The annual cost of travel to the government was found to be about $12,000,000. It was also found that the government employees were traveling in practically every way that was open to the public. It was further found that, although the government was the largest user of transportation, it was buying railroad tickets on a less favorable basis than would be possible if the subject of traveling expenditures were systematically handled from the point of view of the government as a whole. The form of ticket most often used between such points as New York, Philadelphia and Washington was the single trip first class ticket. In two departments definite tests have been made in the use of mileage books, and in each practically the same result has been reported—viz. an average saving of a little over one half of 1 cent per mile.

One of the results or byproducts of this inquiry into travel expenses was the recommendation that the jurat or affidavit which is now required by order of the comptroller be discontinued. The jurat does not add to the value of the return, involves persons traveling in much annoyance and trouble in going before an officer competent to administer oaths, while every disciplinary result is obtained through certification under the law prescribing a penalty for the falsification of accounts. A discontinuance of the jurat in all cases would result in a direct saving of about $60,000 per annum.

Other Expenditures to Be Investigated.

Before economy in government trading can be adequately covered such subjects as the following must be systematically inquired into—viz.: Subsistence and support of persons; subsistence and care for animals and the storage and care of vehicles; telephone, telegraph and commercial messenger service; printing, engraving, lithographing and binding; advertising and the publication of notices; heat, light, power and electricity purchased; repairs by contract and open market order; building and other materials; drafting, scientific and stationery supplies; fuel; mechanics', engineering and electricians' supplies; cleaning and toilet supplies; wearing apparel and hand sewing supplies; forage and other supplies for animals; provisions; explosives and pyrotechnic supplies; heat, light, power and electrical equipment; live stock; furniture and furnishings; educational and scientific equipment. From what has been already ascertained concerning certain of these different objects of government expenditure it is evident that large savings will result from such an examination.

Reports at Present Required by Congress.

The commission has made a study of the present requirements of law relating to reports which are in whole or in part financial in character from the various departments and establishments. There are more than ninety acts of congress which annually require reports of this character. These requirements of the law result in nearly 200 printed reports relating to financial matters, which must be submitted annually to the congress by the various departments and establishments. Studies of these reports and comparisons of the classification of expenditures as set forth therein have been made by the commission to the end that, so far as practicable, uniformity of classification of objects of expenditure may be recommended and identical terminology adopted.

In due time I shall transmit to the congress such recommendations for changes in the present laws relating to these annual reports as appear to be pertinent and necessary.

No National Budget.

The United States is the only great nation whose government is operated without a budget. This fact seems to be more striking when it is considered that budgets and budget procedures are the outgrowth of democratic doctrines and have had an important part in the development of modern constitutional rights. The American commonwealth has suffered much from irresponsibility on the part of its governing agencies. The constitutional purpose of a budget is to make government responsive to public opinion and responsible for its acts.

A budget should be the means for getting before the legislative branch, before the press and before the people a definite annual program of business to be financed. It should be in the nature of a prospectus both of revenues and expenditures. It should comprehend every relation of the government to the people, whether with reference to the raising of revenues or the rendering of service.

In many foreign countries the annual budget program is discussed with special reference to the revenue to be raised, the thought being that the raising of revenue bears more direct relation to welfare than does government expenditure. Around questions of source of revenue political parties have been organized, and on such questions voters in the United States have taken sides since the first revenue law was proposed.

Citizens' Interest In Expenditures.

In political controversy it has been assumed generally that the individual citizen has little interest in what the government spends. In my opinion this has been a serious mistake, one which is becoming more serious each year. Now that population has become more dense, that large cities have developed, that people are required to live in congested centers, that the national resources frequently are the subject of private ownership and private control and that transportation and other public service facilities are held and operated by private corporations, [illegible] the government [illegible] with nearly $1,000,000,000 each year [illegible] We want to save money to enable the government to go into some of the beneficial projects which we are debarred from taking up now because we cannot increase our expenditures. Projects affecting the public health, new public works and other beneficial activities of government can be furthered if we are able to get a dollar of value for every dollar of the government's money which we expend.

Continuance of the Commission.

I ask the continuance of this commission on economy and efficiency because of the excellent beginning which has been made toward the reorganization of the machinery of this government on business principles. I ask it because its work is entirely nonpartisan in character and ought to apply to every citizen who wishes to give effectiveness to popular government, in which we feel a just pride. This work further commends itself for the reason that the cost of organization and work has been carefully considered at every point. Three months were taken in consideration of plans before the inquiry was begun; six months were then spent in preliminary investigations before the commission was organized. Before March 3, 1911, when I asked for a continuation of the original appropriation for the current year, only $12,000 had been spent.

It is a matter of public record that the three largest insurance companies in New York when under legislative investigation spent more than $500,000 for expert services to assist the administration to put the business on a modern basis, but the economies the first year were more than tenfold the cost. I am informed that New York, Chicago, Boston, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Milwaukee and other cities are prosecuting inquiries the cost of which is largely disproportionate to the cost incurred by the federal government. Furthermore, these inquiries have the vigorous support and direct co-operation of citizen agencies which alone are spending not less than $200,000 per annum.

I sincerely hope that congress will not in its anxiety to reduce expenditures economize by cutting off an appropriation which is likely to offer greater opportunity for real economy in the future than any other estimated for.

As has been said, the changes which have already been made are resulting in economies greater than the cost of the inquiry. Reports in my hands, with recommendations, estimate approximately $2,000,000 of possible annual economies. Other subjects under investigation indicate much larger results. These represent only a few of the many services which should be subjected to a like painstaking inquiry. If this is done it is beyond question that many millions of savings may be realized. Over and above the economy and increased efficiency which may be said to result from the work of the commission as such is an indirect result that cannot well be measured. I refer to the influence which a vigorous, thoroughgoing executive inquiry has on each of the administrative units.

In this relation it may be said that the expenditure for the inquiry during the present fiscal year is at the rate of $130,000. The mass of information which must be collected, digested and summarized pertaining to each subject of inquiry is enormous. From the results obtained it is evident that every dollar which is spent in the prosecution of the inquiry in the future will result in manifold savings. Every economy which has been or will be effected through changes in organization or method will inure to the benefit of the government and of the people in increasing measure through the years which follow. It is clearly the part of wisdom to provide for the coming year means at least equal to those available during the current year, and in my opinion the appropriation should be increased to $200,000, and an additional amount of $50,000 should be provided for the publication of those results, which will be of continuing value to officers of the government and to the people.

TROOPS CHARGE WITH BAYONETS

Serious Strike Riots Take Place at Lawrence, Mass.

Lawrence, Mass., Jan. 16.—Eight companies of state militia, including one field battery, commanded by Colonel E. Lorey Sweetser, placed the mill district of this city under martial law after a day of rioting due to the strike of 15,000 operatives in the big cotton and woolen mills. At least 15,000 other operatives were thrown out of work by the stopping of machinery and the attacks on the mills by the strikers.

In one instance a company of militia with fixed bayonets charged a mob, one boy being probably fatally hurt. Thirty-five arrests of armed rioters were made and a few strikers and mill employes, who were defending the mill gates, suffered bullet wounds.

The militiamen have been ordered to shoot if necessary.

RUSSIAN STEAMER GOES TO BOTTOM

Hundred and Seventy-two Persons Lose Their Lives.

Bucharest, Rumania, Jan. 12.—The Russian steamer Russ has foundered during a gale in the Black sea with the whole of her passengers and crew, totaling 172 persons.

The Russ, which was under the command of Captain Pahomoff and belongs to the Russian Steam Navigation company of the Black sea and the Danube, was steaming from Galatz to Odessa. Among her passengers were Carl Anuseff, who recently was appointed Russian consul general at Galatz, and his family.

SECURITIES FOUND INTACT

Many Millions Taken From Equitable Building Ruins.

New York, Jan. 12.—Between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000 in cash and securities were removed intact from the vaults of two of the financial institutions whose quarters were destroyed in the fire that gutted the Equitable Assurance society building Tuesday. The vaults of the Equitable Trust company alone yielded $300,000,000, which was transferred to the company's temporary offices.

Many millions more were taken from the vaults of the Mercantile Trust company, of which $6,000,000 was represented in a single box of gold certificates which an officer of the institution carried through the streets tucked under his arm with only a lone policeman to protect him.

A Hindu Dinner Party.

A Hindu ladies' dinner begins at 12 o'clock and lasts two hours. But the guests begin to assemble some time before the dinner, for the simple reason that they have to go into the garden and choose their own fruit and vegetables. Meat, by the way, is forbidden. The chief dish at a dinner party is composed of rice and maize. The guests sit on the floor in two rows, facing one another, and eat with their fingers. The most esteemed widow lady present hands round the dishes, and this service is considered a great honor. Coconut milk and various kinds of sherbet are drunk. When the meal is over the ladies take a small portion of betel nut wrapped [illegible] in a green leaf [illegible] and is prepared [illegible] ways. Each of those ways is supposed to give a different emotion to the eater.

The Decline of Winchester.

Winchester for five centuries was the active rival of London, and for 400 years English parliaments occasionally sat in the castle, which contains the round table of King Arthur. It was a city with great temples and the site of the first Christian church in Britain. Its buildings were of the most magnificent character, and pilgrims flocked from far and near to the magnificent cathedral which contained the body of St. Swithin and where many miracles were worked.

William the Conqueror and Charles II. had palaces here, and within the monastery were buried King Alfred, his queen and two sons. Winchester has indeed fallen upon evil days, for at the present time its population is only the same as it was in the days of Henry II.—Sheffield (England) Telegraph.

Arctic Marine Plants.

The inhabitants of the ocean, like those of the land, are affected by the climate. Arctic land plants cannot flourish at the equator, and in the arctic and the antarctic oceans marine plants are found that are unable to survive in warm water. Among the most remarkable of these cold water plants are the laminariaceae, a kind of seaweed, which sometimes attains a gigantic size, exceeding in length the longest climbing plants of the tropical forests and developing huge stems like the trunks of trees. Investigation has shown that these plants flourish in the coldest waters of the polar seas and that they never advance farther from their frigid homes than to the limits of "summer temperature" in the ocean. The genial warmth destroys them just as a polar blast shrivels tropical flowers.

The End of the World.

Although our earth cannot in any vital sense last longer than the sun, it may last less long for intrinsic cause. Life is dependent not only on the sun, but on the presence of air. When this air departs life will depart too. Now the earth's air is going slowly, but surely, evaporating into space. If it all goes before the sun becomes extinct the earth's surface life will lapse while the sun still shines. Both processes—the evaporation of the air and the cooling of the sun—will require long eras of time, but the second process will be much the slower of the two. So we may expect the last inhabitants of the earth to die of lack of breath rather than from want of warmth.—Percival Lowell in Youth's Companion.

Fingers Before Forks.

There are some rare occasions in these days of refined table manners when fingers are really permissible instead of forks, and one grows rather rebellious under too much restraint and wishes it were oftener so. Among the things one may eat with the fingers with propriety are radishes, olives, salted nuts, pickles, celery and asparagus where the little tongs are not provided; lettuce, endive or Romaine when cut to dip in French dressing or in salt; strawberries when served with hulls on them, biscuits and all small cakes, pears, peaches, plums, apricots, apples and grapes. Usually the large seeded fruits are pared and quartered. Legs and wings of fowls and birds may be taken in the hand, but it is not considered favorably. The firm cheeses, dry cakes, bonbons and sandwiches are all permitted to be taken in the fingers.—London Express.

Irregular Pulses.

A pulsus paradoxus is a pulse that stops for a moment when you are taking a deep breath. It is nothing very dreadful, though it occasionally worries people to find their pulse has stopped.

A doctor who has been studying the pulse of various people has something interesting to say on the subject. "People get alarmed if their pulse is not regular," he says, "and yet plenty of healthy people have really extraordinary pulses. A dot and carry one pulse is possessed by many people.

The pulses of athletes and others who take violent exercise for a short time go up at a tremendous rate. A runner the doctor experimented upon had a normal pulse beat of 76 to the minute. At the end of a hundred yards race his pulse was going along at 180. At the end of a hurdle race it rose to 204.—London Answers.

Two Views of the Same Question.

A noted bishop in order to point a lesson in humility sometimes tells a story of a young clergyman whose first appointment was to be an out of the way and poor parish.

On his first Sunday in this new station the young man as he looked over his wretchedly clad and ignorant congregation could not help saying to himself, with a groan:

"Dear me, what a dreadful thing it would be if I should have to stay here any great length of time!"

At the end of the sermon a deacon made a prayer. To the young man's horror one part of the prayer was a benevolent hope that "this ignorant, inexperienced, barren pastor that had lately come to the parish might improve and grow learned and fruitful in good works, so that he would come to merit being kept on there for awhile."

A Luxury.

Jim, who worked in a garage, had just declined Mr. Smith's invitation to ride in his new car.

"What's the matter, Jim?" asked Mr Smith. "Are you sick?"

"No, sah," he replied. "Tain't that. I done los' $5, sah, an' I jes' natcherly got tuh sit an' grieve."—Success Magazine.

Mixed on the Phone.

Irritable Man (at other end of phone line)—Hello, hello! What's the matter with you? Are you forty-seven? Angry Spinster (at this end)—No; I'm not. Who said I was? I'm only thirty-three. Irritable Man—Oh, ring off!—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

GREATEST SALE EVER KNOWN

Never in the history of Minnesota merchandising has there been such a wide interest taken in a mercantile event as is now taken in the Great Closing Out Sale of Winter Goods, which is being conducted at I. L. Erickson's Store, which opened Saturday morning, Jan. 13th, 1912.

Preparations had been made to receive a large number of people, but when the crowd of eager buyers had assembled at I. L. Erickson's Store, last Saturday morning, the whole force of 25 clerks and the management found themselves almost overpowered. There was hardly standing room, and it was with difficulty that the people could be waited upon; in fact, many left and called later to make their purchases after the rush had subsided.

Not during any sale ever seen has there been anything like the crowd at this sale, and I. L. Erickson and Son enjoyed the largest single day's business in the store history. Mr. Erickson declares that they did an ordinary months business on the opening day of sale.

As their prices are quoted in their advertising, it is needless to more than call attention to the bargains they are offering, and that the sale will positively close on Saturday, Jan. 27th. This sale certainly affords the people far and wide a grand opportunity to buy a whole year's supply at an enormous discount from regular prices, and the people are certainly taking advantage of it.

* * * * * * * * * * *

We have been rather busy lately.

Last Wednesday we had our annual telephone meeting, and when the affairs were settled up there was a surplus in the treasury. Every member has paid in [illegible], we have 23 [illegible] installed and a good working line. You even [illegible] conversation with every receiver down, and rubbering is somewhat of an excuse to pass the time in these cold days. Arrangements were made to have a chance for connection with other lines day and night.

The board of directors for the ensuing year are—Jay Payne, president; John Phillips, vice persident; M. Bundhund, secretary; L. Hamre, treasurer; H. Mabben, A. Johnson, and H. Roller trustees.

The creamery association held it annual meeting Monday the 15th. The following directors were elected: C. Habedank, president; Geo. Wold, vice president; M. Buuhdnud, secretary; H. Roller, treasurer; Aug. Ristau, John Ristau, T. C. Hoocius, C. Klockmann and John Graff, directors.

The creamery will start April 1st.

Thomas Clausen returned yesterday from Washington. Whether he liked the country better than this we were not able to find out yet.

Our young gentlemen were entertained one evening last week by our store manager, and a general fine time is reported.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Ristau are happy at the arrival of a little boy, born the 7th.

Work of the Bower Birds.

There are five different bower birds—three in Australia, the regent, the satin and the spotted; one in the Papuan islands, the catbird, and one in New Guinea. Their brilliant plumage is golden yellow, glossy black or spotted brown, often with a rose tinted collar. Their bowers are in no sense nests, but miniature gardens, adapted for enjoyment and courtship and set in the eye of the sun. A pavement of equal sized pebbles is arranged, and numberless twigs are thrust firmly between them in two parallel rows, inclined to each other, inclosing an avenue about a yard long and several inches wide. To decorate this arbor gay feathers, [illegible] berries, pearly shells, bleached bones, even watches, knives and other glittering objects are tastefully placed in and around the entrance. The New Guinea bird, still more of a gardener, constructs a miniature conical summer house, with internal gallery. Before this is a meadow of moss, kept free from grass, dust and leaves, on which bright flowers and fruit are daily offered by the enamored male bird to his mate.

Elephants Asleep.

A question often raised in regard to the African elephant is whether this animal ever rests or not. At first blush it would appear that there could only be one answer to the question. So huge an animal must expend a terrific amount of energy and therefore, as one might reasonably infer, must need more time than smaller animals for rest and reinvigoration. Nevertheless many travelers and some naturalists have asserted that the African elephant in its native state never sleeps or at least never lies down. A correspondent who has sent photographs from Malek, on the White Nile, says in the communication that accompanies them that the picture represents a herd of female elephants photographed in the bush near Malek, in the Mogalla province of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. It has been maintained that the African elephant never lies down to rest [illegible]

[illegible] Country Life.

Poisons In the Stomach.

A most curious fact is that all food contains the elements of poison, and in our body poisons are manufactured from these. For instance, meat, fish, cheese and milk are composed of hydrogen, carbon, nitrogen and oxygen. Take away the last and you have prussic acid. We do not manufacture prussic acid, it is true. But in every stomach in the world fermentation goes on just as in a brewery, and the poisonous carbonic acid is made in large quantities. If you breathed a few days' output of carbonic acid gas you would inevitably die. Sulphureted hydrogen is one of the most deadly gases known, yet in every stomach it is made at one time or another. In the stomach all food is converted into what we call "peptone," and if a very small quantity of this found its way into the blood it would kill as surely as prussic acid.—Pearson's Weekly.

Story of a "Violin."

On one occasion all who were present in the court of justice at Berlin had the great pleasure of listening to a free performance by Professor Joachim, the famous violinist. It appeared from the evidence that a dealer in musical instruments was charged with cheating a customer by representing that a violin which he offered for sale at $1.25 was an instrument that could be played. The great professor was called in as an expert witness, and, taking up the impugned instrument, he proceeded to play upon it. Under his magic fingers it really sounded like a violin, but in a few moments, much to the regret of his listeners, the maestro laid the instrument down with an evident air of contempt. But he had secured the accused's acquittal.

A Mystery Explained.

An English doctor was asked to explain how women can wear such flimsy clothes in cold weather without apparent harm and without much discomfort when a man would suffer terribly so exposed. He says this resisting power is due to an additional layer of fat in the body, acquired in the days of cave dwelling, when the women had to stay in the cold huts while the men kept warm by hunting and outdoor activities.—Healthy Home.

An Old One.

"I found a gold ring today."

"A new one?"

"No—old and much worn."

"Any name on the inside of it?"

"Nothing but the letters B. C."

"Gracious! You don't suppose it's as old as that, do you?"—Exchange.

Antenuptial Thrift.

"Why do you insist on carrying that umbrella?" asked the bridegroom.

"For purpose of domestic economy," replied the bride. "I'm going to turn it upside down and catch enough rice to do the family for several weeks."—Washington Star.

Disillusioned.

King Firefly (with much feeling)—I once loved a woman, but, alas! she married Baron Rubberneck (sympathetically)—Whom did she marry? King Firefly (in a deep tone of manly grief)—She married me.—Red Riding Hood.

The Socialists At Work

waukee press was almost unanimously against such an investigation, because they declared, it would simply furnish the Socialists with a few more campaign arguments. I am even informed that a few big businessmen in Milwaukee did all in their power not to have the investigation take place.

"What is the reason for this undeniable honesty of Socialists elected to office? They possess in the first place what Berger call THE SOCIAL CONSCIENCE, that is, they are saturated with the idea that they can achieve no permanent good for themselves and for their children unless they help to uplift the whole working-class. A betrayal of the interests of the working-class is therefore a betrayal of their interests and the interest of those nearest and dearest to them. They can't buy our men unless they buy the whole party, and and the party has only one price—THAT PRICE IS SOCIALISM."

THE COMPLETE TAX LIST

Personal Property tax for 1911 Is now Due and payable before March First.

The Personal Property Tax list for Pennington County for the year 1911 which is now due and payable before March 1st, is given below. The County Treasurer sends a postal card to every taxpayer but if the property owner does not receive a card that fact does not mean that he does not have any tax. It is your business Mr. Property Owner to inquire and find out whether you have a personal property tax to pay or not.

We will not vouch for the correctness of the following list but believe it is reasonably correct and give it in order that you may make a comparison between your tax and that of your neighbor so that you may see how much too low yours is and how much too high that of the other fellow:

WAS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Entire Stock, Fixtures and building of Langseth Merc. Co. practically a total loss.

Last Wednesday evening the Langseth Mercantile Company's entire stock, fixtures and building was practically consumed by fire. The stock and fixtures was estimated at $45,000 most of which was covered by insurance. The building itself was a wooden structure and one of the oldest store buildings in the city. It consisted of drygoods, grocery and hardware departments with most of the upstairs taken up with living apartments. Nobody was hurt or burned, and practically nothing was saved either from the store or by those who lived above the store, so fast did the flames spread. Owing to the heroic effort of the firemen no other buildings were damaged, not even a window pane being cracked in Joe Roleau's little store. The exact cause and source of the fire is not known, the early observers say the fire started near the office.

The fire alarm was sent in about 6:30 p. m. and the firemen soon had four streams of water pouring into and on the building, but owing to the dryness of the building the fire spread so rapidly that the best the firemen could do was keep it under control. So great was the fire that a steady stream was poured on it for four hours before it was subdued to small proportions.

FIRST TERM OF COURT

Opened Monday and closed Tuesday; Five Indictments; Citizenship papers granted 8; 3 Divorce Cases.

The first term of court for Pennington county was opened last Monday morning with Judge Grindeland presiding. Five indictments were brought in by the Grand Jury; one for William Crowe, one for each of the Iverson boys, and one for each of the Morstad boys. Crowe did not appear in answer to his indictment. The Iverson and Morstad boys appeared, pledded guilty and were turned over for sentence; One Iverson and one Morstad boy for breaking into A. C. Hansen's store, and one Iverson and one Morstad boy for breaking into Arpin's houseboat.

In the divorce case of Mr. Knutson vs. Mrs. Knutson, Mr. Knutson sued for divorce and the judge took the case under advisement. The Judge took under advisement the divorce case of Bertha Gilsoul vs. Louis Gilsoul. In the case of Linda Odelin vs. Halvor Odelin a divorce was granted.

Eight applications for citizenship papers were granted as follows:

David Lacar, of St. Hilaire
Nathan Lacar, of St. Hilaire
Henry Georgen, of St. Hilaire
Lena Stenseth, of town of Smiley.
Christian Anderson, town of North
Frank Savage, town of Hickory
Halvor Holen, town of Reiner
Andrew A. Hoveland, town of N.

Tuesday afternoon court was adjourned until Feb. 26, when the jury cases will come up.

Pennington County's new court rooms are certainly very creditable. They are neatly arranged and attractively finished, in fact all that a new county could desire in the way of accomodations. Everyone who came into them last Monday morning was agreeably surprised.

Mrs. E. K. Aasen and Mrs. H. P. Simpheim will entertain the Ladies Aid of the Norwegian Synod church in the church basement, Thursday afternoon, Feb. 1st. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

IS VERY MUCH WORKED UP

Wm. Smith Spoke In regard To Aud. Management before council and General Public.

Mr. Wm. Smith, manager of the Auditorium from June 8 to Dec. 30, appeared before the council and public at large last Tuesday evening and spoke as follows:

Mr. President and Gentlemen.

I have here an article which appeared in the PRESS of January 17th and I am advised was gotten up by Mr. Halvorson, the former manager of the AuditoriumI will read it

Gentlemen, when I took the management of the Auditorium I told the council I would not take it unless it was put on some plan that would be absolutely above criticism so far as honesty is concerned*It had been managed before in a way unsatisfactory if not in a dishonest manner as I will prove to you by the records I have here.

The report which appears in the PRESS is not a correct report as I have checked up the bank account against these box office statements and this is the result:

(Will you kindly check Mr. Halvorson's statements as I read them off to see that I am giving the correct figures?)

Sept. 24th attraction—Prince of Sweden. House's share $43.20, bank deposit was $37.20 and the deposit was not made until Oct. 10th, 1910.

Sept. 27th attraction—Pair of Country Kids. House's share $37.85, amount deposited, $31.85, and the deposit was made on Sept 28th, 1910.

Oct. 3d, 1910, attraction Along the Kenebeck, House's share $44.77, amount deposited $32.77, and deposit was not made until Oct. 10th.

Oct. 10th attraction—Glasgow Select Choir. No report of the ticket sales whatever simply a cash rent of $34.00, turned in and deposited on Oct. 13th.

Oct. 12th, attraction—Across The Great Divide. House's share $21.43, amount deposited, $11.93, and was not deposited until Oct. 18th.

Oct. 17th, 1910, attraction—Joshua Simpkins. House's share $31.10, amount deposited $27.35 on Oct. 18.

Oct. 21st—Uncle Toms Cabin. House's share $31.88, and on Oct. 28th, 1910 attraction—Paid In Full. House's share $49.65, both amounting to $81.63, amount deposited $60.92, and the deposit was not made until Jan. 17, 1911, or nearly three months after it was due and in Mr. Halvorson's possesion. There was also deposited on April 6th, 1911 $3.75, and credited against "Paid in Full" attraction this was a few days over five months after the attraction played in the House.

Jan. 23d, 1911, attraction—Twelfth Night. House's share $57.00, amount deposited $46.50 on Jan. 24th.

Jan. 30, 1911 attraction—Gordon and Kline. House's share $29.50 could find no deposit to cover.

Feb. 1st 1911, attraction—Burgomaster. House's share $62.00, amount deposited, $54.25, and the deposit was not made until March 31, 1911, two months after the attraction was in the house.

Feb. 3d, 1911, attraction—Oak Farm. House's share $35.00, amount deposited $33.00, and the deposit was not made until April 4th.

Feb. 7th, 1911, attraction—Man on the Box. House's share $48.50, amount deposited $31.50, and the deposit was not made until April 4th, 1911.

Feb. 21st, 1911, attraction—Merry Musicians. House's share $6.75, deposited $4.75, and not deposited until March 31st, 1911.

March 2d, 1911, attraction—Ole Theobaldi. House's share $11.46, deposited $9.46, and it was not deposited until March 31st, 1911.

March 11th, 1911, attraction—Cameron Dam. House's share [illegible] deposited $13.42 on March [illegible]

March 17, 1911, attraction—[illegible] House's share [illegible] until April [illegible] 1911 [illegible]

A MODREN FARM HOUSE

Peter Engelstad Sets pace for Farmers In Way of Modern Homes.

C. M. Carlson, our city's most efficent architect, has submitted to Peter Engelstad an excellent set of plans for a thoroughly modern dwelling house which is to be built next spring on Engelstad's farm four miles south of town. It will be a brick structure 33x36 of two stories and full basement. There will be hardwood finish downstairs, yellow pine finish upstairs and hardwood floors thruout. There will be a large and modern toilet and bathroom on the second floor, a cistern, store rooms and a modern hot-water heating plant in the basement. This farm dwelling will in every way be equal to any of our city residences, and surpass any but the most modern.

March 21st, 1911 attraction—The Gladiator. House's share $61.28. find no deposit to cover.

March 22d, attraction—The Three Musketeers. House's share $23.70, no deposit found.

March 23rd, attraction—Merchant of Venice. House's share $12.75, no deposit found.

March 23d, 1911, statement was dated—Attraction Faust. House's share $31.50, amount deposited, no deposit found

March 25th, 1911, attraction—Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra. Houses share $294.27, amount deposited $284.22, and the deposit was not made for ten days after it was due. If I remember the house was entirely sold out for this attraction and the seating capacity is 1035 not including the ushers seats but you will note that there is but 815 tickets accounted for.

June 6th, attraction—The Climax. House's share $30.95, amount deposited $14.75 and the deposit was made on June 12th.

The difference in the house's share and the amount deposited I presume is expenses but with a few exceptions there is no record of what the expense was, that is, there is no itemized statement of it.

There also appears several shows with no deposit to cover but I understand Mr. Anderson collected some monies from time to time and these may have appiled on the shows where no deposit was found.

The total amount of money deposited according to these records was $756.62, and if there was $1,805.43 collected as this report says then what was done with the money? The bank account should balance with the amount claimed to be deposited.

I believe also, that there has been credit taken for rent money on the offices in the building and also for money that Mr. Anderson had to chase around town to collect if this is the case surely the manager is not entitled to the credit.

Advantages.

I will now show you the principles on which the Auditorium has been handled under my management and all I ask is credit for what I have done.

At the request of the Council I outlined and had printed this balance sheet showing the gross receipts of the Auditorium and a detailed and itemized report of the disbursements. Every single penny that has been taken in has been accounted for—every penny of expense has been itemized and accounted for—every complimentary ticket has been accounted for and why it was issued—every penny that was due the City has been deposited in the First National Bank and as proof of that deposit I have attached to each and every balance sheet a duplicate of the remittance slip and I have made a balance sheet on every attraction within 24 hours after the close of each show and every one of these balance sheets are on file in the City Clerk's office and I have here a copy of each one [illegible]

LAFOLLETTE BOOM NOT PUNCTURED

LaFollette Is Overwhelming Favorite in West, and Tremendously strong in East.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26.—The LaFollette boom is punctured only in the minds of those administration followers who are most anxious to puncture it but who have failed to accomplish their purpose.

This is the opinion expressed by Francis J. Heney, of San Francisco, who arrived in Washington today after an extensive lecture tour of the country. While traveling through many states Mr. Heney has made it his business to observe political conditions, and his observations lead him to believe that Senator LaFollette is the strongest presidential candidate before the people.

"Senator LaFollette could carry every state west of the Mississippi River by ten to one," said Mr. Heney, "if the voters had an opportunity to express their choice. I have been lecturing since last summer and I have made it a point to test public sentiment in every city I visited. While Senator LaFollette is the overwhelming favorite in the west he is also tremendously strong in the east, notwithstanding efforts to convince the country that such is not the case. I am confident that the President's own state of Ohio will be for LaFollette, as will also Illinois. If the nomination were left to the people on a direct vote many other eastern states would be for him. If Senator LaFollette gets the nomination he will poll a tremendous vote. In addition to carrying every state west of the Mississippi he would also carry New York and Pennsylvania."

"What is your opinion as to the statements that the LaFollette boom is on the wane?" Mr. Heney was asked.

"Certain men are trying to convince themselves that such is the case," replied Mr. Heney, "and they are likewise trying to convince others on the same subject. The fact of the matter is that Senator LaFollette is a mighty prominent factor in the race for the presidential nomination at Chicago and his chance of getting the nomination is good. LaFollette would make an excellent candidate and he would be elected. The people are demanding the election of a president who believes in the things LaFollette has always stood for."

Gilson Gardner, one of the most prominent political writers in Washington, recently expressed a desire to observe at first hand the manner in which the Taft administration manipulates the patronage brigade for the purpose of having itself endorsed and also for the purpose of securing delegates to the Republican National Convention.

In traveling through the country Mr. Gardner was struck by the enthusiasm of the rank and file of Republicans in organizing LaFollette clubs. He was curious, therefore, to see how the Taft folks did things. Accordingly he went to Roanoke, Virginia, to attend a meeting of the Republican state committee of that state. Here is Mr. Gardner's report of his observations:

"The state committee was called to order by its chairman, Congressman C. B. Slemp. Then Royal E. Cabell, commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington, salary $6,000, formerly postmaster at Richmond, Va., salary $5,000, formerly patronage referee of the Third Virginia Congressional district, moved the appointment of a committee to draw up resolutions on the subject of the Taft administration. Cabell, by the way, was not a member of the state committee.

"Next President Taft was eulogized by Lou P. Summers, of Abingdon, Va. Summers is a collector of Internal Revenue at a salary of $4,500.

"The committee on resolutions waited impatiently outside the door for Summers to conclude his remarks. Its resolutions praising [illegible]

U. OF M. BAND MAY BE HERE

Have already made Arrangements to be At Crookston, Fargo, Brainerd And Grand Forks.

The University of Minnesota Cadet Band has made arrangements to play during Easter vacation at Crookston, Fargo, Brainerd and Grand Forks. If a satisfactory guarantee can be arranged for, it is likely that they would also come to Thief River on their Easter circle. Arrangements for securing the band can be made by writing Caroll Nelson, Drum Major U. of M. Cadet Band.

There are sixty boys in the band, and of that number there are three Thief River Falls boys, James Curran, Geo. Hicks, and Morlan Bishop. There being eighty-eight counties, Pennington has more than its share of representatives, this being one more evidence that the live ones live in northwestrn Minnsota.

the committee on resolutions for the ostensible purpose of drafting resolutions. The resolutions were adopted without debate or protest.

"Mr. Gardner, being interested to observe the loyality of the state committee members to the Taft administration, took the trouble to look up their records. There were forty members of the committee present and voting. Of that number, twenty-four of the committeemen he found to be on the government payroll drawing salaries as high as $4,000 a year.

"Mr. Gardner also observed that in addition to the committeemen there were about twenty spectators in the hall. He was careful to get the names of these spectators. With the names carefully noted down, he went to the copy of the Government Blue Book containing the names and salaries of all government employes. Being thoroughly familiar with the way the administration corrals its convention delegates in the South, Mr. Gardner was not greatly surprised when he found that of the twenty spectators in attendance, nineteen of them were on the Federal payrolls. He also discovered that there is a community of interests in this matter of Federal patronage in southern states. In looking up the state committeemen, he found, 24 of them on the Federal payrolls. In looking up the spectators, he found that many of those holding Federal jobs were relatives of the committeemen who also held Federal jobs.

"In brief, the scheme works out this way: The President appoints certain men to federal jobs in southern states, in this particular instance, Virginia. The recipients of Presidential favor, curiously enough, are members of the state committee. At the proper time the state committee meets. The patronage brigade being in a majority on the committee, it has no difficulty in adopting resolutions praising the man who handed out the federal jobs.

"The occasion on which the administration is endorsed would hardly be in good form unless a proper amount of enthusiasm were furnished by disinterested citizens whose sole consideration is the welfare of the nation. Hence the committeemen, holding federal jobs, call upon their relatives, also holding federal jobs, to come around to the meeting and applaud the Taft resolutions.

"The stage has been carefully set, the play goes on without a hitch and the press the next day is able to state that Taft was endorsed amid scenes [illegible]

STATUTORY LIFE OF ENTRIES

Information Relative to Life Of Homestead Entries In "Eleven Towns."

Department Of The Interior, United States Land Office, Crookston, Minn
Jan. 23, 1912.

The "Press",
Thief River Falls, Minn.

Gentlemen:

Under date of January 20th, 1912, the Commissioner of the General Land Office forwards to us a copy of his letter of the same date addressed to Congressman Steenerson, relative to the statutory life of entries in the "Eleven Towns." This ruling considerably modifies the construction heretofore placed on the regulations governing entries in this area and we desire to give the matter such publicity as will correct wrong impressions.

The letter is as follows:

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, Jan. 20, 1912.

Hon. H. Steenerson,
House of Representatives.

My dear Mr. Steenerson:

I am in receipt of your letter of the 16th inst., asking for information relative to the statutory life of homestead entries made under the act of February 20, 1904, (33 Stat. 46), for ceded Red Lake Indian Reservation lands, it appearing that there is considerably uncertainty among such entrymen, by reason of the two acts extending the time within which the installment payments might be made.

One of these extensions was granted by the act of March 26, 1910, (36 Stat. 265), which allowed two years additional time. You will probably remember that sometime after the passage of this act, the matter was taken up personally by the Commissioner with Senator Nelson and yourself, and your attention was directed to the fact that the act would probably fail to afford relief to many of the very persons in whose behalf it was enacted, who had made entries during the first sale, and even with the two years additional time, would still be in default in their installment payments. It was then stated that the act would be construed by this office to grant two years additional time from its date, thus extending the time, within which paymetns might be made, to March 26, 1912, and letters subsequently written by this office are doubtless the basis on which the local officers have advised entrymen that the statutory life of their entries will expire on March 26, 1912.

The first extension act affecting these lands was that of June 21, 1906, (34 Stat. 325, 326). which applied with some exceptions, to ceded Indian Reservation lands generally in Minnesota. The instructions thereunder were, of course, general in nature, and it was stated that the extension of time for making payments involved a corresponding time in which to make final proof. However, in the case of the Red Lake lands, an extension of time to make proof did not

Were Speedily brought to Judge

Carl Olson and Joe Schmidt, last Tuesday evening, while under the influence of drink, rifled of sundry articles Peter Hansen's sleigh box standing in the Hotel Central yard. Mr. Knudson caught the boys in the act, but as he is not a fighting man did not detain them. The boys were brought before Judge Tarrant Wednesday morning and plead guilty to the offense. They were fined each $10.00 and costs. Carl Olson is twenty-three years of age. He has always been an honorable fellow. Schmidt was recently discharged by the training school at Red Wing, after having been out on parole for the past three years.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address: F. J. CHENEY, & CO., Toledo, O.

ONE MILLION DOLLARS FOR A GOOD STOMACH.

This Offer Should Be a Warning to Every Man and Woman.

The newspapers and medical journals recently have had much to say relative to a famous millionaire's offer of a million dollars for a new stomach.

This great multi-millionaire was too busy to worry about the condition of his stomach. He allowed his dyspepsia to run from bad to worse until in the end it became incurable.

His misfortune serves as a warning to others.

Every one who suffers with dyspepsia for a few years will give everything he owns for a new stomach.

Dyspepsia is commonly caused by an abnormal state of the gastric juices, or by lack of tone in the walls of the stomach. The result is that the stomach loses its power to digest food.

We are now able to supply certain missing elements—to help to restore to the gastric juices their digestive power, and to aid in making the stomach strong and well.

We know that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are a most dependable remedy for disordered stomachs, indigestion, and dyspepsia.

We want you to try them and will return your money if you are not more than satisfied with the result.

Three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store

SAVES TWO LIVES.

"Neither my sister nor myself might be living today, if it had not been for Dr. King's New Discovery" writes A. D. McDonald of Fayetteville, N. C. R. F. D. No. 8, "for we both had frightful coughs that no other remedy could help. We were told my sister had consumption. She was very weak and had night sweats but your wonderful medicine completely cured us both. Its the best I ever used or heard of." For sore lungs, coughs. colds, hemorrhage, lagrippe, asthma, hay fever, croup, whooping cough,—all bronchial troubles,—its supreme Trial bottle free. 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed by all Druggists.

HEIRS Wanted at once. [illegible] estates seeking claimants. You may be one. Facts in booklet 935. Send stamp. International Claim Agency, Pittsburg, Pa.

Free Stomach Remedy.

If you suffer from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and their resulting conditions such as Nervousness, Constipation, Biliousness, Gas in the Stomach, Bloating, Heartburn, etc. write to me and I will send you free of cost a package of my Stomach Tablets which will relieve you at once. Official Paper of The City.

FRIDAY, JAN. 26 1912.

Long Prairie is on the map.

The man who does not believe in the Christian religion should go to some heathen country to live and he might become converted.

Judging by the stories the Editors told one another at their recent convention it is no wonder that the balance of the world consider them a bunch of Cheerful Liars.

Lieutenant Governor Sam Y. Gordon has announced his candidacy for Governor and is busy hustling. A certain element of the Anti-machine vote is sure to be turned to Gordon.

The Minneapolis Journal has started the ''Big Stick'' game of ''The Governor.'' We presume they expect to drive him into line and then they can fall in line behind him before election time.

It is said that Adolph O., had a grouch when he found that he would not be invited to the Editorial Meeting at Long Prairie. He would have had a double grouch on if he had seen how friendly the Lee and Gordon interests were at that grand banquette.

The man who does not dare to announce his stand does not need to expect much support from the common people in any political contest. The people have been fooled so often that in the future they will be sure to stand by none whose views are not strictly defined.

The St. Paul Dispatch is running a series of cartoons displaying quite uniquely the cause of the ''High Cost of Living'' by comparison with that of our fathers. We believe that 75 per cent. of the raise in the cost of living is due to our extravagance as exemplified by the Dispatch, but we do not believe that it is all due to that. It strikes us as rather queer however, that this capitalist controlled sheet should criticise extravagance unless they mean to say that a man does not have a right to be extravagant unless he can afford to be so.

If the worst comes to worst, Eberhart is nominated on the republican ticket and a personal liberty man by the democrats. the third party, this time the prohibitionists, will cut a very considerable figure, especially if that party puts E. E. Lobeck at the head of its ticket as is expected.

Party lines don't cut much figure any more in this state. The anti-brewery and anti-liquor forces of all colors will flock around Mr. Lobeck and the unexpected might actually happen.—Clearwater Crystal.

The question is, with Eberhart on the corporation and brewery ticket alone and Gordon and Lee both on the progressive side, will it not lead to a division of forces and the ultimate nomination of Eberhart? We fear it.

The progressives must not go into that convention with more than one candidate.

Both Mr. Gordon and Mr. Lee are good men who can be trusted to do what they promise. The question is which one. It is possible that Mr. Gordon's recent investigation into the duties of the executive will not strengthen his chances much.—Clearwater Crystal.

The Retail Implement Dealers Association of the state held its annual convention in Minneapolis last week. For this convention, several of the larger roads gave a round trip two cent rate good both to Minneapolis and St. Paul. Just why St. Paul was included when the convention was held in Minneapolis is not evident. So far as we know no convention or gathering no matter how important held outside the Twin Cities has been given a reduction in passenger rates since the rate raise went into effect last July. So far as we know no convention HELD IN THE TWIN CITIES since the rate raise last July but what has had a concession in rates granted to it.

Why the discrimination?—Long Prairie Leader.

REAL AND FAKE MILLIONARIES

The Pennsylvania man who went to New York to play millionarie for a day had the wrong notion about how millionaries perform. Seldom do they hire special trains. Few or none of them throw their money about. The Kilkesbarre man evidently had millionaries mixed in his mind with drunken sailors.

Your millionarie is the most sedate of citizens. He walks to the office, because, having plenty of equipages, he can afford to take into account his health, which demands a brisk walk. He dresses plainly, because on investigation he finds that those who have little money affect the loudest patterns in men's goods. He can be different only by seeking the quietest shades. He doesn't muss up his digestion with huge quantities of food of doubtfull quality, but quietly lunches at a place where he knows the quality of the viands.

But the millionarie is so different from the stage representation of him that it is no wonder imitators are frequently led astray. It will be a real grief to the Wilkesbarre man to learn, after separating himself from his sole and only wad, that he has been chasing an ignis fatuus, a brand of millionarie that does not exist. If he ever gets to be a real millionarie, he will realise what a fool he made of himself.—Ex

LEE FOR GOVERNOR

William E. Lee, of Long Prairie, candidate for the Republican Nomination for Governor of Minnesota is a clean cut business man with astute business ability. He has held several positions of trust from the people of his district and at one time was Speaker of the House. From a business standpoint Mr. Lee is the best equipped man that has offered himself for the Governorship for many years, and if there is any one thing that Minnesota needs just now it is a business administration. Minnesota needs a man as its executive who has enough knowledge of business and its relations to human life so that he can come out and take an advanced view on all of our progressive issues and not need to be lead into his way of thinking by some intriguing politicians or his policies dictated by some political boss. Mr. Lee has thoroughly demonstrated that he is such a man. Tho interested and actively engaged in the banking business and altho he is a man of fifty-five years of age and has been in active politics for more than twenty years yet he has not become hidebound in politics, nor wed to the avowed interests of money. He comes out absolutely as a Progressive Republican and endorsed the progressive ideas and this is the more remarkable inasmuch as Mr. Lee is a man well along in years and holds a position in the community that would naturally be Standpat. On the other hand large business interests who are doing an honest and legitimate business have nothing to fear from Mr. Lee, should he be elected governor, for tho reared as a poor man's son he has by his keen adaptation to business reached the enviable position of being a peer of some of the best business men of this state, and as such certainly could be trusted by the business man. We believe that Mr. Lee is the best material that has been offered for governor for a long time and predict that as he starts out to make the rounds of the state and people become better acquainted with him he will receive a following that will simply overwhelm the machine organization.

Is Very Much Worked Up

which I kept for just such an emergency as this should it ever arise.

Here is a balance sheet covering the entire time I have had charge of the Auditorium—the gross receipts are $4424.05 instead of $685.06, as stated in the PRESS report. Every penny of expense is accounted for and the report is signed by Mr. Prichard, Ass't. Cashier of the First National Bank, as correct as to the bank deposit and it is signed by Mr. Quist as city clerk that he has audited it and found it to be correct and further it is signed and sworn to by me as correct and it is open for inspection by any citizen in the city from our Mayor to the most humble man.

It is a black falsehood that I would not print a report of the Auditorium. I made a complete report immediately after each and every show and there my obligation ended as I had lived up to the rules and regulations of the Auditorium to the letter—the City Clerk knew the Auditorium was being handled on an absolutely honest and honorable basis and knowing this he presumably wished to save the City the cost of publishing the report.

At the present rate of receipts the gross receipts would be about $7500.00 per year and I think that this is [illegible] about all our people can afford [illegible] shows a year with our present population; this is my reason for cutting the shows down and giving the best I could get.

Now gentlemen, I know in my own mind that each and every one of you wish the cities' business carried on in a straightforward businesslike and honest manner. I believe, yes I know that each one of you is an honest man and that you know the difference between honest accounts and the ones I have just cited you to and if the former management was so perfect why was the money not deposited when it was due?

Each one of you gentlemen has given your sacred word of honor, yes taken your oaths to give the people of this city an honest administration [illegible] and if you find that my talk here tonight is the truth I ask that you [illegible] a resolution so stating and have the entire report printed in the newspapers as per the rules and regulations of the Auditorium.

Gentlemen, the position as manager of the Auditorium is a thankless one indeed, but I originated and have handled it on an absolutely honest basis.

I have handled it so I can look any citizen in the face and say the City got every penny that was their due—and the best of it is I can prove it.

I would rather live on a crust of bread a day knowing that I had earned it honestly than have millions as some earn them—I would rather wear the cheapest of clothes, be recognized by the most humble people in the city as an honest man than wear silks and ride in a touring car knowing that the price had been gained dishonestly.

I value the word ''HONESTY'' at a very, very high standard and I feel certain that each one of you gentlemen do the same, and this is why I have come before you tonight. It is not true that I would not print a statement of the AUDITORIUM. No one ever heard me make such a statement.

Gentlemen, I thank you for your attention.

A Saving Plan

Permanency
CITIZENS STATE BANK
Solidity

A school teacher it was who adopted this simple plan of saving money and banking it at interest.

She made it a rule to save a cent the first day of each month, two cents the second, three the third and so on. This runs to an average of $4.78 a month or $57.38 a year.

Her savings are banked the last day of every month and draw 5 per cent interest which adds nearly two dollars more in the year.

You could do the the same. If your salary is larger try it on a nickel basis.

A full account of the meeting wil be given in next week's issue of the Press.

NEW MILLINERY STORE THIS SPRING

A deal was closed Wednesday whereby Mrs. M. A. Caldwell sold out her interests in the Millinery Store on LaBree Avenue to Mrs. B. E. Dahlquist of Alexandria.

Mrs. Dahlquist is a milliner of exceptional ability having been for years one of the principal designers at Rothschild's Wholesale Millinery at St. Paul until a year ago when she opened a store at Alexandria, Minn.

Mrs. Dahlquist has decided to locate in Thief River Falls not only because she has a large number of friends here who have urged the move but thinks we have in our city possibilities for a first class up-to-date establishment.

The building is to be remodeled and an entirely new stock of goods put in with all the necessary fixtures.

Does Storage Even Up Prices?

The theory of preservative storage of perishable food products is that it prevents at one time low prices ruinous to the producer and at another high prices oppressive to the consumer.

This is the only reasonable justification offered to consummers for putting food away when it is fresh and payable and bringing it out when it is stale, if not tainted with chemicals.

The theory would work to perfection in practice, were it not for the tempation it offers to great distributing organizations like the packing house trust to make seasonable abundance a pretext for skinning the producer with low prices and unseasonable scarcity a pretext for skinning the consumer with high prices.

Some very sinister acts of this kind after the depression of 1907 have been laid at the door of the packing house trust. An investigation of the cold storage warehouses last summer discovered practices repulsive alike to political economy and hygiene, whose sole object was to buy food cheap and sell it dear.

We do not remember that butter was included in the cold storage investigation of last summer, though it is certain that eggs were. If there is no storage trust in butter, the present antics of the price are a reversion to old conditions for all perishable food products.

We seem to remember that the price [illegible] fluctuates downward with the same [illegible] of summer abundance.—Minneapolis Tribune.

[illegible]ers Should Do

[illegible] should do; but the main thing for us to do is to co-operate if we expect to gain any headway with our undertakings, whatever they may be, as this is plainly shown in all the leading industries of the world.

Ever since this reservation was first settled it has been a unanimous cry amongst the farmers: "We ought to have a farmers' elevator here so we could get the right price for our grain?" A year ago this winter the subject was taken up and carried out with the result that we now have an elevator located at one of the most convenient places, for such business, in Thief River Falls, and the market is better now by a margin of from one to two cents per bushel besides getting a better grade for our grain.

Now this idea of letting the farmers off with getting his just returns for his produce, did not appeal to some of the other wheat-buyers of the city to be enough for the farmers who had worked hard through the whole summer for the gathering up of a few bushels of grain besides having invested from $25 to $50 in a corporation to help build an elevator, so they opened up and are paying to shareholders especially, two cents above market. Now brother farmer, stop to think. Are they doing this from mere generosity? Or what is the object? Would they do this if there were no competition. Before this elevator was built we got from one to two cents less for our wheat here than they did 200 to 300 miles farther west.

It has been said, if I'm not mistaken that a farmers elevator has been busted before and that the same trick ought to work here. If that was done would you get two cents above market any more? We shall leave that to be conjectured.

Now that we have succeeded in getting our own elevator here our proper procedure, to my idea is, Stick to it through thick and thin, its going to pay you in the long run.

This institution of ours is not putting any money into the pockets of any single individual; but whatever is made over and above running expenses is payed back to the stockholders in some form of dividend, the certain style has not yet been decided. The other elevators here can not do business any more economical than we can.

Let us now be up and doing,
With a heart and good free will Still achieving, still persuing,
And stick to our industry still.

Your brother farmer,
Thos. H. Bjerke.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The W. C. T. U., meets next Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Ben Christianson.

While education is taking on more and more an industrial phase, unless there goes along with the new form of effort constant thorough sympathetic instruction in the evils of alcohol, unless the generation going from the schools to the shops goes with sincere purpose to live a clean life, there is little hope that industrial conditions will be improved. The work of the schools to induce temperate and healthful living is more important than to secure skill in handicraft.

When Buying Baking Powder

For this is the baking powder that "makes the baking better."

It leavens the food evenly throughout; puffs it up to airy lightness, makes it delightfully appetizing and wholesome.

Remember, Calumet is moderate in price—highest in quality.

Ask your grocer for Calumet. Don't take a substitute.

SOLVES A DEEP MYSTERY

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart," wrote C. B. Rader, of Lewisburg, W. Va., "for the wonderful double benefit I got from Electric Bitters, in curing me of both a severe case of stomach trouble and of rheumatism, from which I had been an almost helpless sufferer for ten years. It suited my case as tho made just for me." For dyspepsia, indigestion, jaundice and to rid the system of kidney poisons that cause rheumatism, Electric Bitters has no equal. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50c at all Druggists.

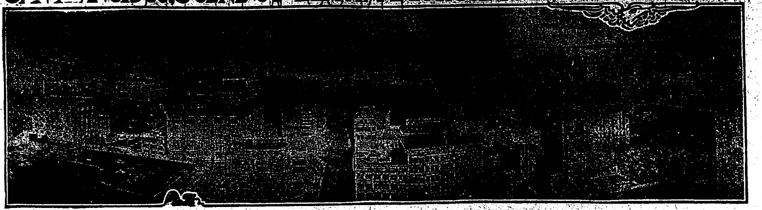
SAN FRANCISCO, SCENE OF THE PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION 1915



STARTING WORK ON PANAMA

Every Country on Earth to Be Represented at the Greatest World's Fair In History. Eighty Million Dollars to Be Expended on National Celebration.

THE NATION'S BIG EXPOSITION

Composite Fleet of Navies of the World to Pass Through Panama Canal and Enter San Francisco Harbor. What the Great Fair Will Be Like.

Within a few weeks' time thousands of men and teams will be engaged in leveling off the grounds of the Panama-Pacific International exposition site in San Francisco, and it is estimated that within six months 10,000 men will be employed in the construction of the material part of the great exposition at which the United States of America will celebrate the opening of the Panama canal. Responses to invitations to participate and offers of co-operation from every part of the world are flooding the exposition management, and President C. C. Moore and his thirty directors, who represent every important interest on the coast and $1,000,000,000 in invested capital, are working night and day to keep up with the avalanche of duties that pour in upon them.

Responses of foreign countries surpass all anticipations of the exposition management. Every civilized nation on earth, every land within the sweep of both shores of the Pacific ocean and every state in the Union will be represented by the finest assemblage of displays the world has ever seen.

"San Francisco," says President Moore, "as hostess for the nation will entertain the world in 1915 with the most comprehensive exposition in history, a jubilee of nations, a splendid commemorative celebration, which shall include not only the finest features of all former world's expositions in recording the progress of the world, but yet in magnificence, in diversity, in its distinctive color of the west, of the orient and of all the countries bordering upon the Pacific ocean will stand alone. The nations of the world will see the finest American displays ever shown at the Panama-Pacific International exposition.

"The plans of the people of the west for the Panama-Pacific International exposition are being undertaken upon a scale of world education and interest, and the exposition is the subject of enthusiastic co-operation in every land upon the earth. San Francisco is preparing to meet the standards of a great national celebration. Every land under the stars and stripes will be represented, and the nations of the world are intensely interested in the Panama canal, America's gift to civilization, and in the exposition at which America will formally celebrate the opening of the canal. This universal interest has assured the most remarkable world's exposition in point of size, diversity and special interest ever held."

The opening of the Panama canal will not only be the most important commercial event in the history of the world, but it will mark a supreme epoch in the lives of the nations bordering upon the Pacific, and appropriately the visitor will see in the exposition the greatest displays of strange tribes and peoples of the Pacific ocean countries ever assembled.

Down the streets of San Francisco in exposition days will pass such oriental pageants as the world has never seen. China, Japan, the Philippines, India and other oriental lands will join in parades that will rival the Indian durbar in magnificence and surpass the durbar in variety by reason of the many nations represented.

The exposition will formally open with the entrance into San Francisco harbor of a composite fleet of the battleships of the world. Upon invitation of the United States nearly 100 warships of foreign nations will first assemble at Hampton Roads and will be joined by detachments of the American navy, and the composite fleet will then be reviewed by the president and by foreign dignitaries. This fleet, the largest ever assembled, will proceed through the Panama canal, arriving in San Francisco harbor about two weeks after the exposition opens.

The exposition will be held upon the shores of San Francisco bay and of the Pacific ocean and will occupy an area of more than 1,600 acres. The grounds will describe a semicircle about San Francisco, following the contours the shore from the harbor out to and beyond the Golden Gate. The structures will be the largest and costliest ever erected for a world's exposition.

The two principal locations of the exposition will be at Harbor View and in Golden Gate park. Harbor View lies as a crescent on San Francisco bay midway between the ferry building, the principal entrance to San Francisco, and the Golden Gate. Golden Gate park fronts the Pacific ocean one mile below the famous Cliff House. These two main sites and intermediate locations will be connected by a marine boulevard that will skirt the shores of San Francisco bay and also by an intermural railroad. A trackless trolley will run over the boulevard. Harbor View is within twenty minutes' walk of the Fairmont hotel and the most extensive apartment house section of San Francisco.

At Harbor View will be located a yacht harbor, the Midway and night life of the exposition and many concessions that lend themselves to night illuminations as well as great buildings to house such heavy exhibits as may be readily unloaded from ocean going vessels, such as the structures to contain the manufactures and machinery exhibits, the Palace of Liberal Arts and other industrial features.

Golden Gate park will be the seat of the permanent features of the exposition. With an area of more than a thousand acres Golden Gate park, forested and created of sand dunes, today presents one of the most notable achievements in landscape gardening in the world. The west end of Golden Gate park, comprising 540 acres, will be utilized for exposition purposes. Around a great stadium, already built, will be erected a huge concrete coliseum, the largest structure of its kind in America, capable of seating 75,000 people and in architecture like that at Rome. A chain of lakes at different levels will be connected by a working model of the Panama canal.

Lincoln park, where the Golden Gate rounds out into the Pacific ocean, commands a panorama of the Pacific ocean, of San Francisco harbor and of the hills of the city. Its area is 150 acres, and its contours rise more than 300 feet above sea level. At Lincoln park will be erected a great commemorative statue welcoming ships to the Golden Gate. Tentative plans for St. Francis memorial tower call for a structure 850 feet in height, with a base 200 feet square. The top of the tower will be almost 1,300 feet above the waters of the Golden Gate.

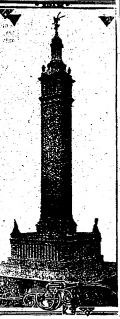
From Lincoln park the boulevard, turning south toward Golden Gate park, will pass through an area of 200 acres that have been secured by the directors for exposition purposes. Here will be located the foreign buildings, live stock exhibits, mining, horticulture and agriculture and other displays requiring extensive space.

PANAMA-PACIFIC TO BE THE GREATEST OF ALL EXPOSITIONS

Following the battleship parade into San Francisco harbor at the opening of the Panama-Pacific International exposition there will be a program of events of world interest and importance in a succession of two months apart interspersed with lesser events—yacht races and motorboat races of an international character for great trophies and cash prizes, aviation meets with the famous bird men of the world, Olympic games in which the athletes of the world will take part, intercollegiate contests, automobile races in which the holders of the world's records will participate in the automobiles of every nation, military maneuvers in which the crack infantry and cavalry of this and other nations will participate upon an extended scale. The location of the exposition gives widest scope for the greatest international sports program in history. The auto races will pass into Golden Gate park before the concrete coliseum, which will have a seating capacity of 75,000 people. The military maneuvers and Olympic games will also be held in the stadium. On San Francisco bay motorboats will vie for the world's records before the Harbor View site of the exposition. The yachtsmen of the world will sail from Europe across the Atlantic to New York and then through the Panama canal to San Francisco.

The Panama-Pacific International exposition was first proposed by Mr. R. B. Hale, a merchant of San Francisco, in 1904. Mr. Hale wrote a letter to the Merchants' association, and the idea took like wildfire. At that time it was anticipated that the canal would be opened in 1913, and 1913 was the date set for the exposition. An organization of the commercial bodies began the preliminary work, but in 1906 came the fire. No one was dismayed. In a shack built over embers hardly cool a dry goods merchant placed a great sign, "Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, 1915," and this became the battlecry in the fight to build a new city.

Of more than $20,000,000 now appropriated by California $7,000,000 has been raised by popular subscriptions, $4,000,000 is assured through a special act of the legislature permitting the counties to tax themselves for exposition purposes, $5,000,000 was appropriated by the state of California, and San Francisco has voted a bond issue of $5,000,000. This is the largest sum that has ever been raised for a world's exposition at an initial stage. But it is only a starter.



ST. FRANCIS MEMORIAL TOWER.

The contributions of China and Japan toward the exposition in magnificence and variety will surpass anything ever seen outside of the orient and even in the far east itself. A conservative estimate of their combined expenditure toward the exposition is $10,000,000. Hawaii and the Philippines will contribute more than $1,000,000 each.

The Pacific coast of the United States and the whole west will be featured up more extensively than they have been within their history. Side excursions from the main line or stopovers upon any of the eight transcontinental systems terminating upon the Pacific coast will afford the visitor an opportunity to see those attractions of America that appeal to him. To most people the names of these places will carry a picture—the Yosemite, the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, the Yellowstone National park, Great Salt lake, Puget sound, the inland trip to Alaska, the government's huge reclamation projects in sixteen western states, the Columbia river region, the redwood forests of California, the firs of Oregon, the big trees on the approach to the Yosemite, Arizona and New Mexico, youngest of the states; Nevada and some of the greatest mining camps in the world. Perhaps most interesting of all will be the opportunity for a trip through the Panama canal either coming or going.

The reconstruction of San Francisco is one of the greatest miracles within the history of American municipalities. Five hundred and eight city blocks, embracing the principal business and residential portions of the city, were wiped from the earth in 1906. The streets were covered in some places with debris forty feet deep, yet today a stranger to the city would never know from its appearance that a fire had occurred.

The loss through the fire is estimated by insurance underwriters at $400,000,000. To reconstruct San Francisco called for greater wealth than was destroyed by the fire and far exceeded the cost of building the Panama canal. Since the fire $242,000,000 has been expended upon new buildings alone.

Today San Francisco is the newest city in the world. Its buildings represent the latest type of modern reenforced concrete structures. It has more than 1,800 hotels and apartment houses, with accommodations to suit all persons.

In preparing for the Panama-Pacific International exposition hundreds of its emissaries are visiting all the regions of the world. Fourteen governors of western states on a 4,000 mile trip through the east on a special train recently called attention to the exposition and became better acquainted with their brothers of the eastern states. One of the directors of the exposition is now in Japan. It is said that his majesty the Emperor Mutsuhito will donate the use of the imperial art collection to the exposition. The board of lady managers, of which Mrs. Phoebe Hearst is honorary president, is independently taking up those phases of the exposition that belong particularly to woman's domain.

The setting is being prepared. With impressive exposition structures rising from San Fr[illegible] with city and wooded slo[illegible]d and in the fore[illegible] battleships of t[illegible] be one of the [illegible] of history.

First International Band Contest.

The earliest record of an international band contest is of one held in the year 1720 between the bands of Handel and Buononcini, a gifted Italian composer, who by his friends and admirers was declared to be infinitely superior to the German master. The king headed the partisans of the German and the Prince of Wales those of the Italian artist. The controversy has been perpetuated in the lines of John Byron, a popular poet of his day:

> Some say, compared to Buononcini,
> That Mynheer Handel's but a ninny.
> Others aver that he to Handel
> Is scarcely fit to hold a candle.
> Strange all this difference should be
> 'Twixt tweedledum and tweedledee.

An international band contest on a much larger scale was held in connection with the Paris exhibition of 1867, in which selected bands from Austria, Bavaria, Baden, Belgium, France, Holland, Spain and Russia competed in the presence of 30,000 visitors. Russia took the first prize, closely followed by France and Austria.—London Standard.

The Fly's Buzz In Music.

It was Mendelssohn who first put fairies into the orchestra, and that composer's incidental music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream" is surely the happiest accompaniment to Shakespeare's play. But there is more than the revels of fairies in Mendelssohn's work. There is the buzzing of a fly which one day in the summer of 1826 flew about Mendelssohn's head as he lay on the grass with a friend in the Schonhauser garden, Berlin, planning the overture. As the fly buzzed by Mendelssohn said "Hush!" and listened intently for a time. Afterward, when the overture was finished, the composer pointed to the modulation of the cellos from B minor to F sharp minor in the middle section and said, "There, that's the Schonhauser fly." That overture has become one of the world's musical classics, and Mendelssohn was a boy of eighteen when he wrote it.—London Chronicle.

Bulls In the House of Commons.

"The house of commons is a regular bull pen," said an Englishman. "I heard a Tory member say recently in praise of bishops: 'Bishops are not really stiff and starchy. There's a good heart beating below their gaiters.'

"An imperialist declared in a debate: 'No Ireland, no Wales, no Scotland: one only Britain. Such are the words the mouth of our sovereign has always had in its eye.'

"An Irish Unionist said of an Irish Nationalist, 'Shall this man come into this house with unblushing footsteps, with the cloak of hypocrisy in his mouth, and draw 5,000,000 acres out of our pockets?'

"An excited labor member once shouted, 'If this bill passes I see before the workingmen of England a future from which they have been for too many years kept out.'"

Tearful Statesmen.

There was a time when English statesmen wept upon small provocation. Pepys makes frequent reference to this weakness, while the story of the long parliament as written by D'Ewes gives the impression that the legislators of that day were singularly prone to tears. They wept on the slightest provocation, and sometimes their excessive grief was so noisy that proceedings had to be stayed until the lachrymose lawmakers could compose themselves.

Legal Customs From the Church.

When one lawyer refers to another as "brother attorney" he employs an ancient phrase peculiar to religious and legal fraternities and suggests the close historical relation between the callings. In England for two and a half centuries after the Norman conquest all high legal offices were filled by churchmen. Laymen could not hope for advancement or for clients, and indeed the only path to the acquirement of a professional education lay through holy orders. The fraternal form of address common to the church passed naturally into legal phraseology. Brother So-and-so of the monastic order was "brother" also at the bar. So strong was popular prejudice against admitting the competency of mere laymen at law when this class began to practice, about 1300, that lay barristers adopted a black velvet skullcap or coif to conceal their lack of tonsure, the distinguishing mark of the priestly clerk. Down to our day both the form of address and the peculiar headgear have remained, although we have ceased to associate the two professions whose early intimacy was the original reason for their existence.—Green Bag.

The Swastika.

The origin and history of the curious charm known as the swastika have been exhaustively described by Dr. T. Carr, an English antiquarian. He claims that the origin of the swastika dates back to pre-Christian days. Investigation has led him to believe that it was originally the symbol of polar star worship and that it was the most ancient and widely distributed symbol that had ever existed. It has been found in Chaldea, among the ruins of the earlier cities of Troy, in Egypt, on the prehistoric relics of Greece, on Hittite remains, on prehistoric American Indian mounds, in South America, on Buddhist remains in India, on Roman altars, on Runic crosses in Great Britain, in Coptic churches of the tenth century and on English brasses of the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries. It is still used in India, Tibet, China, Korea and Japan as a sign of long life, good wishes and good fortune; it is also used by the Lapps and the Finns.

Not a Word From Washington.

"I've just had a new one sprung on me," remarked a man in a cigar store, "and by a kid too. The other day I was expecting a telegram from Washington, where I've been negotiating a business transaction. Knowing I would be in a friend's office from 2 until 5 o'clock that afternoon, I left word in the telegraph office to have my message sent there. About 4:30 o'clock a messenger boy came in and inquired for me. 'You're expecting a wire?' he asked. I told him I was. 'Sorry,' he said, 'but we can't get a word from Washington.' I jumped out of my chair in a hurry. 'What's the matter?' I asked. The kid edged near the door and replied, 'He's dead.' And then he ran out. But he left the message."—New York Tribune.

Ocean Currents.

There are twenty-seven permanent currents in the oceans of the world, and there are nearly as many more of the semi-permanent variety existing at one time. Several causes tend to originate and maintain these drifts. Uniformly directed winds have the greatest influence, and differences in temperatures, storms, polar ice and eddies have each some effect, creating usually the currents of semi-permanent variety.

Reasons Obvious.

"We will sing 'Awake, Ye Saints,' in [illegible] minutes before the sermon tomorrow," announced the minister at choir practice on Saturday afternoon.

"Don't you think," inquired the observant tenor, "that it would be more appropriate to sing it immediately after the sermon?"

We have no right to say that any good work is too hard for us to do

The Wayward Kid

By MARIAN L. GUERNSEY

"You can't most always tell about children," said Farmer Fowler to Deacon Smith. "Some on 'em turns out well and some doesn't. It allus seemed to me that all my children had no use for me except what they could git out of me. There's my oldest boy, John. Seems to me that boy was born contrary.

"I tried all sorts o' ways makin' him obedient, but they failed—that is, all sorts o' ways except whippin' him. That I don't believe in. I shut him up by himself. I deprived him of those little things children most wish for. Then I tried kindness. None o' them ways worked with Johnnie."

"How about your other children," asked the deacon, "when they were little?"

"They didn't any of 'em appear to have much sense o' responsibility. If I or their mother was sick and we expected 'em to give up anything they thought o' doin' to help us out they didn't want to do it. Nothing must interfere with any pleasure they laid out for themselves. My youngest boy and my second girl was the best o' the lot. They're with us yet. Billy's a first rate farm hand, and his sister Ruth is very useful, helpin' her mother with the cookin'."

"What became of Johnnie?"

"Oh, John as he grew older he got a lot of all-fired ridiculous notions in his head and was worse'n when he was a kid. He got an idee that he'd like to be a perfesser in a college. Did y' ever hear o' sich nonsense? He wanted me to spend all the money I could make on the farm to edicate him for some useless job, and when I wouldn't do it he got mad and walked away, sayin' I wouldn't hear anything from him ever ag'in unless he'd done somepin wo'th doin'. After all I'd done for him—keepin' him in food and clothes—to treat me that away! I tell you, parents are to be pitied."

"Then you don't think children pay?"

"No, they don't in the long run. When they're little tots they're kind o' cunnin' and have spasms of affection in 'em. But I never could make out whether the spasms of badness or of affection was the principal part of 'em. Anyway, after all the pains you've had with 'em they're sure about the time you get 'em to be of some use to you to go off, the gals with some feller and the boys with some girl, and you never get any return for your trouble."

"Didn't it pay your father to bring you up?"

"I dunno as it did. I've often thought that mebbe it didn't."

The gate clicked, and a well dressed man about thirty came up the walk. The farmer put on his glasses.

"Somepin familiar about him," he remarked. "Seems to me I've seen him before."

"Hello, dad!" said the newcomer. "You don't know me, do you?"

"By gum! You beant Johnny, be you?"

"Certainly I'm Johnny."

"Well, I want to know! Come back to see the old man, eh, my boy? I'm powerful glad to see you." And he folded his arms about his son.

"Yes, I've come back, dad. When I went away I think I must have been a trifle cantankerous. I was determined to learn a lot of things that may seem useless to you. But I've learned [illegible] I'm professor of biology in [illegible] university."

"Do tell! What y' learned, Johnny?"

"Why, I've learned that we are born to nature, and our parents' job is to get nature out of us as fast as they can. We are all animals, only we humans are capable of a higher development than those below us. But in the beginning there's not much difference between us and them. Look at a newborn kitten and you'll see it clawing the air. I've seen a newborn baby doing the same thing. But the kitten grows into a cat, and the baby grows into a man or woman. While the civilized child is developing it is simply getting away from [illegible] instance. It has little [illegible] bility, just as the puppy [illegible] the dinner provided for the family [illegible] permitted to do so. I dare say, father, you thought me brutal as a boy, and I was brutal; but I was simply obeying a natural, not a refined, law. But I'm doing pretty well now and have come back to look after those I left behind me."

"By gum, Johnny, how you talk! Does biology pay?"

"Not in money, though my published books, my salary and my lectures bring me in a fair income. I've something to spare for you, dad, and mum, and if there's anything I can do for the boys or the girls I'd be glad to know it."

"Well, Johnny boy, I'm powerful glad to see you back. Of all my children you was the most obstinate, but you've got there, John, and I'm glad of it. You've topped the hull lot of us."

"And the reason he got there," remarked the deacon, "was that very obstinacy. If he'd been the obedient child you would have liked him to be he'd been doin' work not much better than a horse can do."

"But that time is passing away," said the professor. "[illegible] science. I've come back to look into the matter of [illegible] the ne[illegible] basis."

A Bowery Experience

By MARTIN SHARPE

I had always had a fancy to see the Bowery, in New York, and on my first trip to that city took occasion to visit it. I was strolling along it when a man suddenly confronted me, and by his manner I knew that he was a crook.

As to his appearance there was nothing very bad about it. Only small thieves have a rundown, disagreeable look. He beckoned me to follow him and went down into a dive very near where I had met him. I hesitated for a moment; then my caution gave way before what I fancied might be an opportunity to see something of New York crook life, and I joined him at a table in the saloon.

"I didn't know you were out," he said.

The man had evidently mistaken me for some one else. Willing to let him talk, I feigned reticence.

"I've got a job in view and want another man. Are you open?"

I told him that it depended on what the job was and led him on to develop his scheme. A butler to a wealthy family was ready to act with him and had told him that a daughter of the house was about to be married and valuable wedding presents were coming in.

The butler, whose regular duty was to shut up the house nights, was to let the crook in, in order that he might have free access to the gifts. I was wanted to help carry off the swag. I endeavored to get the man to tell me the location of the house, but he was too sharp for me. He agreed to meet me at a designated place on the night he proposed to make the haul and take me with him. I was to keep watch and help carry off the plunder. After settling all details we parted, and I went straight to police headquarters and reported my experience.

I was told that my information would be worthless unless I would consent to go with the man to make the robbery. We would be shadowed and caught red handed. I didn't like the job very well, but they told me that I might expect a liberal reward from the family who were to be robbed, and, since I was not over well supplied with funds, I consented.

I was to call every day at the saloon where I had met the crook for notification of time and place of meeting with him. On the third day the barkeeper handed me an envelope, in which was a slip of paper advising me to be at a certain corner on the Bowery at a certain hour the same night. My pal would pass me, and I was to follow him, but I was not to recognize or notice him. When he neared the house he was to slow up under a gaslight, which was to tell me that he was within a few doors of the crib. Then I was to draw near so that I could keep him in view. My position was to be at the point he entered, to watch and wait for further orders.

At the appointed hour I was at my post and took pains to stand directly in the light where those who shadowed me could see me. My man did not keep me waiting long and walked straight past without looking at me. I followed him as he had directed, and he led me into a street where there were several of those old fashioned downtown residences that when built were the finest in the city and some still occupied by the descendants of their Dutch builders. He stopped near one of them, looked at his watch, then went on slowly. It was 2 o'clock in the morning, and the street was deserted. He went up onto a front balcony of a large house, opened a window that had been left unlocked and disappeared in the darkness.

Time was given him by the police to get together considerable property. Then I was relieved by a plain clothes man and went back on to the sidewalk, where I saw men surrounding the house. When my pal had filled a sack he brought it to me and was quietly told to throw up his hands. Then at a signal several men ran in from the street and the capture was made without disturbance.

The burglar, I was told, was very hot against me for giving him away and vowed that if he ever got a chance he would kill me, though he still believed I was the crook he had mistaken me for. The police kindly went through the photographs in the rogues' gallery and found me there, an exact counterpart. I was not especially pleased to find that I so nearly resembled a criminal, but was comforted that the picture did not give such an impression. I insisted on the burglar being informed of his mistake, lest he should carry out his threat on the [illegible] $1,000 worth of [illegible] house to be robbed, and the burglar [illegible] not get more than half of what was in the sack he had brought to me. Had he been properly supported he would undoubtedly have got away with all the bride's property. I received a thousand dollar check from her father, a portion of which I spent in seeing New York. The butler was arrested, and on my evidence and incriminating property found on him he was sent up with the burglar.

I was very much pleased with my sight of inside life on the Bowery and went back to my country home perfectly satisfied. However, I agreed with the words of the song about the street that I would "never go there any more."

A New Fad

By SAMUEL G. TREAT

"Do you know the latest craze in London?" said my English friend Higgins, who had just come over.

"No. What is it?"

"Why, they take a map of the city and, closing their eyes, jab a tiny hole in it with a pin. Then they open their eyes and note where they have pricked the paper. Next they go to the spot and see what happens to them. There's no end of things happening to persons who try it. One man saw a friend run over and killed; another met a woman from whom he had been divorced years before, and they made it up and were remarried. Come, let's have a try at it here in New York."

"Thank you. I am not feeble minded."

You can't stop a Britisher when he once gets an idea in his head, no matter how stupid it is. Higgins got out a map of the city and, closing his eyes, pricked it. He made a hole for himself somewhere on the east side among the Yiddish people, then made one for me that fell in Central park.

Not long after that I was crossing Central park, and somehow it occurred to me that I was in the exact spot pricked for me on the map by Higgins. I don't know what latent superstition born in our natures induced me to do so, but I stopped and looked about me, refusing to admit to myself that I was ready for something to happen to me. Suddenly I heard a young woman sitting on a bench cry, "Oh, George!" And, rising, she ran toward me and threw her arms around my neck hysterically. An elderly woman who had been sitting beside her sprang after her. Looking into my face, the latter seemed for a moment much puzzled.

"The likeness is astonishing," she said.

"The young lady, I infer, has made a mistake."

But the young lady clung to me, and I saw plainly that her mind was unbalanced. Without either the older woman or myself speaking a word it was agreed between us that I should for the present at least humor the younger one's persistence in considering me to be George. I conversed with the girl while we walked on together, carefully avoiding saying anything to destroy her illusion. She had a beautiful face with large expressive eyes. I gathered from what she said that "George" had won her heart, then jilted her. I wondered how he could have done the latter, for she seemed to me very attractive.

When we had reached the women's home the younger said that she must go to her room for awhile and lie down to compose herself, since the meeting had been too much for her. She tried to pledge me not to go away, saying that she would be all right in a few minutes. I partly promised, and the older woman, after spending a short time with her, returned to enlighten me on the strange happening.

"She is my daughter," she said. "Several years ago she had a love affair with a man who is the image of you. It ended unhappily for my daughter at least, and, with other physical ailments, produced a mental state that has lasted ever since, though her physicians consider it temporary, and hope that in time she will recover. I am extremely obliged to you for lending yourself as you have to permitting her to be deceived. I only fear the consequences when she finds that she has a second time lost her lover."

"That is not necessary," I replied, "at least not at present. I can come to see her occasionally."

"You don't know how relieved I am by your promise. I wish you would come tomorrow. After that I may determine what is best to be done in the premises."

When I called the next day the mother told me that her daughter had slept continuously from the time I left the house till late in the day and awakened in what it was hoped would turn out a changed mental condition. She had not mentioned the meeting with me nor had she asked for me. Her mother did not know whether she remembered it or not. I did not see Blanche, the daughter, but asked her mother to notify me when it would be best for me to call and be introduced to her.

Three weeks passed without my hearing anything, so I resolved to make inquiries. I called one evening and asked for the mother. She informed me that her daughter had entirely recovered. Blanche came in soon after and could not repress a start at seeing me on account of my likeness to her lost lover. I was introduced to her as an acquaintance of her mother's [illegible] together [illegible] mentioned. Indeed, I never knew what was in her mind about it till more than a year later [illegible]

I didn't see Higgins from the time [illegible] map till one day while I was walking on the Strand [illegible] don, when suddenly exclaimed: "There comes that blooming idiot Higgins!"

"The one you have told me about?" asked my wife.

"Yes, he's the biggest fool—Hello Higgins! How are you [illegible]

[illegible] a map of New York I told you there was a lot in it [illegible]

"Rats! It was a coincidence."

NO CAUSE TO DOUBT

A Statement of Facts Backed by a Strong Guarantee.

We guarantee immediate and positive relief to all sufferers from constipation. In every case where our remedy fails to do this we will return the money paid for it. That's a frank statement of facts, and we want you to substantiate them at our risk.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus overcoming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

Rexall Orderlies are unsurpassable and ideal for the use of children, old folks and delicate persons. We cannot too highly recommend them to all sufferers from any form of constipation and its attendant evils. That's why we back our faith in them with our promise of money back if they do not give entire satisfaction. Three sizes: 12 tablets 10 cents, 36 tablets 25 cents and 80 tablets 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at our store—The Rexall Store necessarily follow, as, while it was required that the installment payment be completed within five years from the date of sale, proof was permitted to be made within six years from date of sale; consequently, the extension of time to make payment simply made the time, within which payment might be made, identical with the statutory life of the entry.

Life of Entries

Construing the act of March 26, 1910, as granting two years additional to the time already allowed by law, within which the installment payments might be made, and as proof and payment, as the law then stood, were required to be made at the same time, and within six years from date of sale, the said act necessarily carried with it an extension of time of two years, within which proof need be made on entries affected thereby, and in all such cases the statutory life of the entry would be eight years from its date. Therefore, while this office has, as stated construed said act to grant relief in those cases where such relief is necessary, manifestly it does not follow that the statutory life of any entry is shortened by reason of said act.

To Summarize: Though an entryman may be in default, as the law stands, as to his installment payments and his entry be subject to cancellation for that reason, any entryman under the act of February 20, 1904, would be allowed eight years from the date of his entry, within which to submit final proof, in the absence of any other objection.

The foregoing will also be responsive to your letter of the 17th inst., and the communication therein inclosed from Mr. E. A. Mostue, dated January 13, 1912, is herewith returned.

Very respectfully,
(Signed) S. V. Proudfit,
Ass't. Commissioner.

MARRIED

Mr. Elling Ramsey and Miss Mary Reusla, both of this county were united in marriage Tuesday afternoon, January 23d, at the parsonage of Rev. A. Larson.

WICHTERMAN—PHALEN

Miss Alyce Wichterman and John Phalen United in Marriage Wednesday

The following item will be of interest to the many friends of Mr. and [illegible]

Last Wednesday morning at [illegible] o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Wichterman of this place occurred the marriage [illegible] May to Mr. John W. Phalen, the Fr. LaFlock, of Bemidji, uniting the young couple in the holy bonds of matrimony. Only relatives of the contracting parties were present to view the ceremonies and to partake in the sumptuous wedding breakfast served after the services. The happy couple departed on the 7:30 Soo train for Bemidji and other points in Minnesota on a couple of week's honeymoon trip and expect to be at home to their friends here after February 5th.

The news of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Phalen came as a pleasant surprise to many of their friends here who were unaware of the approaching happy event, and who will rejoice in the opportunity of extending congratulations and wishes of happiness and prosperity in abundance during their married life.

Both are among the popular set of our village; the bride who has made her home here with her parents has by her charming qualities won a large circle of admiring friends. The groom, likewise, during his residence here has been an active member in the progress of the community and is well and favorably known throughout this entire section. Jack, as he is want to be called by his friends and colleagues ranks among our foremost men and his presence will be keenly missed from the bachelor circle in which he has ever been a prominent factor. Their many friends the Pioneer included, extends to the happy young couple congratulation.—Plummer Pioneer.

PROPOSED WAGON ROAD FROM THIEF RIVER TO BAUDETTE

A trunk road from Thief River Falls to Baudette is one of the possibilities for the near future. The Northern Minnesota Road Commission, which met at Crookston last week, considered this road among others. Ranger Kilby has interested himself in the matter and is working hard for the road.

A good summer road between these points would open up [illegible] of the best [illegible] in the State especially the Rapid River country.

Along the Rapid River there are nice meadows and much open land, and it would without doubt make an ideal dairying country. The territory along this river is well settled and the road is for the most part a ridge along the Rapid River and extends from Baudette to Thief River Falls. At present this road can only be used in the winter time.

No forest fires have as yet gone thru this country and the settlers are willing to assist in every way they can to keep fires out.

This route viz from Thief River Falls to Baudette and thence to International Fallls would traverse a well settled and fertile section and it appears to us to be an excellent proposition for a trunk road, and and would considerably simplify patrol and fire prevention work in this district. We believe that the Good Roads Committee would be interested in this project; according to newspaper reports of their meeting at Crookston, such a road was suggested.—Baudette Region.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE MINNESOTA TAX COMMISSION

Presents The First of a Series of Articles on Taxation In Minnesota.

It is the purpose to present to the readers of this newspaper, in a series of articles, a concise and accurate statement of the revenues raised for the state and its subdivisions, the methods of determining how much revenue shall be raised, the purposes to which it is put and the several consecutive steps in arriving at what shall be each property owner's share of the general burden. The experience of the commission in the four years of its work has convinced it that there is a general lack of information on all these points, especially that relating to the assessment of real and personal property. Nor is this surprising when one reflects that the laws relating to these matters are buried in the statute books, consulted only by those charged with their administration while the mass, to whom the statutes are not accessible, remain in ignorance of their provisions. Generally men know little more of the details of taxing than that an assessor visits them once a year and asks searching questions relative to their property, and that, once or twice a year, they go to the county treasurers to pay the tax levied on their property. It is to give publicity to these matters that these articles are directed.

They will be made as brief as is consistent with clearness and with their relative importance in the system. They will be carefully prepared to insure accuracy and be put in simple language The commission hopes and expects that they will create discussion by both the editor and the readers of this newspaper, and it solicits their opinions both on the articles and the taxing system. It is only by such means that reforms are ever accomplished.

The commission takes this opportunity to express its appreciation of the public spirit of the editor of this paper, shown by his giving of valuable space without other compensation than the satisfaction of performing a valuable public service.

SUPPRESSION OF NOXIOUS WEEDS

W. O. Long, Foreman of Grand Jury, submits report which should be Heeded.

The Grand Jury of the County of Pennington regularly assembled at the Court House in the City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, for the January 1912 General Term of the District Court, beg leave to submit the following report and recommendation, to-wit:

That the attention of the proper officials of each town and municipality in this County, is hereby called to the provisions of Chapter 37 R. S. 1905 and Chapter 70 G. L. 1911 relative to the suppression of noxious weeds, and are hereby urged to enforce the provisions thereof, particularly along the roadside in said county. To this end we recommend that at the next annual town meeting to be held in each of the organized towns, each town be divided into three weed districts, one of which shall be assigned to each member of the town board and over which he shall have general supervision for the purpose of aiding in the enforcement of the provisions of said Chapters above referred to.

We further recommend that a copy of this report be published in each of the newspapers in said county.

Respectfully submitted,
Foreman of the Grand Jury.

FARMERS HELD ANNUAL MEET.

T.R. Co-op Creamery Ass'n. Did Things Up Right Last Saturday.

The Thief River Falls Co-operative Creamery Association held their annual meeting in the Antlers' club rooms here last Saturday. The meeting was very well attended and the regular business conducted easily and without friction. The same officers were elected for the ensuing year, which shows the farmers to be men of excellent judgment. At the close of the meeting Mr. O'Neill gave an interesting and well received lecture on the "Progressive Farmer."

One of the most satisfactory features of the day was the dinner served by the ladies of the Zion church. Some eighty invitations were extended to citizens of Thief River in appreciation of the many aids the city has given the association. Considerably more than two hundred guests dined at the church.

The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read as follows:

ANOTHER NEW TELEPHONE CO.

Clover Leaf Goodridge Telephone Company was Organized last Saturday at C. Urdahl's.

Last Saturday at the home of C. Urdahl, the enterprising citizens of Clover Leaf and Goodridge townships met and organized the Clover-Leaf-Goodridge Telephone Company. A dozen representative citizens were present, and they passed upon and adopted a constitution and by-laws and elected officers for the ensuing year as follows:

J. H. Hay—President
O. N. Urdahl—Vice President
Frank Rice—Secretary
Niclay Urdahl—Treasurer
Christ Urdahl—Manager
Directors: J. H. Hay, Gunder Skretvedt and John Holmgren.

Arrangements were made with A. T. Rice for hauling the poles from the Thorholt country at 25 cents a pole, which is a very reasonable price. The new telephone line will have connections with the Germantown local and the Tri-State main line. It is expected also to have connection with the Highlanding local. The line runs south and east from Germantown and is designed to give service to people of Clover Leaf and Goodridge, who have heretofore been unable to have 'phones at a moderate expense. It is a pleasant surprise to note that there are already enough people interested in this line to insure a very reasonable investment for shares. The formation of this new company means that the coming year will see practically all of our great eastern country with efficient telephone service. There are now several very thrifty telephone companies out east. The next move will be to get them combined into one organization.

MUNSON STOCK GOES UP

His Defeat of Otto Norland Convinces Fans That He Is a Wonder.

Ludvig Munson, champion light-heavyweight wrestler of Holt, defeated Otto Nordland, champion heavyweight wrestler of Bronson, in straight falls at the Lyceum theatre here a week ago Thursday night, he securing the first fall in 59 minutes, using a scissors and half Nelson, and the second fall in 23 minutes, using a half Nelson in combination with scissors and toe hold. Tho the men did not have an official weigh-in, it was claimed that Nordland weighed 185 pounds, and Munson 160 pounds, or more; there being a difference of 10 or 15 pounds in weight. The winning of this match convinced the fans that Munson has not been defeating his former opponents thru luck, but that he really can deliver the goods, is one of the best mat artists of his weight in the wrestling game today.

When They Met.

The men appeared for the main bout at 11:25, Nordland first amid scattering applause, followed immediately by Munson who received a most cordial and enthusiastic greeting from his many admirers. Both men took water and spat it out according to the prescribed custom. One minute later they were introduced by referee Smith, and the match announced catch-as-catch-can only the strangle hold barred. When the bout

LEAP YEAR BALL A SUCCESS

Biggest Social Event of Year Pleasingly Handled by Young Women.

Last Friday night in the Antlers' Hall and Club Rooms the girls of this city gave their much hearlded Leap Year Ball. About thirty-four couples took part in the dancing, and all apparently enjoyed themselves, as was manifested by the repeated encores to the several dances. The program of twenty numbers was very cleverly rendered by Paul Morck's four-piece orchestra. The musicians introduced many of the new and popular song hits, which were highly applauded by the young ladies. The event being a leap year affair, it would have been a decided breach of etiquette for a young man to applaud.

The evening's program was especially well planned and carried out by the girls. They played the roles usually taken by the men. They asked the men for dances, and after each number escorted them to their seats, the girls remaining standing as has been the custom for the young men at previous dances.

The hall and club rooms were tastefully decorated with yellow and white A false ceiling of yellow chrysanthemums covered the entire dance hall. The walls and windows were beautifully bedecked with yellow and white, giving a splendid winter effect. The orchestra at the north end of the room was almost hidden in an Eden-like garden made by a vertiable forest of palms and ferns.

The tables in the dining room were artistically strewn with tulips and fern leaves. The decoration scheme was no doubt the most extensive ever undertaken at a social affair in this city.

Between the 12th and 13th dances a dainty luncheon was served, consisting of salad, sandwiches, coffee, ice cream, cake and salted almonds, this followed by cigars.

The young ladies deserve a great deal of credit for the efficient manner in which they managed this long-to-be-remembered Leap Year Ball.

Prof. G. Cozens Tells What Business to Follow, and whom to Marry.

Prof. G. Cozens this week in his rooms at Hotel Ogahmah and in the Commercial Normal Hall has been telling the people of Thief River Falls some very interesting things about themselves. In his lecture Monday evening Prof. Cozens told of the origin, rapid growth and practical uses of phrenology. He said that the Scandinavians and English knew most about it and Americans the least. He advocated the teaching of phrenology to prospective teachers, saying that a knowledge of the subject would eliminate most of the trouble that arises in the managment of students; that the teacher would know whether it was encouragement the child needed or a careful development of some defective faculty; that the teacher would readily recognize a boy with big brain base and expect him to blow off steam once in awhile, because he is the embroyo of the man who leads armies. He said that some schools

LAFOLLETTE POPULAR IN NEW YORK

People Believe in and Support Him; Capitalist Controlled Papers Suppress News.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—Senator LaFollette's enemies in the Republican party have repeatedly stated that however enthusiastic the people of Wisconsin might be in support of the senator from that state, he was unknown by a vast majority of the easterners and regarded as dangerous by the few who were familiar with his record.

This political bubble was broken this week when Senator LaFollette went to Nw York to make his first speech in that city. His friends had arranged to have his meeting in Carnegie Hall, the largest auditorium in the city. The hall was so crowded that the police closed the doors long before the speaking began. Notwithstanding this fact, thousands stood outside in the hope of catching a glimpse of the Senator. These people who stood out in the cold not only saw him but heard him. Senator LaFollette would not go inside to address the assembled audience until he had made two speeches to the disappointed ones which could not find an inch of space in the great hall. The senator's three speeches effectively disposed of the theory that because a man lives in New York he does not understand Progressive principles. Senator LaFollette told his audiences that he meant business, and his audiences responded that they meant business, too. The Senator's advocacy of the initiative, the referendum and the recall did not shock the New Yorkers, on the contrary they cheered him when he spoke in support of these principles of popular government.

The New York meeting furnished a remarkable demonstration of the lengths to which certain papers, controlled by financial interests, will go in an effort to stem the Progressive tide. Notwithstanding the fact that the LaFollette meeting was a success and a tribute to the speaker, two of the morning papers refused to print a word about the throngs inside and outside the hall, or about the Senator's speech. These are the methods being employed by financially controlled newspapers to keep from their readers vitally important political news of the day. Of course, many readers of these papers must have

A GOOD WORD FOR THE JOBBER

He is Necessary Factor in Efficient Economic Distribution of Goods.

For The Consumer.

The article herewith presented, written by S. Reid Warren and appearing in a current issue of Printer's Ink, is open to everyone, tho it is given especially for the benefit of the consumer who has been hoodwinked into believing, that the jobber-retailer consumer method of distribution is wasteful and uneconomic.

By the operation of a "transfer station" at Waverly, N. J., the Pennsylvania Railroad last year "saved" 11,342 freight cars. Suppose that in twenty-five, fifty, one hundred years from now some one rises and declares that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company should abolish this transfer station in interests of economy; that it represents an unnecessary link in the chain of distribution and that freigtht should be shipped direct to each consignee instead of being corted and reloaded at Waverly—do you think he would have any good argument to sustain his contentions?

And yet the Waverly transfer station is merely a "jobber" and performs the same functions that a jobber does in the mercantile world. In other words, instead of sending a carload from some small town in New York State direct to some far-away destination and re-shipping various small shipments at innumerable plac-

N. C. M. MEETS AT BEMIDJI

Dr. Geo. E. Vincent, Supt. C. G. Schultz and other Educators Secured.

The North Central Minnesota Teachers' Association will hold its annual convention in Bemidji Feb. 8 to 10. Dr. Geo. E. Vincent, President of the State University, will open the convention with a lecture Thursday evening, Feb. 8 On Friday State Supt. C. G. Schultz, Pres. W. A. Shoemaker of St. Cloud Normal School, High School Inspector G. B. Aiton, Dr. H. W Hill of the State Board of Health, Graded School Inspector S. A. Challman, and Prof. C. W. Thompson of the State University will address the teachers on topics of timely interests. On Friday afternoon the teachers will gather in round tables to discuss questions of special importance to teachers in their various fields of work. Programs have been prepared that will appeal to English, Science, Agriculture, Manual Training, Domestic Economy, Grammar Grade, Primary Grade and Rural Teachers. The latter program under the direction of Co. Supt. W. B. Stewart should prove very attractive to teachers in district schools.

On Friday evening the Bemidji teachers will entertain all visitors.

On Saturday morning Prof. E. T. Reed and Judge C. W. Stanton will give addresses.

Write to Supt. W. P. Dyer for a complete program and send fifty cents for a badge which will admit to all sessions of the convention.

Tired of Walking

After traveling without money from Thief River Falls, Minn., in a course which in miles amounted practically to a trip across the continent, Albert Erickson, aged 19, and Charles Miller, aged 17, are in the Pasadena, Cal., city jail on charges of petty larceny. The boys say they got tired of walking and stole two bicycles.

THE NEXT BIG EVENT

Munson and Betcher Meet in Wrestling Match at Lyceum Tuesday Night.

The next big event in the sporting world will take place next Tuesday evening, Feb. 6, at the Lyceum theatre when Ludvig Munson, of Holt, and Albert Betcher, of McIntosh, will wrestle for the light-heavyweight championship of Northern Minnesota. Munson is well known here, having appeared in all big bouts held here this winter, and winning all of them quite handily.

Introducing Mr. Betcher.

In an interview with a T. R. P. representative last Monday Mr. Bethler said:

"I am thirty years of age and weigh about 157 pound, am in pretty fair condition now and training hard so that I can go the limit next Tuesday. If Munson is a good man, I can guarantee that it will be a good match. John Johnson of Thief River can tell you what kind of a man I am. I have wrestled in Canada, N. Dak., Montana and Minnesota, and some of the men I met were good ones. I wrestled Ed Dorn of Crystal, N. Dak., one hour and thirty minutes to a draw at McIntosh last winter. Other men I have met are Ober the Finnish wrestler of Crookston., Joe Fraction of Harve, Mont., McFaden of N. Dak. and had good success in all of them. This winter I wrestled at Cass Lake, winning two falls in thirteen minutes, and at Reamer I wrestled Ed. Pelke, securing two falls in four minutes; also, I wrestled another big man weighing 208 pounds, securing two falls in two and one-half minutes, and wrestled, at Grand Rapids, winning two falls in six minutes. I will wrestle anybody of my weight, outside of a few professionals, and at that I would not step out of the way very much."

FROM THE NATION'S CAPITAL

Feeling Between Hitchcock and Taft; How Taft Is Being Eliminated.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—The Frank Hitchcock episode threw an interesting side light on recent political events. Hitchcock is a remnant of the Roosevelt organization, and while he did not hold a membership in the renowned "Kithcen Cabinet" in which Pinchot and Garfield were shineing figures, still he enjoyed the closest confidence of Colonel Roosevelt during his presidency. He first came into intimate touch with the Colonel in the campaign of 1904, when Roosevelt was running for President. In that campaign he served as assistant secretary to the National Republican Committee. He was made First Assistant Postmaster General in 1905 and occupied that position until 1908, when he was placed in charge of the Taft campaign. In March, 1909, President Taft appointed him Postmaster General.

• • •

There has been much talk of late that there is not the best of feeling between the President and Mr. Hitchcock. While denials have been made from both sides, there seems to be some ground for the rumors, which continue to float about the halls and corridors of the Capitol. As head of the Post Office Department Hitchcock has been using federal patronage to build and organize a Taft machine in the Southern States. It is pretty well agreed that if Taft gets the Republican nomination the South will turn the trick and that Mr. Hitchcock's well oiled machine will do the business. There has been much

THE GREAT THIEF RIVER COUNTRY

Real Estate Men to Direct Immigration to Land That has Made Good.

The real estate men of the city are busy working at a booklet which is to be used in their selling campaign the coming season. At the meeting in Mr. Shaw's office held last Saturday, it was decided to begin at once with its publication. Mr. L. O. Lasseson was awarded the contract for printing, and O. A. Naplin was engaged to do the editorial work. thousand copies will be printed the first issue, each real estate man taking one thousand, and the Commercial Club three thousand. The latter organization will forward a large number of their copies to the Immigration Bureau of the Northern Minnesota Development Association in Minneapolis to be used for general distribution at their office. The remainder of the three thousand are to be distributed at meetings and conventions that may be held here the coming summer.

The booklet is gotten out in folder form and will pass through the mail for one cent. It will contain 24 pages and cover. About one-half of the space will be taken up by half-tone cuts of farm scenes from the surrounding territory, some new ones having been secured for that special purpose. The object of the booklet is to attract the attention of the outside world to the fertile lands with a view of securing more farmers to come here and settle. We are and will remain an agricultural secti and the prosperity of the city depen upon the number of farmers who cupy the surrounding country.

Although farming land will receive the lion's share of the attention, our city is also well written up. The advantages of Thief River Falls as a railroad center is featrued for the purpose of calling attention to its superior location as a shipping point.

Some of our prominent farmers will contribute letters in the form of testimonials to show what can be done by enterprising men on Pennington County soil. Yields reported from some of our fields during the last es en route, the car is rushed to Waverley where it is unloaded and its contents consolidated with those for the same destinations from many other cars from different places so that solid carloads can be sent through to each of the towns for which shipments were included in the original cars.

A Good Work for the Jobber

There were handled at this transfer station last year 100,000 tons of freight in less than carload lots and the re-sorting and re-loading of this enormous tonnage resulted as stated in the saving of over eleven thousand cars. Besides, the cars during 1910 carried an average load of 7.42 tons per car; while in 1905 the average load per car was only 6.44 tons.

The jobber is the "transfer station" of the business world. He receives large shipments from manufacturers, subdividing each shipment and consolidating the subdivisions so that a small quantity of each manufacturer's shipments are sent in one large aggregate to each retailer. This is just the same as making up carload lots of shipments from various towns to some one town as is done at the Waverly station.

If we stop to think what an expensive and inconvenient thing it would be for each manufacturer to make many small shipments to retailers, and how much it would add to the cost to consumers, we will cease to look at the jobber as a "middleman" adding to the cost of distribution and see in him an economic necessity.

Economical Performance Calls for Brains.

Experts in scientific management are giving the world a new view-point of economical accomplishments of tasks but to those who have made no study of the underlying principles of scientific management a thoroughly modern organization may look "top heavy" in its rather large administrative force in comparison with its force of manual workers, but the fact is that the economical performance of any piece of work calls for manual laborer does not possess the mental laborer does not posses the mental power to analyze his task and work out the simplest and most direct and economical way of performing it, the task must be divided between the administrative force and the "labor" force so that the labor force can have laid out for it precisely what it is to do and how it is to do it.

And it seems to me that a study of the question of distribution in the light of broader knowledge is going to give the jobber a stronger position so that he will no longer be looked upon as a parasite eating up profits that should go into the consumer's pockets but as a necessary factor in the economical transfer and consolidation of many small shipments of merchandise into one large shipment to the retailer.

The work of gathering the corner grocer's many little orders of goods produced by widely separated manufacturers in various parts of the country and delivering them to his door must be accomplished before the residents in his neighborhood can get their oatmeal and flour and canned goods, etc. What less expensive method can be adopted than a transfer and reshipping station or "jobber?"

For this reason, too, the mailorder business can never wholly supplant the jobber-retailer-consumer method from the several manufacturers and distributed to the consumer, and individual shipments can never be as cheaply handled as lump shipments.

been present at the LaFollette meeting and their failure to find even a bare mention of the meeting the next morning gave them a new light on the manner in which news is being suppressed when that news happens to concern a man who is known as the relentless enemy of Wall Street and its methods.

The Progressive Republican Campaign Committee has had printed a booklet giving in detail the Senator's public record. This booklet furnishes a remarkable refutation of the oft-repeated statement that Senator LaFollette is not a constructive statsman. It shows the reforms advocated by him have made Wisconsin a model state in the matter of legislation in the intesests of capital and the people alike; it shows what he has fought for since he came to Washington as a member of Congress, and it shows what he is fighting for now.

This booklet was prepared for the use of the numerous LaFollette clubs throughout the country, but copies of it can be had upon application to the Progressive Republican Campaign Committee, Washington, D. C.

It has often been declared that LaFollette's election as president would injure the business stability of the country. The same thing was said when he was a candidate for governor of Wisconsin. After his election, LaFollette put on the statute books many laws to protect the people. Among these was a banking law. Did this reform injure business in Wisconsin? The new booklet demonstrates that it did not.

"Since reorganizing the state banking inspection and suppervision in 1904," it says, "there has not been a single bank failure among the 507 state banks in that Commonwealth. The only failures have three national banks through embezzlement. During the years 1903 to 1910 the capital and surplus of all state and national banks in Wisconsin increased 54 per cent whereas for the entire United States they increased 46.6 per cent."

had recognized it as a practical science and that it was only a question of time when all would do so. He gave the head proportions of some of the great men like Bismark and Gladstone, and told why these men were great. To be successful a man's weight should be in the right proportion to the size of his head. Many men have failed in business because they weighed 25 pound too little or 25 pounds to much. He gave illustrations of successful men thruout this section who had become so thru following his advise.

What kind of business you will succeed in; whom you should not marry; whether you have a coarse nature or a fine nature; whether you like children; whether you are inclined to settle things by arbitration or fight right off the reel; that if your son is a fool, either you or both of you are to blame, not the boy; whether you get fleshier or thinner as the years roll by; that the bumps on your head are of no special significance; that you can change the shape of a childs head to the right proportions by the right courses of training; and that you are not to blame for all your bad characteristics, because you may have had a very poor training when a child.

started and while the men were sparring for holds, Munson appeared perfectly at ease; but Nordland was a trifle nervous, showing plainly that, tho he knew a lot about the game, it was his first appearance on the stage in a bout of consequence. Both men worked on the aggressive the fore part of the round, neither having much the better of it. Nordland tried repeatedly for the toe hold and hammer lock, but was too clumsy to make good. Munson secured all kinds of holds on Nordland which he easily broke, due to his weight and immense strength. The match then resolved itself into a question of who could last the longest, and as Munson was in the better condition, it finally became evident that the big fellow would have to succumb. Nordland was thrown in 59 minutes with the scissors and half Nelson, a hold which he easily broke earlier in the game. The second round was a repetition of the first, except that both men worked harder and faster and it lasted only 23 minutes.

Nordland wasn't in as good condition as Munson, and was greener at the game, but he seemed, so far as strength and build was concerned, to have the advantage. If Nordland has the right quality of gray matter, he can be developed into a worthy opponent for any man of his weight.

The house was just comfortably filled and everyone was well pleased with the match. The best of order and the best of good feeling prevailed at all times. The match was strictly on the square. Nordland was a trifle rough at times, but neither man attempted any dirty work, or was cautioned by the referee. Moth Munson and Nordland are examples of clean, straightforward young men. Neither man uses tobacco or liquor in any form, nor haunts places of rowdyism in his everyday life. They are very gentlemanly in their manner and behavior.

HELPFUL HINTS ON HAIR HEALTH.

Scalp and Hair Troubles Generally Caused by Carelessness.

Dandruff is a contagious disease caused by a microbe which also produces baldness. Never use a comb or brush belonging to some one else. No matter how cleanly the owner may be, these articles may be infected with microbes, which will infect your scalp. It is far easier to catch hair microbes than it is to get rid of them, and a single stroke of an infected comb or brush may well lead to baldness. Never try on anybody else's hat. Many a hat-band is a resting place for microbes.

If you happen to be troubled with dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair or baldness, we have a remedy which we believe will completely relieve these troubles. We are so sure of this that we offer it to you with the understanding that it will cost you nothing for the trial if it does not produce the results we claim. This remedy is called Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. We honestly believe it to be the most scientific remedy for scalp and hair troubles, and we know of nothing else that equals it for effectiveness, because of the results it has produced in thousands of cases.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is devised to banish dandruff, restore natural color when its loss has been brought about by disease, and make the hair naturally silky, soft and glossy. It does this because it stimulates the hair follicles, destroys the germ matter, and brings about a free, healthy circulation of blood, which nourishes the hair roots, causing them to tighten and grow new hair. We want everybody who has any trouble with hair or scalp to know that we think that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is the best hair tonic and restorative in existence, and no one should scoff at or doubt this statement until they have put our claims to a fair test, with the understanding that they pay us nothing for the remedy if it does not give full and complete satisfaction in every particular. Two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at our store—The Rexall Store.

"Showing" the Boxers.

An incident of the Boxer rebellion, when Yuan Shih Kai was viceroy of Chili, gives a suggestion of his quality, notes the Outlook. A number of the Boxer chiefs of his province came to ask him to take part in the leadership of their movement. [illegible] impossible that [illegible] were possessed of a magic which made them invulnerable to foreign bullets. Expressing great interest in this invulnerability, Yuan invited them to an excellent dinner. When they had dined he declared that it would be a very simple matter to test the invulnerability, because his soldiers were equipped with foreign guns. He thereupon conducted his guests to the courtyard, stood them up against a wall and, with a company of his own soldiers armed with foreign rifles, made a convincing test of the matter. Strange to say, not a single Boxer proved invulnerable.

TAFT'S FRIENDS GETTING BUSY

Will Open Headquarters in Washington at Once.

HILLES TO BE IN CHARGE

President's Secretary to Manage Campaign to Secure Delegates Favorable to Administration.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Within another month, probably earlier, the country will be stirred by a struggle between the friends of President Taft and the followers of ex-President Roosevelt for delegates to the next Republican national convention.

President Taft's friends, thoroughly alarmed over the growth of the Roosevelt movement and the surprising strength developed by Senator La Follette, have determined to open headquarters at once and begin a nationwide quest for delegates.

The headquarters will be located in Washington. Charles D. Hilles, secretary to the president, will temporarily relinquish the office he now holds and take charge of the Taft campaign. If his campaign succeeds he will become chairman of the Republican national committee. It is believed that Postmaster General Hitchcock could have the job, but declined it.

Funds for the Campaign.

Arrangements for the campaign are in the hands of Senators Crane of Massachusetts, Penrose of Pennsylvania and Smoot of Utah. The relationship of these men to large business interests is expected to result in liberal contributions to the Taft campaign fund. Senator Crane said that he believed that President Taft could count upon a solid delegation from the New England states. This is an optimistic view. It is known that there is a strong Roosevelt under current in Massachusetts and the La Follette movement has made considerable headway there. The same situation exists in New Hampshire, where Governor Bass is classed as a progressive. Vermont is said to favor Associate Justice Hughes over either Mr. Taft or Colonel Roosevelt, but would prefer Mr. Taft to Roosevelt.

DINES WITH THE COLONEL

Governor Glasscock Believes Roosevelt Would Accept Nomination.

New York, Jan. 27.—William E. Glasscock, governor of West Virginia, called at the Outlook office to see Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and took part in a luncheon engagement with the former president. When the governor left he said that he still was of the opinion that Mr. Roosevelt should and would be nominated.

"I think he will never be a candidate for the office," Mr. Glasscock said. "I am not authorized to speak for Colonel Roosevelt, nor am I attempting to do so, but it is my opinion that he will have to be nominated without being a candidate."

"Do you think that he would accept the nomination?"

"It is my personal opinion that he would if the American people ask him to accept. This is not based, however, on anything that Colonel Roosevelt said. We discussed the weather conditions in general—but nothing about the political situation that I would care to repeat. I do not think, however, that Colonel Roosevelt will be a candidate in the sense that Clark, Harmon and Wilson are candidates."

HAS CARRIED OUT PLEDGES

President Defends Record of the Administration.

Cleveland, Jan. 30.—The big event of the president's first day in his own state came at the McKinley day banquet, given by the Tippecanoe club at the chamber of commerce. Addressing 650 Northern Ohio Republicans the president made a stirring appeal to the Republican party to stand by its guns and rest confident that it has carried out the pledges it made to the people of the United States. He declared that he faced the future with equanimity and in the belief that the judgment of the country would prove him right in his opinion.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

The only Baking Powder made from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar

NO ALUM, NO LIME PHOSPHATE

ALMOST A TRAGEDY

By GEORGE C. BATEMAN.

One Saturday afternoon, not having anything better to do, I went to a vaudeville show in which trained birds, trained animals and trained human beings performed tricks. There was a young married couple among the performers who excited more interest than any of the others. They were both experts with the rifle. The husband would first shoot a bullet into an apple resting on his wife's head; then the wife would do the same with reference to her husband. The room was not darkened, for the day was clear, and the sun shone in through the west windows. The husband first played William Tell, his wife playing Albert; then the wife played Tell to her husband's Albert.

I had but recently come in from the far west and had been obliged again and again to do all kinds of shooting. In a place where a man's life is constantly dependent upon the sureness of his aim he becomes very expert, but there is no one who more fully realizes the danger of trying to shoot near some one without hitting him. These are the reasons why my heart stood still every time one of this couple fired at the apple on the other's head. Had they been enemies, each trying to get in the first shot, it wouldn't have troubled me a bit.

They began their performance by the husband shooting at the apple on the wife's head. Wild west man that I was, my heart stood still till it was over. Then the husband took position to be shot at, and his wife did the shooting. I was watching them from a rear seat. Indeed, I sat several rows back of any one else. I had come from a country where persons were fond of elbow room, and I didn't like sitting in the crowd. The wife was taking aim at the apple and I was feeling all wrought up over it when suddenly I saw a little spot of sunlight flash on her face. At the same moment she pulled the trigger. Giving a shriek, she fell on the floor. Her husband ran up to her and took her in his arms.

Now, the cause of this show that was not down on the bills flashed upon me at once. Some one had thrown a ray of sunlight from glass or polished metal in the wife's eye just as she was about to fire. Turning my glance aside, I saw a man putting something in his vest pocket. The sunlight pouring through a window shone on him. There was a curious look on his face of dread, revenge, disappointment, all mingled in one. I knew I had struck an unwritten story—a story that had barely escaped being a tragedy.

I sat perfectly still, keeping one eye on what was going on the stage, the other on my man by the window. As soon as his wife recovered from her swoon the husband announced to the audience that something had interfered with his wife's aim, but fortunately she had fired too high; he was unhurt. Some of the audience were contemptible enough to call "Try again," but the little woman was unnerved, and she and her husband left [illegible] They had scarcely gone when the man by the window got up and went [illegible] to a saloon which he entered and got something to steady his nerves. I went in myself since I didn't want to lose him.

If ever the devil was in one he was in me then. The man saw me looking at him and, having taken his drink, went out and walked down the street. He looked back and saw me following him. Then he went on till the street became a road with a wood on either side.

I hadn't got used to going without my weapon yet. I had tried to and found it like going without a bunch of keys or a knife in one's pocket that had always been there. I had it with me now. When the man got away from houses he turned and said to me sharply:

"Why are you following me?"

"I want to shoot a chip off your head."

"A lunatic?"

"Maybe. Pick up that chip beside you and put it on your head."

I saw him feeling for a weapon, but before he could get it out I had him covered and ordered him to throw up his hands, which he did. Then when I had convinced him that he was in my power I made him pick up the chip and put it on his head. He did so, and I knocked it off with a bullet. I made him put it back on his head again, but this time instead of knocking it off I cut off a part of his ear.

He was in an abject terror. I asked him how he would like to put a ray of sunlight in my eye to see whether it would injure my aim. He turned white as a sheet. I kept on shooting, putting every bullet within an inch or two of him, till I had fired five shots. Then I slipped cartridges in the empty chambers. I bit him several times in fleshy parts of his body, then told him to go, and if he ever interfered with the couple again I would kill him. He was glad to get away with his life.

That evening I called on the young couple, told them that I had seen a man throw the sunlight in the wife's eyes and described him. They knew at once who he was and told me all about the matter between them, but it is too long a story to tell here. I told the young man to let the fellow alone. He wouldn't likely trouble him again.

"But if he does," I added, "just you send for me."

Advice on the Highway.

"Be a speedway," said Brother Dickey, "but onderstan' well how ter slow up. Reason so many folks gits pitched over de fence into de brier patch er life is kaze dey dunno dat de fence is dar ontel dey hits it. So watch out whar you is an' how is you!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Transferred.

"I hope you liked the pie, Henry," ventured a young wife, casting an anxious glance at her husband, soon after dinner. "I bestowed great pains on the crust."

"I thought you did, my dear," he said, "for I've got the pains now."

Strong Talk.

Eric—I say, father, can whisky speak?

Papa—No, my boy. Why?

Eric—Oh, I heard mother say the drink was beginning to tell on you.

Official Paper of the City

FRIDAY, FEB. 2, 1912

Wm. E. Lee has come into the field as an active candidate for Governor. He is a man of great ability and unflinching integrity. He is a man of great business experience and best of all if he is elected governor he will go to the chair unhampered by promises and without being tied up by strings from the interests that elected him. In other words if elected he will be governor and not merely a stool pigeon.

J. A. A. Burnquist, the talented young member of the lower house from St. Paul, is being mentioned as a possible candidate for congressman-at-large. Mr. Burnquist has served as a member of the legislature for two terms and gained considerable notoriety last year on account of his spectacular campaign for the speakership. He is an able man and would make a first rate congressman. Here's hoping that he will be given the opportunity.—Lake City G. Republican.

Candidates for the Governorship it is said are numerous. We predict that they will become still more numerous. It appears that the machine is not completely satisfied with the present incumbent and altho he is a candidate for re-election they are doing some tall skirmishing to bring out a candidate that might be more acceptable to the common people and yet one who in the main would do their bidding and thus become a even better tool in their hands than their present tool. There is strong bidding for the Honorable Canfield of Rock county to enter the field as the substitute candidate. The trick is the same old trick that has so often been played on the voters of Minnesota, that of getting a man whom the people naturally would trust and then bringing him out in such a way as to make him under obligations to do the bidding of the Machine manager.

WILL LOOK FOR HIS SHADOW TO-DAY

Today is the day the ground-hog and other members of the hibernating family arouse from their sleep and come out to get a line on the weather for the remaining part of the winter. If he sees his shadow, he doesn't even stop to get a drink but goes right back for another seven weeks of peaceful sleep, while cold weather and storms prevail out-side. If he does not see his shadow, he takes off his coat and immediately begins preparations for spring work. Last year the ground-hog saw his shadow and went back for nine weeks. However, this was an exceptional case.

Praises Smith as a Referre

Otto Nordland in a letter to the sporting editor of the Press this week says he thinks Smith one of the best wrestling referees in the business today. He was especially well pleased with Smith's work on Thursday night. He says that he misjudged Munson or would have been in better condition. He believes that in a return match he can throw Munson, and wants to get on with him sometime before the end of this month.

SCHOOL NOTES

The practical nature of the Short Course in the high school is examplified in one case, wherein Oscar Stenvik, a student from Torgerson in the town of Reiner, is making a set of heavy bobsleds. The material used is oak and the ironing is being done in the blacksmith shop. This set will be stronger and more serviceable than any offered for sale down town at $35, and will not cost him more than $15 for material. A wise combination of book, laboratory and shop work constitutes this short course.

Last week was the beginning in the second semester and the new program was put in operation in the high school. Several new subjects have been introduced and a number of changes inaugurated.

Mr. Haskin has completed some needed improvements in his agricultural recitation rooms. New shelving and tables admit of more satisfactory work.

Preference is given the short course boys in the blacksmith shop. The boys are taught in clases of six.

Parents ought to scrutinize every item on the monthly reports, which will be distributed next Monday. Inquiry ought also to be made of teacher or superintendent as to failure or misunderstanding of the records.

The proposed 1912 convention of the Northwestern Minnesota Teachers' Association, called to meet at Crookston in February has been postponed until fall, when it will convene at Thief River Falls. Good hotel accomodations are essential in the entertainment of such a body, as all meetings have been attended by at least 750 people.

State high school board examinations were offered this week in six subjects. Next week a teachers' examination for certificates will take place at the Normal room in the Lincoln. County Superintendent A. E. Mostue will have charge of the latter.

Some of the local teachers will attend the Bemidji teachers' meeting next week. The North Central Association meets in the neighboring city at that time.

Arthur Nordland Challenges

After the Munson-Nordland match, Arthur Nordland, brother to Otto Nordland, issued a challenge to wrestle Munson on or about February 15. Arthur weighs 160 lbs., and believes he can throw Munson. He is willing to losse a side bet of $20.00 and take the losers end of the gate receipts if he can't deliver the goods. If he feels that way about it when it comes to a show down, there won't be any difficulty in arranging a match.

season will be cited and the creamery reports for the year just past will be published.

The real estate men are surely doing a great work in advertising this section, and although it may be done for selfish motives, every land owner and every man doing business in this city of any character will in the end profit more than the land man himself.

The year just passed has been the heaviest in Cream receipts of that of any other year being 14 per cent larger than 1910. But on account of lower price on butter during the past year, our gross receipt is 7½ per cent less than that of 1910.

On acount of the unsanitary conditions prevailing at Creamery, the Creamery Board last fall decided to undertake a complete reconstruction of the entire building as well as equip it with more modern machinery to meet the requirement of today being both sanitary and convenient.

The contemplated improvement at the Creamery is not quite finished yet, but will be taken up again as soon as milder weather sets in.

Twenty-three hundred dollars has already been paid out on the improvements, but it will require another 300 dollars to finish the work.

The expenses in connection with rebuilding the Creamery does not in the least affect the prices on butterfat because the one half cent or the 1 cent to the sinking fund which the patrons are assessed for every month is sufficient to handle the maintainance of the factory as well as its equipment in machinery.

Our business is in a splendid flourishing condition and with the building and equipment we now have, we have every reason to believe that we will be doing better the coming year than ever before.

On behalf of Board,
P. Engelstad, Sec'y.

From the Nations Capital

criticism directed against the system of using the Post Office Department for political purposes, so when Mr. Hilles was appointed Secretary to the President in April, 1911, (so the story goes) President Taft gradually turned to his Secretary for political advice, instead of going to Hitchcock, as had been his custom. In other words, the management of the machine was transferred from the Post Office Department to the White House, or an attempt was made in that direction. Hitchcock is said to have resented this attempt There is no denying that down in his heart Hitchcock is a Roosevelt man, and the report will not down that the Postmaster General would be glad of some reasonable excuse which would permit of his resigning and going over to his former chief.

While the whole Hitchcock episode is not important in itself, by many it is taken as an indication of the turning away from Taft of many of his former supporters. There is no enthusiasm for the President even among his most intimate personal admirers, and this condition is growing. As pointed out in a previous letter the stand-pat element in the Republican party, which would naturally be for Taft, is gradually breaking away from him and is seeking for some political Moses to lead the party to victory. Old wheel horses like Penrose, Dalzell, Cannon, Payne, not to mention many others, do not warm up to Taft but consider him a political blunderer, and that to give him the nomination would spell defeat for the Republican party in November. They were mad clear through when he called the extra session last Spring for the purpose of enacting Canadian reciprocity. They didn't want the extra session, because it enabled the Democrats to do some tariff legislation, which made it embarrassing for the Republicans and furnished the Democrats with campaign material. Then the stand-pat element within the party was violently opposed to Canadian reciprocity, because it was an entering wedge for lower tariff schedules.

It is surprising how many Roosevelt men you meet among members of Congress,—men who have been strongly anti-Roosevelt but who now see in the Colonel the salvation of the party. They talk Roosevelt in and out of session. A prominent Republican leader from West Virginia, who has always been closely identified with the stand-pat element, recently said to me: "I believe that fully forty-per cent. of the Republican membership of the House is anti-Taft, and the opposition is growing In my own State, Roosevelt is by all odds the favorite However, I do not think Roosevelt could carry New York State, and therefore might not be a desirable Presidential nominee. If the party could unite on some such man as Hughes of New York, who is moderately progressive, to head the ticket, and Cummins of Iowa or Clapp of Minnesota as a running mate, I think that combination would be a winner. To secure a winning ticket, the move should be to get uninstructed delegates, who are known to be anti-Taft."

Generally speaking the Progressive Republicans are agreed that the coming out of Cummins as a Presidential candidate was a good move politically. While apparently it splits up the Progressive forces, yet it is a split away from Taft. Without Cummins in the field there was the danger that Taft might capture the Iowa delegation. Then Cummins will reach out into some of the adjoining States, and pick up some delegates that are neither LaFollette nor Roosevelt. It is certain that the Cummins supporters will make no effort to land delegates where LaFollette or Roosevelt are strong enough to head off Taft delegates. It is recognized here that the supporters of Roosevelt, LaFollette and Cummins are working to a common end,—the elimination of Presidnt Taft as a factor in the convention. There are indications that "favorite sons" will come out in other States, in the persons of Albert J. Beveridge, Indiana; Gov. Hiram Johnson, California; and Gov. Hadley of Missouri. These will all pull delegates away from Taft. So far as attempting to eliminate Taft as the party nominee, both Progressives and old line Republicans will present practically an unbroken front. Both are working to that end,—the Progressives working openly and the other faction secretly.

THIEF RIVER IS RECOGNIZED

Hon. Halvor Stteenerson Introduces Bill For Federal Building Here.

Hon. Halvor Steenerson has introduced a bill in congress wherein is provided for a federal building in the city of Thief River Falls. The bill has already been referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and stands a very good show of passing. The bill reads as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United State of America in Congress assembled, that the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to acquire, by purchase, condemnation or otherwise, a siutable site in the city of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, and to cause to be erected thereon a suitable building, with fireproof vaults, heating and ventilating apparatus, and approaches complete, for the accomodation of the postoffice and other Government offices in said city at a total limit of cost, including site, of $75,000.

That the building when constructed shall be unexposed to danger from fire in adjacent buildings by an open space of at least forty feet on each side including streets and alleys.

HAVE PETITIONED FOR OPENING ROAD

The progressive farmers of the towns of Rocksbury and Smiley have petitioned for the opening of two miles of road on the range line between sections 12 and 13, and 7 and 8. The road is to run south from district 26 school house and connect directly with the Hazel road. There is now a good road running from the school house to Thief River.

Announcement

To Patrons of the Lyceum Course, and the public in general:

The next and fourth attraction on the local lyceum course will be Ralph Parlette, the writer editor humorist and orator of good cheer. No man ever came to us with stronger endorsements, and those who have heard him say that he is even better better than the advance hearlding promises. Each year of the fifteen he has been on the platform, he has been gathering strength, and his popularity has grown. He has the reputation of being one of the most successful men on the platform in both entertaining and uplifting his audiences. He always leaves a lot of truth for his hearers after the laugh is gone. We cannot urge our readers too strongly to hear Ralph Parlette.

Parlette will be at the Auditorium, Friday evening Feb. 9th.

Amusements

At The Lyceum.

Foster and Ihle, in their Novelty Electrical Musical Act, will be at the Lyceum theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. They come with high recommendations as refined, classy and up-to-date musical artists. Manager Morgan announces that he has completed arrangements for having vaudeville the last half of every week, and that the acts will be the best a-going. Special films will be put on at the Lyceum tonight.

At The Auditorium.

Ralph Parlette.

The bureau of Ralph Parlette, who comes to lecture at the Auditorium Feb. 9th, report his season sold long ahead, with more demands than they can fill, and the local Lyceum Committee was fortunate indeed in being able to secure him. His lecture will come nearer pleasing all tastes with his humor, philosophy and eloquence, than any speaker we have had in years.

WHO IS RALPH PARLETTE?

Undoubtedly the public knows, but to refresh feeble memories, here goes:

Ralph Parlette is Americas foremost living humorist. On the stage he is naturally, winningly and irresistably funny. To admit that one has not heard Parlette is to admit unfamiliarity with the best contemporaneous humor. Ralph Parlette is an orator of high rank—his eloquence and rhetorical powers alone would place him on the very top of the ladder of fame. Ralph Parlette is a philosopher and philanthropist. He is more than a funny man, a humorist. He has the rare gift of combining humor with wisdom, with kindliness, jokes with pathos—and the result of hearing his lecture is that you go away, not merely stiff and stupid from excessive laughter, but with a new, healthy, optimistic view of life.

Burglars Loot Morgan Home.

New York, Jan. 30.—During January thieves have stolen more than $100,000 worth of jewelry in New York city, according to the police lists. A notable section of the list is devoted to loot taken by burglars who entered the home of J. P. Morgan, Jr., last Thursday night. The haul included two watches, other jewels and American. English and French money.

The Vacuous Life.

People without any form of religion, without superstition, devoid of any thought of the future state, have been found in the interior forests of Sumatra, according to Dr. Wilhelm Volz, the geologist of the University of Breslau, who made extensive journeys though the island. There he found the Kubus, as he named them, who are scarcely to be distinguished from the small manlike ape of the Indo-Malayan countries. They are wanderers through the forest seeking food. They have no property. They are not hunters, but simply collectors. They seek merely sufficient nuts, fruits and other edible growths to keep them alive. The Kubus wage very little warfare upon the small amount of animal life in their silent and somber land. The only notion he could get from them of a difference between a live and a dead person was that the dead do not breathe. He infers that they are immeasurably inferior to the paleolithic man of Europe who fashioned tools and hunted big game with his flint tipped arrow and knife. Intellectual atrophy is the result of the Kubus' environment. The words they know are almost as few as the ideas they try to express.—Chicago News.

[illegible] the world is [illegible] Island, in South [illegible]ca, for the reason that during some months of the year it is literally covered with gannets. Not a foot of ground is to be seen anywhere. Day after day thousands of gannets strut around, and they are so close to each other that the whole island seems actually alive. Those who have seen this sight say that it is one which can never be forgotten.

Pleasant For Him.

Blowe—But I asked you, my dear girl, to keep our little affair secret for the present. His Intended—I couldn't help it. That hateful Miss Oldun said the reason I wasn't married was because no fool had asked me, so I up and told her you had.—London Telegraph.

A Case of Arbitration.

A rat and a weasel found an egg. They arbitrated about it. A cat was the arbitrator. He promptly awarded the egg to the rat. The rat ate the egg. The cat then ate the rat. The cat believes in arbitration. The rat doesn't. —Japan Musashino.

Had It All Over Again.

"The other night I went to an amateur theatrical performance, and then I went home and had a terrible dream."

"What did you dream?"

"I dreamed that I went to it again."

Tree-Ripened Oranges Cost No More

The finest oranges in the world—the prize crop of 5,000 California groves—are "Sunkist."

These are the perfect oranges with the valuable wrappers. Your dealer will supply you with luscious "Sunkist" oranges—that ripen on the tree—a finer flavor than you have ever before tasted—at no higher prices than you have paid for those of much less quality.

Insist on each orange coming to you in a wrapper marked "Sunkist." For such are genuine.

Most Healthful of All Fruit

Children's "sweet tooth" is satisfied by this wholesome fruit. Healthful and economical "Sunkist" oranges now take the place of sweets in many homes.

Beautiful Orange Spoon Yours

Save 12 "Sunkist" orange or lemon wrappers, or trademarks cut from wrappers, and send them to us, with 12c in stamps to help pay charges, packing, etc., and we will send you this genuine Rogers' silver orange spoon. For each additional spoon send 12 wrappers or trademarks and 12c in stamps. Not responsible for cash sent through the mails.

Fruit Knife for 24 Wrappers and 20c in stamps. Excellent quality—genuine Rogers' silver.

14 "Sunkist" Premiums

Table Knife	Oyster Fork
Table Fork	Child's Fork
Dessert Spoon	Orange Spoon
Child's Knife	Fruit Knife
Bouillon Spoon	Teaspoon
Coffee Spoon	Tablespoon
Salad Fork	Butter Spreader

Send for full description, number of wrappers and amount of cash necessary to secure each article.

Economical "Sunkist" Lemons

Thin-skinned, extra juicy, and each comes in a valuable "Sunkist" wrapper. Insist on them. [illegible] go farther than other lemons. They cost no more and the wrappers are valuable.

SOLVES A DEEP MYSTERY

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart," wrote C. B. Rader, of Lewisburg, W. Va., "for the wonderful double benefit I got from Electric Bitters, in curing me of both a severe case of stomach trouble and of rheumatism, from which I had been an almost helpless sufferer for ten years. It suited my case as tho made just for me." For dyspepsia, indigestion, jaundice and to rid the system of kidney poisons that cause rheumatism, Electric Bitters has no equal. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50c at all Druggists.

WHY IT SUCCEEDS

Because It's for One Thing Only, and Thief River Falls People Appreciate [illegible].

Nothing can be good for everything. Doing one thing well brings success.

Doan's Kidney Pills do one thing only.

They help sick kidneys.

They relieve backache, kidney and bladder trouble.

Here is Thief River Falls evidence to prove it.

E. S. Alnes, 313 N. Main St., Thief River Falls, Minn., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in my family with such excellent results that I feel as if I were doing no more than my duty to the residents of Thief River Falls in recommending them. In case of kidney [illegible] Doan's Kidney Pills act pr[illegible] procured my supply at Cur[illegible] Store and have no doubt of t[illegible] its."

Forsale by all dealers. Price 50c Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Stickney Gasoline Engines ARE THE BEST

No. 26

Don't Buy Hulls

A stroke bushel of wheat weighs 60 pounds, while a stroke bushel of oats weighs only 32 pounds, because of the oat hull. A stroke bushel of hulled oats will weigh 60 pounds. Don't buy hulls, but buy a full weight Stickney Engine in which every pound represents true horse-power value.

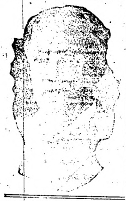
DAVID STARR JORDAN.

Educator Highly Honored by the Japanese Emperor.



GIVEN ORDER OF HIGH RANK

Dr. David Starr Jordan Decorated by Mikado.

Palo Alto, Cal., Jan. 27.—Dr. David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford university, was decorated with the Meiji order of the sacred treasure, [illegible] the [illegible] conferred by the emperor of Japan upon any person not a Japanese subject.

Matsuzo Nagai, Japanese consul at San Francisco, conducted the ceremony, stating that the honor was conferred in recognition of Dr. Jordan's advocacy of international peace.

As a member of the order Dr. Jordan becomes an honorary member of the Japanese nobility.

SOCIALISTS NOW IN FIRST PLACE

Lead All Others Numerically in German Reichstag.

Berlin, Jan. 27.—The political complexion of the new reichstag as determined by the final result of the thirty-three reballots taken Thursday is shown by the following general party groupings. The subordinate or allied factions are included for convenience with the parties with which they generally vote.

Socialists, 110; Progressive Non-Socialist groups, 95, including 46 National Liberals, 42 Radical People's party, [illegible] peasants and others; [illegible] and 7 progressive [illegible]; Clericals, with Polish, Alsatian, Hanoverian particularists, 122; Conservatives, allied parties, 70; Independent, 1.

The Socialists return as the strongest individual party, their total being brought up to 110 by winning eleven of the 21 reballots in which they participated Thursday. This is more than double their strength, which was fifty-three at the time of the dissolution, and twenty-nine above their previous maximum in 1903.

MANY RAILROADS ACCUSED

Complaints Filed That Unreasonably High Rates Are Charged.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The corporation commission of Oklahoma has filed complaints with the interstate commerce commission for alleged unreasonably high rates charged by railroads on bags, cotton bale ties and other supplies used by cotton gins and mills from St. Louis, Memphis, New Orleans and Texas cities to Oklahoma points.

STEEL WORKERS BADLY TREATED

Attorney Brandeis Says They Are Worse Than Slaves.

CLASH AT INVESTIGATION

Attorney for Committee and Counsel for Giant Coporation Cross Swords at Washington Hearing—Working Conditions in England Said to Be Far Better.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Louis M. Brandeis of Boston and D. A. Reed, counsel for the United States Steel corporation, clashed before the Stanley committee over a line of inquiry into the corporation's labor policy. Mr. Reed contended the committee had no authority to investigate the labor question. Chairman Stanley overruled him.

Mr. Brandeis challenged Judge Gary's recent statement that the corporation's treatment of employes compared favorably with that of any other and introduced portions of the report upon the steel industry, recently made by Commissioner Neill of the bureau of labor. He criticised the length of hours of workmen.

"The percentage of men who undergo hardships is unusually large," said Mr. Brandeis. "Judge Gary's comment on criticisms of the corporation's labor policy shows to me the utter inability of large corporations to regard human life."

Mr. Brandeis declared "that the steel industry in England has eliminated entirely all these objectionable features."

"You don't mean England has been able to do anything for labor that we can't do in this country?" demanded Chairman Stanley. "You must be mistaken."

Insists He Is Correct.

"Unfortunately in this case I am not mistaken," returned Mr. Brandeis, saying that the working week of and English steel workers was 55.2 hours and that 42 per cent of the workers in this country averaged seventy-two hours.

"Mr. Carnegie has said the steel business was a case of feast or famine, prince or pauper, in the early days. Today with the steel corporation it is a case of [illegible] and pauperizing," said Mr. Brandeis.

He charged that the steel workers were worse than slaves.

"The slave owners were human," he said, "and slaves came into personal contact with their owners. On the other hand the owners of this steel corporation are in the position exactly similar to the absentee landlords in Ireland and through their stock distribution scheme to employes has been brought about a condition exactly comparable to the appalling rack rent conditions in Ireland."

REV. DR. M. C. PETERS.

New York Minister Who Follows the Lead of Mayor Lew Shank.

DR. PETERS TURNS GROCER

New York, Jan. 27.—Rev. Dr. Madison C. Peters, emulating Mayor Lew Shank of Indianapolis, is going to run a grocery store here and sell full weights at low prices.

"I knew that the farmers were getting $9,000,000,000 for their products and that the consumers were paying $13,000,000,000 for them," said Dr. Peters, "and it seemed to me that that was too wide a margin.

"Christ wrought a miracle to feed the multitude," he continued. "I cannot work a miracle, but in the matter of bringing food to the poor people I believe that I can come pretty near it."

IRON AND STEEL TARIFF SLASHED

House Reduces Metal Schedule an Average of 35 Per Cent.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The Democratic metal tariff revision, to make reductions averaging 35 per cent from the existing steel and iron duties of the Payne-Aldrich law, passed the house by a vote of 20 to 105. Republican efforts to amend or debate the bill were brought to a sudden end when Democratic Leader Underwood refused to permit the offering of further amendments and forced the house to a vote upon the final passage of the measure.

Twenty progressive Republicans voted for the measure, while the Democratic delegation from Colorado, Representatives Martin, Rucked and Taylor, dissatisfied with the great reduction proposed in the lead tariff, voted against the Democratic majority.

The Republicans who supported the bill, all progressives, were: Representatives Davis and Lindbergh, Minnesota; Haugen, Hubbard and Woods, Iowa; Helgessen, North Dakota; Jackson, Murdock and Young, Kansas; Kent and Stephens, California; Kinkaid, Norris and Sloan, Nebraska; Lafferty, Oregon; La Follette and Warburton, Washington; Lenroot, Morse and Nelson, Wisconsin.

The bill will face a stormy reception in the senate. It will be referred to the finance committee. Both Republican and Democratic senators have been deferring other legislation with a view to concentrating attention on the tariff measures as they emerge from the house, but no course of action has been mapped out.

WITNESS DEFENDS PACKERS

Conspiracy in Restraint of Trade Denied by Chief Accountant.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—That the National Packing company established no uniformity of prices for any locality; that it did not require its branch managers to return a fixed profit and that there could have been no agreement between the four leading packing interests for profit margins and shipment limitations, was the declaration made by Steiner G. Langher, chief accountant for the Hammond Packing company, a subsidiary of the National, in the trial of the packers.

POWDER MAGAZINE EXPLODES

Many Lives Lost and Much Property Destroyed.

Kulja, Chinese Turkestan, Jan. 26.—Many lives were lost and several hundred houses destroyed by a terrific explosion at the powder magazine in the old city of Suidum, which lies to the north of New Kulja.

Boiling Lard Kills Child.

Boone, Ia., Jan. 30.—Hugh Arthur, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Landger Daywa, was burned so badly when he pulled a kettle of boiling lard from the table and spilled the contents over his head that he died a few hours later.

THREATEN ANOTHER REVOLT

Friends of Slain Ecuadorian Officers Vow Vengeance.

Quito, Ecuador, Jan. 30.—Vowing that they would exact blood for blood, and that high officialdom will pay for the brutal killing of five revolutionary generals Sunday, friends of the dead soldiers prepared to foster another revolution.

It was predicted that conditions of anarchy are imminent throughout the country.

The brutality of lynchings and the fact the government made no attempt to protect the unfortunates, who in surrendering had been promised their lives would be spared, is cited as evidence that the lynchings were fostered. The president and his immediate followers, they say, wanted every one connected with the Montero revolution out of the way, but lacked courage to have them courtmartialed and shot.

MINING MEN ARE FAR APART

Workers and Operators Hold Conference Without Any Result.

Indianapolis, Jan. 30.—Miners and operators in the bituminous coal mining industry are agreed that there is small chance of the present joint interstate wage conference to reach an agreement. It is believed the demands of the miners for shorter hours and increased wages and the proposals of the operators for longer hours and decreased wages are too far apart to permit of an immediate compromise.

Children Narrowly Escape.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Jan. 30.—The boiling of coffee for a meal in a copper coffeepot came near causing the death of the six children of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Watson, who reside on a farm in Douglas county. The coffee was poisoned by the copper, it is believed, as the children suddenly became seriously ill. Timely arrival of a doctor saved their lives.

CHARGE DARROW WITH BRIBERY

Los Angeles Grand Jury Returns Two Indictments.

ECHO OF THE M'NAMARA TRIAL

Noted Union Labor Attorney of Chicago Declares He Is Innocent of Any Crime.

Los Angeles, Jan. 30.—Two months of uncertainty and suspense ended for Clarence S. Darrow, the noted union labor attorney, when the county grand jury, which for four weeks has been investigating allegations of corruption in connection with the trial jury in the McNamara dynamite case, returned two indictments charging him with bribery.

There are four counts in the two bills. Two of the counts charge Darrow with the bribery and attempted corruption of Robert Bain, the first juror sworn to try James B. McNamara, the confessed dynamiter and murderer now serving a life term in San Quentin prison. The remaining counts allege the bribery and corruption of George N. Lockwood, a venireman summoned in the McNamara case.

Bert Franklin, the detective who is alleged actually to have passed the bribe money to Bain and Lockwood, is accused of the same offense in information filed some time ago in the superior court and his trial has been set for Feb. 27.

The maximum penalty could be imposed upon Darrow for conviction on all counts is thirty years' imprisonment and fines aggregating $10,000. He is under $20,000 bail, but the former chief counsel for the McNamaras said he was glad the suspense was over and that he faced his arraignment Thursday in the superior court with an equanimity born of his own innocence.

"One guiltless of crime could hardly expect anything else than an acquittal," he said smiling.

Mrs. Lecompte Davis, wife of one of Darrow's associates in the McNamara case, and Colonel Charles S. Young, a friend of the accused lawyer, supplied the bail fixed by Judge N. P. Conrey, who sat for Presiding Judge George H. Hutton.

WOODMEN INCREASE RATES

Fraternal Order Adopts Plan Raising Insurance Premiums.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—The head camp of the Modern Woodmen of America adopted the proposed readjustment plan, increasing the life insurance rates of the society, and closed the adjourned regular meeting here. The measure was carried by a vote of 460 to 207.

The plan adopted, which will be in force after one year, will increase rates of members under fifty-four years old by from 50 to 100 per cent. Members over fifty-four may not be assessed more than $3 each assessment for each $1,000 and not more than twelve assessments and one special assessment may be made each year. If the $3 is more than the member can pay he may pay $2 and the other dollar will be deducted from the face of his policy.

ITALIANS DRIVE OFF TURKS

Use Artillery in Repelling Fierce Assault.

Tripoli, Jan. 30.—The Turkish forces resumed their movement against Ghirgarish, a small oasis about twelve miles from Tripoli, which has been the scene recently of numerous engagements between the Turks and Italians, and at the same time another force of 3,000 Turks and Arabs delivered a determined attack on Ainzara, some miles inland.

The fierce Italian artillery fire, however, compelled the assaulting forces to fall back toward the south and southwest.

The Italian casualties numbered two killed and eight wounded.

BANK CLOSES ITS DOORS

Dead Treasurer Held Responsible for Suspension.

Windsor Locks, Conn., Jan. 30.—Their savings of years in jeopardy more than 1,000 families in this village and vicinity were stupefied over the closing of the Windsor Locks Saving bank, following the death of its treasurer, Alfred W. Converse, who is blamed for an apparent shortage of $175,000. Some of the depositors are penniless, while many local business men are facing ruin.

THIRTY DIE IN EARTHQUAKE

Property Loss Estimated at Six Hundred Thousand.

London, Jan. 27.—The earthquake in the Ionian island of Zante destroyed the village and damaged property in the capital to the value of $600,000, according to an Athens dispatch to the Daily Mail.

The death roll is thirty, and the government has sent warships to the island with provisions and tents.

OIL ENGINES WILL SOON BE PLACED

The two mammoth Diesel oil engines for the auxiliary electric plant are here and being moved this week by Emil Sedlacek to the power house. The engines with fixtures weigh each about 100,000 pounds, but Emil is handling them easily, and by the end of the week will have them to the house. Emil is working for the Northwestern Electric Equipment Company, who, in their contract, guarantee to install all apparatus and leave it in satisfactory working order. The big oil tank and the generators are on the way and will be here in a day or two. It is expected that the plant will be in perfect running order by March 1st.

THE PURPOSE OF ALL IS THE PROGRESS OF HUMANITY

VOL. XXV THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1912. NO. 23

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THIS FARMER MADE GOOD

Will Tell What He Thinks of this Country. A Few Earlier Experiences.

Thief River Falls, Minn.,
Feb. 9, 1912.

Editor of the Press:

This has been a pretty cold winter but I feel good just the same. When a farmer has been in this country a few years he should be so well fixed that he does not need to work when it is cold, that is what I think.

Well as I said before it has been pretty cold and I have stuck to the stove a good deal. The boys have been doing the work and that left me all kinds of time to read the papers and think. As I sat thinking one day I thot I would write you a few lines. Just to let you know what I think of this country.

I understand that you are some kind of a farmer yourself, so you will better understand me than some of the city fellows. You know a lot of these fellows in town think every farmer is a hay-seed and does not know nothing. Well that is true sometimes, but not all the time, you know that.

I came to this part of the state a number of years back. About the time you were born, I guess. At that time we had plenty of mosquitos here, but not plenty of anything else. We did not have any railroads, nor any roads of any other kind. There were some rabbit paths between the brush thickets. It looked mighty tough for a fellow who came from an old country. But we each got a good quarter of land and that was a whole lot. We built ourselves small houses and began to live on our homesteads. Many of us had to go out and work in Dakota and on the railroads that they were building so that we could get enough money to buy flour. I got myself a pair of oxen after a while and began to break up some of my land. I broke about ten acres the first year, and then I helped some of my neighbors to break. We helped each other a good deal in those days for we were all poor.

The second spring I was here I seeded my breaking and also the breaking of two of my neighbors. We got a good crop that fall. I think it was 26 bushels of wheat to the acre, but we had to wait until late in the fall before we could get it threshed. At that time they did not have any steam rigs like now. And if they had had, they could not have moved around with them for this country was not dry enough for any machines of that kind.

Well it was not easy to get rid of the first crop either. Some of it we ground up to flour, but the rest had to be hauled 30 miles to market, and that was pretty hard with a pair of oxen. It took us two days and sometimes three for one trip. But we made things go just the same and every year saw us add a little to our fields and our buildings. You see we fellows then did not expect so much as the young fellows do now. Then the whole family lived in one room, while now they want a parlor, a sitting room, a dining room, kitchen and closets, and a bed-room for each one in the family. We built a little at each time to help out.

I was just going to write a short letter, but I got started telling of this country too far back, I guess. If you will let me come back again, I will try to get down to what I started to do, or wanted to do, tell you what I think of this country.

Guess it is time to tell the boys that they should go out and feed the horses now.

Yours truly,
JOHN JOHNSON.

The I. C. Sands family came near death by poison from coal gas this week. It was found necessary to call in a doctor to save them. The chimney was being cleaned and the stove pipe became clogged long enough to force a great deal of gas into the house.

HAS BETTER FIRE PROTECT.

East Side Fire Protection Is O. K., Now That Mains Are Repaired.

Now that the water main across Red Lake River has been satisfactorily repaired, the people on the east side once more have as good fire protection as the city can, under present extent of water mains, furnish them. Outside of the business section of the city the east side now has just as good, or better, protection than the west side, according to a statement made by fire chief, Medrich, in an interview yesterday morning. On the east side the hydrants extend to Markley Ave., running north and south on the Ave., as far as the school house. On the west side they extend west to Main-st. and north to 5th-st. The most rapidly growing section of the city, the northwest portion towards the fair grounds has no protection whatever.

The fire department has only about 1600 feet of hose, and, rather than buying several miles of hose, have recommended that more sewerage and water works be put in. The fact that the water works and sewerage system does not extend farther is not due to any listlessness of the city council, nor of the citizens, but to the fact that the city is all the time "outgrowing its clothes." Nobody can blame anybody else for this condition of affairs. It is simply up to the people to say what shall be done, because they are the ones that have to foot the bill. The individual property owners of the section benefited have to stand most of the cost. The city as a whole pays for work done on public property.

COUNCIL MET TUESDAY NIGHT

Press Declared City's official Paper; and First National Bank City's Depository.

The Thief River Press was declared the city's official paper and the First National Bank the city's depository for the ensuing year at the Council meeting Tuesday evening. The Frist National was the city's depository last year and was the only Bank that submitted a bid this year, the other banks thinking it the best policy not to "butt in," as the First National is offering all that a bank could offer. Three bids were submitted for the city official printing as follows: The Thief River Falls News 40 cents and 20 cents the folio; The Thief River Falls Times 10 cents and 5 cents the folio for all matter except liquor licenses, which was 35 cents and 17½ cents the folio; and the Thief River Press 8 cents the folio each insertion for all official printing.

Some time was given to the needs of the fire department. Ed O'Hara, thru the mayor, submitted a proposition for keeping a team in the rear of the fire hall. The matter was referred to a committee who are to report at the next meeting. Fire chief, Medrich, Chris Porter and R. McGinn told of the crying need for better fire apparatus, especially did they condemn the hose carts and nozzels now in use. Acording to Chris Porter, hose wagons are the thing, and acting upon information furnished by him, the clerk was instructed to buy two new nozzles and correspond with the Duluth fire department in regard to price of hose wagons, that are as good as new, but which have been discarded by them and replaced by apparatus more suitable for a large city. The council was very kindly disposed towards the speakers and evidenced a desire to do all they

BOOST YOUR HOME INDUSTRY

Your Retail Merchant Is a Necessary Factor In Field of Distribution.

There is a great deal of loose talk in regard to the retail merchant who is charged with making exorbitant profits and having much to do with the increased cost of living.

The retail merchant has ever been and is now a necessary factor in the field of distribution. His method of selling goods has been handed down thru the ages. It has withstood the test of time and has survived only because it is the best system for supplying the wants of the people that human wisdom has so far devised. The retail merchant is a necessary factor in production and distribution.

The well-known economist, Professor Ely, of Wisconsin University, says: "It has seemed to some that the farmer is more truly a producer than the manufacturer, and the manufacturer than the merchant; but careful thought discloses the fallacy of such a view. All industrial classes alike produce one or more of the four sorts of utility, and they do so by changing relations of things in time or space. The farmer changes the position of grains of corn by dropping them into the earth. Then he removes the weeds and throws earth about the rising stalks. The Man's acts in changing the relations and position of things, aided by nature's materials and forces, result in more corn for human consumption. The manufacturer in the same way changes the position of pieces of matter, and, aided by natural forces within and without the object of production, he causes matter to assume a form which fits it, or better fits it for human needs. So, too, the merchant changes the places of things from where they are less useful to where they are more useful, or holds them in one place until a change of external circumstances gives them greater time utility. He is producing utilities as truly as is the farmer or the manufacturer."

Proposed Investigation of "Money Trust" Causing Trouble among Democrats.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—The Lindbergh resolution calling for an investigation of the so-called money trust is causing no end of trouble among the House Democrats. As pointed out in a previous letter, some of the more conservative Democrats are steering rather shy of the resolution, and see in it a possible menace to party harmony. At this writing it looks as if the Lindbergh resolution or the Henry substitute, which covers practically the same ground as the one supported by Mr. Lindbergh, will be favorably reported out of the committee on rules. Mr. Lindbergh declares that the sentiment is so strongly in favor of the investigation that the Democrats will not dare to run counter to public opinion.

The resolution is causing a sharp and well-defined split in the Democratic ranks. The standpat element of the House Democratic membership, headed by Underwood of Ala., the majority leader, is strongly opposed to taking action in the matter at this time. This element is fearful that if the investigation is started on the eve of a Presidential campaign, facts may be disclosed which may be rather embarrassing for Wall street money interests. In this connection, it is asserted that the New

ANNUAL MEETING HELD

By St. Hilaire Co-operative Creamery Ass'n. Report Shows $55,000 For Past Year.

The St. Hilaire Creamery Association held their annual meeting last Monday. The meeting was confined mostly to the usual routine work. A resolution was passed to raise the sinking fund assessment from one-fourth cent to 1 cent for shareholders and from one-half cent to 1 cent for non-shareholders. The secretary's report shows a business of $55,000, and this is very good, considering the additional handicaps all creameries worked under last year. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

O. L. Larson, president
Anton Peterson, vice president
Nels K. Anderson, secretary
August Swanson, treasurer
C. A. Lindquist, director.

JAILED YEAR AND A HALF FOR CRIME HE DID NOT COMMIT

A miscarriage of justice caused president Taft, Jan. 19, to grant a full and unconditional pardon to Oscar Krueger of New York, who has served nearly one year of an eighteen months sentence in the Atlanta penitentiary, Washington, for a crime he did not commit. Expert handwriting testimony, it was said, was responsible for his conviction on a charge of mailing an obscene letter.

BETCHER WAS A BIG SURPRISE

Downs Munson In Straight Falls; First In 7 Minutes, Second in 37 Minutes.

Albert Betcher of McIntosh won over Ludvig Munson of Holt in straight falls at the Lyceum here Tuesday night, securing the first fall in 7 minutes with a full Nelson and the second in 37 minutes with a head lock. The biggest crowd that ever witnessed a wrestling match in Thief River was present, there being not even standing room left. Munson was the favorite, but he lost because Betcher was in very good condition and was the quicker and better scienced man. This was by far the best match held here so far, it being the first time Munson has had an opponent who knew the game like a wrestler and could go the limit without stopping for anything except an occassional spit. Betcher was a trifle rough, yet he did not resort to any tactics against the rules of the match. Kimpton and Morck, assisted by Ben Lonson with the clarinet, furnished exhilarating music during the course of the evening. Referee Smith's work was very satisfactory.

When Things Started.

The men weighed in at 11:25, Munson tipping the scales at 171½ lbs., and Betcher at 155 pounds flat. Two minutes later the men appeared amid vigorous applause and were introduced by referee Smith and the match announced catch-as-catch-can with only the strangle hold barred. Both men looked in excellent condition and neither showed any nervousness whatever. The first round was short and was all for Betcher. In two minutes they were on the mat with Betcher working rapidly over his opponent. Munson semeded very confident and was a trifle careless in allowing Betcher to secure holds. After six minutes work Betcher secured the full Nelson and hung on like "grim death to a nigger." Munson could not break it and was slowly but surely pinned to the mat. The audience was momentarily surprised into silence, but soon gave Betcher the glad noise. This was the first time the fans here have seen a man who could hold a full Nelson on Munson. Betcher stock went up immediately and the interest became intense. Between the ronuds Betcher had his arms rubbed down vigorously and showed that he had exerted all of his strength to get the fall, but he was breathing easily. Munson took the usual refreshments and gave his friends a wink of confidence. In the second round Munson was more cautious. After sparring for a minute and one-half they went to the mat with Munson on top. In four minutes Betcher was on top. Betcher tried repeatedly for the full Nelson, but Munson would have none of it. From then on the men were up and down with first one and then the other trying for holds. Munson got Betcher in very dangerous positions several times, but Betcher always wriggled out just when he lokked like a goner. Finally Betcher began to work faster and showed that he wanted the thing over with, and secured the arm and head-lock while sparring for holds and threw Munson to the mat, not releasing his hold until Smith slapped him on the back and said down.

The Annual Meeting of the Commercial Club has been postponed from Friday the 9th until Friday the 16th on account of the lecture at the Auditorium on Friday, the 9th.

Halvor Dahl, of Eckvoll township Marshall county, has bought a house and moved it on his lot on the east side. Mr. Dahl is a carpenter, and will hereafter be at home in Thief River.

The Ladies' Aid of the Saterdal church will meet at the home of Mrs John Skomedal next Thursday after noon at 2 o'clock Feb. 15. Everybody invited.

TWO GAMES NEXT MONDAY

C. N. S. and H. S. Teams Play C. A. C. Monday Afternoon and Evening.

The Commercial-Normal basket ball team will play the Crookston Agricultural School team in the Lincoln High School Gymnasium Monday afternoon, Feb. 12, at 2:30, and in the evening of that day the local High School team will play the same team. The Aggies are coming with plenty of good men, so that they will easily be able to play two games the same day. There will be a social, and general jollification, at the High School in the evening following the game. There will be lots of games, lots of fun and lots to eat. No pains will be spared to give the visitors and home people the time of their lives. Since Monday is a holiday everybody will be in just the right mood for such an event.

The C. N. S. has not played the C. A. C. before, but the local H. S. played them sometime ago and lost 40 to 18. The first half ended 10 to 9 in favor of Crookston, and the second half they had easy picking because the local boys were all tired. They had played McIntosh the night before, and that, together with aggraving train schedules, was the cause of their tiring. The C. A. C. has a remarkable center in Saterstrom. He is even longer than his name, being 6 feet 4 inches in height. Crookston depends much on him for winning, he having thrown 12 field goals and several foul goals in the recent game. Both local teams are confident of holding their own. And it is a safe prediction that the local High School stands an excellent chance of winning, according to the latest basket ball news given out by coach Richardson.

The teams will line up this way:

C. A. C.	Position	H. S.
Saterstrom	C.	Fossum
Bergh	F.	Carter
Sisler	F.	Brudie
Sandby	G.	Boyden
Cornelnis	G.	Adolphs
Hawley	Subs.	Hance
Nuberg	Subs.	Pope
Nelson	Subs.	Iverson

The Commercial Normal has: Carlson, center; Jacobson and Ohm, forwards; Linde and Swanson, guards; and Selstad and Flattum, subs.

UNIVERSITY EXT. DIVISION NOTES

Timely Hints on Topics of Interest to the Progressive Farmer by men who know.

By A. D. Wilson, Supt.

By having cows fresh in the fall instead of in the spring, from 25 to 50 pounds of butter-fat may be added to the production of each cow each year. This is a point in the management of a dairy farm that should receive your attention.

If your cattle are not making satisfactory returns for feed this winter, do not decide that it does not pay to feed well; as they will do doubt make better returns next summer, and even next winter, for having been fed well this winter. Animals must be kept in good condition all of the time, in order to give profitable returns.

Rotation of crops is one of the simple, practical methods of increasing the productivity of the farm and distributing labor. If you are not already practicing rotation in your farming, now is a good time to work out a systematic cropping scheme for your farm. A practical system of rotation

CIGAR MAKERS' UNION BALL

White Carnations For Ladies and LaLunda Cigars For Gentlemen.

Friday night the local members of the cigar makers' union were hosts of one of the most successful dances given in Thief River Falls this year.

The Auditorium was the scene of the happy gathering, and it was evident that great pains had been taken to make the hall as comfortable as possible. The floor was in superb condition which made dancing a heavenly pastime.

A very novel stunt was introduced by the "rope twisters" in giving each lady as she entered the hall a beautiful white carnation.

The orchestra, increased to six pieces for the occasion, did itself proud in rendering the music for the program of 24 dances.

At twelve o'clock an intermission of forty-five minutes was utilized in partaking of a light lunch.

The strictest order was maintained in and about the hall during the entire evening. The officers of the floor are to be praised for their efficient work.

Shortly before the second half of the program cigars with the compliments of F. C. Niclai, manufacturer of the popular LaLunda, were passed to the gentlemen.

The railroad fare, on the Great Northern, from Thief River to Grand Forks is $2.26; from Thief River to Crookston is $1.67; and from Crookston to Grand Forks is 78 cents. Somebody wants to know why this is thus.

Buy City Property On The Monthly Payment Plan

Get over the habit of carrying around empty rent receipts, get a home and fill it with the good things. How much rent have you paid since you came to Thief River Falls? Say, wouldn't that buy a fine home, eh?, just about paid the landlord for his building, paid the taxes and the upkeep, Quit it, you don't have to do it. Come in and see us, we'll try to put you on the right road.

Summer Training Schools at Schools of Agriculture

Last year a Teachers' Training School was held at the School of Agriculture, St. Anthony Park, in connection with the regular Summer School of the College of Agriculture. The registered attendance in training was 919. So satisfactory was the school to those attending, that the Department of Public Instruction will maintain such a school for six weeks this year, at each of the Schools of Agriculture, at St. Anthony Park, Crookston and Horris.

The schools will open June 17, and close July 28th. Instruction will be offered in all subjects required for a State First Grade Certificate, including Arithmetic, Grammar, Geography U. S. History, Civics, Physics, Reading, Spelling Composition, Penmanship, Algebra, Plane Geometry, Physiology, and Physical Geography. In addition, work will be given in Agriculture, Manual Training, Domestic Science, Domestic Art, Drawing, Music and plain model work.

Two primary instructors will be employed. One will give her attention to Reading, Language and number work. The other will give her attention to primary methods, such as the making of reading charts, number charts and all kinds of "busy work." Thus the teacher will be able to go back to her school loaded with a wealth of material for doing better work next year.

Students doing double work, and receiving a satisfactory mark, will be given credit for the subject at the close of the summer, on a teachers' certificate, without taking an examination. Students doing double work in Algebra, Geometry and Physics will be given one-half credit for each subject; and it will be necessary to take the subject at the next Summer School in order to receive a full credit. The work in the other subjects will be thorough review, preparatory for an examination which will be held at the close of school.

Students will be given rooms at the dormitory, and meals will be served in the dining hall. Charges will be made as moderate as possible. Rooms will be assigned in order of applications received; and those planning to attend will do well to apply early.

These schools are not intended to supplant other schools in the State but to offer opportunities to teachers in counties where no summer school is held. The instruction offered will be thorough and practical. Experienced instructors will be secured, who are able to stand before their classes and "acceptably best the the subjects in hand." Bulletins will be issued soon, giving full details. Any one desiring full information may write to Mr. J. M. Drew, Registrar, School of Agriculture, St. Anthony Park, or to the Superintendents of the Schools of Agriculture at Crookston and Morris.

COMMERCIAL NORMAL

* * * * * * * * * * *

A number of new students have enrolled in the last two weeks.

Oscar Hagen of Roseau came down last week and took up a course in Bookkeeping. He is a business man and knows the value of a good commercial training.

There will be a social gathering in the school rooms next Friday evening. The Commercial Normal socials are getting to be a source of enjoyment to the young people in the city.

Many of the students had their head read last week. As a rule they refuse to divulge. Prof. Cozen no doubt gave them some wholesome advice.

The basket ball team is busy practicing for the game next Monday, January 12. The Crookston Aggies will be here then to play two games. The Commercial Normal boys meet them in the afternoon at the High School Gym., and the High School team play them in the evening. These will be the best games of this winter. The Agricultural boys are clean players who conduct themselves in a gentlemanly manner. It is a pleasure to meet them in an atheltic contest.

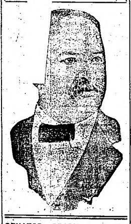
The second team of the basket ball squad will play the Plummer team the latter part of the week.

A. L. Almen, J. W. Erlandson, and Prof. George Cozens delivered interesting and instructive talks at the last meeting of the Literary society.

When her child is in danger a woman will risk her life to protect it. No great act of heroism or risk of life is necessary to protect a child from croup. Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and all danger is avoided. For sale by all Druggists.

THOMAS F. GRADY.

T[illegible]y Hall Orator
[illegible] New York City.



SENATOR GRADY IS DEAD

Prominent in New York and National Democratic Circles.

New York, Feb. 4.—State Senator Thomas F. Grady, widely known in Democratic councils, in state and nation and familiarly called "the silver tongued orator of Tammany Hall," died at his home here. The senator, for many years the Democratic leader in the state senate, had been ill for several weeks and recently underwent an operation in a sanitarium.

Grady was always recognized as the best "rough and tumble orator in Tammany Hall and when the boss had "explaining" to do Grady was usually selected to do it.

SHREWD TACTICS PREVENT ACTION

House Sidetracks Slayden's Third Term Resolution.

Washington, Feb. 6.—The house of representatives avoided going on record on presidential third terms. Just at the moment, when the Slayden resolution, aimed primarily at Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, seemed about to pass a shrewd parliamentary turn displaced this measure from further consideration. It may be revived later in the session, but its position of vantage on the house calendar was lost.

Mr. Slayden, a Texas Democrat, introduced the resolution a week ago. It sought to express the "opinion of the house" that the example of Washington in retiring after a second term had by universal concurrence become the time-honored custom of the country, a violation of which would be fraught with peril to free institutions. The [illegible] up with little warning [illegible] suspension of the rules was required to pass the measure and to suspend the rules a second had to be considered as ordered. Mr. Sims of Tennessee objected to the second and a vote by tellers on ordering this parliamentary movement was necessary. The Republicans in hurried conference had determined not to vote on the resolution, thus putting the Democrats in the position of passing the measure by a party vote and, in the opinion of a number of them, indicating fear of Mr. Roosevelt as the Republican nominee.

Hence the majority of the Democrats decided not to vote for the second and it was defeated, 90 to 51. Four Republicans, however, cast their votes for the second.

GUNBOAT RAMS SUBMARINE

Fourteen Men Perish in British War Craft After Collision.

Portsmouth, Eng., Feb. 3.—Drowned by inrushing water fourteen men sank to the bottom of the sea in the battered submarine "A 3" when the craft was rammed by the gunboat Hazard.

The crew of eleven men on board the little vessel, which is one of the older class, was composed of volunteers from the men of the fleet, as is the case with complements of all submarines. The men, in spite of the hazardous nature of the service, like the work and volunteer in large numbers to detail to the submarine flotillas. Three lieutenants who were watching the practice also were on board.

MRS. PETER C. HAINS.

Woman Who Figured in Tragedy Marries Again.

MRS. HAINS MARRIES AGAIN

Boston, Feb. 6.—Claudia C. Libbey Hains, who was the central figure in the army tragedy of some four years ago and which resulted in the murder of William E. Annis by her husband, Captain Peter C. Hains, was married at the home of her parents in Milton to Reginald Fairfax Bolles, a Boston illustrator.

Captain Hains obtained a divorce two years ago, naming Annis. The divorce was not contested. Mrs. Hains returned to Boston to live with her parents.

At the ceremony the only witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Libbey, parents of the bride and Matthew Bolles of New York, brother of the groom.

AGED MAN AND TWO CHILDREN PERISH

Flames Consume Farm Residence Near Yucatan, Minn.

Yucatan, Minn., Feb. 6.—Two children and their grandfather were burned to death, the former's father was probably fatally burned and two others in the home were seriously injured when the farmhouse of Ole Ambroson was burned. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The dead are Christopher Ambroson, aged eighty-six; Clara Ambroson, aged seven; Onga Ambroson, aged ten.

Ole Ambroson is in a critical condition and probably will die, while Albert and Mrs. Ole Ambroson sustained severe burns.

Three of the family had retired for the night in upper rooms when flames suddenly broke out there. Other members of the family were in the kitchen down stairs and were only apprised of the fire when two of the boys leaped down the stairway closely followed by flames and smoke. Mr. and Mrs. Ole Ambroson made desperate efforts to rescue all the children and the grandfather, but were unable to save the three named.

Written on Glass.

Miss Harriet Auber's beautiful lines, "Our Blessed Redeemer, Ere He Breathed," were written by the authoress on a windowpane in her house at Hoddesdon. A dealer in curios tried to purchase this interesting and peculiar manuscript from the owner of the house after the death of Miss Auber in 1862, but he was unsuccessful. The pane of glass was subsequently stolen, and it has never since been found or its fate discovered.

Centuries ago Theodulph, bishop of Orleans, while in prison at Metz composed the hymn, "All Glory, Laud and Honor," which he wrote on the window of his cell. As the usual Palm Sunday procession passed through the town the emperor heard sounds of singing proceeding from the prison. He thereupon liberated the bishop, whose hymn was afterward regularly used on each succeeding Palm Sunday as a processional, the choir taking up each quatrain and the public joining in singing the chorus.

BRANDEIS IN FEAR OF WAR

Warns Capital Industrial Conditions Must Improve.

Kansas City, Feb. 6.—Bitterly denouncing the methods used by "trusts" to control business and charging that the United States Steel corporation was especially unfair to its employes, Louis D. Brandeis of Boston, in a speech before the Knife and Fork club here, declared capital could expect little better from the oppressed workingman than the Los Angeles dynamite outrages and the violence in the Lawrence, Mass., textile strike.

Mr. Brandeis ended his address with a warning that unless the industrial conditions in this country were remedied there would be a clash between capital and labor that would result in bloodshed.

CAN'T FIND HAWLEY'S WILL

Railroad Man's $40,000,000 Estate Is Tied Up.

New York, Feb. 6.—Although it is understood that he left an estate valued at approximately $40,000,000 it became known that the will of the late Edwin Hawley cannot be found. His private papers have been partly searched, but so far the document has not been discovered.

Until it is found the disposition of Mr. Hawley's vast estate, including his great railroad interests, will remain in doubt. He made a will in 1903 naming as executor his partner, Frank H. Davis.

Temperance Worker Dies.

Boston, Feb. 6.—Mrs. Mary C. Leavitt, for forty years an honorary president of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance union and a traveler in many lands in behalf of temperance, died in this city. Mrs. Leavitt was born in 1830. She traveled 200,000 miles and with the aid of interpreters spoke to people in fifty-one languages.

A Way the Dutch Have.

The Dutch have a delightfully original way of collecting their taxes. If after the notice has been given the money is not sent the authorities place one or two hungry militiamen in the house, to be lodged and maintained at the expense of the defaulter until the amount of the tax is paid.

How to cure a cold is a question in which many are interested just now. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has won its great reputation and immense sale by its remarkable cure of colds. It can always be depended upon. For sale by all Druggists.

Good Seed-Corn

What is good seed-corn? When a farmer has tested his seed-corn by the single-ear method, and finds that some of it gives a vigorous germination of eighty per cent., the question arises as to the comparative value of such ears. In answer, it might be well to study the probabilities.

There are 3,556 hills per acre when corn is planted forty-two inches apart each way. This, with a perfect stand of three stalks per hill, would make 10,668 stalks per acre. Granting that seed of the above vitality would give only an eighty per cent stand, it would mean 2,133 missing stalks per acre; and allowing an average cured ear of seven ounces per stalk, this would mean a loss per acre of thirteen bushels. Carrying the matter one step farther—and granting that, when a bushel of seed-corn has been properly graded, there remains an amount sufficient to plant only five acres—we find the real difference between a bushel of corn that gives a perfect stand, and one that gives an eighty-per-cent stand, to be a matter of sixty-five bushels of corn at husking-time. Figuring this amount at any price that is reasonable, one cannot but condemn the use of seed-corn of such low vitality.

It is true that when the farmer knows his seed-corn has a vitality of but eighty per cent, he can arrange to drop more corn per hill. Logically, he will raise the percentage of stand by so doing, but he has done nothing to get rid of the weakly stalks, and is bound to have a certain percentage of crowded hills. And when he has husked the small ears of the crowded hill, and the "nubbin" of the weakly stalk, he has reaped the harvest of poor management, and should be wiser as to what is good seed-corn.—O. M. Olson, Extension Division, Minn. College of Agriculture.

All farm animals have an instinctive craving for salt. But if it is so placed as to be always within their reach, they will consume just as much as they need, and no more. It is only when it has been kept from them for a long period that there is danger of their eating too much. It is therefore an excellent practice to keep it in a box or boxes where they can have access to it whenever they desire. When they are salted, as is the practice with many farmers, only once a week, while some may get enough, others may suffer from a deficient supply. Salt promotes an active circulation of the blood, which never becomes thick and sluggish so long as the supply is plentiful; it assists digestion, and is often a preventative of disease. It is so cheap that no stockraiser can really afford to deny to his animals all they want of it.

One of the problems of the poultry-yard is how to supply water to the fowls in cold weather at such a temperature that they will not be chilled through when they drink. Hot water is not good for the hen, and she dislikes it, as does a man, when it is merely warm. Plenty of pure fresh water is a necessity to the laying hen, and she wants it just cool enough to quench her thirst. People who are on the lookout for eggs will see to it that water is supplied often, and, if possible, in vessels that will not freeze over or become foul. A vessel with an outer packet, something like a fireless cooker, taken into the house at night and warmed through when it goes to the coops in the morning, is suggested as meeting the requirements of the case.

CONFIDENCE.

We Back Up Our Statements With Our Personal Reputation and Money.

We are so positive that we can relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine free of all cost if we fail.

We think that it is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Cathartics may do much harm. They may cause a reaction, irritate and weaken the bowels, and make constipation more chronic.

Constipation is often accompanied and may be caused by weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine or colon. To expect a cure you must therefore tone up and strengthen those parts and restore them to healthier activity.

The discovery of the active principle of our remedy involved the labor of skilful research chemists. This remedy produces results such as are expected from the best of the best-known intestinal tonics, and it is particularly prompt in its results.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our guarantee. They are exceedingly pleasant to take and are ideal for children. They apparently act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels, having, it would seem, a neutral action on other organs or glands. They do not purge or cause inconvenience. If they do not positively cure chronic or habitual constipation and thus relieve the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments, your money will be refunded. Try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Three sizes of packages, 10c., 25c., and 50c. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store, J. P. Curtis, 202 LaBree Ave. N.

SELECT ILLINOIS MAN CHAIRMAN

Republicans Caucus on Congressional Campaign.

DEVELOPS INTO LOVE FEAST

Progressives Spring Surprise by Introducing Resolution Highly Eulogistic of Representative William B. McKinley and His Election as Chairman for Another Term Takes Place by Acclamation.

Washington, Feb. 6.—Although the caucus of Republicans of the senate and house, held at the Capitol, was called merely to ratify the selection by the various state delegations of their members of the congressional campaign committee, Representative Woods of Iowa, backed by the other progressives, sprung a surprise by introducing a resolution highly eulogistic of Representative William B. McKinley of Illinois, that resulted in his election by acclamation as chairman for another term.

Mr. McKinley some time ago declared he would not remain at the head of the committee for another campaign, but upon the adoption of the Woods resolution made a brief speech expressing his appreciation of the extremely flattering endorsement of his work and indicating that in view of the unanimous sentiments of the Republicans of the senate and house he would remain at the head of the committee for another two years.

The Woods resolution sets forth that despite the bitter feelings and factional differences in the Republican ranks, two years ago Mr. McKinley treated all candidates alike, regardless of whether they were regular or progressive. Mr. McKinley's re-election was greeted with cheers and the handshaking and backslapping that followed indicated that the Republicans were having a real love feast for the first time in several years.

A meeting of the committee will be called within a few days, Mr. McKinley announced, at which officers and an executive subcommittee will be named.

KNOX TELLS ABOUT SUGAR

Summary of Consular Reports Is Sent to Congress.

Washington, Feb. 6.—Sugar, universally consumed and universally taxed, is subjected to government control and regulation as to price in almost every country and to varying trade methods as well, reported Secretary of State Knox in a letter which President Taft forwarded to congress.

The letter, important at this time, in connection with the sugar tariff revision bill which the house ways and means committee begins framing this week, was brought out by the house "sugar trust" investigating committee's request for foreign data. It summarizes consular reports which Secretary Knox called for from every part of the world, showing sugar to be a source of customs and internal revenue by means of import duties and by taxes on consumption in the form of national excise duties and local or municipal charges.

SPAIN LAUNCHES BATTLESHIP

King and Queen Present When First of New Fleet Is Floated.

Ferrol, Spain, Feb. 6.—King Alfonso and Queen Victoria were present at the launching of the battleship Espana, which was made the occasion of elaborate ceremonies. The Espana is the first of the battleships of the new Spanish navy to take the water. King Alfonso was present at the laying down of her keel in July, 1909,

The Espana is a four-screw steel vessel, 435 feet in length. Her displacement is 15,450 tons and her estimated speed 19.15 knots. She will carry eight 12-inch guns, twenty 4-inch guns and a number of quick firers and machine guns.

GIVES HER LIFE IN VAIN

Train Kills Mother and the Child She Strives to Save.

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 6.—An attempt to snatch her five-year-old daughter Phoebe from in front of a fast freight train resulted in the death near here of Mrs. U. S. Milliken and her child.

The mother and child were walking along the right of way when the train swung out of a cut close upon them. The woman jumped across the track out of sight of the train crew, but it is thought she hesitated to grasp her child and hurl it across the rails to safety. The hesitation cost her her life, the engine striking the two. Both died instantly.

Won't Convict White Men.

Philadelphia, Feb. 6.—In asking a change of venue in the cases of seven defendants yet to be tried on murder charges growing out of the lynching of Zach Walker near Coatesville, Pa., last August, J. E. B. Cunningham, deputy attorney general, declared that "there is a deep seated purpose on the part of the people of Chester county not to convict a white man for the murder of a negro."

A Feat With the Feet.

Place a cork upon the floor. Measure four lengths of your foot from it and, standing at this distance, attempt with one foot to kick the cork over and recover position (both feet together) so that the foot that does the kicking does not touch the floor till it has returned to its mate. The efforts of any one trying to maintain an equilibrium in performing this stunt will arouse considerable mirth.—Woman's World.

WOULD PROBE COST OF LIVING

President Suggests International Inquiry.

URGES REFORMS IN ALASKA

Recommends Commission Form of Government and Construction of State Owned Railroad.

Washington, Feb. 3.—President Taft in a message to congress urged an international inquiry into the high cost of living. The president asked authority to invite the nations of the world to a conference in this city or elsewhere to make plans for the investigation of the "high prices that have so distressed the people of the world."

In the same message the president transmitted his promised recommendations relative to Alaska and the public domain in general. In urging the construction of a government railroad and a commission form of government for the faraway territory the president declared there was nothing in the history of the United States which afforded such just reason for criticism as the failure of the federal government to extend the benefit of fostering care to Alaska.

Mr. Taft also urged the appointment of a federal commission to make "searching inquiry into the subject of industrial relations."

Living Cost Vital Problem.

"For some years past," said the president, "the high and steadily increasing cost of living has been a matter of such grave public concern that I deem it of great public interest that an international conference be proposed at this time for the purpose of preparing plans, to be submitted to the various governments, for an international inquiry into the high cost of living, its extent, causes, effects and possible remedies.

"There is no doubt but that a commission could be appointed of such unprejudiced and impartial persons, experts in investigation of economic facts, that a great deal of very valuable light could be shed [illegible] reasons for the high price [illegible] so distressed the people of [illegible] and information given upon [illegible] tion might be taken to red[illegible] of living.

"Those who have con[illegible] investigations have found tha[illegible] phenomenon of rising prices is [illegible] not quite general throughou[illegible] world; but they are baffled in [illegible] t to trace the causes by th[illegible] lity of making any accurate [illegible] nal comparisons."

IN THE HANDS [illegible] CHINESE PREMIER

Edict Announcing Abdication of Emperor.

Peking, Feb. 6.—The oldest empire in the world will soon become the youngest republic.

The edict announcing the abdication of Emperor Pu Wi is in the hands of Premier Yuan Shi Kai, who, it is announced, will make it public as soon as final negotiations have been closed with the provisional government headed by Dr. Sun Yat Sen.

Prince Kung, who headed the faction which opposed abdication, departed for Manchuria vowing that he would never submit to dictation by the Southern Celestials and declaring that history would repeat itself in the near future, when the Tartars of the North would again sweep down upon the Chinese.

The edict of abdication was formally turned over to Yuan after the dowager empress, the boy emperor and Prince Chun had prayed fervently at the tombs of their ancestors.

It is generally believed that the republicans at Nanking will agree to permit Dr. Sun to act jointly with Yuan in governing China until a national convention had been held to draw a constitution and elect a president.

TAKEN OFF WRECKED VESSEL

Passengers and Crew of the Allegheny Land at Newport News.

Newport News, Va., Feb. 4.—Three passengers and forty-eight men of the crew of the Hamburg-American liner Allegheny, which was sunk by the British steamer Pomaron off the Virginian capes, were safely landed here. The Pomaron put in for repairs.

Guests Rescued From Flames.

Helena, Mont., Feb. 6.—Fire almost completely destroyed the Helena hotel and for a time threatened the entire business district. The fire originated in the boiler room and spread to the top stories through the elevator shaft. It was with difficulty that several persons who were asleep in the building were rescued.

LA FOLLETTE TO STAY IN CONTEST

Senator Announces Intention Regarding the Presidency.

SUPPORTERS DESERTING HIM

Medill McCormick of the Chicago Tribune Urges Illinois Progressives to Work for Roosevelt.

Washington, Feb. 6.—Senator La Follette, through his campaign manager, announced that he would not withdraw from the race for the Republican nomination for president. On the heels of his declaration, however, one of his most ardent supporters, Medill McCormick, president of the Illinois Progressive Republican league and one of the owners of the Chicago Tribune, issued a call to the Illinois progressives to desert the La Follette standard and to work for a solid Roosevelt delegation from Illinois in the Chicago convention.

The two statements created a flurry in progressive political circles. The first statement was made for Senator La Follette by Colonel W. L. Houser, his manager and chairman of the national progressive Republican committee. It was as follows:

"Senator La Follette finds it necessary to take a few weeks' rest. This may prevent his making speeches in the states which are to hold early primaries."

It requests Mr. La Follette's friends in those states to make a campaign for him, if they cannot do it in any other way, by instructing delegates for the progressive principles in general which the senator represents. It concludes:

Will Make Aggressive Contest.

"Though Senator La Follette finds his plans interfered with by his temporary indisposition his name will be presented to the national Republican convention and delegates will make an aggressive contest for his nomination and for a strong progressive platform.

"Whatever time Senator La Follette can devote to the campaign after taking a needed rest for a few weeks will be given subject to such demands as his official duties make upon him."

Mr. McCormick's call to the members of the Illinois Progressive Republican league was made public an hour later. It was a telegram to the league headquarters in Chicago and was as follows:

"Considering all the circumstances, including Senator La Follette's physical condition, in the opinion of the overwhelming majority of progressive Republican members of both houses of congress, progressives in Illinois must unite to send Roosevelt delegates to the next national Republican convention. With Roosevelt and Jones the progressives can sweep Illinois and establish in state and nation progressive administrations, which will substitute a policy of positive leadership for a policy of compromise with principle and concession to special interests."

KING AND QUEEN RETURN

British Rulers' Back In London After Trip to India.

London, Feb. 6.—King George and Queen Mary returned to England from the most memorable journey ever undertaken together by a king and queen of Great Britain and Ireland.

After an absence of three months, during which they had been crowned emperor and empress of India and had received the homage of many of their princely vassals in the vast Eastern empire, they were given a hearty welcome back to London. Their present stay in the British Isles will be only a short one, as they are due to pay a round of state visits to European courts this spring.

PENSION BILL IS PASSED

House Adopts $152,000,000 Measure by Vote of 245 to 33.

Washington, [illegible] 3.—The pension appropriation bill, carrying about $152,000,000, passed the house by a vote of 245 to 33, after several Southern Democrats had demanded a roll call vote.

A provision excluding pensioners who live out of the United States was defeated by [illegible] to 133. The bill abolishes seventeen pension agencies, which have been maintained in different cities.

MAYOR SHANK AFTER HONORS

Candidate for Gubernatorial Nomination in Indiana.

Indianapolis, Feb. 6.—Mayor Shank of this city, famed for his opposition to the high cost of living, announced that he was a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor of Indiana. His chief platform declaration is a promise to thoroughly investigate high prices for food.

BODIES ARE GONE FOREVER

Remains of Persons Who Perished in Niagara Falls Not Recovered.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Feb. 6.—Little hope is expressed that the bodies of Eldridge Stanton and his wife, Toronto, and Burrell Heacock, Cleveland, who perished Sunday when the ice gorge under Niagara Falls broke, will ever be recovered.

Old time river men believe the bodies have been ground to bits between the floes of ice which were pitched and tossed through the maelstrom of Whirlpool rapids.

Official Paper of the City

FRIDAY, FEB. 9, 1912

No man is greater than the position he fills, and every man is truly great who completely fills his position in every detail.

Some politicians much opposed to the Progressiveness of Senator La-Follette have started the rumor that he will shortly withdraw from the Presidential Race. But the inveterate Robert M. says: "No." He is in it to stay in to the finish and he does not intend to withdraw in favor of Roosevelt or any other candidate.

HalvorSteenerson seems to have gotten the Ninth Congressional District into a very nice "Jack Pot", by his desire to secure some more of this earth's goods.

Mr Steenerson has allowed himself to be made a full fledged Indian with an Indian name and rank as Indian nobleman.

Now an Indian is a Ward of the Government and hence has no direct part in the government proceedings. It appears to us, that in as much as Mr. Steenerson has become a member of the White Earth Indian Tribe and has acknowledged that fact by making application for pine allottments as a member of such Tribe of Indians he is an Indian and a Ward of the United States Government and as such is not entitled to a vote and hence is not elegible to represent the Ninth Congressional District in the House of Congress. If facts as set forth by the inquiry are true the Ninth Congressional District has no Representative in Congress at the present time nor cannot have until after the next General election.

This may be a sad state of affairs but we presume that if the facts are such as set forth by the inquiry the sooner the public knows it the better for the public.

Bede's Budget remarks twice in one issue that, "if our constitution does not suit we can change it." That is an absoute impossibility to change the constitution under present conditions.

The interests have been busy trying to find some more candidates for Governor to bring into the field. They are rejoicing over the division of the field as it now appears. It seems certain that they consider Lee the strongest of the Progressive candidates for he receives the least mention in their "kept press." This is a sure sign for they know the game well enough to boost for the man who they consider the least dangerous.

Misses Gustie and Irma Johnson will leave for the Twin City Saturday evening for the purpose of purching spring millinery. During their absence of about two weeks the store will be in charge of Miss Iverson.

PROVENCHER HOTEL NEWS

Mr. Provencher announced Monday evening one more improvement in the new hotel to be erected this spring on corner Horace Ave., and 3d-st— that there would be running hot and cold water in every room. Mr. Provencher left Monday evening for a visit to several leading hotels for the purpose of getting next to the newest things in hotel conveniences.

CO-OPERATIVE THRESHING

The ownership of a threshing-machine is another form of co-operative enterprise in which the farmers of a neighborhood may participate, with large advantage in many directions. The cost of an outfit, while prohibitory to the individual small farmer, is not so great that it may not be easily borne by a group of fifteen or twenty farmers!; and it can of course be made to serve a much larger number. The interest on the investment is fully off-set by the saving of the profit which goes to the thresherman under the present system. And, since the motive-power, detached from the threshing-machine, can be employed in other work for the rest of the year after the threshing season is over, the amount of capital which will for most of the year lie idle is very much reduced.

A chief advantage attending the co-operative plan is found in the fact that the thresher will be on hand at the time when it can be most advantageously used. The long waits to which most grain-growers are now obliged to submit, pending the arrival of the thresher from some other section, will be avoided. How expensive such waits are, especially when bad weather supervenes, to many growers know from painful experience. A second advantage is a saving in cost; a third, that of avoiding the introduction of weeds, which so often attends the progress of the threshing machine on its annual migrations from the South to the North.

The outfit may well include a set of fanning-mills, so that grains may be cleaned and seed selected, by men who, from constant practice have acquired superior skill. These operations, added to that of threshing, should afford such steady employment, and such wages, as would make make the business attractive to high-class men—men whose every visit to the farm may be looked to as affording some fresh reinforcement to whatever progressive forces there exist.

These rmarks are suggested by a paragraph telling of the organization of "about 16" farmers of the North Slope school district, in Manning Co., N. D., into a co-operative Threshing Association, which has purchased its own machinery. Once the idea is given a practical application, it would seem that those who led must soon be followed by the great army of thinking and progressive farmers.—C. R. Barns, Extension Div., Minn. Agr College.

Good seed-corn is the key to getting good stands of corn. A good stand of corn is necessary to secure good yields. Owing to the wet fall of 1911, there is now much doubtful seed-corn in the country. One cannot afford to plant corn any year, much less this year, without thorough testing. The single-ear method of testing seed-corn is the only practical way.

There are very few farms on which additional labor expended in preparing the seed-bed would not yield hand some returns. It costs about 15 cents per acre to harrow land, and about 35 cents per acre to disk land. For $1. land can be doubled-disked and harrowed twice. One bushel of wheat or barley, two bushels of corn, or one-half bushel of flax, increase per acre will pay for this extra labor.

Good seed is one of the important factors in the production of good crops. Good seed should be plump, heavy in weight, should germinate well, and be free from weed-seeds, and should be pure as to variety. Cleaning and grading seed grain is a timely operation at this season of the year, and is likely to return more per hour of labor than one gets for doing the ordinary farm work.

Weeds cause an annual loss to this State of many millions of dollars. Weeds are often distributed with the grass-seed or seed-grain sown. Too much care can hardly be taken in making sure that no bad weeds are sown in this manner. If you do not know any of the weed-seeds found in any of your farm seeds, send a small sample to the Experiment Station, and have them identified. This will be done free

THE TIME TEST.

Thief River Falls People Demand Stronger Proof of Merit.

The test of time is what tells the tale. The public is quick to discover what will stand the test of time. Long ago, Thief River Falls citizens publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills; they do so still. Would these statements be confirmed by Thief River Falls residents if Doan's Kidney Pills did not posses lasting merit? The following testimony should convince the msot skeptical reader:

Mrs. James Rogers, 522 Main St. Thief River Falls, Minn., says: "The cure effected by Doan's Kidney Pills in my case in 1907 has been permanent. It is a pleasure for me to again recommend this remedy. I suffered intensely from backache and there was pain and soreness through my loins. The kidney secretions were unnatural and I felt languid and devoid of strength. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Curtis' Drug Store, proved their merit by disposing of these troubles in a short time."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Roster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

From the Nation's Capitol

York Democrats are lined up with the Underwood faction, opposed to the consideration of the money problem. Tammany Democrats are said to be fighting shy of the investigation, on the grounds that unfavorable comment might result. On the other hand, the progressive wing of the party is urging and demanding the investigation.

• • •

Mr. Lindbergh prefers that the resolution go to a special committee of the House. The Underwood crowd is determined that it be referred to one of the standing committees of the House, namely the committee on banking and currency, of which Congressman Pujo of Louisiana is chairman. Mr. Pujo signed the Aldrich report on the national monetary scheme, and is opposed to the Lindbergh plan. Naturally Mr. Lindbergh does not care to have the resolution go to a committee, whose chairman is hostile to the investigation, and who it is declared would throw obstacles in the way to cause delay.

If the resolution goes to a special committee there is every indication that the investigation will be undertaken without delay. The committee will probably consist of seven members, and the talk is that five of the seven members will be Democrats, thus giving to the party in control in the House the upper hand in the direction the investigation shall take and its scope. Mr. Lindbergh may be designated as one of the two Republican members of the committee. The plan is to hold the hearings both in this city and New York. If a special committee takes charges the probabilities are that the investigation will continue for several months.

Now that the steel tariff bill has been disposed of and passed on to the Senate, the talk is that the next tariff schedule to be tackled is the sugar schedule. I presume members of Congress have received more letthis tariff than any other. Comters from constituents complaining of plaints come from consumers, wholesale grocers and jobbers, farmers, and the public in general. There is a general feeling that the sugar schedule can stand a marked reduction. Southern Democrats from districts growing sugar cane will be found lined up with the high protectionists, when the matter comes upon the floor of the House. There are many in Congress who express the opinion that the present tariff on sugar should be very greatly reduced, if not entirely abolished.

Reports from Minnesota indicate that the resolutions adopted at the recent Owatonna meeting denouncing Congressman Anderson are not finding favor with the people. Mr. Anderson has received scores of letters since the date of the meeting, all of them condemning the action taken and generally endorsing his stand in Congress. A prominent first district politician, who has been neutral in the present controversy, but who is in favor of fair play, has been in Washington recently and discussed the situation in the first district very frankly.

"It should be remembered", he said, "that the Progressive Newspaper League was not organized until after the primary campaign. It had no political significance, its sole purpose being to advance and promote the commercial interests of the newspapers of the first district. This organization had little or nothing to do with starting the anti-Tawney movement. That revolt had its inception at a Dodge county meeting at Dodge Center, with but three weekly newspapers represented. As a matter of fact many of the newspapers of the district were on the fence in the primary campaign, even after Anderson had come out as an avowed candidate, and did not support his candidacy until after his nomination."

"Mr. Anderson's friends realize and appreciate that he is a poor man and could not afford to maintain a press bureau, even though he were inclined that way, which I understand he is not. There is no question in my mind that this matter of post office patronage is largely responsible for the action taken. However, I do not consider that the resolutions reflect the general sentiment of the press of the first district at all. I feel absolutely safe in asserting that the Owatonna meeting will be a big boost for Anderson and that the reaction now setting in in his favor will "make him stronger with his people than ever."

Senator Clapp made two addresses in Deleware this past week, speaking at Dover and Middleton. He spoke under the auspices of the Progressive Republican League in behalf of the popular movement cause.

Boost Your Home Industry

The retailer is not the cause of the increased cost of living. It is not so much a question of the high cost of living as it is "the cost of high living," as is shown by the increased per capita consumption of the necessaries of life:

	1900	1909
	lbs.	lbs.
Raw Cotton	22.57	29.53
Sugar	65.20	82.24
Coffee	9.81	11.74
Tea	1.09	1.20
Raw Wool	5.72	6.67
	bu.	bu.
Wheat	4.74	6.22
Corn	24.44	29.71

Distilled Spirits	1.27	1.37

Cost of Production Regulates Price.

Ricardo, the eminent French political economist, says: "It is the cost of production which must ultimately regulate the price of commodities, and not, as has been [illegible] said, the proportion between supply and demand. The proportion between supply may, indeed, for a time, effect the market value of a commodity, until it is supplanted in greater or less abundance according as the demand may have increased or diminished; but this effect will be only of temporary durations."

A glance at the figures showing the increase of wages, in general expense and in the cost of materials for manufacturing goods in 1900 and 1905 will make clear what an important factor the increased cost of production has been in increasing the cost of goods to the consumer—in present high prices:

	1900	1905
Wages	$2,009,735,799	2,611,540,532
General Expense—
	905,600,225	1,455,019,478
Cost of Materials—
	6,577,614,074	8,503,949,756

It must be clear to any student of the subject that the increased cost of production on farm and in the factory and not the retailer is one of the important factors in the increased cost of living.

The retail merchant is an essential —a necessary factor in production and distribution. Boost the retailer and you'll be boosting one of Thief River's most useful industries.

Swindlers are Caught

The other day down in Massachusetts were brought to justice four men who had swindled the people out of $150,000 by selling bogus copper stock in what they called the Chelon Copper company, incorporated in the state of Washington. Business men and Farmers alike were separated from their hard earned dollars in a desire to become suddenly rich.

By all signs we will have another six weeks of winter and should be satisfied if we get thru with it then.

The board of directors of the Cooperative store met last week to settle up last year's business. The years business amounted to $21,000, and a dividend of 6 per cent per member and 3 per cent non-member was declared on all cash purchases. This, we think, is doing well, as all goods have been sold on a close margin. To show what a 6 per cent dividend amounts to, there will be quite a number who will receive from $15 to $20, quite a nice Christmas present.

A debating contest was held Sunday evening in the school house—subject, Country Life Vs. City Life. The judges decided "Country Life" had one point the better of the debate. The same evening efforts were made to start a young peoples association and the enthusiasm with which the idea was received makes the prospects look good for such an association.

The annual meeting of the Co-operative Store Company will be held the 28th of February, this year. The board thought it advisable to hold the meeting two weeks earlier than usual on account of the bad roads we generally have in March.

Enird Ose sold two team of oxen to Ole Johnson last week.

Mr. John M. Johnson has traded away his kicker. No damage to take a ride with him now, girls.

Mr. John Easthouse has sold his big chestnut team.

Ole Johnson had bad luck Sunday one of his oxen suffered a broken leg.

Oscar Juppru is hauling lumber from out east. What are you going to build Oscar?

Mr. and Mrs. Ole Johnson called at John Esplee's Sunday.

John Easthouse called at G. Skomedal's Saturday. You know the school teacher is boarding there.

Olaf Skomedal and Jim Russel were out with their trotting oxen Sunday.

A LIBERAL OFFER.

We Guarantee to Relieve Dyspepsia. If We Fail the Medicine Costs Nothing.

To unquestionably prove to the people that indigestion and dyspepsia can be permanently relieved and that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets will bring about this result, we will furnish the medicine absolutely free if it fails to give satisfaction to any one using it.

The remarkable success of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is due to the high degree of scientific skill used in devising their formula as well as to the care exercised in their manufacture, whereby the well-known properties of Bismuth-Subnitrate and Pepsin have been combined with Carminatives and other agents

Bismuth-Subnitrate and Pepsin are constantly employed and recognized by the entire medical profession as invaluable in the treatment of indigestion and dyspepsia.

The Pepsin used in Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is carefully prepared so as to develop the greatest efficiency. Pepsin supplies to the digestive apparatus one of the most important elements of the digestive fluid. Without it the digestion and assimilation of food are impossible.

The Carminatives possess properties which aid in relieving the disturbances and pain caused by undigested food. This combination of these ingredients makes a remedy invaluable for the complete relief of indigestion and dyspepsia.

We are so certain of this that we urge you to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets on our own personal guarantee. Three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at our store — The Rexall Store

A STATE DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION

The St. Peter Free Press, in which a good deal of sound sense seems associated with a rather waspish disposition, deprecates sectionalism in state development.

It notes that there is a Northern Minnesota Development association, and that there is talk of a Western Minnesota Development association. Presently, it doubts not, there will be a Southern Minnesota Development association. Why not, instead of all these, a Minnesota Development association, it asks.

There is no reason on earth why there shouldn't be a state development association. There ought to be no sectional development association. There ought to be no need of any, but since there was a need, the Northern Minnesota Development association came into being, and it will exist so long as there continues to be a need for it. There would be no need for it if the state at large had given sufficent consideration to the needs of Northern Minnesota.

If Southern Minnesota—which has an interest in the development of Northern Minnesota itself—wants to get in on a Minnesota Development association, let it get aboard.

The nucleus for such an association is already in existence. The Northern Minnesota Development association will serve the purpose nicely. Let all the rest of the counties join it, as the thirty-three Northern Minnesota counties have done. Let them send delegates and participate in the active and practical work that is being performed. And when they have joined some Northern Minnesota member will be the first to propose an amendment to drop the word "Northern" and make it the Minnesota Development association; thereby driving sectionalism out of the state and uniting all parts of the commonwealth in a common movement for the greater glory and prosperity of the entire state.

The fact that there is a Northern Minnesota Development association constitutes in itself an indictment of Southern Minnesota for indifference and neglect. The interests of the two halves of the state are common. The citizen of Rock county or Nicolet county has the same ownership in the state's dormant resources in Northern Minnesota as the citizen of Roseau county or St. Louis county. Both should be interested in seeing the state's idle acres tilled and producing wealth and paying taxes. But both haven't been. The citizen of Northern Minnesota has labored under the handicap imposed by these idle acres, which pay no taxes, help build no roads, schools or churches, are tenanted only by trees or stumps. Wearying of this handicap, tiring of the state's neglect. Northern Minnesota formed its development association.

That association is asking reapportionment, so that the voting power in the legislature of a citizen of Northern Minnesota shall balance the voting power in the legislature of a citizen of Southern Minnesota. It is asking that the state give more attention to the settlement and development of its idle acres, and(better still, it is doing practical work to that end by financing an immigration bureau and by fostering road building on a large scale. It ought not to be compelled to do this work alone, because it is work that benefits and profits all parts of the state.

By all means let there be a Minnesota Development association, and let sectionalism cease. The way to bring that about is for Southern Minnesota, and to join hands with the association already formed and working to that end. The restrictive word "Northern" will be dropped the moment it is no longer needed.—Duluth Herald.

Last Saturday, February 3rd, the Co-operative Store Co, of Thief River Falls opened a sale of their entire Stock. From all indications, the opening must have been the largest and most successful sale ever held by any Department Store in Pennington County. Mr. Sternberg, representing the T. K. Kelly Sales System Co., tells us, that, in all his years as a Sales Manager, never yet has he seen so many eager buyers as he has at this Sale. Great Preparations had been made, to receive a large number of people, but when the doors opneed last Saturday morning, the entire force of 65 clerks, including the Managers, found themselves over powered.

From early morning until late at night, there was hardly standing room. During no former Sale has there been anything like the crowd at this Sale, and the Manager, Mr. Jensen, tells us that the opening day of this Sale exceeded by thousands of dollars their expectations.

Saturday will be Farmers' day at this Great Sale. There will be greater Bargains offered on this day than ever before and the management requests the Public to do their buying early in the day, owing to the large crowds in the afternoon and evening.

For bargains read their advertisement on page 7.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR LIQUOR LICENSE

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington, City of Thief River Falls, ss.

Notice is hereby given, that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said City of Thief River Falls and filed in my office, praying for License to Sell Intoxicating Liquors for the term commencing on the 1st day of March, 1912, and terminating on the 28th, day of February 1913, by the following person, and at the following place, as stated in said application, respectively, to-wit:

Worked an Old Trick.

One of the solons under the gilt dome of the Massachusetts statehouse swears this happened to him. Have you heard it—back in the rattle days?

"Six of us went down on the cape duck shooting soon after the season opened. I was not much of a shooter, so the gang thought they would put one over on me and assigned me to a blind where no ducks ever were known to go and went away and left me there. From an hour before sunrise until late afternoon I stuck to the job, but nary a quack.

"That night at the table I absentmindedly cut open a shell and was surprised at the number of small shot it contained. After more or less airing of opinions on projectiles from each 'expert' a pool was made up on the number. Fifty bucks—ten a head—is not a bad day's work, I think. Eh? How? What do you suppose I was doing for twelve hours in that blind?"

And yet they wonder at some of the bills that get by the sacred codfish.—Boston Traveler.

EDWIN HAWLEY.

Railroad Magnate Dies After a Brief Illness.

EDWIN HAWLEY, RAIL MAGNATE, IS DEAD

Prominently Known as Head of Hawley Lines.

New York, Feb. 2.—Edwin Hawley, chairman of the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad and one of the leading railroad magnates in this country, died at his home here after an illness of several weeks.

Mr. Hawley had been a sufferer from nervous indigestion for some time and for the last few weeks had been confined to his home.

Mr. Hawley was sixty-one years of age and his earliest railroad service began in 1867 as a clerk on the Erie railroad, but his most important work was done between 1890 and 1902 in the service of the Southern Pacific, where he was the right hand man of the late Collis P. Huntington. The so called Hawley system of railroads has been built up within the last fifteen years.

Among the companies of which Mr. Hawley was a director are the Colorado and Southern railway, Colorado Fuel and Iron company, the Evansville and Terre Haute railway, the Minneapolis and St. Louis, the Iowa Central and the Hocking Valley railroad.

That Held Him.

A Yankee clinched his heated argument with an Englishman as to the relative size of the Thames and Mississippi by saying:

"Why, look here, mister, there ain't enough water in the whole of the Thames to make a gargle for the mouth of the Mississippi."

Husbands.

"The majority of husbands complain that their hands are always in their pockets."

"They do, do they? Then why don't they find there the letters they have forgotten to mail for their wives?"—Baltimore American.

What Did He Mean?

"I have been buying on and off at a little antique shop in a side street," said a woman who lives at an uptown hotel. "I had been in the habit of going to the shop on foot and, of course, had been waited on by one of the clerks.

"Among the things I had purchased was a spoon, and I decided that I would call and get another to match it. This time I drove up with a coachman and footman, and the proprietor himself welcomed me. Before he could wait on me, however, he was called away, and he summoned a young woman. As he turned to go I overheard him whisper to her, 'G. W.'

"The young woman took out the spoon I was after. The price she said was $10.

"'But,' I protested, 'I got one here only the other day and paid only $7.50 for it.'

"She looked a bit confused. Then she took up the spoon and examined the label closely. 'Oh, I made a mistake,' she said. 'The price is only $7.50.'

"Now, what I have been puzzling over is, what did the proprietor mean by the 'G. W.' he whispered?"—New York Sun.

Royal Authors Need Editing.

Royal authors sometimes need a deal of editing. A glaring instance is Frederick the Great, whose spelling and punctuation astounded Carlyle. "As teure" for "a cette heure" was a specimen of the former, and, as for punctuation, he never could understand the mystery of it. He merely scatters a few commas and dashes, as if they were shaken out of a pepper box, upon his page and so leaves it.

"How," asks Carlyle, "can such slovenliness be explained in a king who would have ordered arrest for the smallest speck of mud on a man's buff belt, indignant that any pipe clayed portion of a man should not be perfectly pipe clayed?" He can only conclude that Frederick really cared little about literature, after all. Also "he never minded snuff upon his own chin, not even upon his waistcoat and breeches."

"I am a king and above grammar," said another monarch.—London Chronicle.

An Unusual Bequest.

Among the most eccentric of testators are those who make bequests of their bodies. In 1871 a Mr. Sanborn of Medford, Mass., bequeathed his body to Professor Agassiz and Oliver Wendell Holmes, requesting that it should "be prepared in the most scientific manner known to anatomic science" and placed in the museum at Harvard. He also directed that his skin should be made into two drum heads to be presented to his "friend and patriotic fellow citizen, Warren Simpson," on condition that he beat on them the national air of "Yankee Doodle" at the foot of the monument on Bunker hill at sunrise every 17th of June. On one drumhead was to be inscribed Pope's "Universal Prayer" and on the other the Declaration of Independence.—Exchange.

The Very Best Make.

A commercial traveler remarked the other day to a storekeeper: "Get yourself a cash register. It will keep strict and accurate account of all you receive and all you disburse. It will show what you save and what you squander, what you spend foolishly and what you spend wisely, where you should spread out and where you should retrench, what you waste and how you waste it."

"But," said the storekeeper, "I've already got a cash register which does all that and more."

"Whose make is it?" asked the salesman, frowning.

"God's make," the storekeeper replied, and with a smile at once reverent and grateful he nodded toward his handsome wife seated in the cashier's cage.—Exchange.

THIEF RIVER PRESS

THE PURPOSE OF ALL IS THE PROGRESS OF HUMANITY

VOL. XXV THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1912. NO. 24

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

LEE FOR GOVERNOR

Progressive Republicans Indorse Wm. E. Lee For Governor At Meeting Held Saturday Night.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted at a meeting of the Hennepin county Progressive Republican League in Minneapolis on Saturday evening, Feb. 10:

We the Progressive Republicans of Hennepin County, believe that the time has come when the forces of good government should take an active part in the fight to restore the government of the State to the people. We declare our earnest and sincere conviction that the situation in the Republican party in this state is unprecedented. The party will be swept away—and ought to be—if present influences and conditions are to be perpetuated. Progressive government in the state has been thwarted, and progressive legislation strangled by the special interests which control the party caucuses, delegates, and conventions, and, through control of the machinery of State Government, dictate nominations and platforms, elect Legislatures, and State and County officials. The present administration has utterly failed to administer the affairs of government in a competent, or constructive manner, and is thoroughly discredited in the minds of all thoughtful people.

We believe that the success of this contest largely depends upon the selection of a candidate for Governor who stands squarely upon genuine progressive principles; who recognizes clearly the need of the application of these principles in the business administration of the State.

Be It Resolved, that we believe William E. Lee of Lang Prairie, to be a man who fulfills these conditions and we hereby endorse his candidacy for Governor, and pledge him our support in securing the nomination and election.

We believe that the great mass of republicans in Minnesota are opposed to machine control. The Republican party controlled the last legislation, and the special interests controlled the party. The domination of the brewers, the Steel Trust, the Railroads, Municipal Service Corporations and kindred interests, was complete. Attempts to secure the initiative and referendum, recall, statewide primary, selection of presidential candidates by popular vote, corrupt practice, civil service, and employer's liability acts, were defeated by those allied interests. This combination of special interests which systematically defeated the people's will, was donimated by a corrupt and discredited political manager in close and intimate association with the present Governor of the State. This machine is making determined efforts to continue the exploitation of the state and the spoilation of the people, by attempting again to foist the present administration upon them.

We charge that the machine—

1. Has refused to grantthe people a larger measure of control in Government, as expressed in the Initiative the Referendum, the Recall, a State Wide Primary, Corrupt Practice act, Selection of Presidential candidates by popular vote, Civil Service, and Employer's Liability acts.

2. It has been wasteful in public revenues.

3. It has refused to adequately tax the great corporations, thereby shifting onto the small taxpayers of the state the major portion of the burden of a state tax aggregating $15,000,000 annually.

4. By dominating the railroad and warehouse commission, it has prevented relief from railway rate discrimination, thereby forcing upon shipper and consumer alike unfair and discriminatory burdens.

5. It has permitted brewery domination of affairs, state and local.

FOR GOVERNOR

Wm. E. Lee, who says Minnesota needs a good business administration.

6. It has used the public domain of the state, not for the legitimate purposes of settlement and development, but to foster speculation and confer benefits on a privileged few.

7 It has given away vast areas of our timber and mineral lands, and refuses to conserve that which is left.
